Convention Instructions

- 1) Come to the camp with open heart and teachable spirit, Bible, Jotter, Camp programme and pen.
- 2) We will be fasting throughout this year's convention. It is therefore important to sincerely prepare your heart to seek the Lord and devote every available moment to prayer as we humble ourselves before Him and trust Him for a great visitation.
- 3) Please do not come to the tent of meeting (auditorium) with earpiece, phone chargers, Food/small chops/chewables and mobile phones/Tablets. For those who want to use mobile phones/tablet applications as Bible, we suggest you avoid distraction to yourself and others and come with hard copy Bible. It is a temptation when a call, SMS, chat, Facebook message, tweet, gaming alerts etc. comes in as you use the Bible part of the phone. Avoid anything that may create divided attention at a special convention like this. COME WITH HARD COPY BIBLES AND AVOID USE OF PHONES AS BIBLE
- 4) In the hostel, please do not come with expensive personal items like Laptop, I-pad etc. Stove, Pots, Boiling Ring, Adaptor, Electric Iron, Football, Electric Kettle and any form of sharp objects are disallowed and will be seized when found.
- 5) All campers must dress appropriately in ways that glorify God.
- 6) All sisters must cover their head/hair. All skimpy, body-revealing or tight-fitted dresses are strongly discouraged. All brothers must dress decently with no caps/hats at the tent of meeting.
- 7) We are using multiple hostels within the Redemption Camp and it is important that all campers move with everyone at the same time. We have also arranged for the law enforcement agencies to help with the movement. No one is allowed to move alone
- 8) No camper should bring merchandise of any kind for sale or broker a sales arrangement with an external trader. No camper is here for trading (e.g photography, selling of any kind)
- 9) All individual/group Christian books, magazines, fliers, programme, posters, cassettes and CDs/VCDs/DVDs for sale/exhibition/display or free distribution must be approved by the National Coordinator or his delegates.
- 10) While we have no convention this T-shirt this year, we remind all participants that we do not allow customised "T" shirt with individual names, we live to glorify the Lord, in words and in deed.
- 11) This Convention is not a pleasure trip; each day should be spent studying, fellowshiping, praying and planning to fulfill God's purpose for your life. Do not disappoint God.
- 12) Anointing flows best when the atmosphere is made conducive. Avoid foolish talking, abusive language, jesting, chatting, use of mobile phones and unnecessary distractions.
- 13) Be patient: One of the tactics of the devil to hinder your blessing is to cause you to be impatient with God and with your fellow brethren. Bear with whatever inconveniences you may encounter. Do not grumble.
- 14) Stay in with God: Nobody is permitted to leave the camp, except on written approval of the Camp Commandant through the Head, Registration Unit. Do not go outside for any purchases, the supermarket is there to attend to your needs.
- 15) Be clean: Cleanliness is next to Godliness. Keep yourself, the hostels and the camp clean. Do not litter or mess around. Dust bins have been provided for use. There are special water tanks provided for cleaning of hands. Make sure you wash your hands after you use any of the conveniences.]
- 16) Be available: Make sure you attend all sessions, jot your points and take time to pray.
- 17) Be healed: If you are not feeling fine, feel free to consult the First Aid Clinic or report to any Camp Worker.
- 18) Counselling: For career, emotional and spiritual counselling, visit the Counseling Department.
- 19) Wear your tag at all times and do not take another person's bed spaces. All tags/registration will have specific bed spaces – ONLY GO TO ROOMS/BED SPACES ALLOCATED TO YOU. If you did not register, don't attempt to go to any hostel that is not allocated to you. Do not follow your friends to their rooms, please check the room and bed space that is specifically allocated to you.
- 20) Be careful of new friends you exchange your contact details with at the camp. Please report any strange behavior, suggestive/immoral exchange of materials /videos/contents/messages/papers made by any camper to you or someone around you.
- 21) Great programmes do not make a great person, only great decisions do. As a true revival army, spend time reflecting on the messages and making decisions to live by after the Convention. For only the doers of the word shall be blessed!

- 22) The Convention is the beginning of a journey. The Convention will only be meaningful if you go back to your local fellowship and be an active agent of revival through active involvement as a revival army in your local Church, campus and community.

"For the Lord thy God walketh in the midst of the CAMP to deliver thee... therefore shall thy camp be HOLY that He sees no unclean thing in thee" Deut. 23:14.

Health advisory from the Clinic Ministry

"Beloved, I pray that you may prosper in all things and be in health, just as your soul prospers." 3 John 1:2 (NKJV)

We give all glory to Jehovah-Rapha, the Lord our Healer, for preserving us in sound health throughout our previous conventions. We are confident that His healing presence will again abide with us throughout this year's Bootcamp Convention, in Jesus' name. Amen.

As we prepare ourselves spiritually for this life-transforming convention, let us also prepare ourselves physically, because our bodies are the temple of the Holy Spirit.

"Do you not know that your bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit...?" 1 Cor. 6:19

Kindly take note of the following health guidelines:

(1) Prepare yourself health-wise before coming

"A prudent person foresees danger and takes precautions." Proverbs 22:3 (NLT)

- Ensure that you get adequate rest in the days leading up to the convention.
- Eat balanced meals and remain well hydrated.
- If you develop any illness before the convention, seek appropriate medical attention promptly.
- Avoid postponing treatment in the hope that the condition will resolve during the convention.

(2) Come with your regular medications

"The wise store up knowledge..." Proverbs 10:14

If you have been diagnosed with any chronic medical condition, such as Hypertension, Diabetes mellitus, Asthma, Epilepsy, Seizure disorder, Sickle cell disease, Heart disease, and other long-term medical condition

Please come with an adequate supply of all your prescribed medications to last throughout your stay at the convention. Do not skip your medications because you are fasting or attending spiritual activities without proper medical advice.

(3) Stay safe throughout the convention

"The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in." Psalm 121:8

For your safety:

- Drink plenty of clean water.
- Observe good hand hygiene.
- Wash your hands before eating and after using the restroom.
- Dress according to the weather.
- Avoid unnecessary exposure to the sun.
- Eat properly whenever your fasting schedule permits.
- Report any unusual symptoms early.

(4) Medical services during the convention

By the grace of God, the Clinic Ministry will commence operations on Tuesday, 25 August 2026, to attend to emergency medical needs throughout the convention.

Qualified medical personnel will be available to provide emergency medical care.

(5) 24-hour emergency medical coverage

Emergency medical services will be available 24 hours daily throughout the convention.

In the event of any medical emergency, kindly contact: Damilare: 08035918156, Gold: 07034764227 and Oluwasesan: 08056438684

Please do not delay in reporting emergencies.

(6) Use the clinic appropriately

"Let all things be done decently and in order." 1 Cor. 14:40

The clinic is primarily established to attend to medical emergencies and urgent health conditions during the convention.

Kindly avoid visiting the clinic for non-emergency complaints unless referred or advised by the medical team. This will enable us to respond promptly to genuine emergencies.

(7) Special instructions for pregnant mothers

Pregnant brethren are kindly advised as follows:

If your pregnancy is 33 weeks or less:

- Come with all your routine medications.
- Come with your antenatal record.
- Bring your latest obstetric ultrasound scan report.

If your pregnancy is above 33 weeks (late third trimester):

For your safety, you are strongly encouraged to participate in the convention through the online platform.

However, if attendance at the camp is unavoidable, you must:

- Report to the clinic immediately upon arrival.
- Come with a recent obstetric ultrasound scan performed within the last two weeks before the convention.
- Come with your antenatal records.
- Bring all prescribed medications.
- Come with your baby delivery items.
- Ensure that you have an identified means of transportation should a referral become necessary.

(8) Parents and guardians

“Children are a heritage from the Lord.” Psalm 127:3

- Supervise your children at all times.
- Ensure that they remain adequately hydrated.
- Do not allow children to wander around the camp unattended.
- Bring medications for children with asthma, allergies, seizures, or other chronic illnesses.

(9) In the event of any medical emergency

- Do not attempt self-medication for serious conditions.
- Immediately notify any Clinic Ministry official or call the emergency contacts provided.
- Early presentation often leads to better outcomes.

Safe fasting guidelines for the convention

A. Preparation for the convention fast

1. Prepare your body gradually

- Avoid overeating in the days leading up to the fast.
- Eat balanced meals that include whole grains, lean protein, fruits, vegetables, and healthy fats.

2. Stay well hydrated

- Increase your water intake in the days before the fast.
- Limit excessive intake of sugary beverages, as they may contribute to dehydration.

3. Get enough sleep

- Aim for seven to nine hours of sleep each night before the fasting period.
- Adequate rest helps the body adjust better to fasting.

4. Plan ahead

- Schedule demanding physical activities wisely and avoid unnecessary physical exertion.

B. Your disposition during the fast

1. Stay hydrated

- Kindly ensure that you drink water at the permitted times during the fast.
- Be alert to possible signs of dehydration, including:
 - Feeling unusually sluggish or tired
 - Dry mouth or a swollen tongue

- Dark yellow or amber-coloured urine

2. Listen to your body

- Mild hunger may be expected during fasting.
- However, persistent dizziness, confusion, fainting, chest pain, severe weakness, or heart palpitations should not be ignored.
- Please visit the clinic immediately if you experience any of these symptoms.

3. Conserve your energy

This is especially important for members of the SOP.

- Avoid strenuous activities and excessive physical play.
- Gentle walking or stretching may be appropriate.
- Avoid unnecessary physical and emotional stress.

4. Maximise rest periods

- Ensure that you rest as much as possible during breaks and designated rest periods.

C. What to do when breaking the fast and after the convention

- Drink enough water when breaking the fast.
- Eat the meals provided instead of buying junk food.
- Do not overeat. This is very important.
- Avoid excessive amounts of sugary drinks, snacks, and fried foods.

31 YEARS, 31 GREAT QUOTES...

1. If you miss the momentum of the moment, you will become a monument to the movement
2. God needs our availability and not our ability
3. In the vision, we shall find our future
4. We are sent to depopulate hell and populate heaven
5. When there is no vision, the people perish and when there are no PEOPLE, the vision may perish.
6. It is the fire that you have that you will use to draw men out of the fire of the Devil (OMO INA LAA RAN SI INA)
7. Every increase and lifting we experience in our lives is for the sake of the work. Every promotion we enjoy must help me to be more relevant to the work
8. My WORTH in life is measured by my WORK with the God of this mandate
9. The depth God takes our heart in true consecration and brokenness determines the height we can go for Him on the earth.
10. If God cannot do it in our HEARTS, He cannot work it out through us on the EARTH.
11. It doth not yet appear what we shall be...
12. You are CARRYING God or the Devil is carrying you
13. Let every man be fully persuaded
14. The Lord in the midst of us is mighty
15. For He is the lifter up of our heads
16. Sin makes the anointing become annoying-things
17. Goodbye world, I am staying no longer with you, goodbye pleasures of sin. I have made up my mind to go God's way the rest of my life.
18. Anointing flow over me, cover my head to toe, you are the power of the Lord, o Lord I pray
19. All the proVISION needed are there, when we run with the VISION
20. I pledge allegiance to the Lamb, with all my strength and with all I am
21. You cannot be small in a GREAT HOUSE!
22. The greatness of a GREAT God is at work in me
23. Wheresoever it shall be found, it will be fixed
24. No haste, no waste; no shaking, no breaking
25. We will contend and not pretend. No errors, no terrors. No blending, no bending...
26. Even in the storm, we don't conform, in His grip, we will not trip.
27. Rebuild, Raise Up, Repair and Restore. You will be known as a people who repair, rebuild, raise up and restore. We treasure the ancient word because it keeps us our track on the ancient path where the Ancient of Days keeps His people within the ancient landmark.
28. We cannot be full, and our churches, campuses and communities are empty of Christ and Godliness.
29. We are called to be "trading" and not "trending". Occupy and don't become occupied.
30. The greatest knowledge is the knowledge of God's will

AN EXCEEDING GREAT ARMY. EZEKIEL 37:1-10

Convention 2026 is an exceptional one, where God's desire is to bring us unto the grace of the beginning. No matter how far we have gone or how hopeless the situation appears (very dry bones) (Eze 37:11b), He is set to gather us to Himself, fix every areas / issue such that the outcome does not appear like what had happened to us. Luke 15:22.

The hand of the Lord upon Ezekiel initiated the process, and the mercy of God executed the transformation, as seen in Prophet Ezekiel's total submission to God - "O Lord God, thou knowest" (Ezekiel 37:3).

As we have come to this "Boot Camp" where the Lord will be attending to lives and situation, it is very important that individual aligns with the Lord as we have collectively been doing for the past weeks to accomplish what He wants to do in raising very dry bones to become exceeding great army. All participants should align daily in fasting, consistent prayers, intentional attendance of every session with a heart to receive from the Lord. Set your personal expectations and present them, if confronted with questions, trust in the love and the ability of God to resolve every issue in your favour and to His glory.

Dry bones shall rise again, this is the assurance that we have from the Lord, nothing else matters, be it in individual lives, families, fellowships, churches, body of Christ and the Nations. We have come under the exalted hand of the Lord, that doeth valiantly. (Psalm 118:16-17). Because of the mighty hand of the Lord, all dead situation is reversed and life is activated in Jesus name. We shall not die but live to declare the works of the Lord.

The voice of the Lord shall visit every situation and none shall escape it, (Psalm 29: 3-11). The majestic power of the voice of the Lord shall be made manifest, breaking all barriers and limitations to His glory in our lives in Jesus name.

May you experience the breath of the Lord that births life in Jesus name.

You are welcome to the place of encounter with the hand, the voice and the breath of God.

Make this declaration faithfully everyday:

- * My dry bones will rise again by the breath of the Lord and I shall live.
- * Every dryness – prayerlessness, lack of hunger for God, lack of desire for the Word is broken; I receive fresh hunger for God.
- * Every broken altar is rebuilt; fire is rekindled; my spirit burns again for the Lord.
- * Every dry bone in my life, marriage, home, ministry, academics, career, and business receives a fresh visitation from God.
- * My local fellowship receives fresh revival fire to raise army for the Lord.
- * I arise a repairer of the breach and a restorer of paths to dwell in. I am a builder of the old waste places and I raise up the ancient foundations, revival is restored, in Jesus name.
- * I shall not disappoint God or waste His investment upon my life at this Convention 2026.
- * I am returning with fresh fire, grace, and a renewed commitment to serve His purpose in my local church, campus, and community, in Jesus name.

Welcome to Convention 2026

GREAT ARMY

They were dry, they were lifeless
They had no breath
They were dead and the bones dry, they had no flesh
But a word came forth
That the dry bones should live
There was a noise and the bones were joined together
The sinews and the flesh were restored
And the flesh covered the dry bones eh eh
They rose up and became great army of the Lord of the Lord
An army of revival
Chrs: The breath of the Lord
The breath of revival can make dry bones become a great army
Let the bread of the Lord
The breath of revival, come upon us we'll be a great army
Great army to take over the world
Great army to gain souls for the Lord
Great army to bring the captives home
Great army to bring back the lost souls
The breath of the Lord
The breath of revival can make dry bones become a great army
Let the bread of the Lord
The breath of revival, come upon us we'll be a great army

BREATHE ON US

| 1. Breath of God, come from Heaven
Breathe upon these slain again.
By your power we are restored,
Alive again to praise your name. Chorus:
Breathe on us Oh Lord we pray.
Your breath of life, your living fire. 2. Breath of God, come from Heaven,
Turn all our reproach into joy.
Heal our land and make us whole.
Let your living waters flow | 3. Breath of God, come and revive us.
Restore every broken heart.
Speak your life into our dry bones,
Make us an army strong and bold. 4. We arise by your mighty power,
We stand by your grace alone.
An exceeding great army for you,
To proclaim your glory on Earth. |

HYMNS

Stand up, stand up for Jesus

Stand up, stand up for Jesus,
Ye soldiers of the cross;
Lift high His royal banner,
It must not suffer loss.
From victory unto victory
His army shall He lead,
Till every foe is vanquished,
And Christ is Lord indeed.

Stand up, stand up for Jesus,
The solemn watchword hear;
If while ye sleep He suffers,
Away with shame and fear;
Where'er ye meet with evil,
Within you or without,
Charge for the God of battles,
And put the foe to rout.

Stand up, stand up for Jesus,
The trumpet call obey;
Forth to the mighty conflict,
In this His glorious day.
Ye that are brave now serve Him
Against unnumbered foes;
Let courage rise with danger,
And strength to strength oppose.

Stand up, stand up for Jesus,
Stand in His strength alone;
The arm of flesh will fail you,
Ye dare not trust your own.
Put on the Gospel armor,
Each piece put on with prayer;
Where duty calls or danger,
Be never wanting there.

Stand up, stand up for Jesus,
Each soldier to his post,
Close up the broken column,
And shout through all the host:
Make good the loss so heavy,
In those that still remain,
And prove to all around you
That death itself is gain.

Stand up, stand up for Jesus,
The strife will not be long;
This day the noise of battle,
The next the victor's song.
To him who overcometh
A crown of life shall be;
They with the King of Glory
Shall reign eternally.

I Pledge Allegiance to the Lamb

I pledge allegiance to the Lamb
With all my strength, with all I am
I will seek to honor His commands
I pledge allegiance to the Lamb

I have heard how Christians long ago
Were brought before a tyrant's throne
They were told that he would spare their lives
If they would renounce the name of Christ
But one by one they chose to die
The Son of God they would not deny
Like a great angelic choir sings
I can almost hear their voices ring

I pledge allegiance to the Lamb
With all my strength, with all I am
I will seek to honor His commands
I pledge allegiance to the Lamb

Now the years have come,
and the years have gone
But the cause of Jesus still goes on
Now our time has come to count the cost
To reject this world, to embrace the cross
And one by one let us live our lives
For the one who died to give us life
Till the trumpet sounds on the final day
Let us proudly stand and boldly say
I pledge allegiance to the Lamb
With all my strength, with all I am
I will seek to honor His commands
I pledge allegiance to the Lamb

To the Lamb of God who bore my pain
Who took my place, who wore my shame
I will seek to honor His commands
I pledge allegiance to the Lamb

I pledge allegiance to the Lamb
With all my strength, with all I am
I will seek to honor His commands
I pledge allegiance to the Lamb

It Pays to Serve Jesus

- 1 It pays to serve Jesus, I speak from my heart;
He'll always be with us, if we do our part;
There's naught in this wide world can pleasure afford,
There's peace and contentment in serving the Lord.

Refrain:

I love Him far better than in days of yore,
I'll serve Him more truly than ever before;
I'll do as He bids me, whatever the cost,
I'll be a true soldier — I'll die at my post.

- 2 And oft when I'm tempted to turn from the track,
I think of my Savior — my mind wanders back
To the place where they nailed Him on Calvary's tree—
I hear a voice saying, I suffered for thee. [Refrain]

- 3 There's a place that remembrance still brings back to me,
'Twas there I found pardon — 'twas Heaven to me;
There Jesus spoke sweetly to my weary soul,
My sins were forgiven, He made my heart whole. [Refrain]

- 4 How rich is the blessing the world cannot give,
I'm satisfied fully for Jesus to live;
Tho' friends may forsake me, and trials arise,
I'm trusting in Jesus, His love never dies. [Refrain]

Take my Life and Let it

1. Take my life and let it be consecrated, Lord, to thee.
Take my moments and my days;
let them flow in endless praise,
let them flow in endless praise.
2. Take my hands and let them move at the impulse of thy love.
Take my feet and let them be swift and beautiful for thee,
swift and beautiful for thee.
3. Take my voice and let me sing always, only, for my King.
Take my lips and let them be filled with messages from thee,
filled with messages from thee.
4. Take my silver and my gold;
not a mite would I withhold.
Take my intellect and use
every power as thou shalt choose,
every power as thou shalt choose.
5. Take my will and make it thine;
it shall be no longer mine.
Take my heart it is thine own;
it shall be thy royal throne,
it shall be thy royal throne.
6. Take my love; my Lord, I pour at thy feet its treasure store.
Take myself, and I will be ever, only, all for thee,
ever, only, all for thee.

Breathe on me, breathe of God

Verse 1

Breathe on me, breath of God,
Fill me with life anew,
That I may love what Thou dost love,
And do what Thou wouldst do.

Verse 2

Breathe on me, breath of God,
Until my heart is pure,
Until with Thee I will one will,
To do and to endure.

Verse 3

Breathe on me, breath of God,
Till I am wholly Thine,
Till all this earthly part of me
Glows with Thy fire divine.

Verse 4

Breathe on me, breath of God,
So shall I never die,
But live with Thee the perfect life
Of Thine eternity.

Onward Christian Soldiers

1 Onward, Christian soldiers,
marching as to war,
with the cross of Jesus
going on before!
Christ, the royal Master, leads against the foe;
forward into battle,
see, his banners go.

Refrain:

*Onward, Christian soldiers,
marching as to war,
with the cross of Jesus
going on before!*

2 At the sign of triumph
Satan's host doth flee;
on then, Christian soldiers, on to victory!
Hell's foundations quiver at the shout of praise;
Brothers, lift your voices, loud your anthems raise.
Refrain: Onward, Christian soldiers,

3. Like a mighty army moves the Church of God; Brothers, we are treading where the saints have trod;
we are not divided,
all one body we,
one in hope and doctrine,
one in charity.
Refrain: Onward, Christian soldiers,

4. What the saints established that I hold for true.
what the saints believed,
that I believe too.
Long as earth endureth, men the faith will hold, kingdoms, nations, empires, in destruction rolled.

Refrain:

Onward, Christian soldiers,

5. Crown and thrones may perish, kingdoms rise and wane, but the Church of Jesus constant will remain;
gates of hell can never
'gainst that Church prevail;
we have Christ's own promise, and that cannot fail.

Refrain:

Onward, Christian soldiers,

6. Onward, then, ye people,
join our happy throng;
blend with ours your voices in the triumph song:
glory, laud, and honor,
unto Christ the King;
this through countless ages men and angels sing.

Refrain:

Onward, Christian soldiers,

Allelujah, Allelujah, Allelujah !

1 The strife is o'er, the battle done;
the victory of life is won;
the song of triumph has begun.
Alleluia!

2 The powers of death have done their worst,
but Christ their legions has dispersed.
Let shouts of holy joy outburst.
Alleluia!

3 The three sad days are quickly sped;
he rises glorious from the dead.
All glory to our risen Head.
Alleluia!

4 He closed the yawning gates of hell;
the bars from heaven's high portals fell.
Let hymns of praise his triumph tell.
Alleluia!

5 Lord, by the stripes which wounded thee, from death's dread sting thy servants
free,
that we may live and sing to thee.
Alleluia!

As I journey through the Land

- 1 As I journey through the land singing as I go,
Pointing souls to Calvary—to the crimson flow,
Many arrows pierce my soul from without, within;
But my Lord leads me on, through Him I must win.

*O I want to see Him, look upon His face,
There to sing forever of His saving grace;
On the streets of Glory let me lift my voice;
Cares all past, Home at last,
Ever to rejoice.*
- 2 When in service to my Lord dark may be the night,
But I'll cling more close to Him, He will give me light;
Satan's snares may vex my soul, turn my thoughts aside;
But my Lord goes ahead, leads whate'er betide.
- 3 When in valleys low I look toward the mountain height,
And behold my Savior there, leading in the fight,
With a tender hand outstretched toward the valley low,
Guiding me, I can see, as I onward go.
- 4 When before me billows rise from the mighty deep,
Then my Lord directs my bark; He doth safely keep.
And He leads me gently on through this world below;
He's a real Friend to me, O I love Him so.

Sweetest note in seraph song, sweetest name on mortal tongue;
sweetest carol ever sung,
Jesus, blessed Jesus.2. Your many sins are all forgiven, oh! hear the voice of Jesus;
go on your way in peace to heaven,
and wear a crown with Jesus. | <ol style="list-style-type: none">3. All glory to the risen Lamb!
I now believe in Jesus;
I love the blessed Savior's name,
I love the name of Jesus.4. His name dispels my guilt and fear,
no other name but Jesus;
oh! how my soul delights to hear the charming name of Jesus. |

Convention 2026 Bible Study

An Exceeding Great Army

Anchor Verse: “So I prophesied as he commanded me, and the breath came into them, and they lived, and stood up upon their feet, an exceeding great army.” (Ezekiel 37:10)

Introduction: From Dry Bones to an Exceeding Great Army

In our anchor text, we see how Ezekiel first saw dry bones that were weak, scattered and without life. Yet God did not abandon them in that condition. His Word brought order, His breath brought life, and what had been helpless stood as an exceeding great army. This is a practical manifestation of what true revival is, when the Lord graciously restores dry lives, corrects what is out of order, renews spiritual strength and raises people who can stand faithfully for Him at their duty posts in churches, campuses, workplaces and communities.

This prophetic picture of the valley of dry bones speaks directly to TACEF and The African Church. We may have a long fellowship history, organise many programmes, continue year after year with church outreaches that we call “revival”, and remain active members for many years, yet our personal altars may have become dry. The Word may no longer govern our decisions, hidden sinful habits may be growing, and ministry activities may have gradually replaced genuine intimacy with Christ. When this happens, we need more than another programme; we need the Lord to intervene. We need Him to breathe upon us again, restore spiritual life, correct what is out of order and raise us from dryness into an exceeding great army: Spirit-quicken, Word-formed, consecrated, disciplined and mission-ready under the command of Christ.

This study focuses on the making of the army and the character of God’s army, as we apply the learning to our lives so that each of us produces the real evidence of a revival army in how we live and serve at our respective duty posts.

Opening Discussion

- What can “dry bones” look like in someone who still claims to be part of a revival army, while actively busy in a local fellowship, ministering on the altar or serving regularly in a local church?
- How can a person be very active for God but gradually lose spiritual life in their secret life? What are the warning signals?

Section 1: The Making of the Army

In the process of raising men to serve His purpose in a generation, God does not merely recruit available people but forms a well-made people He can trust and deploy. Jesus first called the twelve “that they should be with him” before He sent them to preach (Mark 3:14). There is a “being with Jesus” before the “sending”. God cannot send a life that does not represent Him because we cannot give what we do not have. Below are the key principles of the divine making of God’s end-time army:

- Salvation is the entry and discipleship is the process of divine making for the army: No one is enlisted into Christ’s army by church membership, baptism, confirmation, family background, repeated Convention attendance or TACEF membership. We must be genuinely born again through repentance and faith in Christ (John 3:3). The saved believer must then be discipled, groomed and equipped (Ephesians 2:10; 4:11-13).
- A consistent personal altar is compulsory for divine use: God is a jealous God, and He will not depend on a life that does not know Him or have a continuing relationship with Him. This is where a personal walk with God and a daily altar of quiet time, prayer, the Word and holy living come in. A worker may lead prayer, teach, sing or organise programmes while personal Bible study and prayer are collapsing. Such a person is becoming unusable as God’s army because anyone who does not have a consistent personal walk with God cannot consistently deliver for the Lord as a vessel. For if we have not spent time with Him, we have nothing to bring out of our lives. (John 15:4-5; Mark 1:35; Joshua 1:8)
- An army must win the inner wars before it can win external wars: Sin must have no dominion over a soldier. While we can do a lot in spiritual warfare to defeat the enemy, a true soldier focuses on winning the closest battle - the battle over sin. Daily victory over ungodly thoughts that are contrary to Christ, daily victory over temptations, and the daily discipline of carrying the cross, crucifying the flesh, putting it under and denying self are very important battles that every revival soldier must win. In the words of Hebrews 12:4, we must resist sin and win. (Romans 6:12-14; Luke 9:23; 1 Corinthians 9:27)

- d. Divine grooming of an army: In every nation, soldiers are trained in different ways. They go through rigorous and intense routines and rhythms that are demanding and sacrificial. These are the sacrificial routines of an army. For a true revival army, there must be a consistent sequence of regular personal retreats, fasting and fasted life, self-denial of what is available to others, contentment, learning to survive in the worst places, and living for the sake of others. (1 Timothy 4:7–8; 1 Corinthians 9:25–27; 2 Timothy 2:3–4)

Discussion

- Which part of God's making do Christians most often try to bypass: salvation, discipleship, correction, etc., and why?
- Why is winning the internal war against sin more important for God's exceeding great army than just winning the external wars?

Section 2: The Character of God's Army

An army is defined by discipline, loyalty, preparedness, endurance and obedience to the Commander. In the same way, the evidence that God has revived us will be seen in the kind of people we become afterwards. For by their fruits, we shall know them. Scripture gives clear marks of a good soldier of Jesus Christ, and some are below:

- a. A soldier seeks to please the One who enlisted him: A soldier has only one goal: to please the One who has called him to be a soldier. (2 Timothy 2:3). A soldier does not live to please friends, family or colleagues at work. They do not live their lives by social trends, as they have only one focus governed by this question: "Will this please Christ?" This confronts the desire for self, sin, human applause, titles, social-media validation, peer approval, money or comfort. A true soldier is willing to obey Christ even when the decision is unpopular.
- b. A soldier refuses entanglement: "No one serving as a soldier gets entangled in civilian affairs" (2 Timothy 2:4 NIV). A true revival soldier is not influenced, led or trapped by worldly lifestyles and cultural influences such as endless social media, entertainment, unhealthy relationships, money pursuits, betting, pornography, comparison, get rich quick, ambition, or any legitimate activity that begins to crowd God out.
- c. A soldier endures hardness: A good soldier endures pressure and suffering (2 Timothy 2:3). Being a revival army at our duty post may involve opposition, rejection, abuse, disregard, lack of recognition, denial of rights, sacrifice, misunderstanding or even little or visible results. In TACEF or The African Church, a revival-minded believer may meet resistance while advancing the mandate of revival. Our call to hardness and endurance means remaining faithful at our duty post without bitterness, compromise, pride or withdrawal, while seeking wisdom and mature counsel.
- d. A soldier is strong in the Lord: Our strength is not in our personal achievements, charisma, education, position, family background, experience or human connections, but the Lord (Ephesians 6:10-12). Truth, righteousness, faith, salvation, the Word of God and prayer are the sources of strength for the Lord's army, not how much they can talk, how much politics they can play in the church, or even their family background and influence in the local church.
- e. A soldier watches, builds and serves others: Every soldier is a watchman who carries others before God and is always on watch to provide spiritual defence for others, ensuring that children are not exposed to ungodly living, families are protected from sexual perversion, and the church is shielded from satanic doctrines, sinful atmosphere and spiritual coldness. A soldier serves in this position through intercession, as they see evil coming and rise to defend as true soldiers (Habakkuk 2:1; Ezekiel 33:7).

Discussion

- Discuss examples of entanglements that distract a soldier in our times and how they can be avoided.
- As a revival soldier in a local church in The African Church or on a campus, discuss examples of practical areas where we must demonstrate hardness and endurance as good soldiers of Christ.
- Discuss how a true revival soldier can be a watchman who protects the people of God from spiritual decay, perversion and pollution.

Personal Reflection

Am I truly alive and growing in Christ, or am I becoming spiritually dry while remaining active in fellowship and ministry? Is my personal altar of prayer, the Word and holy living consistent? Have I submitted to God's process of making through discipleship, correction, obedience, self-denial and spiritual discipline, or am I trying to serve without first being formed? What inner battles am I still losing? Is sin, distraction, comfort, ambition or the desire to please people weakening my devotion to Christ? Do I endure hardship as a good soldier, depend on the Lord rather than myself, and remain faithful when service becomes difficult?

Am I functioning as a watchman at my present duty post, carrying others in prayer and standing for spiritual life in my family, fellowship, campus, workplace and church? After this Convention, what specific evidence of revival should become visible in my life, character, discipline, intercession and service, and who will help me remain accountable?

Conclusion

God did not merely make the dry bones look better; He brought them into life, order and usefulness. Convention 2026 must therefore be a place of encounter where the Lord restores the dry, strengthens the weak, corrects the disordered, deepens the shallow and breathes afresh upon His people until they stand as an exceeding great army.

For TACEFites, the evidence of a true encounter is seen in genuine conversion, pleasing Him who has called us to be soldiers, not being entangled with the affairs of this world, winning the inner battle against sin, and being strong in the Lord and not in ourselves.

Every revival soldier must rise as a watchman with evident fruit: a daily quiet-time person, a disciplined student, a faithful worker, responsible in the family, a burdened intercessor, a member who strengthens the local fellowship and serve as a revival agent in The African Church. The army is made before it is useful, and its usefulness is sustained by character.

Closing Prayer Focus

- Lord, breathe afresh upon every dry, weak and dying area of my life; restore my personal altar and make me spiritually alive again.
- Lord, give me grace to submit fully to Your process of making through discipleship, correction, obedience, prayer, fasting and a disciplined daily walk with You.
- Lord, form in me the character of a faithful soldier of Christ: one who seeks to please You, refuses worldly entanglement, endures hardness and draws strength from You alone.
- Lord, make me a faithful watchman at my duty post, and let the evidence of this Convention be seen in lasting obedience, holy living, and spiritual fruit after I leave camp.

Assurance of Salvation

Memory Verse: "I write these things to you who believe in the name of the Son of God so that you may know that you have eternal life" 1 John 5:13.

Key Texts: John 3:16; Ephesians 2:8-9; John 10:27-29; Romans 8:14-17; 1 John 5:11-13; 2 Corinthians 5:17; John 17:3

Seminar Objectives:

- Understand genuine salvation as the entry point into eternal life and a personal relationship with God through repentance and faith in Jesus Christ, beyond religious familiarity or church activities.
- Distinguish genuine conversion from religious experiences, recognising that baptism, church attendance, confirmation ceremony, Convention participation, ministry service, or emotional altar calls do not by themselves constitute salvation.
- Understand the biblical foundation of assurance, including faith in Christ, God's promises, the finished work of Christ, the witness of the Holy Spirit, and the evidence of a transformed life.
- Recognise and respond rightly to doubts, guilt and spiritual struggles, distinguishing the Holy Spirit's conviction from condemnation, understanding biblical warnings about falling away, and knowing when to seek help from mature believers.
- Develop a life of confident faith and discipleship through Scripture, prayer, obedience, personal testimony, and accountable TACEF fellowship, so that genuine converts are established in their faith rather than repeatedly seeking salvation through emotional responses.

Introduction: Salvation is a personal encounter, not guesswork.

Genuine salvation is not meant to be guesswork. It begins with the new birth: a sinner convicted of sin responds to the gospel in repentance and faith, receives new life in Christ, and begins a transformed direction. It is not merely an emotional response, a quick verbal confession, or participation in a sinner's prayer at the altar. Jesus said, "You must be born again" (John 3:7), and Scripture declares that "if anyone is in Christ, the new creation has come" (2 Corinthians 5:17).

Many people may have been baptised as infants, confirmed, grown up in The African Church, belonged to TACEF for years, attended Convention repeatedly, served in the choir or Sunday School, or responded emotionally to altar calls. Yet none of these automatically equals a personal experience of salvation through repentance and faith in Christ. Salvation is "by grace... through faith" (Ephesians 2:8-9), and eternal life is to "know you, the only true God, and Jesus Christ" (John 17:3). Religious familiarity must therefore not be mistaken for genuine conversion.

True salvation brings new life in Christ, and that new life should increasingly become visible in holy living, hunger for God and a changed relationship with sin. It does not mean instant perfection or the absence of temptation, failure or seasons of doubt. Rather, it marks a new direction: the believer grows in fellowship with God and increasingly becomes like Christ. This is why Scripture can say, "you may know that you have eternal life" (1 John 5:13).

Key Principles

(1) Understand what genuine salvation means:

Genuine salvation is a personal response to the gospel through repentance and faith in Jesus Christ. It is not merely becoming religious, morally upright or participating in church activities. Jesus said, "You must be born again" (John 3:7), and anyone in Christ is a "new creation" (2 Corinthians 5:17).

This is especially important in The African Church, where many may have grown up in church activities and become familiar with church programmes. Infant baptism, confirmation, years of church membership, repeated TACEF Convention attendance, service as Sunday School teacher, TACEF membership, or emotional altar calls do not automatically constitute salvation.

Practical guideline:

- Repent and believe: Personally turn from sin and place your faith in Christ.
- Do not substitute familiarity for conversion: Church/TACEF membership, baptism or service cannot save.
- Know your testimony: Be able to clearly explain how you came to know Christ.
- Examine your life: Look for evidence of transformation, not merely religious activity. By their fruits we shall know them.

- Settle the matter: If you have never genuinely responded to Christ, do not assume you are saved because you have always been among brethren.

(2) Understand what assurance of salvation is and what it is based on:

Assurance is the confidence that, having repented and believed in Christ, we have eternal life according to God's promise. It rests on Christ's finished work and God's Word, and is confirmed by the witness of the Holy Spirit and the evidence of a transformed life. "I write these things... so that you may know that you have eternal life" (1 John 5:13; John 10:27-29; Romans 8:14-17).

Practical guideline:

- Anchor your assurance in the Word of God: Trust God's Word, not changing feelings.
- Look to Christ: Remember what He has done rather than constantly measuring your performance.
- Maintain fellowship with God: Develop a consistent life of quiet time of reading the Bible, prayer and worship.
- Know God's promises: Meditate on passages such as John 10:27-29 and 1 John 5:11-13.
- Keep your testimony: Know and remember how you came to Christ and boldly share it.
- Stay connected: Remain in local fellowship for teaching, encouragement and accountability.
- Submit to discipleship: Prayerfully identify a mature brother or sister for guidance and accountability.

(3) Recognise the evidence that should accompany genuine conversion:

Genuine salvation produces fruit and a changed life. The believer is not immediately perfect, but there should be growing evidence of a new relationship with God which will include hunger for His Word, hatred of sin, obedience, love for God's people, prayer and a desire to become like Christ.

The question is not whether you ever stumble, but whether the direction of your life is toward Christ and growing obedience. A genuine believer may stumble or fall into sin, but will not deliberately settle into, justify, or make peace with a life of sin.

Practical checklist for self-examination: Do I genuinely desire fellowship with God? Do I respond to sin with repentance or justification? Am I increasingly obeying God's Word? Is Christ's character becoming more visible in my life? Am I growing in love for other believers? Am I becoming spiritually mature, or merely familiar with church and TACEF programmes? Can those close to me see evidence of Christ's work in my life? Am I accountable to a discipler?

(4) Know how to respond when doubts, guilt and failure come:

Sincere believers may struggle with assurance because of temptation, failure, spiritual immaturity, difficult circumstances or dependence on feelings. Failure should not make a believer run away from God. "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us" (1 John 1:9).

Distinguish the conviction of the Holy Spirit from condemnation: Conviction identifies sin and leads to repentance and restoration, but condemnation drives shame and withdrawal. After honest confession and repentance, do not keep carrying guilt as though Christ has not forgiven.

Practical guideline:

- Examine: Identify whether the issue is unconfessed sin, spiritual dryness, fear, failure or dependence on feelings.
- Confess: Where there is genuine sin, repent, confess it honestly and receive God's forgiveness.
- Return: After confession, reject self-condemnation and resume obedience and fellowship with God.
- Seek help: Speak with a mature believer when doubts persist.
- Remain in fellowship: Do not withdraw because of failure or shame.
- Stop repeating emotional decisions: If you have genuinely come to Christ, persistent doubt may require Scripture, discipleship and accountability, not another altar call.

(5) Distinguish assurance, presumption, temptation, failure, deliberate rebellion and apostasy:

Biblical assurance of salvation is confidence in our relationship with Christ based on His saving work and promises. It must not be confused with conditions that can weaken, contradict or ultimately reject a genuine walk with Him. Scripture therefore calls believers to watchfulness, repentance and perseverance.

Practical distinctions:

- Temptation: The pressure or desire to sin. Being tempted is not the same as yielding to sin or abandoning Christ; resist it and depend on God for victory.
- Failure: Falling into sin or disobedience. A believer who falls should confess, repent, receive God's forgiveness and return to obedience.
- Spiritual immaturity: Weakness resulting from limited growth, understanding or discipline. It requires teaching, correction, discipleship and deliberate growth.
- Presumption: Claiming the security of salvation while deliberately ignoring God's call to holiness. Grace must never become an excuse for continuing in sin.
- Deliberate habitual rebellion: Knowingly choosing and continuing in sin while resisting conviction, correction and repentance. Such persistence hardens the heart and places the soul in serious spiritual danger. Repent, forsake the rebellion and return to Christ (Hebrews 3:12–13; 1 John 3:6–10).
- Apostasy: A deliberate rejection or abandonment of Christ and the faith once professed. It is different from temptation, doubt or a temporary fall and is treated with the utmost seriousness in Scripture. (Hebrews 10:26–29; 2 Peter 2:20–22)

(6) Continue and grow in Christ after salvation:

Salvation begins the Christian journey, and it is not the end. Every genuine convert should be connected to a discipler and local fellowship for follow-up. TACEF must raise believers established in Christ, not people repeatedly making emotional decisions without spiritual growth.

Practical pathway for continuing in Christ:

- Daily: Keep a quiet time of worship, Scripture study, prayer and intentional holy living.
- Weekly: Practise personal fasting; join the TACEF Tuesday fasting and prayer; and seek extended fellowship with God for consecration, deeper hunger and the infilling of the Holy Spirit.
- Monthly: Join the TACEF Covenant Fasting on the first day of the month and set aside time for personal consecration.
- Quarterly: Take a deeper spiritual retreat and assessment through fasting, prayer and honest examination of your spiritual walk.
- Remain in fellowship: Stay connected to your local TACEF fellowship weekly activities and be connected to mature TACEF brethren for discipleship and accountability.
- Practise obedience: Let your assurance produce a transformed life.
- Seek help early: Do not wait until spiritual struggles become crises. Ask for help on time

Conclusion:

God does not intend His children to live in perpetual uncertainty. "I write these things... so that you may know that you have eternal life" (1 John 5:13).

Therefore, examine yourself honestly. If you have only inherited a church identity or TACEF membership, settle your salvation personally now. If you belong to Christ but struggle with doubt, return to His Word. If you fall, repent and return; if stagnant, seek help and become established. God is raising not merely TACEF members, but a people genuinely alive in Christ: assured, consecrated, growing and ready for His use.

Building and Maintaining a Disciplined Daily Walk with God

Memory Verse: “Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me.” — John 15:4

Key Texts: Joshua 1:8; Psalm 1:1-3; John 15:4-5; Leviticus 6:13; Luke 5:16; James 1:22; Acts 2:42; Hebrews 10:24-25; Proverbs 27:17; Hebrews 12:1-2

Seminar Objectives:

- Understand abiding in Christ as the foundation of a disciplined and fruitful Christian life.
- Build a daily quiet-time rhythm of Scripture, prayer, worship, meditation and Spirit-led holy living.
- Develop weekly, monthly and annual spiritual habits that sustain growth beyond special programmes.
- Recognise and overcome modern enemies of consistency, including digital distraction, poor sleep and ministry busyness.
- Remain accountable through Christian fellowship, discipleship and healthy spiritual relationships.
- Recover quickly and wisely when spiritual discipline becomes inconsistent or breaks down.

Introduction: A relationship sustained through daily communion

Every building begins with a foundation. In the same way, every Christian life must be built on Jesus Christ (1 Corinthians 3:11). Yet a sound foundation does not remove the need for ongoing spiritual development. A neglected building deteriorates over time; likewise, a believer who repeatedly neglects prayer, Scripture, holiness and fellowship will experience spiritual decay and stagnancy.

The Christian life begins with salvation, but it is sustained through abiding in Christ. Jesus did not call His disciples merely to have occasional encounters with Him; He said, “Abide in me” (John 15:4). Convention, retreats, fellowship time, prayer meetings and other spiritual gatherings can ignite fresh hunger, but they cannot replace the secret place of one-on-one fellowship with God as a daily altar fire.

For every TACEFite, disciplined devotion is therefore not an attempt to earn God’s acceptance but a grace-enabled way of creating regular space for communion with God so that His Word, Spirit and presence increasingly shape our character, decisions, lifestyle and spiritual fruitfulness.

Key principles

(1) Understand abiding in Christ as the foundation: A disciplined walk with God begins with relationship, not just routine. Prayer, Bible study, fasting, and meditation are means of remaining attentive and responsive to Christ and they must never become empty religious activities.

- Practical guideline for abiding in Christ
- Make abiding personal: Do not depend on general corporate events like Convention, fellowship programmes or another person’s devotion to keep your own spiritual life alive.
- Keep Christ central: Let every spiritual discipline lead to deeper fellowship with Jesus rather than mere completion of a routine.
- Use the TACEF Read-the-Bible-in-One-Year cycle: Read consistently, but move beyond “What did I read?” to “What is God showing me and what must I do?”
- Watch for spiritual fruit: Growing obedience, holiness, love, humility, spiritual sensitivity and usefulness to God are more important than an impressive devotional record.
- Carry communion into the day: A daily walk with God means remaining responsive to Him in decisions, relationships, work, school and service - not only during the quiet-time period.

(2) Build a daily quiet time of the Word, prayer and Spirit-led living: Jesus regularly withdrew to pray (Luke 5:16), showing that spiritual strength requires intentionality. A quiet time is therefore a protected appointment with God, not a religious checklist. It should include Scripture, prayer, worship, meditation, memorisation and practical obedience, while remaining flexible enough for different seasons of life.

Practical guideline for a daily spiritual rhythm

- Schedule a realistic appointment: Choose a time and place you can protect consistently rather than copying another person's routine.
- Engage Scripture prayerfully: Read, study, meditate, record key lessons in a private jotter and identify specific applications to your daily walk with God and life routine.
- Use Scripture memorisation: Participate intentionally in the TACEF Son of Purpose daily memorisation discipline so that God's Word is stored in the heart.
- Cultivate a balanced prayer life: Include worship, thanksgiving, confession, intercession, personal petitions, current ministry burdens and time to listen and respond to God's leading
- Practise worship as a lifestyle: Let worship continue beyond the opening and closing of quiet time into the way you live through the day.
- End with obedience: Identify at least one truth to practise, attitude to change, instruction to obey or person to respond to, each time you come to the presence of God.

(3) Develop weekly, monthly and annual spiritual habits and rhythms: A healthy spiritual life needs rhythms beyond daily devotion. Longer periods of fasting, prayer, fellowship, evangelism, reflection and retreat create room for deeper examination and renewal. These practices should support grace-driven consistency, not become a basis for pride or comparison.

Suggested measurable spiritual rhythm

- Daily: Maintain prayer, Scripture, meditation, reflection and practical obedience. Cultivate a life of self-denial and spiritual alertness, not merely occasional fasting.
- Weekly: Participate in TACEF Tuesday fasting and prayer, remain active in local fellowship, make a deliberate evangelistic effort and create a longer period for prayer or Bible study.
- Monthly: Conduct a personal spiritual review and, where possible, include an extended period of prayer, fasting or retreat.
- Annually: Complete a Bible-reading cycle, take a personal retreat, review recurring weaknesses, and set clear priorities for spiritual growth.
- After Convention and major spiritual gatherings: Write down major convictions and decisions, then translate them into daily and weekly practices so that spiritual encounters become sustained habits.

(4) Overcome modern enemies of consistency: One of the greatest challenges to spiritual discipline today is the competition for attention. Phones now function as communication platforms, entertainment centres, classrooms, workplaces and newsrooms. Endless WhatsApp activity, social media, streaming, late-night browsing, work pressure, commuting, school demands, parenting responsibilities and even ministry busyness can quietly crowd out the secret place.

Practical guideline for protecting the secret place

- Create phone-free periods: Keep notifications and unnecessary digital activity away from prayer and Bible-study time. Do not be praying and at the same time playing with your phone.
- Do not begin every day with your phone: Allow God's Word and prayer to shape the first part of the day before social-media traffic takes over.
- Protect sleep: Repeated late-night browsing and entertainment can destroy morning devotion and weaken concentration.
- Build devotion around real life: A student, parent, commuter and shift worker may need different schedules. The principle is deliberate, protected communion with God, not one rigid timetable.
- Control entertainment and social-media use: Set practical boundaries around WhatsApp, Instagram, TikTok, YouTube, streaming and other attention-consuming platforms.
- Do not let ministry replace intimacy: Bible reading only for a sermon, teaching or fellowship assignment is not the same as feeding your own soul.

(5) Remain accountable in Christian fellowship: God did not design the Christian life to be lived in isolation. TACEF fellowship provides encouragement, correction, and shared spiritual burdens. Mature disciplers and trusted believers can also ask the questions that public Christian activity often hides: How is your prayer life? Are you still in the Word? What temptation keeps returning? Are you obeying what God has shown you?

Practical guideline for healthy accountability

- Remain active in local TACEF fellowship: Do not allow work, relocation, marriage, school transition or ministry responsibility to quietly disconnect you from fellowship.
- Participate in fellowship spiritual rhythms: Carry current ministry prayer burdens and serve responsibly rather than remaining a spectator.
- Maintain a discipler or mature-believer relationship: Allow someone trustworthy to ask honest questions and provide biblical correction.
- Choose accountability wisely: Look for honesty, wisdom, spiritual maturity and healthy boundaries; same-gender accountability is generally the safer model for personal spiritual matters.
- Do not pretend: Accountability becomes useful only when the real struggles, inconsistencies and temptations can be discussed honestly.
- Stay connected to the wider fellowship: Private devotion and corporate worship strengthen one another; neither should replace the other.

(6) Recover quickly when spiritual discipline breaks down: Even sincere believers can experience seasons of inconsistency. There may be missed prayer times, irregular Bible study, travel, exhaustion, distraction or sin that damages fellowship with God. The danger is allowing one missed day to become a new pattern and then allowing shame to make returning to God feel harder. Spiritual maturity includes learning how to return quickly and rebuild wisely.

Practical guideline for recovery

- Return immediately: Do not wait for Monday, a new month, Convention or another special programme before beginning again with miss your spiritual rhythm.
- Identify the real cause: Was the breakdown caused by sin, poor sleep, an unrealistic schedule, phone distraction, travel, discouragement, work pressure or family demands?
- Remove practical roadblocks: Reorganise time, reduce distractions, repair sleep patterns or seek help where necessary.
- Repent where sin is involved: Confess honestly, receive God's forgiveness and return to obedience rather than remaining in condemnation.
- Reconnect with accountability: If the pattern keeps returning, speak with your discipler or a mature believer and agree on practical next steps.

Conclusion: Abiding in Christ is the secret of a fruitful spiritual life

A strong spiritual life does not happen accidentally. It is sustained through abiding in Christ, Scripture, prayer, holiness, fellowship, accountability and dependence on the Holy Spirit. Every TACEFite must therefore examine not only the altar displayed publicly, but the private altar nobody sees: the Word we read when nobody is asking, the prayers we pray when nobody is leading, the sins we reject when nobody would know and the obedience we practise when there is no applause.

The goal is not a perfect timetable but a life that keeps returning to Christ and growing in communion, holiness and obedience. Let nothing detach you from Christ, abide in Him, be rooted in His grace and find expression in the daily altar of encounter with God because, "the fire shall ever be burning upon the altar; it shall never go out" (Leviticus 6:13).

Becoming God's Trusted Discipler and Builder of Men

Memory Verse: “And the things that thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also.” 2 Timothy 2:2

Key Texts: Matthew 28:19-20; Mark 3:14; 1 Corinthians 11:1; 2 Timothy 2:2; 2 Timothy 3:16-17; Hebrews 5:12-14; Titus 2:1-8

Seminar Objectives:

- Understand biblical discipleship as helping people become mature followers of Christ, not followers of the discipler.
- Understand the character, trust, confidentiality and boundaries required before being entrusted with another person's spiritual formation.
- Establish a practical and accountable one-to-one discipleship rhythm that helps a believer grow in Christ and in everyday life.
- Raise disciples who become thoroughly furnished for every good work and increasingly capable of discipling others.

Introduction: God desires multiplication through transformed lives

God's purpose has always included multiplication. He created humanity in His image and called people to reflect His character and purposes in the earth. Jesus later demonstrated this through discipleship: He called people to be with Him, taught them, corrected them, entrusted them with responsibility and prepared them to carry the gospel beyond His physical presence.

TACEF therefore cannot fulfil a revival mandate by gathering people around programmes alone. Revival must be reproduced in lives. Mature believers must intentionally help younger believers become rooted in Christ, disciplined in spiritual life, sound in character, effective in service and capable of helping others grow. Yet this responsibility must be handled carefully because discipleship can become unhealthy when a discipler begins to seek ownership, unquestioning loyalty or personal dependence.

The disciple belongs to Jesus Christ. A trusted discipler is therefore a steward, not an owner; a guide, not a “mini-god”; an example, not the final voice of God in another person's life. The question is not merely whether we can teach others, but whether God can trust us to build lives without manipulating them.

Key principles

(1) Understand biblical discipleship: we make disciples of Christ, not followers of ourselves: Biblical discipleship is an intentional relationship in which a more mature believer helps another believer grow through Scripture, example, prayer, accountability, correction and service. Jesus modelled this by calling the Twelve “that they should be with him” before sending them out (Mark 3:14). Paul could also say, “Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ” (1 Corinthians 11:1). The discipler's authority is therefore always limited by Christ and Scripture.

Practical guideline for Christ-centred discipleship

- Point continually to Christ: Every lesson, correction and counsel should help the disciple know, obey and depend on Jesus rather than become dependent on the discipler.
- Be a disciple before discipling others: Keep your own prayer life, Bible study, holiness, accountability and obedience current to be a true example worth following.
- Treat discipleship as stewardship, not ownership: The person belongs to Christ. You are temporarily entrusted to help that life mature.
- Model what you teach: Let the disciple see consistency between your public teaching and private conduct.
- Aim for maturity and multiplication: Successful discipleship should increasingly produce a believer who can study Scripture, make responsible decisions under God, serve others and eventually disciple another person.

(2) Become a trusted discipler through character, confidentiality and healthy boundaries: A discipler is not merely someone with knowledge but someone whose life is safe enough to influence another person for the Lord. Trust is built over time through faithfulness, humility, confidentiality, gentleness and example. It must never be extracted through pressure, fear, guilt, spiritual intimidation or claims such as “God told me you must obey me.” Healthy discipleship produces increasing dependence on Christ, not increasing personal control by the discipler.

Safeguards and practical boundaries

- Do not become a “mini-god”: Never demand total loyalty, insist on being part of every decision or behave as though the disciple needs your permission to obey God.
- Prefer same-gender discipleship: Brothers discipling brothers and sisters discipling sisters should normally remain the preferred model.
- Maintain marital transparency: Married disciplers should keep appropriate transparency with their spouses and avoid secret or emotionally intimate relationships with disciples.
- Use appropriate meeting places and times: Avoid situations that create unnecessary emotional, moral or reputational risk.
- Protect confidentiality: Information shared in confidence must not later be used to embarrass, threaten, control or win an argument.
- Maintain clear financial boundaries: Do not create emotional or financial dependency, borrow from a disciple, or use spiritual influence to obtain personal support.
- Do not isolate the disciple: Encourage healthy relationships with family, local TACEF fellowship, and other mature believers.
- Know the limits of your role: Refer medical, mental-health, safeguarding, legal or other specialised matters to appropriate pastoral or professional support when necessary.

(3) Establish a practical one-to-one discipleship rhythm: Discipleship requires more than occasional counselling or informal conversation. It is intentional and sustained investment in a life. Begin in prayer, establish a clear and healthy relationship, agree on a realistic meeting rhythm, review previous commitments and allow the word of God to address both spiritual life and everyday conduct. Accountability should be agreed and purposeful, not imposed as control.

A practical discipleship meeting can review

- Salvation and relationship with Christ: Is the disciple established in the gospel and growing in assurance, prayer and Bible reading?
- Character and victory over sin: What recurring temptations, attitudes, habits or relationships require repentance, discipline or support?
- Fellowship and relationships: Is the disciple active in local fellowship, relating well with family and building healthy Christian relationships?
- Academics, career, work and finances: Is Christian diligence, integrity and responsibility visible outside the prayer room?
- Evangelism, ministry gifts and service: Is the disciple learning to witness, serve and use God-given capacities responsibly?
- Current challenges and previous commitments: What was agreed at the last meeting, what progress has been made and what practical next step is required?

Practical rhythm for the discipler

- Pray before and after meetings: Ask God for wisdom, discernment and grace rather than relying on experience alone.
- Listen before correcting: Understand the situation clearly and avoid making assumptions.
- Use Scripture responsibly: Do not weaponise Bible verses to force compliance; explain truth and help the disciple respond to God.
- Share life as appropriate: Discipleship includes example, service and ordinary moments, not only formal lessons. However, be led on what to share or what not to share
- Give increasing responsibility: Allow the disciple to serve, make responsible decisions and learn from experience without possessiveness.
- Review progress periodically: Ask whether the disciple is becoming more like Christ, more responsible, more discerning and less dependent on constant supervision.

(4) Become thoroughly furnished unto every good work: from discipleship to every life expression: Discipleship is incomplete if it produces a person who can pray and quote Scripture but remains careless, dishonest, lazy, or ineffective in everyday responsibilities. Scripture describes the mature believer as “thoroughly furnished unto all good works” (2 Timothy 3:17). The discipler should therefore help the disciple carry Christlike character into studies, career or business, finances, family relationships, ministry gifts, service and public conduct.

- Practical guideline for whole-life discipleship
- Connect spiritual growth to daily responsibility: Prayer, holiness and Scripture should increasingly shape punctuality, diligence, truthfulness, relationships, academic excellence and work ethic.
- Direct the disciple to relevant development platforms: Where appropriate, connect growing believers to TACEF support platforms around academics, professional development, finance, ministry gifts and spiritual disciplines.
- Prepare the disciple to disciple others: 2 Timothy 2:2 describes a multiplying chain - what has been received should eventually be committed to other faithful people.
- Celebrate maturity, not dependency: A discipler should rejoice when the disciple can study Scripture, hear and obey God responsibly, make wise decisions and serve others without constant supervision.

Conclusion: Trusted with lives for the sake of Christ

The Lord is looking for mature believers He can trust with people. Such disciplers are not merely gifted or available; they are accountable, safe, confidential, teachable and deeply committed to Christ. They do not build private kingdoms or loyalty systems. They build people who increasingly know Jesus, obey Scripture, live responsibly and become capable of strengthening others.

TACEF will multiply revival most sustainably when every mature soldier sees discipleship as a stewardship: receiving people from Christ, helping them grow, releasing them into responsible service and preparing them to build others. “The same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also” (2 Timothy 2:2).

Raising Godly Children Through Children's Ministry and Sunday School

Memory Verse: "Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it." Proverbs 22:6

Key Texts: Deuteronomy 6:6–9; Psalm 78:4–7; Matthew 18:1–6; Matthew 19:14; 2 Timothy 3:14–15; John 21:15

Seminar Objectives:

- Understand Children's Church and Sunday School as a strategic mission field for salvation, discipleship and revival among the next generation.
- Recognise the urgent weaknesses in many children's ministries today, including inconsistent teachers, inadequate age-grade engagement and the use of entertainment in place of spiritual formation.
- Develop a deliberate discipleship pathway that continues beyond Sunday through prayer, Bible engagement, TACEF Seed of Purpose and family follow-up.
- Understand the spiritual discipline, discernment, safeguarding boundaries and preparation required of every children's teacher.
- Raise children who make a personal decision for Jesus, grow in biblical truth and become young agents of revival in The African Church.

Introduction: Children's Church is a mission field, not a childcare room

Children are among the most impressionable members of the church. Their hearts are like a clean writing surface on which family, school, media, friends and the church are continually making impressions. What is written early can shape what they believe about God, themselves and the Christian faith for many years. For this reason, Children's Church must never be treated merely as a place to keep children quiet while adults worship. The present reality in many parishes of The African Church makes this assignment especially urgent. Some children do not have consistent teachers. In some churches there are too few workers to provide meaningful age-grade engagement. Others depend almost entirely on elderly mothers who may be willing and available but have not been sufficiently equipped for the developmental and spiritual needs of different age groups. In some places, children are simply shown cartoons or given activities mainly to keep them seated and quiet. This may occupy children, but it does not necessarily disciple them.

The challenge becomes deeper because some children may also observe things happening in the adult church like church tensions, unguarded statements, disrespect for spiritual things or other conduct that contradicts what they are being taught about Christ. There are also many whose parents do not attend the church regularly, some are from homes that do not maintain a family altar or do not consistently model Christian living at home, Children's Church is therefore their strongest pathway to knowing the Lord. The teacher must therefore see every child as a soul to be won, a life to be discipled and a possible instrument of future revival.

Key principles

(1) Restore Children's Church to its true spiritual purpose: Jesus said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me..." (Mark 10:14). The first task is therefore not to entertain children but to bring them deliberately to Christ. A successful Children's Church is not one where children merely remain quiet but a place where they are steadily learning Scripture, praying, understanding salvation, growing in obedience and developing a real relationship with Jesus.

Practical guideline for restoring the spiritual purpose

- Make salvation central: Teach the Gospel clearly and repeatedly in age-appropriate language. Do not assume that a child is saved simply because the parents are Christians or because the child has grown up in church.
- Seek definite spiritual decisions: Create opportunities for children to understand sin, repentance, faith in Christ and assurance of salvation. Follow up those who make commitments rather than treating the moment as the end of the process.
- Replace activities with discipleship: Games, songs, creative learning and carefully selected media may support teaching, but they must never replace prayer, Scripture, worship, and personal spiritual engagement.
- Raise revival-minded children: Help children see that they can pray, witness to friends, obey God, serve others and become examples for Christ now, not only when they become adults.

(2) Build a consistent, sufficient and age-appropriate teaching team: Children of different ages do not learn, reason or respond in the same way. A single undifferentiated class may make genuine discipleship difficult. Part of your effort is to intentionally raise enough teachers and helpers so that children receive consistent care and age-appropriate engagement.

Practical guideline for building the teaching workforce

- Treat teaching as a calling, not a roll-call duty: Children need teachers who are consistent, spiritually prepared and emotionally present, not workers who appear only when their names are on a roster.
- Create age-grade groups where possible: Organise children into practical developmental bands so that Bible explanations, questions, activities and expectations match their level of understanding.
- Recruit and train more workers: Do not leave the entire ministry to a few old mothers or long-serving volunteers. Deliberately identify younger adults, parents and spiritually mature brethren who can be trained to serve alongside experienced workers.
- Use experienced mothers wisely: Value their maturity, patience and spiritual experience, while also strengthening the team with workers who can support lesson design, age-grade facilitation, technology and contemporary child engagement.
- Build continuity: Keep basic records of lessons, attendance, salvation decisions, follow-up needs and teacher assignments so that children do not experience a completely different ministry every Sunday.

(3) Disciple the child beyond Sunday morning: Deuteronomy 6:6–9 presents spiritual formation as an ongoing life process, not a once-a-week event. Few hours on Sunday is rarely enough to counter the many influences children encounter during the rest of the week. Children’s ministry must therefore establish a simple discipleship rhythm that continues between Sundays.

Practical guideline for weekday discipleship

- Give simple weekly spiritual assignments: Provide age-appropriate Bible reading, memory verses, prayer points, short reflection questions or acts of obedience that children can complete before the next Sunday.
- Connect children to TACEF Seed of Purpose: Encourage regular participation in the TACEF Seed of Purpose fellowship every Saturday at 6pm. Where direct participation is difficult, families should use the available pre-recorded Mixlr connection to listen after the session.
- Use the 7-Pillar framework: Apply the TACEF Seed of Purpose 7-Pillar teaching framework as a structured pathway for helping them grow in balanced Christian character and discipleship.
- Pray for children by name: Teachers should maintain a prayer burden for the children under their care, especially those showing spiritual, behavioural, family or emotional concerns.
- Integrate them into TACEF fellowship life: As appropriate, intentionally connect children to local TACEF fellowship activities so that their spiritual development does not depend on one Sunday class alone.

(4) Become a watchman, shepherd and spiritual parent: A children’s teacher needs more than lesson notes. The teacher requires discernment to understand the spiritual condition of children, wisdom to respond to difficult situations and the heart of a shepherd who cares deeply for each child. “Feed my lambs” (John 21:15) is a serious pastoral responsibility.

Practical guideline for spiritual watchfulness and safeguarding

- Observe beyond behaviour: Do not label a restless, withdrawn, aggressive or unusually quiet child too quickly. Pray and seek wisdom about what may be happening in the child’s life.
- Discern harmful influences: Be alert to materials, conversations, games, media, objects or ideas children may bring into the Sunday school that could negatively influence others. Address concerns calmly, wisely and through appropriate church and parent channels.
- Maintain clear relational boundaries: Show warmth and godly affection without creating secret, exclusive or emotionally dependent relationships, especially with older children. Keep counselling and communication transparent and follow sound safeguarding practices.
- Never use spiritual authority carelessly: Do not shame, threaten or manipulate children in the name of discipline. Correct with firmness, love, dignity and age-appropriate wisdom.
- Escalate serious concerns responsibly: Where a child discloses or displays a significant welfare or safety concern, involve the appropriate leadership and responsible adults rather than attempting to manage the matter secretly or alone.

(5) Prepare spiritually and professionally for every session: A teacher should not arrive on Sunday and begin looking for what to teach. Children quickly recognise whether a teacher is prepared, interested and spiritually engaged. Excellence in preparation communicates that their souls matter.

Practical guideline for effective session preparation

- Pray before you teach: Pray for the lesson, the children and specific needs. Ask the Holy Spirit for understanding, compassion, discernment and a clear burden for the session.
- Study the Bible personally: Do not depend only on a lesson manual. Understand the Scripture yourself so that you can explain it faithfully, answer questions and avoid passing errors to children.
- Prepare learning materials early: Have Bible passages, memory verses, visual aids, activities, songs and other teaching resources ready before the class begins.
- Engage rather than lecture: Use questions, demonstrations, repetition, stories, participation, small-group activities and practical examples that help children connect biblical truth to everyday life.
- Manage the class with purpose: Create an orderly, welcoming and joyful environment where every child can participate without allowing entertainment to become the main objective.
- Review and improve: After each session, ask what the children understood, what did not work, which children need follow-up and what should change before the next meeting.

(6) Labour with parents and raise children as agents of revival: The church cannot disciple children effectively while completely ignoring the home. Teachers may need to partner with parents as the Lord may lead and provides opportunity.

Practical guideline for parent partnership and revival formation

- Follow up intentionally: Where a child is repeatedly absent, spiritually troubled or making significant progress, prayerfully engage the parents or guardians through appropriate channels rather than allowing the child to disappear unnoticed.
- Encourage the family altar: Help parents understand the value of simple home prayer, Bible reading, worship and Christian conversation. Provide practical ideas that families can actually sustain.
- Do not condemn struggling parents: Some parents may themselves be spiritually weak or inconsistent. Approach them with humility, prayer and a desire to help rather than superiority or accusation.
- Celebrate and nurture spiritual growth: Recognise children who memorise Scripture, show Christlike conduct or take steps of obedience. Use encouragement to strengthen genuine growth, not competition.
- Prepare them for transition: Do not allow children to disappear spiritually when they outgrow Children's Church. Create intentional pathways into the local TACEF fellowship.
- See every child as a potential revival vessel: Labour until children do more than know Bible stories. Pray that they know Christ personally, love His Word, walk in purity, influence their friends and become part of the revival army God is raising.

Conclusion:

The great need of The African Church is not simply for more Children's Church activities but for spiritually alive teachers who will labour for the salvation and discipleship of the next generation. The children before us are receiving impressions every day from the home, school, media, friends and the church. We must therefore refuse to hand their spiritual formation over to cartoons, occasional volunteers or unstructured Sunday activities.

God is looking for teachers who will see themselves as watchmen, shepherds and spiritual parents, that is, teachers who pray, prepare, study, discern, protect, follow up and remain consistent. They will build age-appropriate learning, partner with God, connect children to TACEF Seed of Purpose and local fellowship, and continue the discipleship process beyond Sunday morning.

Our goal is not merely well-behaved children during service but children who have made a personal decision for Jesus, maintain a growing prayer life, understand Christian character and become young agents of revival. Every child faithfully disciplined today can become a voice for Christ in the family, school, church and generation tomorrow.

"We will not hide them from their children, shewing to the generation to come the praises of the Lord..." Psalm 78:4

Turning the Altar into a Platform for Sustained Revival

Memory Verse: “The fire shall ever be burning upon the altar; it shall never go out.” Leviticus 6:13

Key Texts: Leviticus 6:12–13; 1 Timothy 4:12–16; 2 Timothy 4:1–5; Acts 20:28; Romans 12:1–2

Seminar Objectives:

- Understand that the first responsibility of a minister is to keep the personal altar alive before attempting to revive a congregation.
- Recognise the pressures faced by ministers who pursue genuine revival and preach the authentic gospel in difficult church environments.
- Establish practical spiritual disciplines, accountability structures and support systems that preserve ministerial fire and integrity.
- Maintain financial integrity, sexual purity, family stability and freedom from unhealthy dependence on individuals.
- Use every posting, parish or ministry platform to lead people toward salvation, discipleship, holiness and sustained revival.

Introduction: Building a revival altar that never goes out even amid difficulties and challenges

The altar is more than the physical place from which a minister preaches. It represents the minister's private walk with God, personal consecration, prayer life, knowledge of Scripture and spiritual authority. A minister cannot consistently produce publicly what does not exist in the secret place. This is especially important in The African church. A minister who genuinely desires revival may discover that resistance can arise even from within the church, including from those who prefer tradition to truth, and activity to genuine spiritual transformation. Some ministers also face inadequate or irregular salary and poor welfare support for their families. Others experience fierce church politics, ungodly expectations, discouragement, loneliness or opposition when they preach truths that confront sin.

Paul's charge remains true for all seasons: “Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season...” (2 Timothy 4:2–3). The deeper question for every minister on the altar is how to remain spiritually alive, emotionally stable, financially responsible, morally pure and doctrinally sound enough for God to continually use the minister as a true altar and platform through which people are brought to salvation and revival.

Key principles

(1) Keep your own altar burning: God's instruction in Leviticus 6 is that the fire must not go out. Ministry activity must never replace intimacy with God. Jesus Himself maintained a disciplined prayer life (Mark 1:35).

Practical guideline for sustained spiritual life

- Daily prayer altar: Maintain consistent personal time with God that is not merely preparation for a sermon.
- Daily Bible study: Follow an annual Bible-reading cycle with deliberate meditation and Scripture memorisation. Ministers can participate in the TACEF Read-the-Bible-in-One-Year cycle.
- Weekly and monthly waiting: Maintain a weekly prayer and fasting discipline, with a regular extended period of waiting on God for renewal, direction and self-examination.
- Continuous spiritual learning: Read sound Christian books, revival biographies, missionary literatures and ministry-development materials regularly.
- Personal retreats: Create regular periods of intentional fasting retreats.
- Pre-Sunday prayer discipline: Create good prayer time before Sunday service, with a recommended minimum target of about one to two hours of personal prayer and spiritual preparation. Always prepare for every message you preach. Never preach until there is a clear burden from the Lord. The congregation should encounter a minister who has first encountered God.

(2) Preach the Word even when it is not popular: “Take heed unto thyself, and unto the doctrine; continue in them” (1 Timothy 4:16). Every minister who wants to sustain an altar of revival must resist building ministry around what attracts the largest crowd, what influential members want to hear, what produces the greatest financial response, or endless ceremonies without spiritual substance. The altar must consistently call people toward Christ, repentance, salvation, holiness, Christian character, and readiness for eternity.

Practical guideline for preaching the Word

- Preach from prayer and a clear burden: Seek the Lord concerning what the congregation genuinely needs and minister as the Lord has burdened your heart at His feet.
- Let Scripture govern the message: Build preaching on careful Bible study and the whole counsel of God, balancing salvation, grace, holiness, discipleship, Christian living and eternity.
- Resist manipulation and personality-centred ministry: Do not flatter influential members, twist Scripture for financial response, exaggerate testimonies or use fear and sensational claims.
- Preach truth with courage and love: Confront sin without bitterness or needless combativeness. Let biblical truth be spoken with compassion and love of Christ.

(3) Build a support system: One of the greatest dangers in any challenging ministry is isolation and loneliness. Every minister pursuing a revival mandate needs relationships with other ministers who share the same burden. “Iron sharpeneth iron” (Proverbs 27:17).

Practical guideline for building a strong support system

- Be actively involved in MOTA: Every minister on the altar should intentionally participate in the TACEF Missionary on the Altar (MOTA) fellowship and its activities, like peer prayer sessions. MOTA should be a spiritual support community where ministers pray together, share ministry experiences, learn from more experienced ministers, receive encouragement, discuss difficult situations, correct one another in love and carry one another’s burdens.
- Remain active in TACEF fellowship: Ministerial posting must never become an excuse for disconnecting from the fellowship that helped nurture one’s spiritual life. No matter how demanding church responsibilities become, remain deliberately connected to the local TACEF fellowship.
- Build a local intercessory network: Prayerfully identify spiritually inclined and trustworthy believers within the church who you can meet to regularly meet to intercede together on salvation of souls, restoration of backsliders, the spiritual atmosphere of the church and genuine revival.

(4) Protect the integrity of the altar: A minister of God in The African Church must walk in discipline and caution with total integrity to be a true platform of revival. Paul therefore warned, “Take heed unto thyself...” (1 Tim. 4:16). Clear boundaries are essential to serve on the altar.

Practical guideline for ministerial integrity

- Sexual purity: Avoid secret or emotionally dependent relationships, sexually suggestive communication and compromising one-on-one meetings. Maintain appropriate counselling boundaries and seek accountability immediately when inappropriate emotional attachment begins.
- Financial integrity and unhealthy dependence: Keep all church funds, gifts and expenses transparent and properly accounted for. Avoid manipulative fundraising and preferential treatment based on gifts or support. Beware of becoming dependent on one wealthy or influential individual whose support may later become a bait for control, silence or compromise.
- Personal accountability and relational boundaries: Have mature and trusted brethren who you submit to for accountability. Never allow ministry admiration to become emotional attachment or personal control.

(5) Protect your family and build sustainable support: Many sincere ministers in The African churches serve under significant financial pressure. Some churches provide inadequate or irregular salary. Where church income is inadequate, ministers should prayerfully and responsibly consider legitimate additional means of family support without breaking church rules or compromising ministry. Paul sometimes worked with his own hands while fulfilling ministry (Acts 18:3; Acts 20:33–35). The aim is not materialism but sustainability and freedom from avoidable financial desperation.

Practical guideline for sustainable family support

- Develop legitimate supplementary income where appropriate: Consider suitable business activity, agriculture, skilled services that is done at convenient time, or responsible investments that do not compromise ministry duties, church rules or integrity.
- Plan finances with your spouse: Budget realistically, avoid a lifestyle you cannot afford, build emergency savings, and plan for children’s education and other family responsibilities.

- Strengthen the household income base: Where appropriate and mutually agreed, support your spouse in maintaining suitable employment, small business or another legitimate source of income that contributes to family wellbeing.
- Avoid irresponsible borrowing: Do not allow debt, unpaid obligations or financial recklessness to discredit your testimony or place the family under avoidable pressure.

(6) Manage opposition and challenges: A revival-minded minister must expect moments of misunderstanding, criticism and resistance. The goal is not to become combative, bitter or isolated, but to remain spiritually alert and emotionally stable in challenging seasons.

Practical guideline for managing challenging times

- Choose your battles prayerfully: Do not answer every accusation or fight every battle. Commit yourself to God in prayer and allow Him to defend you where necessary.
- Reject entitlement and bitterness: Do not assume that the church owes you everything or that unmet expectations justify resentment. The God who called you remains your ultimate source.
- Receive genuine correction: Distinguish persecution for truth from correction that should honestly be received. Humility is part of revival spirituality.
- Keep integrity visible and real: Live in such a way that no one can accuse you on issues of integrity.
- Seek mature counsel: Consult experienced and trusted ministers before making major confrontational decisions or taking steps that may have long-term consequences.
- Respect church structures without diminishing the truth: Do not allow frustration with church committees or church councils to become disrespect, rebellion or a justification for excesses.
- Let hardship deepen your altar: Allow pressure to sharpen discernment, strengthen prayer life and increase dependence on God rather than reduce spiritual discipline.
- Measure ministry by spiritual fruit: Do not measure fulfilment in ministry by congregation size or popularity. Focus on seeing more people genuinely saved, young people being raised for Christ, homes becoming stronger, members becoming witnesses of Christ, etc.

Conclusion:

The great need of The African church is for God-sent ministers who will become platform for sustained revival as burning altars. These are men and women who will refuse to become victims of church politics, financial recklessness, moral compromise or sexual scandal. They remain connected to the Lord through a consistent personal walk with God in consistent prayer life and fasting routine, connected to MOTA, active in TACEF fellowship, and intentional about protecting their marriage and family.

They also guard their finances, maintain sexual purity, reject unhealthy dependency to certain “rich” people in the church, study the Bible deeply, read continuously, and prepare spiritually before entering the pulpit. They remain faithful at their duty post and preach the authentic gospel regardless of pressure from the church or their superiors. They are also prepared for the difficult side of ministry. They have learned how to manage misunderstanding, financial hardship, resistance, and opposition from within the church in such a way that these challenges drive them deeper into God rather than away from Him because they know their calling and remain connected to the Lord who has called them to the ministry.

Knowing the Will of God for Life, Career and Marriage

Memory Verse: “Shew me thy ways, O Lord; teach me thy paths. Lead me in thy truth, and teach me: for thou art the God of my salvation; on thee do I wait all the day.” Psalm 25:4–5

Key Texts: Romans 12:1–2; Ephesians 2:10; Psalm 16:5–6; John 10:27; Proverbs 3:5–6; Luke 22:42

Seminar Objectives:

- Understand the will of God as an expression of His love, wisdom and purposeful leading for every believer.
- Distinguish God’s sovereign, revealed, perfect and permissive will, and understand the believer’s responsibility to choose obedience.
- Recognise modern pressures, personal desires and human influences that can distort major decisions in life, career and marriage.
- Apply biblical principles and safe discernment practices when seeking God’s direction through Scripture, prayer, counsel, providence and other channels.
- Respond to God’s leading with surrender, faith, patience and obedience even when His path is costly or contrary to popular opinion.

Introduction: Christian life is not a game of trial and error

The life of a believer is never designed to be a game of trial and error. God knows the end from the beginning and desires to lead His people as a shepherd leads sheep into the pasture prepared for them. Scripture presents our lives as purposeful rather than accidental. For we are God’s workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works which God prepared beforehand that we should walk in them (Ephesians 2:10). The Psalmist could therefore say, “The LORD is the portion of mine inheritance and of my cup: thou maintainest my lot” (Psalm 16:5). God does not promise that every step will be easy, but He does promise His presence, wisdom and ability to work even difficult circumstances for the good of those who love Him (Romans 8:28).

This truth is especially important in today’s world. Social media and digital world constantly present new ambitions, lifestyles, careers, relationships and definitions of success. Comparison and competition can make people feel late, inadequate or pressured to follow what is trending. Parents, friends, mentors and motivational voices may also have strong opinions about what is “best” for us. Yet the believer’s deepest question must remain: “Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?” (Acts 9:6). The will of God is an expression of His love so that we are not lost in a maze of attractive but distracting options. Our posture must remain that of Jesus: “Nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done.” (Luke 22:42).

Key principles

(1) Understand what the will of God means: Knowing God’s will begins with understanding that God has both a revealed purpose for all believers and personal leading for the stewardship of each life. His will is the outworking of His character, Word, purpose and shepherding in our lives.

A biblical framework for understanding God’s will

- God’s sovereign will: This refers to what God in His authority purposes and ultimately accomplishes. His counsel cannot be frustrated by human power (Daniel 4:35; Isaiah 46:9–10).
- God’s revealed or moral will: This is what Scripture clearly commands for every believer. E.g. holiness, truth, love, purity, justice, thanksgiving and obedience. We do not need a special revelation to obey what God has already written (1 Thessalonians 4:3; Micah 6:8).
- God’s perfect and personal leading: Within biblical boundaries, God guides individuals concerning assignments, timing, career, ministry, relationships and other major decisions. Romans 12:2 describes the will of God as “good, and acceptable, and perfect,” while Ephesians 2:10 reminds us that there are good works prepared for us to walk in.
- God’s permissive will: This shows that God sometimes allows people to insist on choices that are not His best desire for them, with real consequences (1 Samuel 8:4–22). God calls us to choose obedience because He will never force His will on us (Joshua 24:15).

(2) Make surrender the starting point: The greatest obstacle to knowing God's will is often not that God is silent, but that our own will is already loud. We may pray for direction after secretly deciding the answer we want. A surrendered heart is willing to receive "yes," "no," "wait," "leave," "stay," or a completely different path from the one it imagined.

Practical guideline for a surrendered heart

- Build relationship before seeking answers: Jesus said, "My sheep hear my voice" (John 10:27). Learn God's character through consistent fellowship rather than seeking Him only at moments of decision.
- Present yourself before presenting your request: Romans 12:1–2 places surrender before discernment. Ask God not merely to approve your plan but to transform your desires and thinking.
- Identify the idols in the decision: Be honest about family approval, fear of being left behind, social status, location, comfort or personal ambition that may already be controlling your preference
- Adopt the posture of Christ: Make "not my will, but Yours" a genuine prayer. God's perfect will may not be the most popular, glamorous or immediately comfortable option, but obedience positions us for the life He has designed.

(3) Resist the pressures that compete with divine direction: The modern believer makes decisions in a noisy environment. What is trending can quickly become what we assume is desirable, and what others celebrate can become the standard by which we judge our own lives. Comparison can therefore create a false urgency to marry, relocate, change career, pursue money or accept opportunities before we have heard from God.

Practical guideline for managing competing voices

- Do not let social media define your destiny: Online visibility shows selected contents that are not actually real, not the full story of people's lives. Do not build life decisions around another person's timeline, title, income, marriage, relocation or success story (2 Corinthians 10:12).
- Respect counsel without surrendering responsibility: Parents, mentors and spiritual leaders can provide wisdom, but no human adviser should replace your personal responsibility to seek God. Motivation is not divine direction.
- Do not confuse majority opinion with God's voice: The fact that everyone believes an option is sensible does not make it God's specific path for you. Israel once demanded a king because surrounding nations had one (1 Samuel 8:5).
- Count the cost of obedience: God's will may require waiting, turning down an attractive offer, entering an unfashionable field, remaining faithful in an unnoticed season or refusing a relationship that others approve.

(4) Know the biblical process of discerning God's will: God can guide through several means. Major decisions require spiritual alertness, Scripture, prayer, time and testing. God is not the author of confusion, and genuine leading will never require us to violate His revealed Word.

Practical channels of guidance and the cautions required

- The Word of God: Scripture is the first and final test. No dream, prophecy, desire, relationship or opportunity that contradicts God's Word can be called His will (Psalm 119:105). For example, God will not lead a believer to break a valid marriage covenant to marry a person who is already lawfully married to someone else.
- Prayer, fasting and waiting: Seek God deliberately and give major decisions enough time. The caution is to avoid turning prayer into repeated requests for God to endorse a decision already made.
- Inner witness and peace: The Spirit can give settled conviction and peace (Colossians 3:15), but peace alone may be wrong. Familiarity, excitement or avoidance can also feel peaceful; therefore test inner impressions by the Holy Spirit, time and counsel from many witnesses.
- Godly counsel: There is safety in mature counsel (Proverbs 15:22). Choose people who know God, understand you and are free from selfish interest. Counsel should confirm and sharpen discernment, not manipulate you or make the decision for you. TACEF Professional Fellowship may be a channel for counsel for professional leadings and TACEF MOTA can provide structured counsel for those who feel lead into or out of ministry/College of Theology
- Gifts, burdens and abilities: Natural capacities and recurring spiritual burdens may reveal areas God has been preparing. A naturally caring person may discover a path in healthcare or service; a strong analytical gift may point toward engineering. These are clues to prayer over, not automatic commands.
- Providence, opportunities and interruptions: God can use transfers, closed doors, unexpected meetings, retreats, delays and unplanned opportunities to redirect or prepare us. However, not every open door is God's will and not every obstacle means "no." Test all circumstances.

- Dreams, visions, prophecy and inner witness: God can speak in diverse ways, but these must be tested by Scripture, spiritual fruit, mature counsel and time (1 Thessalonians 5:20–21). Never use “God told me” to pressure another person, especially in marriage, or to bypass wisdom and consent.

(5) Apply divine direction to life, career and marriage: The same God who leads us spiritually is interested in how we steward our whole lives. In every area, the believer must seek God sincerely, test every impression by Scripture, and patiently discern the path that best aligns with His will and purpose.

Practical guideline for major life decisions

- For life and purpose: Begin with what is already clear, that is, you were created for God’s glory and for good works prepared in Christ (Isaiah 43:7; Ephesians 2:10). Ask what God is forming in you, whom He has burdened you to serve, and what gifts He has entrusted to you.
- For career: Consider biblical integrity, God-given abilities, competence, opportunities, burdens, service and long-term stewardship, not just salary, status or what is currently fashionable. A career can change across seasons while the deeper divine purpose remains. Prepare diligently for the path God is opening because spiritual leading does not excuse poor training or lack of excellence.
- For marriage: Start with clear biblical boundaries: salvation, godly character and freedom from unequal yoking (2 Corinthians 6:14). Pray, seek wise counsel and allow divine conviction. Follow the TACEF marital process for step-by-step guide. Attraction, family pressure, age anxiety, or one person’s claim that “God said” must never replace discernment and the other person’s free consent.

(6) After knowing God’s will, obey and trust His pathway: Knowing is not the end of guidance. God reveals His will so that we can walk in it. Every believer must therefore move from discernment to obedience, while accepting that the path may contain waiting, preparation, opposition and unexpected turns.

Practical guideline for walking in God’s will

- Obey what is clear: Delayed obedience can become disobedience. When God’s direction is settled and convincingly confirmed, respond faithfully (John 14:21).
- Trust without demanding the full map: Abraham obeyed without knowing every detail of the journey (Hebrews 11:8). Proverbs 3:5–6 calls us to trust the LORD with all our heart rather than leaning only on our own understanding.
- Respect God’s timing: A correct direction pursued at the wrong time can still create difficulty. Wait when God says wait, prepare while waiting, and do not manufacture fulfilment through anxiety or manipulation (Habakkuk 2:3).
- Do not abandon the path because it becomes difficult: Opposition, delay or sacrifice is not automatic proof that you missed God. At the same time, remain humble enough to review your assumptions when Holy Spirit prompting and mature counsel reveal that you were wrong.
- Trust God with interruptions and recovery: Even when our choices or circumstances depart from what God desired, He remains able to redeem surrendered lives and work through repentance, correction and renewed obedience. His shepherding is greater than our mistakes.

Conclusion: “Not my will, but Yours be done”

The safest place for a believer is not the place with the highest salary, loudest applause, easiest path or strongest human approval but it is the place of obedience to God. The Lord who made us knows our frame, our future, the people we will meet, the work prepared for us and the path by which our lives can fully glorify Him. He gives us intelligence to reason, make choices but He does not ask us to make our understanding the final authority. We plan responsibly while remaining interruptible by God.

Therefore, refuse the pressure to live by comparison or trial and error. Renew your mind in Scripture, maintain a consistent relationship with Christ, pray until your will is surrendered, seek godly counsel, test every leading carefully, allow time to expose false leadings, and obey what God makes clear. Whether the issue is life purpose, career, ministry, location or marriage, let the governing prayer remain: “Not my will, but Yours be done.” The Shepherd who knows the end from the beginning is able to lead His sheep into the path He has prepared and to make their lives count for His glory.

Pursuing Academic Excellence as a Christian Student

Memory Verse: "Seest thou a man diligent in his business? he shall stand before kings; he shall not stand before mean men." Proverbs 22:29

Key Texts: Daniel 1:17–20; Proverbs 18:15; Proverbs 22:29; Luke 14:28; Colossians 3:23–24; 2 Timothy 2:15; Matthew 5:14–16

Seminar Objectives:

- Understand education as a stewardship, a present revival duty post and an opportunity to represent Christ through both excellence and character.
- Set clear academic performance targets and translate them into realistic semester, weekly and daily study plans.
- Identify the study methods, learning conditions and support systems that help each student understand, retain and apply knowledge most effectively.
- Build disciplined academic habits, use technology and AI with integrity, and recover intelligently when performance falls below target.
- Choose relationships that provoke excellence without compromising faith, while balancing academics, TACEF fellowship, health, campus witness and preparation for life after school.

Introduction: Education is a stewardship, not merely a certificate

Academic life is one of the important duty posts where a Christian student is expected to glorify God through diligence, competence, integrity and godly character. Daniel and his friends did not choose between spiritual conviction and intellectual excellence. They remained faithful to God and were found ten times better in matters of wisdom and understanding (Daniel 1:17–20). A Christian student should therefore reject the false choice between being spiritually serious and academically excellent.

For a TACEFite, school is more than a place to obtain grades or certificates. It is a Place of Primary Assignment where the student should learn seriously, prepare for future usefulness, witness for Christ and demonstrate the disciplined life of a revival soldier. Fellowship activities must also not become an excuse for poor academic performance, just as academic pressure must not become an excuse for abandoning spiritual life, fellowship or Christian character.

Academic excellence is also more than "reading hard." It requires clear performance expectations, intelligent planning, knowledge of how one learns most effectively, disciplined execution, honest review and willingness to adjust. Jesus said that anyone intending to build a tower should first sit down and count the cost (Luke 14:28). In the same way, a student who desires a particular score, grade or GPA should understand what that target will require and build a daily system capable of producing it.

Key principles

(1) See education as stewardship and your present duty post: God has entrusted every student with time, ability, access to books, technology and opportunities for development. These resources should be managed faithfully. Academic excellence should therefore be pursued as service to God, not merely for status, parental approval or competition. The aim is to become competent enough for God to use while remaining visibly Christian in conduct.

Practical guideline for a student-steward

- Take your present assignment seriously: Attend classes regularly and punctually, complete assignments, prepare before lectures and refuse the habit of doing only what is necessary to pass.
- Study your Bible and study your books: Build a schedule that protects both your walk with God and serious academic work. Prayer cannot replace preparation, and preparation should not eliminate your daily quiet time of fellowship with God.
- Let your result and character agree: Good grades without integrity are not Christian excellence; strong Christian living with academic carelessness is also a poor testimony.
- Use the campus as a mission field: Let classmates know your convictions through your conduct, relationships, reliability and willingness to share Christ appropriately.

- Remain connected to TACEF: Participate responsibly in campus fellowship while learning to plan ahead so that spiritual commitments and academic responsibilities are not unnecessarily placed in conflict.

(2) Set clear performance targets and count the cost: Excellence becomes easier to manage when the desired result is defined. A student should not enter a term or semester with only the vague hope of “doing well.” Set an expected score or grade for each subject or course and, where applicable, an expected GPA or CGPA for the semester. Then work backwards from the target to the effort, resources and time required. “Which of you, intending to build a tower, sitteth not down first, and counteth the cost?” (Luke 14:28).

A practical performance-planning system

- Define the target: Write the score or grade you are aiming for in each subject/course and the overall GPA or performance level you want for the term or semester. Trust the Lord and do your best.
- Count the cost: Ask what the target requires in daily study time, assignments, practical work, tutorials, past questions, revision and help with difficult topics.
- Translate targets into a timetable: Break the semester into monthly or weekly learning goals and convert them into specific daily reading and practice periods. A target without a schedule is only a wish.
- Track leading indicators, not only final grades: Monitor class attendance, completed topics, practice-question performance, assignment scores and weak areas early enough to make corrections.
- Recalibrate when you miss a target: Do not allow one poor test, grade or semester to become a verdict on your ability. Diagnose what went wrong, adjust the target or method where necessary, strengthen the plan and continue. The principle is to keep setting a standard that stretches you without turning the target into a trap that destroys confidence when you miss it.

(3) Know how you learn best and build disciplined study systems: Students do not all learn most effectively under the same conditions. “Know thyself” academically by identifying the study environment and methods that consistently help you understand, remember and apply what you are learning. Do not copy another student’s method. At the same time, avoid rigid labels; use evidence from your actual performance to identify what works best for different subjects and tasks.

Practical guideline for effective learning

- If you learn best alone, protect focused individual study: Do not spend hours in a study group that becomes conversation, distraction or social activity simply because others prefer group reading.
- If discussion helps you, use a serious study group: Work with disciplined students who solve problems, compare answers, explain difficult concepts and keep one another accountable.
- If visual explanation helps, find the right teaching videos: Search by the exact topic or learning objective, use credible educational channels, compare explanations and pause to solve examples yourself rather than watching passively.
- Maximise classroom explanation/lecture time: Sit where you can concentrate, take structured notes, ask questions and, where school rules and the lecturer permit, use a small recorder or approved device to revisit difficult explanations later.
- Use active methods: Practise active recall, solve past examination questions, explain concepts without looking at your notes, use spaced revision and test yourself repeatedly instead of only rereading.
- Seek help early: Ask lecturers, teachers, tutors or better classmates when a topic remains unclear. Do not allow one weak concept to become the foundation for several other weak topics.
- Manage distraction deliberately: During lectures and study periods, control WhatsApp, social media, short videos, gaming and unnecessary notifications. Focus is an academic advantage.

(4) Use technology and AI to increase learning and not destroy integrity: Technology gives today’s student access to explanations, simulations, past questions, practice tests, online courses, internships and global learning opportunities. Used wisely, these tools can accelerate understanding but when used dishonestly, they can produce plagiarism, laziness and false achievement. Christian integrity must therefore govern the use of AI, smart devices and online resources.

Practical guideline for technology with integrity

- Use AI as a tutor, not a substitute for thinking: Ask for explanations of difficult concepts, alternative examples, practice questions, study plans or feedback, then work through the material yourself.
- Verify what technology gives you: AI and online sources can be wrong. Check important facts, calculations and references against textbooks, course materials or reliable sources.

- Respect academic rules: Do not submit AI-generated work dishonestly as your own, fabricate references, copy another person's work or use prohibited tools during examinations and tests.
- Use technology to deepen understanding: Educational videos, simulations, digital flashcards, online worksheets and practice platforms can help you master difficult concepts when used intentionally.
- Explore legitimate opportunities: Use the internet to find internships, fellowships, project opportunities, competitions, virtual work exposure and learning programmes that strengthen your future preparation and work readiness.

(5) Choose environments that provoke excellence without compromising faith: The people around a student influence punctuality, discipline, ambition, and academic standards. Proverbs teaches that walking with the wise makes one wise. Intentionally stay close to students whose habits challenge you upward: those who attend class on time, take assignments seriously, ask intelligent questions, perform well in coursework and pursue excellence. However, academic advantage must never become a reason to compromise Christian conviction.

Practical guideline for relationships and character

- Choose peers who raise your standards: Learn from high-performing and disciplined students, not merely from people who make you comfortable.
- Admire excellence without unhealthy comparison: Another student's result should provoke learning and improvement, not envy, inferiority or desperation.
- Never borrow ungodly methods: Do not join cheating networks, exam malpractice, leaked-question groups, online fraud, substance misuse or immoral relationships because the people involved appear successful.
- Protect your Christian identity: Do not become ashamed of Christ, TACEF or biblical convictions in order to fit into academically influential circles.
- Guard against performance anxiety: Your grade is important, but it is not your identity. Let high standards push you toward disciplined effort, not fear, dishonesty or self-condemnation.

(6) Balance academics, spiritual life, health, mission and future preparation: Sustained excellence requires a whole-life system. Poor sleep, unmanaged stress, unhealthy relationships, excessive fellowship activity (e.g. daily long hour vigils), social-media addiction or poor time planning can undermine good academic intentions. The Christian student should therefore learn to plan the whole season of life, not only examinations.

Practical guideline for sustainable excellence

- Protect sleep and health: Consistent sleep, appropriate nutrition, exercise and rest support concentration and memory. Do not make chronic sleep deprivation your normal study strategy.
- Plan around TACEF activities early: Know fellowship, Convention, outreach, subzonal/zonal events and leadership commitments in advance and adjust study schedules to plan for your academic and spiritual lives
- Stay connected during transitions: Remain connected to the local fellowship during holidays, industrial attachment, pre-NYSC, NYSC and the Back-from-NYSC stage rather than disappearing spiritually during transitions.
- Prepare for life after school: Be actively aligned to TACEF CCMT leadership for guidance, Son of Purpose, NYSC Fellowship and the TACEF Professional Fellowship to seek mentors, internships, projects, professional skills, CV development and career exploration.
- Review yourself periodically: At least monthly, ask whether you are growing academically, spiritually, physically and relationally. Correct imbalance before it becomes failure.
- Keep the ultimate purpose clear: Seek academic excellence so that you can become a competent, trustworthy and useful agent of revival in your generation, while shining as a light for Christ wherever He places you.

Conclusion:

Christian academic excellence is not simply the pursuit of high grades but a disciplined stewardship of opportunity under the lordship of Christ. The excellent Christian student sets clear targets, counts the cost, knows the study methods that work, plans time carefully, practises consistently, uses technology responsibly, seeks help early and refuses dishonest shortcuts.

Do not be discouraged when a target is missed. Review the result, understand the gap, recalibrate the plan and set another standard that keeps stretching you. Learn from people who provoke you to excellence, but never borrow success at the price of your faith or character. Let your spiritual life, academic result, integrity, relationships and future preparation increasingly tell the same story: that Christ has raised a disciplined student who can be trusted with greater responsibility.

Managing Personal Finance and Family Finances with Godly Wisdom

Memory Verse: “Through wisdom is an house builded; and by understanding it is established.” Proverbs 24:3

Key Texts: 1 Chronicles 29:11-14; Psalm 24:1; Proverbs 3:9-10; Proverbs 6:6-8; Proverbs 24:3-4; Luke 12:13-21; Luke 16:10-11; 1 Corinthians 4:2; 2 Corinthians 9:6-8; 1 Timothy 6:6-10

Seminar Objectives:

- Understand personal and family finances as stewardship of resources that ultimately belong to God.
- Understand biblical principles of diligence, productive capacity, contentment and responsible prosperity.
- Build practical systems for budgeting, spending, saving and planning for irregular or future obligations.
- Manage debt, emergencies, family pressures and contemporary financial risks with wisdom.
- Develop financial literacy and invest responsibly without greed, speculation or fraudulent shortcuts.
- Build a biblical culture of generosity, transparent family financial planning and accountable Kingdom giving.

Introduction: Stewarding rightly, managing wisely

Financial wisdom begins with the conviction that what we possess is ultimately entrusted to us by God. “The earth is the Lord’s, and the fulness thereof” (Psalm 24:1). Income, opportunities, skills, property and other resources should therefore be managed as a stewardship, not merely consumed as personal possessions. This perspective affects how we earn, budget, spend, save, invest, give and account for what has been placed in our care.

Many personal and family financial crises are not caused only by low income. They may also be worsened by poor planning, impulsive spending, debt, pressure to maintain certain public perception, irregular salaries, inflation, extended-family responsibilities, emergencies, or fraudulent investment schemes. A person can receive more money and still remain financially unstable if waste and poor decisions continue.

Biblical financial wisdom therefore combines faith in God with diligence, contentment, planning, generosity and accountability. Godly stewardship is not a promise that every faithful Christian will become materially wealthy but a call to manage faithfully whatever God entrusts to us, grow our productive capacity, provide responsibly, avoid greed and use resources for His purposes and the good of people.

Key principles

(1) Steward divine resources: I do not own them; I manage them: Faithful financial management begins when we recognise God as the ultimate owner and ourselves as stewards. “Moreover it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful” (1 Corinthians 4:2). This mindset produces accountability, contentment and restraint. It helps a believer resist waste, impulse spending and pressure to impress others because every resource must be used with purpose.

Practical guideline for faithful stewardship

- Put God first: Let your relationship with God shape how you earn, spend, save, invest and give.
- Be faithful with little: Manage small resources responsibly rather than waiting for a larger income before becoming disciplined.
- Track what comes in and what goes out: Review personal and family income and expenses regularly so that financial decisions are based on facts, not assumptions.
- Keep fellowship and church funds completely separate: Never treat TACEF or church money in your care as an informal personal loan. Follow the required financial accountability and reporting processes.
- Practise contentment without complacency: Be grateful for what God has provided while continuing to build capacity and pursue legitimate opportunities for growth.
- Avoid waste and impulse spending: A purchase may be affordable and still be unnecessary. Let purpose and budget guide spending. Do not be deceived by promotion and discounted sales offers.
- Keep a generous heart: Stewardship is not selfish accumulation. Remain sensitive to genuinely needy brethren, vulnerable families and legitimate ministry needs.

(2) Pursue productive capacity, diligence and contentment: Scripture consistently honours diligence and warns against laziness. The ability to earn more usually requires increased capacity to create value. Prayer and faith do not replace learning, work, building skills, going the extra mile with legitimate additional income generating streams, competence or responsible effort. At the same time, financial ambition must remain under godliness and contentment. The desire for wealth must not become the measure of spiritual success or personal worth.

Practical guideline for productive and godly prosperity

- Acknowledge God as the source: Deuteronomy 8:18 reminds us that God gives power to get wealth. Work diligently without becoming self-sufficient or proud.
- Build capacity for the next level: Identify skills, qualifications, business knowledge or professional competence required to create greater value and improve earning capacity.
- Do not wait idly for a “perfect” opportunity: Where appropriate, learn a trade, reach out to do any work available if the best has not come, volunteer for experience or begin small while preparing for greater responsibility.
- Let grace produce labour, not laziness: Paul could say, “I laboured more abundantly... yet not I, but the grace of God” (1 Corinthians 15:10).
- Guard against comparison and lifestyle pressure: Do not borrow or overspend merely to look successful before friends, relatives, colleagues or brethren.
- Remain content: Pursue growth without allowing money to become an idol, a source of anxiety or the basis of your identity.

(3) Budget, spend and save with foresight: Planning turns good intentions into financial discipline. Proverbs points us to the ant, which prepares ahead. A budget simply gives every expected income a purpose before it is spent. It also helps a family distinguish necessities from wants, prepare for future obligations and identify wasteful leakages before they become crises.

Practical guideline for budgeting and saving

- Prepare a monthly budget before spending: List expected income, giving (putting God first in your tithe, offering and other kingdom seed, then your immediate family, your parents, savings as a gift to your future needs, the household of faith (brethren/ministers/missions) and general charity), essential expenses, savings and planned discretionary spending.
- Plan for irregular income: If income is seasonal, delayed or unpredictable, build the budget around conservative expectations and prioritise essentials.
- Convert annual obligations into monthly plans: Rent, school fees, hospital bills for a new baby and other predictable payments should not become emergencies simply because they are not monthly.
- Build an emergency fund gradually: Create a financial buffer for genuine emergencies, especially where salary delays, health costs or family responsibilities are common.
- Spend according to your resources: Do not buy every “aso ebi,” latest gadgets/device, trip or social obligation when you do not have it. Do not live to impress people and destroy yourself
- Save consistently: Develop the habit of setting aside part of income rather than spending everything that comes in.
- Plan transparently as a couple: Spouses should have honest conversations about income, debt, obligations, savings, giving and major spending. Avoid secret financial lives within marriage.

(4) Manage debt, emergencies, family pressure and contemporary financial risks: Godly wisdom requires a realistic understanding of obligations and risk. Repeated spending above income, expensive digital app loans, unplanned extended-family demands, medical emergencies, betting and get-rich-quick schemes can rapidly destabilise personal and family finances. Debt should never become the normal solution to a lifestyle that has not been adjusted to reality.

Practical guideline for managing financial pressure

- Keep recurring expenses below sustainable income: If expenditure consistently exceeds income, reduce costs, increase legitimate income or do both.
- Use debt cautiously: Avoid borrowing for appearances, consumption or speculative investments. Understand the interest, fees and repayment obligations before taking any loan. If you borrow, use it for asset and not liability with a clear plan to pay back.

- Be cautious with digital loan apps: Easy access to short-term credit can become a cycle of high-cost borrowing if repayment depends on another loan.
- Plan for health costs: Use employer health coverage, an HMO or another suitable health-insurance arrangement where available, while we continue to trust the Lord for perfect health
- Set healthy boundaries around extended-family responsibilities: Be generous within your capacity, but do not destroy your own household finances trying to meet every request.
- Reject betting, Ponzi schemes and fraudulent “investment” opportunities: High promised returns, pressure to recruit others or unclear sources of profit are major warning signs.
- Seek help early: Where debt has become unmanageable, speak with a competent and trustworthy adviser rather than hiding the problem.

(5) Build financial literacy and invest without greed or speculation: Knowledge helps a steward make better decisions. Basic understanding of income, expenditure, assets, liabilities, cash flow, interest, inflation, risk and return makes it easier to evaluate financial choices. Investment can be part of wise stewardship, but no Christian should invest merely because a friend, church member or respected believer recommends an opportunity.

Practical guideline for financial literacy and responsible investing

- Learn the basics: Take a credible course, read reliable financial materials and understand the language of personal, family and business finance.
- Understand before you invest: Know what the investment does, how returns are generated, what risks exist, how liquid it is and who regulates or manages it.
- Use qualified advice where necessary: For stocks, bonds, treasury instruments, real estate or other investments, seek appropriate professional guidance rather than acting on rumours.
- Diversify and match risk to your circumstances: Do not put essential household money, school fees or emergency savings into highly speculative opportunities.
- Never fabricate certainty: Every investment carries some form of risk. Be suspicious of “guaranteed” extraordinary returns.
- Teach children age-appropriate financial wisdom: Introduce saving, budgeting, generosity and the difference between needs and wants early.

(6) Build a Kingdom culture of giving and family financial harmony: Generosity is part of Christian stewardship, but biblical giving is cheerful, voluntary and free from manipulation. TACEF has a culture of responding to genuine ministry needs, supporting brethren through accountable welfare scheme and sowing as led by the Lord, while maintaining transparency. Giving should flow from love and obedience, not competition, public recognition or pressure.

Practical guideline for Kingdom generosity

- Make giving part of your financial plan: Give intentionally rather than only from what remains after every other desire has been satisfied.
- Give from love, gratitude and conviction: Do not give because you have been frightened, manipulated or promised a guaranteed financial return.
- Give as led by the Lord, not by comparison: Another person’s amount should not determine yours.
- Support genuine needs responsibly: Be generous to people in real need while respecting TACEF welfare and accountability processes designed to prevent abuse.
- Keep giving and family responsibility in healthy balance: A married believer should not create avoidable hardship at home through secret or reckless financial commitments.
- Let generosity remain discreet where possible: Resist the desire for public recognition as proof of spirituality.

Conclusion: There is nothing we have that we have not received

Everything entrusted to us ultimately comes from God. Faithful stewardship therefore begins with recognising Him as owner and ourselves as managers. It continues through diligent work, growing productive capacity, contentment, budgeting, saving, responsible investing, generosity and honest family financial planning.

The goal of kingdom financial discipline is not to accumulate more money but to become trustworthy with whatever God places in our hands. A financially wise TACEFite should be increasingly free from waste, manipulation, fraudulent shortcuts and avoidable debt, while becoming more capable of providing responsibly, supporting legitimate Kingdom work and helping people in genuine need.

Growing in Personal, Professional, Business, and Career Effectiveness

Memory Verse: “And beside this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity” (2 Peter 1:5–8)

Key Texts: 2 Peter 1:5–8; 2 Timothy 2:15; 2 Timothy 3:17; Genesis 1:28; Ezekiel 37:1–14

Seminar Objectives:

- Understand whole-person growth as a fundamental aspect of Christian stewardship and covenant responsibility.
- Recognise the specific demands and expectations of your present career or professional stage.
- Learn to conduct an annual skills-gap assessment to identify personal strengths, weaknesses and targeted growth areas.
- Know how to build competence, digital/AI literacy, exposure, mentorship and professional standards.
- Develop critical soft skills, including communication, elocution, emotional intelligence, workplace etiquette and leadership.
- Understand Christian walk, work and life balance in the pursuit of marketplace excellence and career progression without compromising Christian character, family commitments or spiritual vitality.

Introduction: A Thoroughly Furnished TACEF Professional

Our God is an excellent God and expects His children to exhibit the same character of excellence in their personal, professional, career and business lives. Spirituality is not an excuse for mediocrity. Daniel was very spiritual and yet had a phenomenal career. As New Testament believers, we cannot do less. As workplace demands become more challenging and dynamic, with organisations looking for solution providers, the expectation of heaven is that the inspiration of the Almighty deep within us will find expression through our skills to deliver exceptional results. However, this cannot happen when our current skill sets are obsolete and at variance with the challenges of our world. It takes a thoroughly furnished professional to interpret complex puzzles. This means that there is a need to grow in every area of our lives - personal, professional, career and business - as we navigate the marketplace with wisdom, diligence and excellence.

Our anchor text in 2 Peter 1:5–8 reminds us that faith is only the beginning and that we have to intentionally add virtue, knowledge, self-discipline, etc. to it. This is the whole idea behind the TACEF Professional Fellowship, a development platform where professionals in the Great House converge to deepen their growth using the 4Cs of a TACEF Professional: Calling, Character, Competence and Capacity. This seminar is therefore designed to ignite our hunger for effective growth in our personal, career and business lives as we transform our daily work into an instrument of revival by moving from passive survival to dominant excellence in our profession, career and business.

1. Understanding Whole-Person Growth as Christian Stewardship: Growth is not an option for the believer; it is a core requirement of Christian stewardship. Everything God entrusts to us - our intellect, spiritual gifts, education, career, business, relationships and time - demands faithful management and compounding yield. In 2 Timothy 3:17, Scripture emphasises that the person of God should be “thoroughly equipped for every good work.” When we see our profession, career or business as a calling, we will understand the need to steward it effectively to the glory of Him who has called us out of darkness into His marvellous light. True spiritual maturity manifests in practical readiness, so that a Christian professional becomes a sharper strategist, a more punctual employee, a more disciplined entrepreneur and a reliable professional.

Practical guidelines for understanding whole-person growth as Christian stewardship

- See your career or business as a calling: Why are you in that profession? Do you understand your calling? This is the first growth dimension.
- Grow in character: The character of Jesus is expressed in the fruit of the Spirit. Embrace these virtues and grow in them until you attain the measure of the stature of Christ.
- Sharpen your competencies: Do not encourage complacency; keep your skills on the cutting edge.
- Continuously increase your capacity: A commitment to continuous improvement - learning, unlearning and relearning - is key to achieving whole-person growth.

2. Know Your Present Career and Professional Stage and What to Do: The TACEF family spans multiple life and career stages. Growth requires understanding the specific demands, transition requirements and priorities of your current career and professional stage.

Practical guidelines for knowing your present career and professional stage and what to do

- Secondary School Leavers: Focus on building strong foundational academic excellence, career-path exploration, personal discipline and early digital literacy. Personal discipline to study and excel in JAMB and WAEC examinations, or any other examination required for university admission, is critical at this stage. Also develop strong communion with God as the foundation on which to build everything else.
- Undergraduates: Focus on high academic performance, practical skills acquisition, active involvement in leadership and building early networks. Avoid distractions and maintain a laser focus on achieving excellent results. Continue to develop strong communion with God as the foundation on which to build everything else.
- Fresh Graduates & NYSC Members: Acquire relevant skill sets for your desired job. Focus on employability, marketplace readiness, securing relevant internships and mastering workplace ethics.
- Entry-Level Professionals: Focus more on learning than earning; pursue jobs that will support your training and prepare you for your future career. Practise execution excellence, master industry tools, learn workplace culture and build strong work ethics. Continue to develop strong communion with God for guidance.
- Middle-Level Professionals: Focus on team-management and leadership skills, strategic problem-solving, project management, cross-functional mastery and specialised certifications. Continue to develop strong communion with God for guidance.
- Senior Professionals: Focus on organisational leadership, executive decision-making, industry influence, mentorship and building generational legacies. Continue to develop strong communion with God for guidance.
- Business Owners: Focus on building top-quality products/services and a solid company with strong financial health - more assets and fewer liabilities - and strong regulatory compliance. Focus on strategies for client retention, market expansion, talent development and succession planning. Deepen your walk with God.
- Public Servants: Focus on policy execution, institutional integrity, professional upgrades, service delivery and ethical leadership under pressure. Deepen your walk with God.
- Clergy & Ministry Workers: Focus on ministerial impact, spiritual development, administrative efficiency, organisational governance, continuous intellectual development and people-management systems. Ensure that the fire is continually burning on the altar.

3. Conduct an Annual Skills and Development Audit: Intentional growth requires accurate diagnostic data. Without a regular audit, good intentions rarely translate into measurable capability. Every TACEFite should establish a formal Annual Career Development Plan driven by a systematic skills-gap assessment that can be tracked through quarterly reviews.

Practical guidelines for conducting an annual skills and development audit

- Check your technical competence: Ask yourself the right questions. Is your current skill set current or outdated? Are you conversant with new ways of doing things in your field? When did you last read books relevant to your domain or for general development? What developmental training have you received in the last two years? Rate your teamwork, communication and project-management skills. Check your mastery of essential tools, software, methodologies and knowledge frameworks in your domain.
- Assess your digital & AI literacy level: Check your proficiency in leveraging AI tools and other productivity tools. Do you struggle with such tools, or do you enjoy using them?
- Check where you are with respect to acquiring relevant professional certifications: Identify and pursue high-value and credible certifications relevant to your field.
- Check how strong your soft skills and emotional-intelligence skills are: Evaluate how well you communicate, resolve conflicts, manage stress and work across teams.
- Make the assessment and audit actionable: Get an accountability partner to help track specific actions arising from your development audit. Measure progress, identify lingering weaknesses and adjust your development plan periodically.

4. Building Competence, Exposure, Mentorship and Professional Standards: Preparation must precede opportunity. When God opens doors, He expects to find structured competence, not just spiritual enthusiasm. There is also a platform in the Great House for development and mentorship. TACEF Professional Fellowship serves as a platform where experienced professionals mentor younger members, review CVs, provide career exposure, recommend verified opportunities, explain professional qualifications and connect members to legitimate internships and projects.

Practical guidelines for building competence, exposure, mentorship and professional standards

- Acquire relevant skills: Take relevant online or onsite courses. Go back to school if you have to.
- Network with industry colleagues: Attend industry conferences, workshops and exhibitions to connect with others and see what is new in your field.
- Tap into the experience of senior colleagues: Identify a mentor in your field and commit to a robust mentorship process.
- Join professional associations: Do not grow in isolation; take advantage of professional associations as you build relevant competencies.
- Be visible: Do not wink in the dark. Build a credible CV and evidence-based portfolio via LinkedIn, GitHub, etc.

5. Developing Communication, Leadership and Personal Effectiveness: Technical skills can open doors, but you need excellent communication, strong leadership and outstanding personal effectiveness to keep those doors open. Whole-person effectiveness requires combining technical depth with strong interpersonal capability.

Practical guidelines for developing communication, leadership and personal effectiveness

- Communication & Elocution: Master effective writing, articulate speech and public speaking, professional presentations and confident elocution.
- Emotional Intelligence & Conflict Management: Practise self-awareness, be a good listener, receive feedback, manage your feelings and recognise the feelings of others. Learn to manage workplace disagreements constructively.
- Workplace Etiquette & Grooming: Maintain high personal hygiene, a professional appearance, neat dressing, punctuality and office decorum aligned with industry standards.
- Leadership Before Title: Take ownership of small assignments and deliver them with excellence before seeking bigger positions.

6. Growing Without Sacrificing Christian Character: The ultimate objective of whole-person growth in personal, professional, career and business life is to produce professionals who are highly successful in career/business and, at the same time, rich in character towards God. We should never sacrifice our character and consecration as Christians in the name of growing and building a successful career.

Practical guidelines for growing without sacrificing Christian character

- Remember that you are a Christian first and foremost before being a professional: Never lose your identity as a Christian - a "little Christ" - no matter the level of growth you experience in your career or business.
- Surrender your career and business pursuits to the Lordship of the Lord Jesus: Remind yourself that Jesus is the Lord of your life - not your boss, money, fame or position.
- Maintain your integrity at all times: No matter the pressure, never compromise your integrity.

Spirituality is not an excuse for workplace mediocrity, nor is professional success an excuse for spiritual decay or domestic neglect. Refuse to compromise your biblical values for promotion, money or recognition. Protect your devotional life and family, and use your career advancement to serve others and advance the Kingdom of God.

Conclusion: Your Career - a Calling, Reflecting the Character of Christ, Competence at All Times, and Continuous Capacity Building

God does not expect us to remain at the same level year after year; He expects compounding fruitfulness and increasing measure. As TACEFites, we must not allow the realities around us to become an excuse for mediocrity.

Like the dry bones in Ezekiel's vision, we must allow God to assemble us through rigorous preparation, skill sharpening, strategic networking, character development and continuous improvement as we grow effectively in our personal, professional, career and business lives. Know who you are, understand what you need to develop, deliberately build yourself and remain faithful to Christ while you grow. More importantly, see your career/business as a calling and not only as an income generator.

Standing as a Revival Intercessor in the Local Church

Memory Verse: “I have set watchmen upon thy walls, O Jerusalem, which shall never hold their peace day nor night... and give him no rest, till he establish, and till he make Jerusalem a praise in the earth.” Isaiah 62:6–7

Key Texts: Ezekiel 22:30; Isaiah 62:6–7; Nehemiah 1:1–11; 1 Timothy 2:1–4; Hebrews 7:25; Daniel 9:3–19; Ephesians 6:10–18

Seminar Objectives:

- Understand the watchman’s calling and the burden of standing before God for the spiritual condition of the local church.
- Build the disciplined life of an intercessor through prayer, the Word of God, holiness, fasting, spiritual sensitivity and perseverance.
- Learn the high-priestly pattern of identification, compassion and responsible intercession rather than criticism and superiority.
- Practise revival intercession with biblical discernment, including identificational repentance, spiritual warfare and mature handling of divinely inspired prophetic burdens.
- Use spiritual gifts responsibly in intercession while submitting revelations and major directions to appropriate leadership review.
- Build sustainable prayer networks aligned with the TACEF Upper Room team, central prayer leadership and the local fellowship.

Introduction: Standing in the gap as a priest before the Lord to activate God-glorifying interventions

Throughout Scripture, God looks for men and women who will carry His burden in prayer until His will is fully established on earth. Nehemiah heard about the broken walls of Jerusalem; he sat down, wept, fasted, prayed, confessed sin and became an instrument for rebuilding the broken walls, a picture of a God-led intercessor. Daniel identified himself with the failures of his people in prayer and became a prophetic intercessor for Israel in Babylon. These examples provide guidance on how a revival intercessor carries the condition of the church, nation, families and individuals into God’s presence with tears, faith, repentance, persistence and a readiness to become part of the answer.

This calling is particularly important in many of our local churches where there may be spiritual coldness, compromised leadership, church politics, unhealthy traditions, doctrinal confusion, counterfeit revival activities or practices that mix biblical faith with unbiblical prayer objects. Historical concerns about syncretism or occult influence associated with some past church leadership and traditional practices can also create an ungodly spiritual atmosphere that requires sustained intercession. The response of a revival intercessor must always be Spirit-governed prayer, biblical discernment, compassion and confidence in the authority of Christ.

An intercessor is therefore a true watchman who stands before God for the people, carries burdens responsibly, honours church structures, speaks when God and responsible leadership require it, and labours until Christ is formed in people and the atmosphere of the church is increasingly shaped by truth, holiness, salvation and genuine revival.

Key principles

(1) Understand the watchman’s calling and burden: A biblical watchman is spiritually alert, sensitive and responsible. Ezekiel 22:30 describes this role as “standing in the gap”, while Isaiah 62 presents watchmen as those “who refuse to remain silent until God establishes His purpose”. This calling carries a sustained burden for God’s honour, the salvation and maturity of people, the holiness of the church, the spiritual health of leaders and the fulfilment of God’s purpose in a life, family, church or territory. A true watchman does not merely recognise spiritual gaps; the watchman accepts responsibility to carry those burdens before God persistently until His purpose is established.

Practical responsibilities of a revival watchman

- Pray for leaders rather than only discussing them: Carry ministers, clergy, fellowship leaders, workers and their families before God for genuine salvation, purity, wisdom and spiritual renewal.
- Pray for genuine salvation and restoration: Labour for churchgoers to encounter Christ personally, for backsliders to return, and for homes to become spiritually healthy.

- Pray about the spiritual atmosphere: Bring before God patterns of prayerlessness, immorality, division, false teaching, manipulation, unhealthy tradition, fear and other conditions that weaken genuine revival.
- Pray for evangelism and mission: Ask God for open doors, bold witnesses, conviction of sin, effective follow-up and the multiplication of disciples beyond mere church attendance.
- Remain at the prayer duty post: A true burden survives beyond one emotional prayer meeting. Intercessors may sustain the same burden for a long period; therefore, keep praying until there is direction, measurable spiritual fruit or God clearly changes the burden.

(2) Build the disciplined life of an intercessor: Powerful intercession does not grow mainly from occasional prayer marathons but grows from a life that is continually being brought under the government of God. An intercessor who wants to carry sensitive burdens must cultivate a personal altar of prayer, the Word of God, fasting, holiness, obedience, humility, discernment and emotional stability. The secret life must be strong enough to carry the weight of the burden; the altar must sustain the assignment.

A sustainable intercessory rhythm

- Daily altar: Maintain personal prayer and Bible study that are not limited to praying for church problems. Know God personally before attempting to interpret burdens concerning others.
- Regular fasting and waiting: Maintain disciplined periods of fasting and extended prayer as led by the Lord.
- Scripture-shaped prayer: Pray from the Word of God so that intercession remains anchored in God's revealed character, promises and purposes rather than sensationalism, fear, imagination or rumours.
- Holiness and obedience: Deal quickly with personal sin, bitterness, pride, unforgiveness and moral compromise. The heart of a watchman must always remain under God's searchlight.
- Spiritual sensitivity with sobriety: Pay attention to burdens, impressions and discernment, but do not treat every thought, dream or emotion as a divine message.
- Perseverance: Learn to continue in prayer even when there is no immediate visible change. Revival intercession requires patience, faith and endurance.

(3) Intercede like a high priest: identify, carry and plead: Biblical intercession is not prayer from a position of superiority. The Old Testament high priest carried the names of the people before God, while Nehemiah and Daniel identified themselves with the sins and failures of their people. This is an important part of compassionate revival intercession: we do not stand outside the problem as critics, but we identify with the burden, carry it before God and plead for divine intervention. Compassion must shape the burden-bearer.

The high-priestly posture of revival prayer

- Identify with the burden: Pray, "Lord, have mercy on us," genuinely recognising that you are part of the people for whom you are standing in the gap, and carry the burden with humility.
- Practise identificational repentance: Confess before God the sins and patterns evident among the people for whom you are standing in the gap.
- Carry people with compassion: Let the burden move beyond the act of prayer into genuine compassion for the people and situations you are carrying before God.
- Plead for mercy and transformation: Mercy that triumphs over judgement is a critical instrument in the hands of destiny-shaping intercessors.
- Refuse superiority: If intercession is making you more suspicious, proud, angry or contemptuous of people, something has gone wrong. Genuine intercession should deepen compassion, humility and dependence on God.

(4) Practise revival intercession in the local church with biblical discernment: Revival prayer sometimes engages difficult spiritual realities. Scripture must guide our spiritual warfare and our interpretation of spiritual conditions. Intercessors must avoid presumption in which every problem in the local church is explained by hidden enemies, territorial spirits or occult activity. The safest approach combines serious prayer with Scripture, divine leading, and responsible submission to fellow intercessors and leadership. Discernment must remain biblical, humble and accountable.

Guidelines for difficult spiritual burdens

- Handle historical spiritual concerns with grace: Where there are memories or reports of past syncretism, occult practices or unbiblical spiritual activity within a local church, affirm Christ's authority and pray for cleansing by the blood of Jesus and freedom from associated covenant and curses without creating fear and sensationalism.

- Discern counterfeit revival: Pray against practices that introduce unbiblical traditions into the church, including the use of prayer objects (praying into eggs etc.), manipulation, false prophecy, or financial exploitation.
- Engage spiritual warfare biblically: Resist the devil through truth, righteousness, faith, the Word of God, prayer and obedience. Do not make unverified accusations against named individuals or treat every disagreement as demonic opposition.

(5) Use discernment and spiritual gifts without creating fear or private authority: Intercessors may experience unusual burdens, dreams, visions, impressions, words of knowledge or prophetic insights. Scripture teaches that spiritual expressions should be tested and judged. The existence of a burden does not automatically establish the correct interpretation of that burden. Mature intercession therefore combines sensitivity with humility, accountability and restraint. Spiritual insight must never become a licence for fear, control or private authority.

Prayer ethics and safeguards

- Do not assume you know every hidden problem: A strong impression is not permission to draw conclusions, label people or speak as though God has revealed everything to you alone.
- Submit revelations for review: Important dreams, perceived prophetic warnings and directions concerning the local church should be shared privately with appropriate TACEF leadership for prayerful review and guidance. TACEF Upper Room leadership are always available to guide.
- Never use “God told me” to intimidate: Divine language must not be used to force agreement, silence questions, demand access or place yourself above responsible leadership.
- Do not scare the congregation: Intercession should increase faith in Christ, repentance and responsible prayer, not create panic about demons, occultism, enemies or hidden conspiracies.
- Judge fruit as well as intensity: A healthy prayer burden should increasingly produce humility, love, holiness, patience, truthfulness and service, not only louder prayer or stronger claims of revelation.

(6) Build a sustainable prayer network that labours until revival comes: Revival intercession should not depend on one person or one season. Sustainable prayer is strengthened by coordinated believers who share biblical burdens, pray faithfully, respect leadership and remain connected to the wider fellowship. TACEF intercessors should therefore align actively with the Upper Room team, daily morning prayer network at 5am every day and central prayer leadership so that local burdens can benefit from wider discernment, support and coordination.

Practical guideline for a healthy local prayer network

- Align with TACEF prayer leadership: Participate in Upper Room and central prayer burdens, and communicate significant local needs through responsible channels rather than operating as an isolated group.
- Build a small, trustworthy prayer team: Include mature believers who are discreet, teachable, spiritually stable and committed to the local church. Prayer meetings should not become centres for rumours or the careless sharing of confidential information.
- Define clear prayer burdens: Pray specifically for salvation, revival, leaders, families, young people, holiness, evangelism, restoration, church unity and other verified needs rather than vague or fear-driven concerns.
- Keep prayer confidential and compassionate: Do not turn personal information received for prayer into discussion material. Protect the dignity of the people being prayed for.
- Review fruit periodically: Ask whether the prayer network is producing greater unity, holiness, evangelistic burden, restored lives and stronger growth within the local fellowship.

Conclusion:

God is still looking for watchmen who can be trusted with His burden. The revival intercessor must be prayerful without becoming suspicious, discerning without becoming proud, courageous without becoming rebellious, and spiritually sensitive without becoming sensational. The intercessor carries the church before God and pleads for mercy that triumphs over judgement, remaining at the duty post until there is visible divine intervention, even when a burden must be sustained for a prolonged period.

For every TACEFite with an intercessory burden, keep your personal altar burning, remain aligned with the local fellowship and TACEF prayer leadership, and pray for The African Church with love and biblical discernment. Revival advances when Christ is exalted, people are saved and restored, holiness grows and the church responds to God. May God find among us watchmen who will faithfully “stand in the gap” (Ezekiel 22:30).

Discovering and Developing Ministry Gifts

Memory Verse: “As every man hath received the gift, even so minister the same one to another, as good stewards of the manifold grace of God.” 1 Peter 4:10

Key Texts: Romans 12:3–8; 1 Corinthians 12:4–11, 27–31; Ephesians 4:7–13; 1 Peter 4:10–11; 2 Timothy 1:6; Galatians 5:22–23

Seminar Objectives:

- Understand the difference between spiritual gifts, natural talents, learned skills, calling, ministry office and the fruit of the Spirit.
- Discover how God has equipped each believer without comparison, pressure to copy others or obsession with visible platforms.
- Test and confirm gifts through prayer, service, spiritual fruit, feedback and responsible leadership oversight.
- Develop gifts through disciplined learning, practice, mentoring, character formation and faithful service in small assignments.
- Deploy gifts through TACEF, The African Church and wider Kingdom service with humility, accountability and a clear focus on building people rather than building personal visibility or self-focused platforms.

Introduction: Gift is grace for service, not a title for status or a platform for self-promotion

We are not saved and bought with the precious blood of Christ merely to become spectators in the Body of Christ. The Bible teaches that grace is given to every believer for service and that the different members of the Body have different functions. A ministry gift is therefore not first about a microphone, a title, an office or public recognition, but about the particular grace through which God enables a believer to strengthen other people and contribute to the work of His Kingdom.

Many sincere believers struggle in this area because they assume that the person who preaches, sings, prophesies or leads publicly is more useful than the person who quietly follows up converts, teaches children, organises people, encourages the weak or carries a burden in prayer. In TACEF, every local fellowship must help TACEFites discover that the Body becomes healthy when every member functions faithfully, supplies what God has given, and occupies his or her place responsibly.

At the same time, gifts must never be confused with maturity. A person may be genuinely gifted and still be proud, careless, morally weak, unteachable or immature. Spiritual manifestation does not place anyone above correction. The safest ministry is therefore a combination of genuine grace, Christlike character, biblical truth, accountable relationships and faithful service.

Key principles

(1) Understand what God has given you: The Bible presents different forms of grace and service while also showing that character remains essential in every expression of ministry. A believer should therefore learn to distinguish what God has naturally placed in a person, what has been developed through training, what the Holy Spirit enables for service, and what God may be assigning the person to do in a particular season. The central principle is clear: gift is not the same as maturity, and every gift must remain under Christlike character and correction.

Essential distinctions for every TACEFite

- Spiritual gift: A grace-enabled capacity given by God for serving and building the Body of Christ. The purpose is service, not personal importance. Examples include the nine manifestations of the Spirit listed in 1 Corinthians 12:8–10.
- Natural talent: An ability a person may possess naturally and which can be consecrated, trained and used for God’s glory. Examples include singing, writing, administration, organisation, generosity and welfare service. Unbelievers may also possess natural talents.
- Skill: A capacity developed through learning, instruction, repeated practice and experience. Skill can strengthen the responsible expression of a gift. Examples include video editing, playing a musical instrument, cooking, engineering and medical care.

- Calling or assignment: The direction or responsibility God places on a person for a particular work, people, place or season. A calling may use several gifts and skills. An example is Acts 13:2, where the Holy Spirit called for Barnabas and Saul to be set apart for a specific assignment.
- Ministry office or recognised responsibility: A defined function within the Body or church structure. Possessing a gift does not automatically appoint a person to an office. Ephesians 4:11 identifies the ministry functions of apostle, prophet, evangelist, pastor and teacher. Many people who have gifts wrongly assume that the gift automatically confers a ministry office.
- Fruit of the Spirit: Christlike character produced by the Holy Spirit. Love, humility, self-control and faithfulness are not optional because someone is gifted.

(2) Discover how God has equipped you without comparison: Romans 12 describes different graces within one Body; therefore, discovery is a prayerful process of serving, observing, receiving feedback and recognising where God repeatedly gives grace and fruit. In this process, we must guard against comparison, which can make a person despise a genuine but less visible grace or manufacture an expression that God did not give. Faithfulness with what God has actually entrusted to you matters more than visibility.

A practical discovery pathway

- Pray for understanding, not a title: Ask the Lord where He wants you to serve and what burdens, capacities and opportunities He has placed around you.
- Start serving where there is a genuine need: Gifts are often discovered in use. Do not wait for a special platform before helping in follow-up, Sunday School, evangelism, intercession, administration or other legitimate church responsibilities.
- Observe repeated grace and fruit: Notice areas where people are consistently helped, strengthened, taught, organised, encouraged or drawn towards Christ through your service.
- Receive confirmation from mature believers: Ask trusted leaders, disciplers and brethren what strengths and ministry patterns they have consistently observed. Confirmation should be based on service and fruit, not flattery.
- Separate burden from ambition: A recurring burden for children, souls, prayer, teaching, welfare or another area may be significant, but it should be tested over time through obedience and fruit.
- Refuse comparison: Another person's gift is not the standard for your usefulness. The question is not whether your expression looks impressive, but whether you are faithful with the grace God has actually entrusted to you.

(3) Test and confirm gifts through service, fruit and accountability: A strong feeling, a dream, a prophecy about oneself, an invitation to minister or one successful experience should not be treated as final proof of a ministry gift or calling. The New Testament pattern allows grace to become visible through service and to be recognised within the Body. Healthy testing protects the believer from presumption and protects the church from immature or unaccountable ministry. Genuine gifts become clearer through biblical alignment, sustained fruit, character and accountability.

Practical guideline for testing a perceived gift

- Test by Scripture: No gift, revelation or ministry expression should contradict the Word of God or produce behaviour that Scripture condemns.
- Test by edification: Ask whether people are genuinely being strengthened, instructed, comforted, corrected, saved, discipled or helped towards Christ rather than merely impressed by the person ministering.
- Test by character: Watch what happens to humility, purity, truthfulness and teachability as opportunities increase. A growing platform with declining character is a warning sign.
- Test over time: One dramatic moment is not the same as sustained grace. Faithful service across ordinary seasons gives clearer evidence than occasional visibility.
- Test under leadership: Allow local TACEF leadership to observe, guide, correct and gradually release responsibility. Healthy oversight is not an enemy of gifting; it helps gifts mature safely.
- Test motives honestly: Check how you respond when you are not allowed to use the gift or minister, even after you have prepared. Does it make you feel slighted, resentful or eager to leave the fellowship? These may be warning signs of ungodly motives that need to be surrendered to God.

(4) Develop the gift through discipline, learning and mentoring: Paul told Timothy to stir up the gift of God. Genuine grace should therefore not become an excuse for laziness or poor preparation. The more serious the assignment, the more intentionally the believer should grow in biblical knowledge, spiritual depth, practical competence and character. A gifted teacher should study; a worshipper should develop both spiritual and musical discipline; an administrator should learn organisation; an evangelist should grow in Scripture, communication and follow-up. Development should make the gift more useful while making the vessel more Christlike.

A practical gift-development system

- Study the Scriptures deeply: Every ministry expression must remain rooted in truth. Learn the whole counsel of God, not only verses that appear to support your preferred ministry identity.
- Learn the craft responsibly: Read sound materials, attend relevant training, observe mature examples and build the practical skills that make your service more useful and delivered with excellence.
- Practise in small assignments: Faithfulness in less visible responsibilities builds competence, humility and endurance. Do not despise opportunities that appear small.
- Seek mentoring: Learn from mature people while allowing God to shape your own expression. Receive guidance without merely copying another person's style or mannerisms.
- Allow correction: Ask for specific feedback after teaching, leading, organising or ministering. A person who cannot be corrected will eventually become unsafe, no matter how gifted.
- Develop character alongside capacity: Deliberately work on a consistent quiet time, a lifestyle of holiness, integrity, emotional maturity, financial discipline and humility. Capacity without character can damage both the minister and the people being served.

(5) Protect the gift from pride, power-seeking and platform obsession: Spiritual gifts can become dangerous when we begin to love the attention attached to the gift more than Christ and the people the gift was meant to serve. Jesus warned against showmanship and ambition, while Paul repeatedly directed attention back to love, service and the building of the Body. The goal is usefulness, not celebrity culture in the name of "my own platform". A gift is safest when Christ remains greater than the platform.

Major safeguards for growing gifts

- Do not chase spiritual power: Desire God Himself and usefulness in His hands, not manifestations that make people admire you.
- Do not chase titles or copy another person's gift: A title does not create grace, and imitation does not create calling.
- Do not manufacture manifestations: Never exaggerate experiences, force prophetic language, imitate unusual behaviours or present strong personal feelings as divine revelation merely to appear gifted.
- Do not use gifts for money, control, attention or self-promotion: Financial gain, emotional dependence, loyalty demands and personal branding must not become the hidden purpose of ministry.
- Do not bypass character development: If leadership asks you to slow down, learn, correct a weakness or serve quietly for a season, receive it prayerfully rather than treating every restraint as opposition to your calling.
- Be careful about seeking online visibility: Building a personal online platform to showcase your gift or ministry requires caution and guidance, especially as a member of a shared vision such as TACEF. Do not equate online reach, likes, followers or growing popularity with reliable evidence of spiritual fruit or God's endorsement. If you have a singing grace, do not rush to release an album simply because others are doing so. If you are clergy or MOTA, be cautious about creating your own prayer/outreach platform on Facebook because it is now popular. Avoid anything that places you at the centre rather than Christ, the Kingdom and the shared vision.

(6) Deploy gifts through TACEF, The African Church and wider Kingdom service: TACEF fellowship should function as a safe training ground where gifts are observed, tested, corrected, mentored and released. The African Church also provides many opportunities for members to serve as we execute the vision of revival and as led by the Lord. Deployment should therefore follow divine leading, accountable service and the needs of the Body, not personal ambition.

A simple path to deploy your service

- Divine leading: Seek the Lord's direction concerning where, when and how the gift should be expressed. Divine leading should govern deployment, not ambition, pressure or the desire to be visible.
- Discover: Prayerfully identify possible areas of grace, burden and usefulness without forcing a label too early.
- Serve: Begin with real needs in the local TACEF fellowship and church rather than waiting for a preferred platform.

- Observe: Look for sustained fruit, recurring grace, personal growth and the effect of the service on others.
- Confirm: Receive honest feedback from mature believers and responsible leadership.
- Develop: Build spiritual depth, knowledge, skill, discipline and character appropriate to the gift and assignment.
- Deploy and review: Accept increasing responsibility as appropriate, remain accountable, and periodically ask whether the gift is still producing Christlike fruit and genuinely building people.

Conclusion:

God has not called every believer to the same function, but He has called every believer to faithful service. The great question is therefore not, "What title do I carry?" but, "What grace has God entrusted to me, who is being helped by it, and am I becoming trustworthy enough for God to use it more?"

Let TACEF and your local church become places where gifts are discovered without competition, tested without humiliation, developed without pride and deployed without personality worship. Everyone who has received a gift to serve the Lord must remain focused on building godly character and staying teachable. In the same way, less visible workers must know that their service matters, and every growing gift must remain under the government of Scripture and healthy accountability.

Stir up the gift and pursue excellence in Kingdom service, but guard the life carrying the gift. Serve faithfully where God has placed you, develop what He has given you, and allow the fruit of your life and service to point people to Christ rather than to yourself.

Managing Church Dynamics and Administration with Excellence

Memory Verse: "Moreover it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful." 1 Corinthians 4:2

Key Texts: Acts 6:1–7; Daniel 6:1–5; 1 Corinthians 4:1–2; Mark 10:42–45; Colossians 3:23–24

Seminar Objectives:

- Understand church administration as a sacred stewardship and spiritual responsibility, not an opportunity for status, influence or financial gain.
- Discern whether God is genuinely leading them into an administrative role or they are accepting it through pressure, politics or emotional blackmail.
- Recognise the spiritual, political, relational and financial pressures that can accompany leadership responsibility in The African Church.
- Apply professional standards of accountability, reporting, punctuality, documentation, financial management and resource stewardship.
- Use administrative influence to strengthen revival, discipleship, welfare, institutional sustainability and the spiritual mission of the church.

Introduction: When church administration becomes a spiritual test

The church is the Body of Christ, yet people, money, property, projects, programmes and relationships must be managed. Acts 6 shows that administration is necessary, but those appointed were required to be people of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom. Administrative competence must therefore never be separated from spiritual character.

This is especially important in The African Church. A believer who becomes a Church Warden, Pastor's Warden, Secretary, Financial Secretary, Treasurer, Council Member, Committee Chairman, or other office holder may encounter other office holders with competing interests. Some see church office as an opportunity for visibility, political influence, preferred vendor recommendations, access to church funds or even inflated project costs for personal gain. Others may try to use the credibility of a godly believer to strengthen a faction or pursue an agenda.

The deeper question is therefore not simply whether a believer can occupy an office, but whether the assignment can be carried in a way that preserves personal walk with God, family life, TACEF fellowship and testimony while making the church more spiritually focused, accountable and sustainable.

Key principles

(1) Do not take the role without divine leading: Not every position offered to a believer must be accepted. Statements such as "Why should a TACEF member refuse?" or "Do you want those who are not born again to rule the church?" can become emotional blackmail. Pressure is not the same as divine direction. Seek God carefully before taking responsibility, because God will only sustain what He genuinely leads us into.

Practical guideline for accepting administrative responsibility

- Pray before accepting: Seek clear direction from the Lord before taking significant responsibility; do not accept because of title, prestige, pressure or fear of disappointing people.
- Count the cost: Understand the duties, time demand and possible impact on your life, family, work schedule and fellowship. Discuss major implications with your spouse.
- Seek godly counsel: Speak with mature brethren who can help you discern motives, risks and whether the assignment fits God's present leading for your life.
- Refuse political recruitment: Do not allow your name, credibility or TACEF identity to be used as a political instrument or to legitimise an agenda you do not understand.
- Learn to say no: A respectful refusal is better than accepting an office that eventually destroys your spiritual life, family or testimony.

(2) Protect your spiritual life, family and fellowship: Church administration can become so demanding that meetings, projects management and committee responsibilities gradually replace prayer, Bible study, family time and fellowship. Some eventually spend much of the Sunday service in the vestry room while the Word is being preached. Administration must support spiritual life, not consume it.

Practical guideline for maintaining spiritual balance

- Guard your personal altar: Maintain daily prayer, Bible study and regular seasons of fasting irrespective of administrative pressure.
- Remain active in TACEF fellowship: Church office must never become an excuse for disconnecting from the fellowship and spiritual relationships that nurture your life.
- Protect family time: Do not allow endless meetings and avoidable church assignments to make your spouse and children permanent casualties of service.
- Avoid unnecessary vestry occupation: Plan administrative work so you can participate meaningfully during church services.
- Review your spiritual health: Regularly ask whether the position is making you spiritually stronger or gradually weakening your walk with God and Christian testimony.
- Actively grow with the MICA: Actively join the TACEF Missionaries in Church Administration (MICA) to pray, grow, learn, share and be supported in your assignment.

(3) Use administrative influence to advance the spiritual mission: Joseph and Daniel used positions of influence with wisdom, integrity and a sense of divine purpose. In the same way, TACEFites in church administration should use influence to strengthen the church spiritually and institutionally, not just to sustain activities and traditions.

Practical guideline for using administrative influence

- Prioritise spiritual purpose: Ask whether programmes genuinely strengthen salvation, discipleship, prayer, evangelism and Christian living.
- Redirect activities wisely: Where activities such as harvest events become dominated by bazaars, fundraising or social display, respectfully help restore emphasis on thanksgiving, evangelism, generosity and the true harvest of souls.
- Invest in the next generation: Advocate for serious discipleship and spiritual development among children, teenagers and young people.
- Strengthen welfare and compassion: Promote responsible support for ministers, widows, children who need financial help and genuinely vulnerable members rather than publicity-driven assistance.
- Think beyond the present tenure: Build systems, documentation, leadership development and sustainable investments that leave the church stronger after you have left office.

(4) Serve with professional excellence: Spirituality does not excuse incompetence. Daniel distinguished himself because an excellent spirit was in him (Daniel 6:3). When a revival-minded believer takes responsibility, there should be a visible difference in preparation, documentation, accuracy, punctuality, follow-through and accountability.

Practical guideline for administrative excellence

- Secretary and reporting roles: Prepare accurate minutes, circulate reports on time, track agreed actions, maintain proper records and archives, and protect confidential information.
- Financial roles: Apply sound accounting practices, maintain supporting documents, reconcile accounts, prepare clear reports, keep all receipts, and insist on proper authorisation and oversight.
- Projects and procurement: Define requirements clearly, seek fair quotations, document decisions, monitor quality and cost, do not inflate cost, and disclose conflicts of interest.
- Meeting discipline: Be punctual, prepare beforehand, communicate clearly, follow through on assignments and avoid meetings that consume time without producing decisions or action.
- Build relevant skills: Learn the technical, financial, digital, reporting or governance skills required for your specific role. Let standards rise because a believer is serving.

(5) Protect integrity, church money and church assets: Access to church assets and information can create temptation. Administrative office will give privilege to know about the church funds, contracts, and vendor information. Always maintain firm boundaries and caution.

Practical guideline for financial and resource integrity

- Reject personal gain from church transactions: Never inflate project costs, receive secret commissions or manipulate procurement to favour yourself, friends, relatives or business associates.
- Declare conflicts of interest: Where you have a relationship or potential benefit connected with a decision, disclose it and allow proper independent consideration.

- Protect privileged information: Do not use confidential budgets, vendor information or internal decisions for private advantage.
- Respect church assets: Do not use church buses, vehicles, tools, facilities, workers or equipment for personal assignments without proper approval and subject to the existing church policy.
- Keep decisions defensible: Handle funds and privileges in a manner that can withstand open examination. "Moreover it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful" (1 Corinthians 4:2).

(6) Manage church politics and opposition with wisdom: Church administration brings believers into contact with influential people, factions and competing interests. Some may behave as though they own the church because of wealth, age, family history or long-standing influence. Others may try to recruit you into attacks against ministers or leaders. A believer must never become anybody's political weapon.

Practical guideline for managing difficult church dynamics

- Respect without surrendering conviction: Treat everyone honourably, but do not compromise biblical truth or your conscience merely because a person is influential.
- Refuse factional battles: Do not spread damaging rumours, join coordinated attacks on godly ministers or sign actions you know are dishonest, vindictive or politically motivated.
- Speak with wisdom and respect: Be ready to explain your position calmly and clearly.
- Keep records and seek counsel: Document important decisions and consult mature believers before major confrontations or steps with long-term consequences.
- Receive genuine correction: Do not label every disagreement as persecution. Admit mistakes where necessary and remain teachable.
- Know when participation becomes compromise: If remaining in a role repeatedly requires dishonesty, ungodly alliances or violation of conscience, prayerfully seek God concerning whether you should continue.

Conclusion:

The great need of The African Church is for believers who combine spiritual depth with professional excellence in administration. They do not enter office for title, visibility, politics or financial opportunity. They seek God's leading, guard their personal altar, remain active in TACEF fellowship, serve in MICA, protect their families, and refuse to become instruments of ungodly factions.

They handle church money transparently, reject inflated projects and secret benefits, respect church assets, keep accurate records, meet deadlines and apply professional standards. They use influence to strengthen evangelism, discipleship, children and youth ministry, ministerial welfare, care for vulnerable people, sound governance and the long-term spiritual and institutional sustainability of the church.

Like Joseph and Daniel, their presence should make a visible difference. Their tenure should leave the church more orderly, more accountable, more sustainable and, above all, more spiritually focused than they met it. "Be thou an example of the believers" (1 Timothy 4:12).

Running an Effective Local Fellowship with Kingdom Excellence

Memory Verse: “Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might.” Ecclesiastes 9:10

Key Texts: Acts 2:42–47; John 10:11–14; 2 Timothy 2:2; Daniel 6:3; Ephesians 4:11–14; Ezekiel 37:1–10

Seminar Objectives:

- Understand the TACEF local fellowship as a platform for sustained discipleship, accountable Christian growth, evangelism, soulwinning and revival.
- Run church-based and campus-based fellowships effectively despite competing activities, schedules and responsibilities.
- Plan fellowship activities with prayer, advance scheduling, prepared session leads, back-up arrangements and appropriate timing.
- Shepherd members intentionally through spiritual follow-up, welfare support, children’s engagement and integration into the wider TACEF vision.
- Apply kingdom excellence to finance, reporting, information management, communication, leadership development, succession and alignment with TACEF structures.

Introduction: The local fellowship as a place of deepening the vision of revival

A TACEF local fellowship is more than a weekly meeting or another group within the church or campus. It is a deliberate platform for sustained discipleship where believers are taught, followed up and groomed into the character of Christ. It is also a revival outpost through which members are strengthened to live as witnesses of Christ, win souls, intercede for the church and community, and carry the burden of revival into their everyday lives.

Running such a fellowship today requires wisdom and excellence. In a church-based fellowship, members may also belong to the choir, Brigade, youth groups, and other units that meet at the same time, while frequent church programmes can further reduce available time. On campuses, lectures, tests, examinations, departmental activities, other Christian meetings, and holiday calendars create similar pressures. Kingdom Excellence therefore means protecting the essence of fellowship while prayerfully finding workable structures that help people participate consistently.

The danger is either to abandon the fellowship because the environment is busy or to become so immersed in church or campus activities that the TACEF mandate is lost. A vibrant fellowship must continually produce disciples, intercessors, and soulwinners who understand the vision and become salt and light wherever God has placed them.

Key principles

(1) Treasure the TACEF fellowship and understand what it is: TACEF fellowship exists to deepen personal growth in an accountable community of believers and to raise a revival army through discipleship, prayer, evangelism, welfare and alignment with the current burden of the ministry. Members should not treat it as an optional meeting that is attended only when nothing else is happening.

Practical guideline for preserving the fellowship mandate

- Keep discipleship central: Use the fellowship to teach the Word, apply the TACEF manual and current ministry burden, pray together, and deliberately groom members into Christlike character.
- Make intercession a defining culture: Pray for members, the local church or campus, salvation of souls, and the wider revival mandate. The fellowship should carry people and territories before God, not merely run programmes.
- Know what fellowship is not: Using the TACEF manual to teach the church’s Sunday School, taking an English Service, or running a youth church can be valuable outreach, but these do not replace the distinct TACEF fellowship where members are discipled, followed up, and aligned to the vision.
- Treasure accountable community: Create an atmosphere where members can share spiritual struggles, receive counsel, be encouraged, corrected in love and strengthened without fear.
- Include the children intentionally: Create a simple children’s segment where they can share what they learned from their Seed of Purpose manual, recite memory verses, lead worship or prayers.

(2) Plan with prayer and excellence in a busy church or campus environment: Excellence begins before the fellowship starts. Strong intercession, advance planning and responsible coordination are critical. The goal is not to fill a calendar but to create a rhythm that members can realistically follow without diluting the fellowship mandate.

Practical guideline for effective planning

- Maintain a minimum one-month activity schedule: Publish the next four weeks of fellowship activities so that everyone leading worship, Word, prayer, children's session, announcement or another assignment knows well in advance.
- Confirm every facilitator during the same week: Follow up before the meeting to ensure the person is prepared, understands the assigned topic and has prayed. Always have a prepared back-up when the person selected is absent.
- Intercede before every fellowship: Leadership should pray deliberately for the fellowship intentionally. Administration must never replace spiritual preparation.
- Choose the most feasible meeting rhythm: Explore early morning before English Service, after service, a weekday physical meeting or complementary online sessions. One fellowship, for example, holds Sundays at 7am, a monthly post-service outreach in the main church at 2pm, and Monday at 9pm WhatsApp prayer meeting every week.
- Plan campus fellowships around real campus life: Work with lecture timetables, examinations, and facility availability. Use semester calendars, shorter targeted meetings where necessary with specialized student focused events (e.g. Success Seminars, Examination Prayer).
- Start and close responsibly: Punctuality, clear time allocation and disciplined moderation show respect for members and make it easier for people to participate when we keep to time.

(3) Shepherd people not just organise programme: A local fellowship becomes effective when leadership knows the people and takes genuine interest in their spiritual life, welfare, progress and challenges. Attendance is important, but the deeper task is to ensure that no member quietly drifts away from Christ or disappears under the weight of the pressures of life and personal challenges.

Practical guideline for discipleship and member care

- Know members by name and situation: Maintain an updated membership and contact register and deliberately know who is regular, new, absent, spiritually struggling, relocating, graduating, returning from school or needing practical support.
- Follow up intentionally: Contact absent members during the week. Ask about prayer life, salvation, family, school, work, health and welfare, and provide or connect them to appropriate support.
- Lead new people to Christ, not merely into TACEF: Every new member should be lovingly followed up with the intention of establishing a genuine relationship with Jesus and helping the person understand the fellowship's revival vision.
- Build one-to-one and small-group discipleship: Where possible, connect younger believers with mature brethren who can pray with them, answer questions, model Christian living and help them develop consistent spiritual disciplines.
- Use welfare as part of shepherding: Pay attention to genuine needs without creating unhealthy dependency. Mobilise practical support, prayer, counsel and referrals within the fellowship and wider TACEF family.
- Engage children and young people beyond Sunday attendance: Encourage regular participation in Seed of Purpose, Son of Purpose and other age-relevant TACEF platforms.

(4) Grow the fellowship through evangelism, soulwinning and revival impact: TACEF exists to be salt and light in the local church, campus and community. Fellowship growth should therefore be intentional, but the aim is not to increase numbers for their own sake. The goal is to bring people to Christ, disciple them and release them as witnesses and agents of revival.

Practical guideline for growth and impact

- Practise one-on-one invitation: Encourage every member to prayerfully invite friends, church members, classmates or colleagues and personally follow up those invitations.

- Build an evangelism rhythm: Schedule regular prayer for souls, personal evangelism, visitation and appropriate outreach rather than waiting only for large seasonal programmes.
- Use innovative outreach platforms: Campus fellowships can use Catch-Them-Young initiatives, special teaching events and targeted engagements. Church-based fellowships can prayerfully use Sunday School, children's ministry, or English Services as outreach opportunities where the church permits.
- Remain a revival influence in the local church: Interact constructively with church leadership, support spiritually edifying programmes and organise Spirit-led outreach that strengthens salvation, discipleship, and biblical studies.
- Watch for mission drift: If the fellowship becomes heavily occupied with general church activities while intercession declines, no disciples are being groomed and no souls are being won, the fellowship is losing the reason it was planted there.
- Measure spiritual fruit: Look beyond attendance to conversions, restored prayer lives, discipleship progress, children growing in Christ and members becoming visible witnesses of Jesus.

(5) Run the fellowship with administrative and financial excellence: Spiritual vitality should be matched by orderly administration. A fellowship that prays well but cannot account for money, attendance, information, assignments or communication is not demonstrating kingdom excellence. Good systems protect trust, continuity and responsible stewardship.

Practical guideline for administration, finance and communication

- Keep complete financial records: Record every offering, gift, expense and approved commitment. Reconcile regularly with the zonal or central financial system for those who remit to the centralised bank account and retain supporting evidence for all transactions.
- Maintain full bank-account visibility: Where the fellowship operates an account, ensure authorised leaders have appropriate visibility, approvals are documented and no single individual controls the fellowship's money.
- Report attendance every week: Capture attendance in the required format and submit promptly to the TACEF central reporting platform.
- Manage information deliberately: Keep current records of members, leaders, programmes, attendance, outreach activities, follow-up needs, and significant fellowship decisions so that knowledge is not lost when leadership changes.
- Use the Fellowship WhatsApp platform purposefully: Share weekly ministry trigger messages from the Sunday online fellowship and notices for relevant platforms such as Tuesday Prayer Meeting, Seed of Purpose session link for those who missed it, Sisters' Tuesday Morning Prayer and other TACEF activities. Celebrate appropriate member milestones to keep healthy community engagement.
- Control digital excesses: Do not allow incessant forwarding, unrelated debates, commercial promotions or distracting content to overwhelm the fellowship platform. Communication should strengthen fellowship, information, prayer and spiritual growth.

(6) Build leadership, alignment and succession for sustainability: An excellent fellowship must not depend on one coordinator. It should continually raise people who can teach, evangelise, administer, care for members and eventually carry responsibility. It must also remain connected to the subzone, zone and central ministry so that the local fellowship does not become an isolated island.

Practical guideline for leadership and sustainability

- Build a simple functional leadership team: Assign clear responsibilities for prayer, evangelism, discipleship, welfare, children, finance and communication according to the size of the fellowship.
- Plan succession deliberately: Identify faithful members early, give them opportunities to lead sessions, involve them in planning and mentor them until there is a visible pipeline of people able to continue the fellowship.
- Tap returning TACEF pipelines: Identify TACEFites returning from campuses, graduates coming home, NYSC members, members in boarding schools during holidays and others who can be reintegrated, disciplined and gradually given responsibility.
- Hold regular leadership prayer retreats: Use prayer retreats to renew the burden, resolve challenges, review members and prepare spiritually. The annual local fellowship end-of-year retreat should combine appraisal, thanksgiving, planning, review and readiness for the new year.

- Stay aligned to wider TACEF activities: Ensure members understand and participate in relevant subzone, zone and central activities and thematic platforms such as Seed of Purpose, Son of Purpose, MOTA, MICA, Mothers Fellowship, Ambassadors and Couples Chat Room.
- Review the fellowship regularly: Ask whether the fellowship is growing disciples, winning souls, caring for members, raising leaders, maintaining sound records, aligning with the ministry burden and impacting the local church or campus for Christ.

Conclusion:

An effective TACEF local fellowship is a place of making. It is not a social group or an additional church programme. It is a spiritual community where believers are intentionally disciplined, prayed for, cared for, sent out to win souls and groomed to become an army with a vision of revival.

Kingdom Excellence means protecting this spiritual purpose with prayerful planning, feasible meeting structures, strong follow-up, evangelism, financial accountability, accurate reporting, disciplined communication, alignment with the wider ministry and deliberate succession. Whether the fellowship is church-based or campus-based, it must learn to work wisely within a busy environment without allowing competing activities to erase its identity.

The ultimate evidence of a thriving fellowship is not how many programmes it conducts but whether people are being saved, disciples are being formed, intercession is increasing, members are growing in the character of Christ, new leaders are emerging and the local church, campus and community are feeling the influence of a people who have been raised to live as witnesses of Jesus.

TACEF 2026/2027

Weekly Bible Study

Annual Theme: An Exceeding Great Army

A 52-Week Journey through Joshua and Ephesians

Winning Territories, Advancing Christ's Kingdom, Possessing the Land and Hearts of Men for the Lord in Local Churches, Campuses, Communities, and Workplaces

Summary

The studies anchored on the theme, "An Exceeding Great Army," are series of spiritual burden and prophetic call to raise a consecrated, Spirit-led, Word-governed, and battle-ready people for the Lord. It is a call for the evolution of end-time revival army rising from the dry bones.

Through Joshua, we see the practical journey of God's army, vessels made, commissioned, led, tested, corrected, restored, and sent to possess the land. Through Ephesians, we see our identity, inheritance, spiritual authority, and warfare posture in Christ necessary to possess the land and hearts of men for the Lord.

This 52-week study calls TACEFites to move from personal encounter to kingdom responsibility, from inward formation to outward possession, and from knowing God to enforcing His purpose in local churches, campuses, communities, workplaces, families, and nations. It is a call for dry bones to live again, wounded soldiers to rise again, vision carriers to be consecrated again, and the Lord's army to stand as one revived, obedient, holy, and faithful people in Christ's Kingdom.

Section 1: The Making of God's End-Time Army -How God Forms Men Before He Entrusts Them with an Army

The journey of an exceeding great army does not begin with noise, numbers, platforms, titles, or visible exploits. It begins with the hidden process of divine making of vessels whom God can trust. Before Joshua became the commander of Israel's conquest, he was first a servant, a minister, a disciple, a man under instructions, a man tested in battle, a man exposed to the mountain of God, and a man who knew how to remain in the presence of God. Before God commits men, territories, burdens, and assignments to a vessel, He first commits that vessel to a process of divine making.

God does not build His work on untrained passion, uncontrolled zeal, self-appointed burdens, or public noise. He first forms the inner life of the vessel. He deals with pride, self-will, fear, unbelief, carelessness, impatience, and spiritual shallowness. The vessel that will carry others must first be carried through God's dealings. The life that will revive others must first be revived. The soldier that will possess territories must first be possessed by the Lord.

Ephesians explains this process of divine making from the New Testament standpoint. We are God's workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works which God has before ordained that we should walk in. Through this divine ordination, we are perfected for the work of ministry, strengthened in the Lord, and equipped with the whole armour of God to stand against every opposition to the will of God. As children of light, we are called to enforce the intention of God on earth, not by human strength, but by the life, wisdom, Word, Spirit, and power of Christ working in us.

This first section therefore lays the foundation for the entire 2026/2027 study journey. If we must become God's end-time army, we must first become trusted vessels. If we must possess the land for the Lord, we must first allow the Lord to possess, shape, correct, and send us.

- Week 1: Becoming a Trusted Soldier in the Lord's Army - Joshua in the School of Divine Making: The life of Joshua teaches us that discipleship is the pathway to becoming enlisted into the Lord's army. He was shaped through obedience, the Word rehearsed into his ears, mountain encounter, and a personal altar. TACEFites must learn that God first makes the vessel before He sends the vessel. No one can carry divine territory safely if they have not first submitted to divine making process.
- Week 2: Joshua - Kingdom Army Built in Courage, Wisdom, and the Spirit-Led Lifestyle: Joshua and Caleb showed us that God's army must see through the eyes of heaven, not through fear, public opinion, or natural limitation. They saw the promised land through God's promise while others saw only giants. They stood for God when the crowd chose unbelief and even risked being stoned by the people. TACEFites must therefore stand for the truth, holiness, and revival with Spirit-governed courage, not fleshly boldness, anger, pride, or ambition.
- Week 3: Joshua's Commissioning as God's Army - Arising into God's Ordained Assignment: Joshua's commissioning reminds us that divine assignment begins with clear instructions, not emotion, pressure, or self-appointed burden. God said, "Moses my servant is dead; now therefore arise, go over this Jordan." This means that the death of a season is not the death of God's promise. We must arise from grief, failure, pain of the past, betrayal, delay, disappointment, and unhealthy dependency. We must also discern “this Jordan,” the specific obedience, people, burden, or territory God is assigning to us.

- Week 4: Possessing the Land for the Lord - Walking in Our Inheritance in Christ: This week teaches that what God gives must still be possessed. In Christ, we already have an inheritance, but we must tread upon the land in obedience. We do not fight for victory; we walk from the victory Christ has already secured. TACEFites must therefore return to local churches, campuses, families, communities, workplaces, children’s churches, societies, and fellowships as revival agents sent to win souls, restore lives, strengthen believers, and reclaim territories for the Lord.

Week 1: Monday, 31 August 2026 to Sunday, 6 September 2026

Title: Becoming a Trusted Soldier in the Lord's Army - Joshua in the School of Divine Making

Bible Texts: Exodus 17:9-14; Exodus 24:13; Exodus 33:11; Ephesians 2:10; Ephesians 4:11-13

Exodus 17:9-14: 9 And Moses said unto Joshua, Choose us out men, and go out, fight with Amalek: to morrow I will stand on the top of the hill with the rod of God in mine hand.

10 So Joshua did as Moses had said to him, and fought with Amalek: and Moses, Aaron, and Hur went up to the top of the hill. 11 And it came to pass, when Moses held up his hand, that Israel prevailed: and when he let down his hand, Amalek prevailed. 12 But Moses' hands were heavy; and they took a stone, and put it under him, and he sat thereon; and Aaron and Hur stayed up his hands, the one on the one side, and the other on the other side; and his hands were steady until the going down of the sun. 13 And Joshua discomfited Amalek and his people with the edge of the sword. 14 And the LORD said unto Moses, Write this for a memorial in a book, and rehearse it in the ears of Joshua: for I will utterly put out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven.

Exodus 24:13: And Moses rose up, and his minister Joshua: and Moses went up into the mount of God.

Exodus 33:11: And the LORD spake unto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh unto his friend. And he turned again into the camp: but his servant Joshua, the son of Nun, a young man, departed not out of the tabernacle.

Ephesians 2:10: For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them.

Ephesians 4:11-13: 11 And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; 12 For the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ: 13 Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- So Joshua did as Moses had said to him.
- Write this for a memorial in a book, and rehearse it in the ears of Joshua.
- Moses rose up, and his minister Joshua.
- Joshua departed not out of the tabernacle.
- For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works.
- For the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry.

Introduction

Our first study into how an exceeding great army is forged through the hand of God introduces us to the making of Joshua, not first as a commander of an army, but as an ordinary vessel in the intense process of divine making. Before Joshua led Israel across Jordan, divided territories, confronted kings, and possessed the land, he was first shaped and groomed to become a trusted soldier of the Lord. Before he became the visible leader, he was hidden under Moses, trained through service, sharpened by correction, exposed to battle, and drawn into the presence of God.

The first time Joshua appears in the battle narrative of Scripture, Moses gives him an instruction: "Choose us out men, and go out, fight with Amalek." The Bible immediately records, "So Joshua did as Moses had said to him." This simple sentence reveals the foundation of Joshua's usefulness. He was teachable, available, responsive, and obedient. He did not argue, delay, reinterpret the instruction, or insist on his own method. This is an important lesson to note that the Lord's army is not built with self-willed people who want to lead before they have learned to follow. A soldier who cannot take instruction cannot be trusted with divine territory.

This opening study connects directly with our 2025/2026 spiritual year, where we learned that discipleship is not merely learning about Christ but becoming like Christ. Joshua's life brings this truth into a practical context. He was formed by obedience, strengthened by the Word rehearsed into his ears, exposed to the mountain of prayer, and shaped by a personal hunger that made him stay back in the tabernacle when others had gone.

Ephesians gives us the New Testament meaning of this divine making process. We are not self-made revival agents. We are "his workmanship." God is the divine Craftsman, shaping, correcting, pruning, repairing, preparing, and aligning us for the good works He has ordained. He does not merely anoint people to work for Him; He first works on them. He does not only give assignments; He forms the vessels that will carry the assignments. If He does not make us, He cannot trust us for His use. Before God gives us territories, He must first possess our hearts. Before He sends us to carry others, He must first shape us in His presence. Dear TACEFites, it takes a revived life to revive others. It takes a life that God has touched to touch others for God.

Teachings

1. Discipleship Is the Pathway into the Lord's Army: Joshua was not first introduced as a man with a personal vision, platform, ambition, or ministry. He was introduced as a man under instruction. His first recorded act in battle was not self-initiated but a response to instruction. Moses said, "Choose us out men, and go out, fight with Amalek," and Joshua obeyed. The first proof of readiness for divine assignment is not gifting, boldness, eloquence, or spiritual excitement. It is obedience. Joshua could later command because he had first learned to submit. He could later lead because he had first been led. He could later carry the burden of a nation because he first carried the instruction of his discipler without pride.

In our generation, many desire platforms without divine-making process. Many want to lead fellowships, run online ministries, and start own outreaches, yet resist discipline, correction, and spiritual covering. This is not the Joshua pattern. Ephesians 4:11-13 teaches us that God gives apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, and teachers "for the perfecting of the saints." The word "perfecting" carries the idea of repairing, adjusting, and preparing. Discipleship serves this special purpose of "perfecting" where self-will is broken, pride is corrected, character is repaired, obedience is tested, and Christ is formed in us. A revival army that despises discipleship will become a crowd of untrained fighters. Joshua teaches us that the person God will use tomorrow must be willing to be disciplined today.

2. The Word Must Be Rehearsed until Truth Becomes Conviction: After the battle with Amalek, the Lord said to Moses, "Write this for a memorial in a book, and rehearse it in the ears of Joshua." The word "rehearse" means to repeat, recite, remind, and reinforce until truth becomes conviction. God did not want Joshua merely to remember that Israel won a battle but He wanted Joshua to understand the spiritual meaning of that victory. He wanted Joshua to see beyond the activities but to understand the Word and the burden. Joshua had fought the battle and used the sword, but he also needed the Word. Every revival army must be taught, not merely engaged in spiritual activities around us. We must not raise a generation that only knows how to shout, sing, attend programmes, make quotable quotes, and engage in marathon fasts, but lacks doctrinal depth and spiritual conviction.

We must learn to rehearse God's Word into everyone around us. Fellowship leaders must rehearse the burden of revival into younger TACEFites. Disciplers must rehearse sound doctrine into new converts. The great house of TACEF must rehearse the vision of revival, holiness, soul-winning, prayer, discipleship, and kingdom service until it becomes the settled conviction of the next generation. If the Word is not rehearsed, the work may be lost. If truth is not repeated, error will be normalised.

3. Mountain Encounter before Public Assignment: Exodus 24:13 says, "And Moses rose up, and his minister Joshua: and Moses went up into the mount of God." Joshua was not only trained in the valley of battle; he was also exposed to the mountain of encounter. The "valley" represents the place of activity, service, responsibility, and visible assignment. It is where Joshua fought Amalek, carried out instructions, served under Moses, and learned practical obedience. The "mountain", however, represents separation unto God, prayer, fasting, divine instruction, spiritual sight, waiting, and personal encounter. The valley trained Joshua's hands, but the mountain trained his heart. The valley taught him how to serve, but the mountain taught him how to depend on God.

Every trusted soldier in the Lord's army must understand both places. A believer who only knows the valley may become active but empty, busy but dry, visible but shallow. Many can organise programmes, serve in fellowship, and carry out assignments, yet they have no consistent secret place with God. They can fight in the valley, but they have no mountain life. The mountain is where human noise reduces and the voice of God becomes clearer. It is where the vessel is shaped before the assignment is enlarged.

For TACEFites, the mountain life means setting apart regular hours for prayer, fasting, meditation on the Word, and personal retreats with God. It means deliberately creating uninterrupted time away from noise, phones, social media, entertainment, and unnecessary conversations, so the heart can be trained in God's presence. Beloved TACEFites, we must bring back the mountain life. The dry bones of personal prayer must live again. The dry bones of fasting must rise again. The dry bones of waiting on God must be restored. We cannot possess territories for Christ with empty hearts, prayerless lives, and distracted spirits.

4. Personal Prayer Altar: Staying Back with God beyond Corporate Fire: Exodus 33:11 says that after Moses returned to the camp, “his servant Joshua, the son of Nun, a young man, departed not out of the tabernacle.” This is one of the most powerful pictures of personal hunger in Joshua’s life. Joshua followed Moses, but he did not depend on Moses’ fire. He remained in the tabernacle. He stayed back with God. This is the foundation of a life that will serve in the Lord’s exceeding great army. Every kingdom soldier must have a personal altar of consistent fellowship with God. While corporate prayer is good, whether at conventions, fellowship meetings, or online prayer gatherings, no believer can survive on corporate fire alone. A person who only burns when others are praying will soon become cold when alone. A person who only studies the Bible when there is a fellowship assignment will soon become shallow. A person who only responds to God during programmes will struggle.

Joshua teaches us that a trusted soldier must learn the practice of staying back with God. Staying back means refusing to rush away from God’s dealings. It means staying with the Word until it searches and purifies. It means staying under conviction until repentance is complete. The Lord is calling us from crowd excitement into secret intimacy, and from occasional encounters into daily fellowship.

5. Applications and Practical Implications

- Every TACEFite must have a discipler: This is someone who guides, corrects, strengthens, and helps you grow in Christ, and to whom you willingly submit for spiritual accountability. Ask your fellowship leaders how to begin this discipleship journey.
- Do more Word rehearsal: Read, meditate on, discuss, obey, and live the Word.
- Build a mountain life: Create regular time for prayer, fasting, quietness, and personal retreat with God. This week, set aside one uninterrupted hour to seek the Lord in prayer, reflect on some of the jottings you made at TACEF Convention 2026, with no phone, no distraction, no rushing, and no divided attention. Let it be your personal mountain moment with God.
- Strengthen your personal altar: Do not depend only on conventions, fellowship meetings, daily morning prayers or Tuesday online meetings. Pray alone. Study alone. Wait on God alone.
- Embrace correction as part of divine making: God corrects those He wants to use. Do not run away from correction, rebuke, pruning, or divine dealings.
- Serve faithfully where you are placed: Whether in The African Church, your local assembly, campus fellowship, family, workplace, or community, serve as a soldier under divine command.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why did Joshua first appear in Scripture as a man under divine making before he became a trusted soldier leading the Lord’s army?
2. Why must the Word of God and the burden of revival be rehearsed into ears of everyone especially our future leaders and younger TACEFites?
3. What is the difference between being active in the valley of service and being formed on the mountain of encounter?
4. Why is it dangerous to depend only on corporate fire without building a personal prayer altar?
5. How can the great house of TACEF ensure that the pursuit of revival is not lost in transition from one generation to another?

Personal Reflection

Am I truly being disciplined? Can God trust me with people because I have first submitted to His dealings? Am I teachable like Joshua, or am I full of personal opinions, pride, and self-will? Am I allowing the Word of God to be rehearsed into my heart until it becomes my conviction? Do I read, meditate on, obey, and live the Word, or do I only hear it casually? Do I have a mountain life with God, or am I only active in the valley of service? Do I know how to stay back in the tabernacle when others have gone? What character flaws is God trying to correct in me before He enlarges my trust? Am I allowing God to make me, or am I rushing to be used without being formed?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, make me a trusted soldier in Your army, formed by Your Word, Your Spirit, and Your dealings.

2. Lord, deliver me from pride, self-will, and resistance to godly instruction. Give me the heart of obedience that Joshua carried.
3. Father, rehearse Your Word and burden deeply in my ears until truth becomes conviction and my life aligns with Your purpose.
4. Lord, draw me to the mountain of encounter. Restore my prayer life, fasting life, and secret place with You. Let my spiritual dry bones receive the breathe of God.
5. Holy Spirit, rebuild my broken personal altar and deepen my place of intimate fellowship.
6. Lord Jesus, correct every flaw in my character that can hinder my usefulness in Your army.

Week 1 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 31 August 2026

- If God does not make me, He cannot trust me for His use. God does not commit territories to an unformed vessel. I receive grace to submit to the divine process of making until Christ is formed in me.
- Before God gives me an assignment, He must first possess my heart. I refuse to rush into visibility without formation. Lord, work on me until my life can carry the weight of Your purpose.
- A trusted soldier is not self-made; he is God-made. I am His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works. Father, shape me, correct me, prepare me, and align me for Your use.

Tuesday, 1 September 2026

- Joshua's first proof of usefulness was obedience: "So Joshua did as Moses had said to him." I receive grace to obey instructions without delay, pride, or self-will.
- A soldier who cannot take instructions cannot be trusted with divine territory. Lord, break every spirit of stubbornness in me and give me a teachable, humble, and obedient heart.
- I cannot lead well until I have learned to follow well. I cannot command faithfully until I have submitted faithfully. Lord, make me a disciple to follow Christ in all things

Wednesday, 2 September 2026

- The Word must be rehearsed into my ears until truth becomes conviction. I will not be a believer moved only by activities; I will be rooted in the Word of God, governed by truth, and established in sound doctrine.
- Fire without truth can become wildfire. Lord, let Your Word enter my heart, shape my thoughts, govern my speech, correct my motives, and direct my steps.
- I must not only hear the Word casually; I must meditate on it until it becomes life. Father, rehearse Your burden deeply in my heart until revival, holiness, and soul-winning become my settled conviction.

Thursday, 3 September 2026

- The valley may train my hands, but the mountain trains my heart. I must not be active in service but empty in secret. Lord, restore my mountain life of prayer, fasting, waiting, and encounter.
- Before public assignment, there must be private consecration. Before I carry others, I must wait before God. Lord, draw me away from noise, distraction, and deepen me into the place of deep fellowship with You.
- I cannot possess territories for Christ with a prayerless life and a distracted spirit. Father, revive the dry bones of my personal prayer life and teach me to seek You again with hunger.

Friday, 4 September 2026

- Joshua stayed back in the tabernacle when others had gone. I refuse to live on borrowed fire. Lord Jesus, restore my intimacy with You and give me grace to build an altar of encounter with You.
- Corporate and joint prayers are good, but it cannot replace my personal altar of divine encounter. Lord, teach me to pray alone, study alone, and wait alone, even as I join and enjoy general fellowship of the brethren
- A true soldier of the Lord is made in the crucibles of submission, correction, sharpening, and intimacy until Christ is formed in him. Lord, keep me in Your presence until You are formed in me.

Saturday, 5 September 2026

- God corrects those He wants to use. I will not run from corrections, rebuke, pruning, or divine dealings. Lord, remove every flaw in my character that can hinder my usefulness in Your army.

- I must serve faithfully where I am placed. I am a soldier under divine command. Lord, make me faithful in every small responsibility.
- The making of God is not a punishment; it is preparation. When God makes me, no man can unmake me. Father, make me a trusted vessel, a revived life, and a soldier in Your exceeding great army.

Week 2: Monday, 7 to Sunday, 13 September 2026

Title: Joshua: Kingdom Army Built in Courage, Wisdom, and the Spirit-Led Lifestyle

Bible Texts: Numbers 14:6-10; Numbers 27:18; Deuteronomy 34:9; Ephesians 1:17-19; 5:8-10

Numbers 14:6-10: 6 And Joshua the son of Nun, and Caleb the son of Jephunneh, which were of them that searched the land, rent their clothes: 7 And they spake unto all the company of the children of Israel, saying, The land, which we passed through to search it, is an exceeding good land.

8 If the LORD delight in us, then he will bring us into this land, and give it us; a land which floweth with milk and honey. 9 Only rebel not ye against the LORD, neither fear ye the people of the land; for they are bread for us: their defence is departed from them, and the LORD is with us: fear them not. 10 But all the congregation bade stone them with stones. And the glory of the LORD appeared in the tabernacle of the congregation before all the children of Israel.

Numbers 27:18: And the LORD said unto Moses, Take thee Joshua the son of Nun, a man in whom is the spirit, and lay thine hand upon him.

Deuteronomy 34:9: And Joshua the son of Nun was full of the spirit of wisdom; for Moses had laid his hands upon him: and the children of Israel hearkened unto him, and did as the LORD commanded Moses.

Ephesians 1:17-19: 17 That the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give unto you the spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of him: 18 The eyes of your understanding being enlightened; that ye may know what is the hope of his calling, and what are the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints, 19 And what is the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe, according to the working of his mighty power.

Ephesians 5:8-10: 8 For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light: 9 For the fruit of the Spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth; 10 Proving what is acceptable unto the Lord.

- Proving what is acceptable unto the Lord.

Introduction

This week brings us to another mark of the trusted kingdom army: the courage to see as God sees, stand as God commands, and walk as the Spirit leads. Joshua was not only formed in the school of obedience, Word rehearsal, mountain encounter, and personal altar; he was also tested in the place of public pressure. When the spies returned from Canaan, all twelve saw the same land, the same fruit, the same walls, and the same giants. Yet, they did not all see with the same eyes. Ten spies interpreted the land through fear, unbelief, and natural limitation. Joshua and Caleb interpreted the same land through the promise and faithfulness of God. The difference was not in what they saw physically, but in how they interpreted what they saw spiritually.

This is a major burden for every TACEFite in this season of winning territories, advancing Christ's Kingdom, and possessing the land and hearts of men for the Lord. We cannot execute divine assignments with natural eyes. Natural eyes will always see giants before God, walls before promises, impossibility before obedience, and death before revival. But spiritual eyes see God first.

We must also note that spiritual perception does not deny the existence of challenges. The only difference is that it refuses to magnify those challenges above the Lord. Therefore, we must see our local churches, campuses, communities, workplaces, and The African Church the way God sees them. We do not see a dead church, but many souls waiting to know the Lord. We do not see sinners as people destined for hell, but souls redeemed by the blood of Jesus whom we must reach with the good news of Christ.

Teachings

1. Seeing Through the Eyes of Heaven: Joshua and Caleb saw the Promised Land differently because they saw through the eyes of faith. The ten spies saw giants and concluded defeat. Joshua and Caleb saw the same giants and concluded victory because God had spoken. Faith does not deny reality but interprets reality through God's promise. This is what it means to see through the eyes of heaven. It is to look at a dry and dying church and still believe revival can come. It is to see a sinful campus and still believe souls can be saved. It is to see a difficult workplace and still believe Christ can be represented there. It is to see a stubborn family member and still believe grace can reach them.

Many believers are defeated first by how they see. Before the children of Israel failed in action, they failed in perception. Wrong sight produced wrong confession, and wrong confession produced wrong movement. They said, "We be not able," because they saw themselves as "grasshoppers". Joshua and Caleb said, "The land is an exceeding good land," because they saw the land through God's promise. A believer who does not see correctly will not speak correctly, pray correctly, serve correctly, or move correctly. This understanding connects with the truth of our identity in Christ. A person who knows who they are in Christ does not interpret life from fear, shame, inferiority complex, or public opinion. Ephesians 5:8 says, "For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light." Our identity must shape our perception. We are not grasshoppers. We are not abandoned. We are not hopeless. We are light in the Lord, created in Christ for good works, and called to carry His light into dark places.

As a TACEFite, what do you see when you look at your local fellowship, The African Church, your campus, your workplace, your family, or our nation? Do you see only dryness, impossibility, corruption, resistance, and weakness, or do you see a harvest field waiting for labourers? We must pray for enlightened eyes until we see people, places, and battles the way heaven sees them.

2. Standing Alone for God without Blending or Bending: Joshua and Caleb stood when the whole congregation turned toward fear and rebellion. The people wanted to stone them, yet Joshua did not change his testimony to gain acceptance. He did not dilute God's promise to calm the crowd. He did not join unbelief because unbelief was popular. He stood with God even when the majority stood against God. This is one of the greatest tests of a true revival army. Can you stand for God when standing for God makes you unpopular? Can you speak the truth when everyone else prefers comfort? Can you remain holy when immorality has become normal? Can you continue in obedience when obedience costs you acceptance? Can you stand for revival in a place where people have become comfortable with spiritual dryness?

The fear of men is one of the greatest enemies of revival. Many know what is right, but they cannot stand because they fear rejection, loneliness, mockery, or loss of opportunity. However, Joshua teaches us that divine trust is often built in moments when we must choose between God and the crowd. The "stones" of men today may not be physical. They may be gossip, false accusations, social media ridicule, workplace victimisation, or being misunderstood by people we love. Yet, when the congregation wanted to stone Joshua and Caleb, "the glory of the LORD appeared." When men gather stones against those who stand for God, God releases His glory to defend His testimony.

As TACEFites, we must not blend or bend when the crowd chooses unbelief. We must stand for holiness and truth without pride, rebellion, or harshness. Standing for God does not mean being rude. It does not mean becoming arrogant. It does not mean dishonouring leadership or insulting others. It means holding the truth with humility, speaking with grace, obeying God above fear, and refusing to join anything that contradicts the Word and Spirit of God.

3. Being Governed by the Spirit - Not Fleshly Boldness or Ambition: Numbers 27:18 gave another quality of Joshua as "a man in whom is the spirit." This is very important attribute of a member of the Lord's army. Joshua's courage was not stubbornness, anger, ambition, or youthful arrogance. It was courage governed by the Spirit of God. A person may be bold and still be proud. A person may be active and still be controlled by ambition. Therefore, not every boldness is spiritual boldness, and not every courage is good courage. This is why the Lord told Joshua to be of "good courage" because there is "bad courage".

To be governed by the Spirit means that the Holy Spirit rules our motives, reactions, choices, speech, and service. It means we do not simply do what we feel, say what we like, or react anyhow. A Spirit-led believer is led, corrected, restrained, and empowered by the Holy Spirit.

In our daily lives, being governed by the Spirit may mean pausing before reacting, refusing to send an angry message, apologising when convicted, speaking truth without bitterness, refusing to manipulate people in ministry, and allowing the Holy Spirit to check our motives before we act.

4. Wisdom Is Required to Possess the Land for the Lord: Deuteronomy 34:9 further describes, “And Joshua the son of Nun was full of the spirit of wisdom.” Joshua did not only need courage; he needed wisdom. Courage without wisdom can create damage. Zeal without wisdom can scatter what God wants to gather. Passion without wisdom can become dangerous. This is why we must remember the lesson from the 2025/2026 study that zeal must be according to knowledge. A believer may be sincere and still be sincerely wrong if zeal is not governed by the wisdom and the Spirit of God.

Our call to possess the land and hearts of men as God’s exceeding great army require divine wisdom. Joshua had to lead people, manage issues, confront enemies, divide inheritance, listen to God, handle crises, and maintain covenant orders. These were not assignments for a man without a sound mind. He needed wisdom to know when to move, when to wait, when to fight, when to listen, when to command, and when to seek God’s direction. Every revival army needs wisdom. Wisdom is the correct application of what God has taught us through His Word and knowing when to act, how to act, and how to serve without violating God’s order. We need wisdom to balance our spiritual life with the everyday demands of our family life, academics, work demands, relationships, and other areas of our lives. For example, a student who neglects lectures, assignments, and examinations in the name of fellowship activities has zeal, but not according to wisdom. An employee who is careless at work, misses deadlines, and then claims to be persecuted for righteousness may actually be suffering from irresponsibility. A believer who corrects others harshly in the name of holiness may have passion but lacks the spirit of Christ.

Dear TACEFites, as God’s end-time army, we must become a people of wisdom. We must be wiser in how we plan our time, manage our resources, prepare for the future, respond to crises, handle church administrative demands, and coordinate the fellowship. We must be spiritually fervent and administratively precise. We must pursue revival and still excel academically and professionally. We must win territories without damaging relationships, breaking order, or misrepresenting Christ..

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Pray for spiritual eyesight: Ask God this week to open the eyes of your understanding. Do not see your church, campus, workplace, or family through fear, frustration, or past disappointments.
- Speak faith over the land: Replace negative confessions with God-centred confessions. Do not keep saying, “Nothing can change in this church,” “Nobody wants God on this campus,” Say what Joshua said: “The land is an exceeding good land.”
- Stand for the truth without pride: Identify areas where you must stop blending with the crowd. It may be in speech (e.g. using worldly slang), dressing, relationships, examination conducts, etc.
- Check whether your courage is Spirit-led: Before you speak, confront, correct, post, write, or act, ask yourself: “Is this the Holy Spirit leading me, or am I reacting to anger, pride, fear, or ambition?”
- Balance zeal with responsibility: Serve God faithfully, but do not neglect school, work, family, health, or assigned duties. Zeal that destroys responsibility is not according to knowledge.
- Ask for the spirit of wisdom: Pray daily from Ephesians 1:17-19. Ask God for wisdom, revelation, enlightened understanding, and the ability to apply spiritual truth correctly.
- Represent Christ excellently: Whether in The African Church, your local assembly, campus, workplace, family, or community, let people see the fruit of light in your conduct, speech, diligence, humility, and integrity.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why did Joshua and Caleb see the promised land differently from the other ten spies?
2. What does it mean to see a church, campus, family, workplace, or community through the eyes of heaven as a revival army?
3. Why must every true revival agent be willing to stand alone for God when necessary?
4. What are some “stones” believers may face today when they stand for truth, holiness, and revival?
5. Why is wisdom necessary for soul-winning, discipleship, leadership, academic excellence, workplace integrity, and territorial possession?

Personal Reflection

What do I see when I look at the land, church, campus, workplace, family, community or nation God has placed before me? Do I see giants, impossibilities, fear, failure and resistance, or do I see God's promise and the harvest of souls? Am I seeing sinners as hopeless people, or as souls redeemed by the blood of Jesus whom I must reach with the gospel? Am I willing to stand for the Lord even if others reject, mock, or oppose me? Do I blend with the crowd when unbelief becomes popular? Am I governed by the Spirit, or controlled by fear, flesh, anger, and people's opinions? Is my courage good courage, or is it pride disguised as boldness? Do I have the wisdom to serve God without damaging His work? Am I using spiritual passion to cover my poor planning, academic carelessness, or workplace irresponsibility?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, open the eyes of my understanding to see through the eyes of heaven.
2. Lord, deliver me from fear, unbelief, and natural limitation.
3. Father, help me to see my local church, campus, workplace, family members, community and nation as territories You want to redeem.
4. Lord, give me grace to stand for the truth, holiness, and revival without blending or bending.
5. Father, deliver me from fleshly boldness, anger, pride, rebellion, and ambition disguised as courage.
6. Lord, fill me with the spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of Christ. Help me to balance spiritual zeal with academic excellence, workplace integrity, relational maturity, and administrative precision.

Week 2 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 7 September 2026

- I must learn to see through the eyes of heaven, not through fear, public opinion, or natural limitation. What others call impossible, God has called an exceeding good land. Lord, open the eyes of my understanding to see people, places, and assignments the way You see them.
- Joshua and Caleb saw the same land, the same giants, and the same walls, but they interpreted everything through the promise of God. I refuse to magnify problems above God's Word. Father, deliver me from fear-shaped vision and give me faith-shaped sight.
- I will not call dead what God can revive. I will not call hopeless what the blood of Jesus can redeem.

Tuesday, 8 September 2026

- The land may have giants, but it is still an exceeding good land because God has spoken. I refuse to agree with every negative report around me. Lord, teach me to speak faith, pray faith, and move in obedience to Your promise.
- A wrong sight will produce a wrong confession, and a wrong confession will weaken obedience. I will not speak like a grasshopper when God has called me a child of light. Father, let my words agree with Your promise and not with my fear.
- I will not see sinners as hopeless, churches as dead, or communities as impossible. I will see souls redeemed by the blood of Jesus and territories that must be reclaimed for the Lord.

Wednesday, 9 September 2026

- Joshua and Caleb stood for God when the whole congregation chose unbelief. I receive grace to stand for truth, even when it is unpopular, costly, or misunderstood.
- I will not blend or bend when the crowd chooses unbelief. I will not reduce God's standard to gain acceptance. Lord, give me courage to obey You above mockery, pressure, and the fear of men.
- The stones of men cannot cancel the glory of God. When people oppose the truth, God still defends His testimony. Father, help me to stand with firmness wherever You have planted me.

Thursday, 10 September 2026

- Joshua was described as a man in whom is the Spirit. I do not want fleshly boldness or ambition disguised as zeal. Holy Spirit, govern my motives, reactions, decisions, and service.
- Not every boldness is spiritual boldness. Not every courage is good courage. Lord, deliver me from pride, harshness, rebellion, and self-display. Let my courage be shaped by the character of Christ.
- Before I speak, lead, or act, I will ask: Is this the Holy Spirit leading me, or am I reacting from anger, pride, fear, or ambition? Lord, make me a Spirit-led vessel.

Friday, 11 September 2026

- Joshua was full of the spirit of wisdom. I need wisdom to possess the land and hearts of men for the Lord. Father, give me the spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of Christ.
- Zeal without wisdom can damage what God wants to build. I will not use spirituality to cover poor planning, academic carelessness, workplace irresponsibility, and social immaturity.
- I must be prayerful and responsible, spiritual and diligent, fervent and socially engaging. Lord, help me to serve You faithfully while excelling in my studies, work, relationships, and every assignment.

Saturday, 12 September 2026

- I must walk as a child of light. My identity in Christ must shape my choices, speech, dressing, friendships, lifestyle, service, and testimony before others.
- I must prove and live what is acceptable unto the Lord, not what is popular with men. Father, help me to live in righteousness and truth
- I receive grace to see rightly, speak faithfully, stand courageously, walk Spirit-led, and serve with wisdom.

Week 3: Monday, 14 to Sunday 20 September 2026

Title: Joshua's Commissioning as God's Army: Arising into God's Ordained Assignment

Bible Texts: Joshua 1:1-9; Ephesians 2:10; Ephesians 3:20-21; Ephesians 6:10-18

Joshua 1:1-9: 1 Now after the death of Moses the servant of the LORD it came to pass, that the LORD spake unto Joshua the son of Nun, Moses' minister, saying, 2 Moses my servant is dead; now therefore arise, go over this Jordan, thou, and all this people, unto the land which I do give to them, even to the children of Israel. 3 Every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon, that have I given unto you, as I said unto Moses. 4 From the wilderness and this Lebanon even unto the great river, the river Euphrates, all the land of the Hittites, and unto the great sea toward the going down of the sun, shall be your coast. 5 There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life: as I was with Moses, so I will be with thee: I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee. 6 Be strong and of a good courage: for unto this people shalt thou divide for an inheritance the land, which I swear unto their fathers to give them. 7 Only be thou strong and very courageous, that thou mayest observe to do according to all the law, which Moses my servant commanded thee: turn not from it to the right hand or to the left, that thou mayest prosper whithersoever thou goest. 8 This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth; but thou shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein: for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then thou shalt have good success. 9 Have not I commanded thee? Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the LORD thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest.

Ephesians 2:10: For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them.

Ephesians 3:20-21: 20 Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us, 21 Unto him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus throughout all ages, world without end. Amen.

Ephesians 6:10-18: 10 Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. 11 Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. 12 For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. 13 Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand. 14 Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness; 15 And your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace; 16 Above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked. 17 And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God: 18 Praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints;

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- Moses my servant is dead; now therefore arise.
- Go over this Jordan, thou, and all this people.
- Every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon, that have I given unto you.
- I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee.
- This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth.
- Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think.
- Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.
- Put on the whole armour of God.

Introduction

This week brings us to Joshua's commissioning into the divine assignment of taking possession of the land for the Lord as a member of the Lord's exceeding great army. After years of discipleship, mountain exposure, staying back at the tabernacle to pray, public testing, and spiritual formation, Joshua now hears the direct voice of God: "Moses my servant is dead; now, therefore arise, go over this Jordan." Divine-making process has now become commissioning. The vessel hidden in process is now called into responsibility. The one who had been made in secret must now arise to a public assignment. We can see clearly in our text of study that God's commissioning begins with clear instructions, not emotion, pressure, or self-appointed burden. Joshua did not assume his assignment but he received it from God.

This commissioning also begins with a painful reality: “Moses my servant is dead.” A familiar leader in Moses was gone, a former season had ended, and a great chapter in Israel’s journey had closed. Yet, the death of Moses was not the death of God’s promise. Joshua could not allow the painful loss of Moses, its grief, fear, or unhealthy dependency to weaken his pursuit of what was ahead. In the same way, the fact that some people left the church, relocated, got married out, became discouraged, or no longer stand with the fellowship must not stop the move of God in a location. TACEFites must arise in clear instructions to do what the Lord has called them to do.

Teachings

1. Commissioning Begins with a Clear Instruction, Not Self-Appointed Burden: God said to Joshua, “Moses my servant is dead; now therefore arise, go over this Jordan,”. The instruction was clear, direct, and specific. Joshua was not commissioned by personal ambition, public pressure, or the desire to prove himself. He was commissioned by divine command. This is important to note because many believers today enter spiritual activities because they feel moved, challenged, provoked, recognised, or pressured, but not because they have received clear instructions from God. As we learned at the convention, Ezekiel only spoke to the dry bones, as commended of the Lord.

Every army needs a command. No soldier fights correctly without instruction. No believer serves effectively without direction. A revival army that moves without instruction will soon become exhausted. God’s assignment is specific. We do not make assumptions about divine assignment but we must be fully persuaded through the Word, prayer, counsel, and spiritual sensitivity. There is a difference between a burden that God gives and a reaction that comes from emotion. There is a difference between divine commissioning and self-appointment. This is why Ephesians 2:10 is so important: “For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them.” This verse reminds us that the works we are called to do are not self-appointed assignments but they are ordained by God, and we are expected to discern them, embrace them, and walk faithfully in them. We do not create the assignment and then ask God to bless it. We discover what God has ordained and then arise to obey. Therefore, before starting a work for God, taking up a role in the church, launching an outreach, or making a major decision, we must ask: Is this God’s command or my emotion? Is this divine burden, or personal pressure? Is this God’s timing, or my impatience? Commissioning begins when God speaks clearly and the heart rises in obedience.

2. Arising from Seasons of Grief, Pain and Unhealthy Dependency: The first word of commissioning was “arise.” Joshua had to rise from the weight of Moses’ death, the fear of responsibility, and the uncertainty of transition. God acknowledged that Moses was dead, but He did not permit Joshua to build a tent around the grave of the past. The pain was real and the loss was significant, yet, the purpose of God must continue to move forward.

Many believers remain stuck because a season has ended, but they refuse to arise. Some are sitting in grief because something precious was lost. Some are sitting in disappointment because people they trusted hurt them. Some are sitting in failure because they tried before and failed. Some are sitting in emotional pains because the admission, marriage, career progress, family expectations, ministry opportunity, fruit of the womb or personal plans did not happen when expected. Some are sitting in unhealthy dependency because the person they leaned on is no longer available. Others are discouraged because a local fellowship has become weak after some well recognised members left, relocated, changed location, or moved on.

We must know that the death of Moses was not the death of the promise, and the end of a season is not the end of God’s purpose. We must not allow the past to weaken our search for what is ahead. The fact that a generation left the church, some workers became weary, or a leader moved away must not stop the move of God in a local fellowship, church, community or a generation. God does not deny the pain of the past, but He does not allow the past to become a prison. He does not ignore the wound, but He calls us to live beyond the wound. There is a Jordan still to cross, a people still to carry, a land still to possess, and an assignment still waiting. Dear TACEFites, arise.

3. Discerning “This Jordan” as the Specific Work or Territory God Is Assigning: God did not say to Joshua, “Go everywhere.” He said, “Go over this Jordan.” The word “this” shows that God is always specific in divine assignments. There was a particular river to cross before Joshua, a particular barrier between God’s people and their inheritance, and a particular obedience required at that moment. Every believer, fellowship, and family must discern “this Jordan.”

There are many needs in the world, but God may assign a particular burden to a particular vessel. A person who does not discern their Jordan may become busy, active, and everywhere, yet accomplish little or nothing for the Lord. Some people are attracted to every activity but committed to no ordained assignment. Some move from tasks to tasks, ministries to ministries and one online platform to another. Some admire the promised land from afar but never cross the specific Jordan God has placed before them. Discerning and knowing "this Jordan" requires prayer, counsel, spiritual sensitivity, patience, and obedient action. Until we cross the Jordan God has placed before us, we may keep discussing inheritance without possessing it.

We must also remember that God said, "Go over this Jordan, thou, and all this people." Joshua was not called to cross alone. His assignment was not a private success; it was leadership that carried others into inheritance. Revival soldiers do not cross alone. A selfish Christian is satisfied with personal progress, but a revival vessel asks, "Who else must cross with me?" Who is weak and needs strengthening? Who is young in faith and needs discipleship? Who has missed the way and needs guidance? Who is discouraged and needs encouragement? The true commissioned army carries others into God's purpose through prayer, discipleship, example, care, and leadership.

4. Being Strong in the Lord and Not in Personal Ability: God repeatedly told Joshua, "Be strong and of a good courage." This command was not a call to self-confidence but a call to total dependence on God. Joshua was not strong because enemies were absent but was strong because God was present. God said, "I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee." The promise of God's presence was the foundation of Joshua's courage.

Ephesians 6 gives us the New Testament language of this strength: "Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might." We are not to be strong in ourselves, our titles, our experience, our certificates, our intelligence, our family background, our past success, or expertise. Having a degree from a College of Theology, a mission training certificate, degrees abroad or years of experience are good, but they are not enough. The commissioned army must be strong in the Lord and clothed with the whole armour of God.

This is why Joshua was also commanded to keep the book of the law in his mouth and meditate therein day and night. Courage without the Word of God is an error. Assignment without the Word becomes worthless. Warfare without the Word becomes dangerous. The principle of the whole armour of God teaches us that we wrestle against spiritual forces, wrong thoughts, corrupt systems, ungodly patterns, and every opposition that rises against the knowledge and purpose of God. Therefore, TACEFites must put on truth, righteousness, the gospel of peace, faith, salvation, the Word of God, and prayer. We must stand against systems that normalise sin, weaken discipleship, silence evangelism, and oppose revival. We must reject fear, discouragement, prayerlessness, compromise, and unbelief.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Seek a clear instruction before any action: Do not run because you are emotional, pressured, excited, or provoked. Pray, search the Word, seek godly counsel, and ask God for clarity.
- Arise from the past: Identify all the grief, pain, betrayal, disappointment, or dependency that has kept you stagnant. Bring it before God in prayer and declare that the death of a season is not the death of God's promise.
- Discern your "this Jordan": Write down the specific obedience God may be asking from you now. It may be repentance, reconciliation, service, evangelism, mission field, career change, relocation, church commitment, workplace integrity, or academic responsibility.
- Carry others into inheritance: Choose at least one person to pray for, follow up, encourage, disciple, or invite to fellowship this week. Revival soldiers do not cross alone.
- Return to the Word daily: Meditate on Joshua 1:8 and Ephesians 6:10-18 this week. Let the Word govern your courage, decisions, speech, and kingdom service.
- Put on the whole armour of God: Practise truth in speech, righteousness in conduct, peace in relationships, faith in trials, the Word in confession, and prayer in all situations.
- Serve from divine strength, not personal ability: Do not depend on talent, age, position, certificate, past achievement, or human confidence. Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of His might.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why did God begin Joshua's commissioning with the words, "Moses my servant is dead"?
2. What is the difference between divine instruction and emotional pressure or self-appointed burden?
3. What past seasons, failures, griefs, betrayals, or dependencies, must believers arise from?
4. Why is it dangerous to be busy with many good things while neglecting God's ordained work?
5. What does "thou, and all this people" teach us about leadership, discipleship, and carrying others into inheritance?
6. How can TACEFites be strong in the Lord and put on the whole armour of God in daily life?

Personal Reflection

Have I received clear instructions for this season, or am I being moved by emotion, pressure, ambition, or the expectations of people? Am I still sitting where God has commanded me to arise? What grief, failure, delay, pain, betrayal, disappointment, or unhealthy dependency is weakening my walk with God? What is "this Jordan" that God is asking me to cross? Am I busy with many things while neglecting the specific assignment God has ordained for me? Do I know the people God has attached to my obedience? Am I trying to cross alone, or am I helping others cross into inheritance? Am I serving in my own strength, or am I strong in the Lord and in the power of His might?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, give me clarity of instruction for the assignment You have ordained for my life.
2. Lord, help me arise from every grief, failure, delay, pain, disappointment, betrayal, and unhealthy dependency that has kept me stagnant.
3. Father, show me "this Jordan" that I must cross in obedience to Your will.
4. Lord, deliver me from empty activities and bring me into ordained works that glorify You.
5. Father, make me a vessel that carries others into inheritance through prayer, discipleship, care, example, and leadership.
6. Lord, strengthen us in Yourself and in the power of Your might. As You were with Joshua, be with us as Your revival army. Do not fail us, do not forsake us, and let us possess territories for Your glory.

Week 3 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 14 September 2026

- Divine assignments begin with a clear instruction, not emotion or ambition. I will not run because I am excited or provoked. Lord, give me clarity for the work You have ordained for my life.
- Joshua did not assume his assignment; he received it from God. I refuse to create my own assignments outside your leading.
- I am God's workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works. My life is not accidental, and my assignment is not self-made. Lord, align my heart and decisions with Your divine purpose.

Tuesday, 15 September 2026

- God told Joshua, "Moses my servant is dead; now therefore arise." The death of a season is not the death of God's promise. I receive grace to arise from past grief, pain, delay, disappointment, and fear.
- I will not build my future around the grave of the past. God does not deny my pain, but He does not want my pain to become my prison. Father, heal my heart and move me forward into Your purpose.
- A leader may leave, a season may close, the closest people we trust may fail and people may move on, but the promise of God still stands. Lord, help me to arise and continue the work You have committed to my hands.

Wednesday, 16 September 2026

- God said to Joshua, "Go over this Jordan." I receive grace to discern my own Jordan; the specific assignment God is placing before me now.
- I refuse to be busy everywhere but absent from my ordained assignment. Lord, deliver me from empty activity and help me to cross the particular Jordan You have set before me.
- Until I obey the next instruction, I may keep admiring inheritance without possessing it. Father, show me the step I must take now, and give me courage to obey without delay.

Thursday, 17 September 2026

- Joshua was not called to cross alone. God said, "thou, and all this people." My obedience must help others enter their inheritance. Lord, make me a vessel that carries others into their destiny in God.
- A selfish believer is satisfied with personal progress, but a revival soldier asks, "Who else must cross with me?" Father, help me to be a blessing to others.
- I will not abandon people in the middle of their Jordan. Lord, make me faithful in follow-up, encouragement, leadership, and discipleship until others are helped to stand in Your purpose.

Friday, 18 September 2026

- God told Joshua, "Be strong and of a good courage." This is not a call to self-confidence, but a call to dependence on God. I will not be strong in myself; I will be strong only in the Lord.
- Titles, talents, certificates, background, experience, and past success are not enough for divine assignments. Lord, clothe me with Your strength and teach me to serve from the power of Your might.
- God's presence is the foundation of courage. He said, "I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee." Father, deliver me from fear and discouragement, and help me to move with confidence in Your presence.

Saturday, 19 September 2026

- I must put on the whole armour of God. I will not face spiritual assignments with a careless life, an empty Word life, or a prayerless spirit.
- Courage without the Word of God is dangerous. Assignment without the Word becomes self-direction. Father, let Your Word govern my thoughts, speech, decisions, relationships, service, and warfare.
- I receive grace to arise, obey divine instructions, cross my Jordan, carry others into inheritance, and stand strong in the Lord. Father, make me a commissioned vessel in Your revival army.

Week 4: Monday, 21 to Sunday, 27 September 2026.

Title: Possessing the Land for the Lord: Walking in Our Inheritance in Christ

Bible Texts: Joshua 1:3-9; Ephesians 1:3, 11

Joshua 1:3-9: 3 Every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon, that have I given unto you, as I said unto Moses. 4 From the wilderness and this Lebanon even unto the great river, the river Euphrates, all the land of the Hittites, and unto the great sea toward the going down of the sun, shall be your coast. 5 There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life: as I was with Moses, so I will be with thee: I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee. 6 Be strong and of a good courage: for unto this people shalt thou divide for an inheritance the land, which I swore unto their fathers to give them. 7 Only be thou strong and very courageous, that thou mayest observe to do according to all the law, which Moses my servant commanded thee: turn not from it to the right hand or to the left, that thou mayest prosper whithersoever thou goest. 8 This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth; but thou shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein: for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then thou shalt have good success. 9 Have not I commanded thee? Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the LORD thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest.

Ephesians 1:3: Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ.

Ephesians 1:11: In whom also we have obtained an inheritance, being predestinated according to the purpose of him who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- Every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon...That have I given unto you.
- There shall not any man be able to stand before thee.
- I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee.
- This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth...Meditate therein day and night.
- He hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ.
- In whom also we have obtained an inheritance.

Introduction

This week brings us to a very important truth in the life of Joshua and in the mandate of every revival army: what God gives must still be possessed. The Lord said to Joshua, “Every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon, that have I given unto you.” The land had already been given by divine promise, yet it still required obedient effort, courageous action, and practical possession. God’s promise did not remove Joshua’s responsibility. The inheritance was real, but Joshua and the children of Israel still had to arise, tread upon the land, confront resistance, obey the Word, and move forward in the assurance of God’s presence.

This same principle is confirmed in Ephesians. Paul declares that God “hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ,” and that “we have obtained an inheritance.” In Christ, we are not trying to get an inheritance; we already have it. Indeed, we are not begging for what heaven has not released but we are stepping into what God has already given. This is how every revival army must see the souls of men. They are the inheritance of God, already purchased by the blood of Christ, and we are called to reclaim them for the Lord. That troublesome child, that sinful adult, that corrupt community, that idolatrous village, that perverse association, and every territory under the influence of darkness must be seen as part of God’s inheritance to be reclaimed for its rightful Owner, as we go forth as the Lord’s army to possess the land as our inheritance in Christ.

Teachings

1. What God Gives Must Still Be Possessed: God told Joshua, “Every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon, that have I given unto you.” This statement brings together two important truths: divine gift and human responsibility. God had given the land, but Israel still had to possess it. The promise was settled in heaven, but obedient action was required on earth. A land can be promised but not occupied. A territory can be assigned but not taken. A soul can be paid for by the blood of Jesus and still remained in the captivity of sin if those sent to reach that soul refuse to step out. This is a major principle in the work of revival. God may give a burden, a promise, a territory, a people, or a ministry assignment, but His people must still arise and possess it. A local church may belong to the Lord, but revival will not be experienced there if the people God has sent refuse to pray, teach, disciple, evangelise, and serve. A campus may be full of souls Jesus died for, but those souls will not automatically come to Christ if no one steps out to preach, pray, invite, counsel, and follow them up.

Many believers love promises but avoid possession. They can quote what God has said, but they do not move their feet in obedience. They pray for revival but do not actively serve in their local churches. They ask God for souls but do not speak to sinners. They desire growth in the fellowship but do not invite anyone. They want to see souls saved but do not make themselves available in the children's ministry, Sunday School classes, or any channel through which the lost can be reached. Dear TACEFites, what God gives must be possessed. What Christ has paid for must be claimed.

2. Our Feet Must Tread from a Position of Victory in Christ: The promise in Joshua 1:3 was connected to the movement of their feet. God did not say, "Every place you admire from afar." He did not say, "Every place you discuss." He did not say, "Every place you complain about." He said, "Every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon." This means possession requires presence and active engagement. Many territories remain untouched because believers have refused to tread upon them. However, our feet must tread from a position of victory, not fear. This means that we do not fight for victory but we fight from victory. We do not step into our local churches, campuses, families, workplaces, or communities as defeated people hoping to survive or win. We step in as children of God, complete in Christ, blessed in Christ, and sent to enforce what Christ has already secured.

It is also to understand that the call to "tread upon the land" means we must show up where God has sent us. It means being present, available, and responsible. It means going back to the local church with a burden, not as a critic, but as a servant. It means going back to the campus with soul-winning fire, not merely as a student pursuing a certificate. It means serving in children's church with tears for the next generation, not just because the church listed our names in the roster for the children church routine attendance. Possession cannot happen from a distance. New converts will not be disciplined from a distance. Backsliders will not be restored by distant wishes. Feet must tread upon the land. The land is possessed when obedient feet begin to move from the confidence of what Christ has already won.

3. Souls Are the Lord's Heritage by Creation and Redemption: When God spoke to Joshua, He spoke about land and inheritance. In Ephesians 1:11, Paul declares that in Christ "we have obtained an inheritance." In Joshua, the inheritance involved land but in Christ, the inheritance is deeper, spiritual, eternal, and connected to God's purpose in redeeming men unto Himself. The souls of all men are the Lord's heritage. They belong to Him first by creation, because all things were made for His pleasure. No man was created for the devil. No child was created for darkness. No youth was created for sin. No family was created for destruction. No community was created to be ruled by wickedness. Every soul was created for God's pleasure, God's glory, and God's purpose.

Beyond creation, souls also belong to Christ by redemption. Jesus has already paid for them with His blood. Therefore, when we go out to win souls, we are not trying to purchase what has not been paid for but we are claiming for the Lord what already belongs to Him. We are entering the field to recover divine inheritance. We are announcing to darkness that these lives are not its lawful property because Christ has paid the full price. This understanding changes how we labour as a revival army. The souls in our local churches, campuses, families, choir, children's departments, communities, workplaces, and church societies are precious to God. They are not mere numbers but are eternal souls. They are the heritage of the Lord. Christ suffered, died, and rose again so that they may be reconciled to God.

When we see souls as the Lord's heritage, we will not ignore the backslider. We will not despise the weak believer. We will not abandon the new convert. We will not treat children as distractions. We will not treat youths as troublesome. We will not treat unbelievers as enemies. We will see them as souls created for God and purchased by Christ, waiting to be reclaimed through prayer, love, truth, evangelism, and discipleship.

4. The Word and Divine Presence Must Govern the Possessing Army: God tied Joshua's success to the Word of God. He said, "This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth; but thou shalt meditate therein day and night." This means possession is not sustained by human strategy but only by the Word of God. A revival army who will possess the land for the Lord must be governed by the Word of God, not human excitement. We must know the Word, meditate on the Word, speak the Word, and obey the Word.

Every kingdom soldier must be a Word-shaped army. We must not build revival on human opinions or emotional quotable quotes. The Word of God alone must be our message, our weapon, and our guide. Meditation on the Word comes next as the mean of taking the Word beyond reading into reflection, internalisation, obedience, and daily living. The Word of God must enter our hearts until it shapes our minds, governs our tongues, directs our feet, and controls all our existence.

God also gave Joshua the assurance of His presence: “Be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the LORD thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest.” Divine presence is the cure for fear and discouragement. Fear is natural when the assignment is bigger than our strength, but God’s answer to fear is His presence. We do not go out for the Lord on our own charge. The Lord goes with us. His presence gives courage, wisdom, protection, and fruitfulness. The land may be hard, but God is with us. The people may resist, but God is with us. The assignment may be heavy, but God is with us. Therefore, we must arise, tread, and possess for the Lord.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Identify your assigned land: Prayerfully write down the specific places God is sending you this season, such as your local church, TACEF local fellowship, a subgroup/ministry, children church, campus, family, associations, groups, workplace, community, or nations.
- Move from desire to action: Do not only desire revival. Choose one practical act of obedience this week: invite someone to fellowship, speak to a sinner.
- Tread from victory in Christ: Do not approach your assignment with fear, inferiority, or defeat. Remind yourself that in Christ you are blessed and sent to walk in what He has already secured.
- See souls as God’s inheritance: Mention specific names before God in prayer. Ask the Lord to give you compassion for family members, colleagues, neighbours, backsliders, and unbelievers.
- Let the Word govern your actions: Meditate daily on the Word of God. Before acting, speaking, preaching, counselling, or organising, ask whether your action is rooted in the Word of God.
- Reject fear and discouragement: Identify one fear that has stopped you from doing what God has called you to do for Him. Bring it before God, trusting the promise that the Lord is with you wherever He sends you.

Questions for Discussion

1. What does it mean that what God has given must still be possessed?
2. Why is it difficult to be a true revival agent in a place where we are not intentionally present to labour, since the land the Lord gives must still be possessed by the deliberate planting of our feet, presence, burden, prayer, witness, and obedience in that location?
3. What are the lands God is calling TACEFites to possess in local churches, campuses, workplaces, families, and communities?
4. How should seeing souls as belonging to God by creation and redemption change the way we see people around us who have not yet given their lives to Jesus?
5. Why must the Word of God remain central in every effort to win souls and revive territories?
6. How does the presence of God cure fear and discouragement when we go into difficult territories?

Personal Reflection

What land has God given me that I have not yet possessed? Have I been admiring the promise from afar without allowing my feet to tread upon the territory? Do I understand that in Christ I have already obtained an inheritance, and that I am stepping into what God has already given? Do I see my local church, campus, children’s church, youth fellowship, workplace, family, community, and nation as mission fields for the Lord? Do I see souls as belonging to God by creation and as Christ’s inheritance already paid for by His blood? Am I willing to step out to win and disciple souls? Is the Word of God governing my decisions? Am I ready to arise and possess the land for the Lord?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, open my eyes to see the land You have given me to possess for Your glory.
2. Father, give me the courage to move from desire to action, and let my feet tread upon the territories You have assigned to me.
3. Father, help me to see souls as Your inheritance, created for Your pleasure and paid for by the blood of Jesus.
4. Lord, send me back to my local church, campus, workplace, family, community and nation as a faithful vessel of revival.

5. Lord, let no fear, opposition, discouragement, or human resistance stop me from obeying Your command.
6. Father, as You were with Joshua, be with every TACEFite as we arise to possess territories and win souls for the Lord.

- What God gives must still be possessed. I will not only admire the promise from afar; I will arise, obey, and move my feet into the land God has assigned to me.
- God's promise does not remove my responsibility. The land was given, but Joshua still had to tread upon it. Father, give me grace to move from desire to action.
- A territory can be assigned but not taken if those sent to possess it refuse to step out. Lord, deliver me from spiritual laziness and make me a faithful vessel in the land You have given me.

Tuesday, 22 September 2026

- Every place that the sole of my foot shall tread upon must become a place of obedience. I will not complain about problems or wish for change; I will show up where God has sent me.
- Possession requires presence and responsibility. Lord, send me back to my local church, campus, family, workplace, and community with a soul-winning fire.
- I cannot possess the land from a distance. New converts will not be disciplined by distant wishes, and backsliders will not be restored by silent concern. Father, make my feet willing to tread where You have assigned me.

Wednesday, 23 September 2026

- In Christ, I already have an inheritance. I do not fight for victory; I walk from the victory Christ has already secured. Lord, help me to serve from confidence in You, not from fear or defeat.
- I am blessed in Christ and sent to enforce what Christ has already purchased. I will not approach my assignment with inferiority, timidity, or discouragement.
- The land may resist, but Christ has already won the victory. I receive grace to step into my assigned territory with faith, courage, humility, and obedience.

Thursday, 24 September 2026

- Souls belong to God by creation and redemption. No child was created for darkness, no youth was created for sin, no family was created for destruction, and no community was created to be ruled by wickedness.
- When I go out to win souls, I am not begging darkness to release what belongs to it. I am reclaiming for the Lord what Christ has already paid for by His blood.
- I will not see unbelievers as enemies, children as distractions, youths as troublesome, or backsliders as hopeless. I will see them as souls created for God, purchased by Christ, and waiting to be reclaimed through prayer, love, and discipleship.

Friday, 25 September 2026

- The Word of God must govern every revival army. I will not live on human opinions, emotional slogans, or personal excitement. Lord, root my life in Your Word.
- "This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth." My speech, counsel, songs, prayers, decisions, and instructions will be shaped by Scripture. Father, let Your Word govern my mind, tongue, feet, and actions.
- Meditation is more than reading; it is allowing the Word to enter, search, correct, shape, and direct me. Lord, make me a Word-shaped soldier in Your revival army.

Saturday, 26 September 2026

- God's presence is the cure for fear and discouragement. The Lord is with me whithersoever He sends me.
- I will not allow fear, opposition, discouragement, or human resistance to stop my obedience. Father, as You were with Joshua, be with me as I arise to possess territories and win souls for You.
- I receive grace to possess what God has given, tread from victory in Christ, see souls as the Lord's inheritance, obey the Word, and move in the assurance of divine presence. Lord, make me a faithful vessel of revival.

Week 5: Monday, 28 September 2026 to Sunday, 4 October 2026

Tarry Week for Reflections and Prayer

Monday, 28 September 2026

- I am God's workmanship in Christ, created unto good works and prepared for divine use. I am not self-made; I am God-made, and I submit again to His process of making until Christ is formed in me.
- I am a trusted soldier in Christ, shaped by obedience, corrected by truth, strengthened by the Word, and prepared for the Master's use. I am not rushing into visibility; I am yielding to divine making.

Tuesday, 29 September 2026

- I am teachable in Christ, humble under instruction, and willing to be discipled for the work of ministry. I am not ruled by pride, self-will, or resistance to correction; I receive grace to be led of Christ.
- I am rooted in the Word of God in Christ. I am not moved by excitement or trends. I receive the Word until it becomes conviction, direction, and life within me.

Wednesday, 30 September 2026

- I am a child of light in Christ, and I see through the eyes of heaven. I am not controlled by fear, public opinion, or natural limitation. I see my church, campus, family, workplace, and community as territories God can revive, save, and transform
- I am courageous in Christ, but my courage is governed by the Spirit. I am not bold in pride, anger, ambition, or rebellion. I stand for truth and holiness with humility, wisdom, and grace.

Thursday, 1 October 2026

- I am commissioned in Christ for ordained works, not self-appointed assignments. I am not driven by emotion, pressure, or human recognition. I receive clarity from God and walk in the good works He has prepared for me.
- I am arising in Christ from every closed season, grief, delay, pain, betrayal, and unhealthy dependency. I am not imprisoned by the past; I am crossing my Jordan in obedience to the Lord.

Friday, 2 October 2026

- I am strong in the Lord and in the power of His might. I am not depending on my title, talent, certificate, experience, or past success. I put on the whole armour of God and stand in His strength.
- I am a carrier of others into inheritance in Christ. I am not crossing alone or living for personal progress. I am not selfish. I receive grace to strengthen the weak, encourage the weary, disciple the young, and help others stand in God's purpose.

Saturday, 3 October 2026

- I am blessed with all spiritual blessings in Christ, and I have obtained an inheritance in Him. I am not fighting for victory; I am walking from the victory Christ has already secured for me and my destiny.
- I am a faithful vessel of revival in Christ, sent to possess territories and reclaim souls for the Lord. I see souls as God's inheritance by creation and redemption, and I receive grace to tread upon the land with obedience, love, and divine presence.

Section 2: The Harvest, Leading, Memory, and Consecration of God's Army - How God Prepares His People to Enter, Preserve, and Possess New Territories

The journey of God's end-time army is not only about divine making; it is also about entering the land with the right eyes, the right leading, the right memory, and the right consecration. After God has made a vessel, He begins to show that vessel the harvest hidden inside difficult territories. Jericho was not only a city of walls, resistance, and judgement; it was also the place where Rahab was waiting for mercy. Jordan was not only a river to be crossed; it was a place where God's presence had to lead the people into a new season. The memorial stones were not ordinary stones; they were witnesses of divine acts that must be preserved for the next generation. Gilgal was not merely a campsite; it was the place where the reproach of Egypt had to be rolled away before the army could move into victory.

God does not send His army into the land with natural eyes, careless movement, forgetful hearts, or unbroken flesh. He first teaches them to see harvest where others see only sin, to follow His presence rather than rush ahead in assumptions, to preserve His works through remembrance and testimony, and to cut away the old life before entering new inheritance. The army that will possess the land must understand that conquest is not only about outward activity; it requires mercy for souls, sensitivity to divine leading, remembrance of God's dealings, and a life separated unto the Lord.

Ephesians explains this meaning through the analogy of how those who were once far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ. Through Him, we have access by one Spirit unto the Father and are built together for an habitation of God through the Spirit. We are called to live to the praise of His glory and commanded to put off the old man and put on the new man in righteousness and true holiness. Therefore, God's army must not only move; it must move by redemption, divine leading, remembrance, and consecration.

This second section therefore calls TACEFites to see the land beyond its walls, challenges, and limitations. God has Rahabs in Jericho, hidden harvests in hard places, testimonies that must be preserved, and old reproaches that must be rolled away as we submit to the circumcision of the heart that cuts away the flesh before conquest.

- Week 6: Rahab and the First Fruits of the Land - The Power of Redemption to Save All Men: Rahab teaches us that God has souls in unlikely places, and that redemption reaches people whom men have written off. She was an outsider in Jericho, yet, she responded by faith to what she heard about the God of Israel. The scarlet cord became a sign of rescue, mercy, and redemption, pointing us to the blood of Christ that brings the far off near. We must not despise so-called sinners, difficult youths, morally broken people, or communities that appear hard.
- Week 7: Crossing Jordan - Moving by Divine Leading into New Territories: The crossing of Jordan teaches us that God's army must never move ahead of His presence. Before Israel crossed, Joshua commanded the people to sanctify themselves, and the ark had to go before the army. The waters did not part while the priests stood at a distance; they opened when obedience stepped into the river. TACEFites must not enter new seasons without spiritual direction. We must ask: Has God led this? Is it consistent with His Word? Is there peace in the Spirit?
- Week 8: Memorial Stones - Preserving Revival Testimonies for the Next Generation: The memorial stones teach us that God's works must be remembered, explained, documented, and passed on. Divine encounters are not only to be celebrated; they are to become teaching tools for covenant continuity. If testimonies are not preserved, future generations may become detached from the source of the vision. TACEFites must therefore develop the discipline of remembrance, documenting personal encounters, answered prayers, convention burdens, prophetic instructions, and testimonies of God's faithfulness.
- Week 9: Gilgal and the Circumcised Army - Consecration Before Victory: Gilgal teaches us that the old life cannot possess new inheritance. The flesh cannot carry what God has prepared. Ephesians calls us to put off the old man and put on the new man in righteousness and true holiness. We must confront besetting sins, secret compromises, worldly appetites, lust, bitterness, pride, old habits, and every weight that weakens spiritual authority. We cannot win for the Lord while our private lives are lost in sin. If God cannot win our lives, He cannot win other lives through our lives. Consecration must come before conquest.

Week 6: Monday, 5 October 2026 to Sunday, 11 October 2026

Title: Rahab and the First Fruits of the Land: The Power of Redemption to Save All Men

Bible Texts: Joshua 2:1-21; Ephesians 2:11-19

Joshua 2:1-21: 1 And Joshua the son of Nun sent out of Shittim two men to spy secretly, saying, Go view the land, even Jericho. And they went, and came into an harlot's house, named Rahab, and lodged there. 2 And it was told the king of Jericho, saying, Behold, there came men in hither to night of the children of Israel to search out the country. 3 And the king of Jericho sent unto Rahab, saying, Bring forth the men that are come to thee, which are entered into thine house: for they be come to search out all the country. 4 And the woman took the two men, and hid them, and said thus, There came men unto me, but I wist not whence they were: 5 And it came to pass about the time of shutting of the gate, when it was dark, that the men went out: whither the men went I wot not: pursue after them quickly; for ye shall overtake them.

6 But she had brought them up to the roof of the house, and hid them with the stalks of flax, which she had laid in order upon the roof. 7 And the men pursued after them the way to Jordan unto the fords: and as soon as they which pursued after them were gone out, they shut the gate.

8 And before they were laid down, she came up unto them upon the roof; 9 And she said unto the men, I know that the LORD hath given you the land, and that your terror is fallen upon us, and that all the inhabitants of the land faint because of you. 10 For we have heard how the LORD dried up the water of the Red sea for you, when ye came out of Egypt; and what ye did unto the two kings of the Amorites, that were on the other side Jordan, Sihon and Og, whom ye utterly destroyed. 11 And as soon as we had heard these things, our hearts did melt, neither did there remain any more courage in any man, because of you: for the LORD your God, he is God in heaven above, and in earth beneath. 12 Now therefore, I pray you, swear unto me by the LORD, since I have shewed you kindness, that ye will also shew kindness unto my father's house, and give me a true token: 13 And that ye will save alive my father, and my mother, and my brethren, and my sisters, and all that they have, and deliver our lives from death.

14 And the men answered her, Our life for yours, if ye utter not this our business. And it shall be, when the LORD hath given us the land, that we will deal kindly and truly with thee. 15 Then she let them down by a cord through the window: for her house was upon the town wall, and she dwelt upon the wall. 16 And she said unto them, Get you to the mountain, lest the pursuers meet you; and hide yourselves there three days, until the pursuers be returned: and afterward may ye go your way. 17 And the men said unto her, We will be blameless of this thine oath which thou hast made us swear. 18 Behold, when we come into the land, thou shalt bind this line of scarlet thread in the window which thou didst let us down by: and thou shalt bring thy father, and thy mother, and thy brethren, and all thy father's household, home unto thee. 19 And it shall be, that whosoever shall go out of the doors of thy house into the street, his blood shall be upon his head, and we will be guiltless: and whosoever shall be with thee in the house, his blood shall be on our head, if any hand be upon him. 20 And if thou utter this our business, then we will be quit of thine oath which thou hast made us to swear. 21 And she said, According unto your words, so be it. And she sent them away, and they departed: and she bound the scarlet line in the window.

Ephesians 2:11-19: 11 Wherefore remember, that ye being in time past Gentiles in the flesh, who are called Uncircumcision by that which is called the Circumcision in the flesh made by hands; 12 That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world: 13 But now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ. 14 For he is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us; 15 Having abolished in his flesh the enmity, even the law of commandments contained in ordinances; for to make in himself of twain one new man, so making peace; 16 And that he might reconcile both unto God in one body by the cross, having slain the enmity thereby: 17 And came and preached peace to you which were afar off, and to them that were nigh. 18 For through him we both have access by one Spirit unto the Father.

19 Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellowcitizens with the saints, and of the household of God;

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- I know that the LORD hath given you the land.
- For the LORD your God, he is God in heaven above, and in earth beneath.
- And that ye will save alive my father, and my mother, and my brethren, and my sisters.
- Bind this line of scarlet thread in the window.
- She bound the scarlet line in the window.
- Ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ.
- No more strangers and foreigners, but fellowcitizens with the saints, and of the household of God.

Introduction

This week brings us to the story of Rahab, the first fruit of mercy in the land that Israel was about to possess. Before the walls of Jericho fell, before the armies of Israel marched around the city, and before the land was taken in battle, God had already identified a soul inside Jericho who would respond to faith. Rahab was a woman of Jericho, a city marked for judgement. She was also described as a harlot, carrying a reputation that many people would have used to condemn her or conclude that nothing good could come out of her life. Yet, when the two spies came into Jericho, Rahab received them into her house, hid them from danger, and protected them at her own personal risk. If she had been discovered, she could have paid dearly for standing with the people of God. But her heart had already been touched by what she had heard about the God of Israel.

Rahab did not merely hide the spies because she was afraid of Israel; she confessed faith in the Lord. She said, "I know that the LORD hath given you the land" (Joshua 2:9), and also declared, "for the LORD your God, he is God in heaven above, and in earth beneath" (Joshua 2:11). Rahab heard and believed. Her faith moved her to action. She protected the spies, pleaded for mercy for herself and her household, and asked for a true token that they would be spared when Israel returned to take over the land. The spies promised her that if she bound the scarlet line in her window and gathered her family into her house, they would be preserved when judgement came upon Jericho.

This is why Rahab's story is so important. She lived in an unlikely place, carried an unlikely reputation, and belonged to an unlikely people, yet grace found her. Rahab represents the outsider brought near by faith. Ephesians explains this gospel mystery clearly: those who were once far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ. This means redemption is wider than human bias, deeper than social shame, and greater than the labels people put on others. Rahab's past did not stop the mercy of God. Her location did not stop the purpose of God. Her reputation did not stop the grace of God. She heard, believed, acted, and was saved. This is the heart of the gospel. Jesus died for all men, not only for those who already look religious or morally acceptable. Therefore, we must not despise the so-called sinners, difficult youths, backsliders, unsupportive elders, morally broken people, or communities that appear hard and idolatrous. God desires all men to be saved. Our mission field includes people others have written off. We must stop seeing The African Church, our campuses, and our communities only through the lens of obvious challenges and limitations. We must see a harvest waiting to be claimed for the Lord.

1. God Has Souls in Unlikely Places: Joshua sent two spies to view the land, but God used that journey to reveal a soul prepared for mercy inside Jericho. Rahab was not in Israel. She was not among the covenant people. She did not have the background, reputation, or outward appearance that many would have expected from a person God would save. She was a prostitute and a chronic sinner, yet she became the first fruits of the land. This is the wonder of redemption. God is able to find a soul in a house on the wall, in a city marked for judgement, and in a life carrying terrible moral history.

This is important for every revival army. We must not allow a person's past, appearance, weakness, age, behaviour, social reputation, or present resistance to make us conclude that such a person is beyond redemption. Many people we call difficult may simply be waiting for the light of the gospel. Some children we call troublesome may be future vessels in God's hand. Some youths we call stubborn, may become candidates of discipleship. Some adults we call hardened may be carrying silent fears, hidden convictions, and unanswered questions. Some backsliders we avoid may be waiting for someone to restore them in love.

Ephesians 2 reminds us that we also were once strangers, without hope, and without God in the world. If grace brought us near, grace can bring others near. A true revival army must never look at people only through the lens of their sins. We must see them through the blood of Christ. We must believe that God still has souls in unlikely places.

2. Rahab's Faith Responded to What She Heard: Hearing Can Become Saving Faith: Rahab told the spies, "We have heard how the LORD dried up the water of the Red sea for you." What she heard became the doorway through which faith entered her heart. She had not seen the Red Sea open. She was not physically present when Israel defeated Sihon and Og. Yet, the testimony of God's works travelled to Jericho, and Rahab believed. She confessed, "For the LORD your God, he is God in heaven above, and in earth beneath."

This shows the power of hearing. A soul may be far from God, but a testimony, a message, a Bible study, a simple invitation, a personal witness, or a loving conversation can awaken faith. If Rahab believed because she heard, then how shall others hear if we do not speak? How shall difficult youths hear if nobody patiently teaches them? How shall backsliders hear if nobody follows them up? How shall the morally broken hear if the church only condemns them from afar? How shall our campuses hear if we remain silent? How shall our communities hear if we refuse to preach the love, mercy, holiness, and saving power of Christ?

The gospel must be heard before it can be believed. Scripture says, “So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God” (Romans 10:17). This means that saving faith is awakened when the message of Christ is clearly declared and received by the heart. Many people are not yet saved, not because they are beyond redemption, but because no one has explained the love of God to them with clarity, compassion, and conviction. Some have seen church activities, attended religious programmes, heard spiritual songs, or watched believers from afar, yet they have not truly heard the saving message of the cross. Rahab’s faith began with what she heard. She said, “For we have heard how the LORD dried up the water of the Red sea for you” (Joshua 2:10). What she heard created fear, conviction, faith, and a cry for mercy. In the same way, someone around us may be waiting to hear the gospel in a way that opens their heart to God. Someone we think does not qualify for the mercy of God like Rahab, may be closer to salvation than we think, if only someone will lovingly and patiently speak to them about the love of God and the new life available in Christ.

3. The Scarlet Cord Represents Redemption and the Blood that Brings the Far Off Near: The spies instructed Rahab to bind the scarlet line in the window as a sign, so that she and her household would not be destroyed when they came to attack the city of Jericho. That scarlet cord became the visible mark of rescue, the sign of covenant mercy, and the boundary between destruction and preservation. Rahab’s house was inside a city appointed for judgement, yet, the scarlet cord marked her household for deliverance. This points us to the greater redemption we have in Christ. Ephesians 2:13 says, “But now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ.” As the scarlet cord distinguished Rahab’s house in Jericho, the blood of Jesus brings the sinner near to God, marks the redeemed for mercy, and delivers those who believe from judgement.

Rahab was far off by nationality, lifestyle, history, and location. But mercy brought her near. In the same way, the blood of Jesus brings the far off near. It can bring the sinner near. It can bring the backslider near. It can bring the broken near. It can bring the idolater near. It can bring the corrupt adult near. It can bring the rejected, wounded, ashamed, and morally entangled near. The blood of Christ does not merely cover respectable people; it saves sinners who repent and believe.

This must shape how we evangelise. We are not sent to announce that people are too far gone. We are sent to announce that the blood of Jesus is powerful enough to bring them near. The scarlet cord also reminds us that redemption requires a response. Rahab had to bind the line in the window. She had to gather her household inside. She had to act on the promise. In the same way, those who hear the gospel must respond by faith, repentance, and obedience. True salvation produces visible turnaround. Rahab did not just admire the message; she acted on it. Repentance must move from hearing to obedience, from conviction to action, and from fear of judgement to faith in God’s mercy.

4. Every Revival Army Must Discern Harvest and See People beyond Their Sins: The spies went to view the land, but what they found first was a soul ready for redemption. This teaches us that territorial possession is not only about defeating enemies; it is also about discerning harvest. Before Jericho fell, Rahab was saved. Before the city was taken, mercy reached a household. Before the battle became visible, grace had already begun a hidden work. As we return to our various spiritual duty posts as true soldier of the Lord, we must not only see problems. We must see people. We must not only see moral failure. We must see souls. We must not only see resistance. We must discern harvest. If we look only at the obvious challenges, we may miss the Rahabs whom God is already preparing. If we only complain about difficult youths, unsupportive elders, idolatrous villages, corrupt communities, or spiritually cold churches, we may fail to see the first fruits of revival hidden within them.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Look again at unlikely people: Identify one person you have quietly written off because of their behaviour, background, resistance, or past. Begin to pray for that person’s salvation.
- Preach the love and truth of God: This week, speak to at least one person about the saving grace of Christ. Do not only condemn sin; explain redemption, forgiveness, and new life in Christ.
- See beyond the obvious challenges: When you look at The African Church, your school, campus, workplace, family, or community, do not only list the problems. Ask God to show you the Rahabs, the hidden souls already being prepared for salvation.
- Use testimony as a seed of faith: Rahab believed what she heard about God. Share testimonies of what God has done in your life and use them to point people to Christ.

- Gather the household: Rahab asked for her family to be saved. Pray for your family to be saved. Pray for your parents, siblings and extended family members who have not yet known the Lord.
- Treat broken people with mercy: Do not mock, label, or despise people because of their past. Speak truth with compassion, and remember that the blood of Christ can bring the far off near.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why is Rahab an important example of God having souls in unlikely places?
2. What does Rahab's response to what she heard teach us about evangelism and testimony?
3. How should the scarlet cord help us understand redemption, rescue, and the blood of Christ?
4. Why must TACEFites stop seeing people only through the lens of their sins, failures, past, or resistance?
5. How can we preach the gospel in a way that combines holiness, love, mercy, repentance, and discipleship?

Personal Reflection

Do I truly believe that God can save people in unlikely places, or have I already written some people off? Am I silent when I should be speaking the love and truth of God? Who around me needs to hear what Rahab heard? Do I see The African Church, my campus, my family, my workplace, my community and my nation only through the lens of problems, or do I see a harvest waiting to be taken for the Lord? Am I willing to become a scarlet cord in someone's life, a channel of rescue, prayer, follow-up, and discipleship? Is my own repentance visible, or do I only speak about change without walking in it?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, open my eyes to see the souls You are preparing in unlikely places.
2. Lord, deliver me from despising sinners, backsliders, difficult youths, broken people, and communities You still want to save.
3. Lord Jesus, let the power of Your blood bring the far off near in our local churches, campuses, families, communities, and workplaces.
4. Father, use TACEFites as scarlet cords of rescue through evangelism, prayer, follow-up, discipleship, and compassionate care.
5. Lord, let repentance produce visible turnaround in every life You save through this revival mandate.
6. Father, help us to see The African Church and every assigned territory as a harvest in waiting, not as a place beyond redemption.

Week 6 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 5 October 2026

- God has souls in unlikely places. Rahab was inside Jericho, a city marked for judgement, yet her heart was already turning towards the mercy of the God of Israel. Lord, open my eyes to see the hidden souls You are preparing for salvation.
- I will not write people off because of their past, appearances, behaviours, weaknesses, reputation, or present resistance. Father, deliver me from judging people only through the lens of their sins.
- Some people we call difficult may simply be waiting for the light of the gospel. Lord, help me to see every soul through the redeeming and transforming power of Your blood.

Tuesday, 6 October 2026

- Rahab responded by faith to what she heard about the Lord. I must not be silent when someone around me may be waiting to hear the gospel in a way that opens their heart to God.
- Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God. Lord, give me grace to speak clearly, patiently, and lovingly about the love of God and new life in Christ.
- I will not only condemn sin from afar. I will preach the truth with compassion, so that sinners, backsliders, difficult youths, and morally broken people can hear, repent, and come near to God.

Wednesday, 7 October 2026

- The scarlet cord became a visible mark of rescue, mercy, and preservation. Lord Jesus, let the power of Your blood bring the far off near in my family, church, campus, workplace, and community.
- Rahab's house was inside a city appointed for judgement, yet the scarlet cord marked her household for deliverance. Father, make me a channel of rescue for people who are still living in destruction.

- The blood of Christ is powerful enough to bring sinners near, restore backsliders, heal the broken, and save those men have rejected. Lord, help me to proclaim redemption with love, and urgency.

Thursday, 8 October 2026

- Rahab did not only hear; she acted by faith. True repentance must move from hearing to obedience, from conviction to action, and from fear of judgement to faith in God's mercy.
- I will not only admire the message of salvation; I will respond with visible obedience. Lord, let my repentance produce a clear turnaround in my lifestyle, speech, relationships, and entire life.
- Rahab gathered her household into the place of rescue. Father, give me a burden for my family, friends, and loved ones who must also be brought under the mercy of Christ.

Friday, 9 October 2026

- The spies went to view the land, but what they found first was a soul ready for redemption. I must not only see problems in the land but must discern the harvest God is preparing.
- Before Jericho fell, Rahab was saved. Before the battle became visible, grace had already begun a hidden work. Lord, help me to discern the souls You are already touching for harvest.
- I will not see The African Church, my campus, family, workplace, or community only through the lens of obvious challenges. I will see a harvest waiting to be claimed for the Lord.

Saturday, 10 October 2026

- Our mission field includes people others have written off. I will look again at unlikely people and pray for the salvation of those I have quietly dismissed because of their past or reputation.
- I will become a scarlet cord in someone's life, a channel of rescue through prayer, love, follow-up, discipleship, and compassionate care. Lord, use me to bring the far off near.
- I receive grace to preach the gospel with compassion, discern hidden harvest, and believe that redemption can save all men. Father, make me a faithful vessel of mercy in Your revival army.

Week 7: Monday, 12th October 2026 to Sunday, 18th October 2026

Title: Crossing Jordan: Moving by Divine Leading into New Territories

Bible Texts: Joshua 3:1-17; Ephesians 2:18-22

Joshua 3:1-17: 1 And Joshua rose early in the morning; and they removed from Shittim, and came to Jordan, he and all the children of Israel, and lodged there before they passed over. 2 And it came to pass after three days, that the officers went through the host; 3 And they commanded the people, saying, When ye see the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God, and the priests the Levites bearing it, then ye shall remove from your place, and go after it. 4 Yet there shall be a space between you and it, about two thousand cubits by measure: come not near unto it, that ye may know the way by which ye must go: for ye have not passed this way heretofore. 5 And Joshua said unto the people, Sanctify yourselves: for to morrow the LORD will do wonders among you. 6 And Joshua spake unto the priests, saying, Take up the ark of the covenant, and pass over before the people. And they took up the ark of the covenant, and went before the people. 7 And the LORD said unto Joshua, This day will I begin to magnify thee in the sight of all Israel, that they may know that, as I was with Moses, so I will be with thee. 8 And thou shalt command the priests that bear the ark of the covenant, saying, When ye are come to the brink of the water of Jordan, ye shall stand still in Jordan. 9 And Joshua said unto the children of Israel, Come hither, and hear the words of the LORD your God. 10 And Joshua said, Hereby ye shall know that the living God is among you, and that he will without fail drive out from before you the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Hivites, and the Perizzites, and the Girgashites, and the Amorites, and the Jebusites. 11 Behold, the ark of the covenant of the Lord of all the earth passeth over before you into Jordan. 12 Now therefore take you twelve men out of the tribes of Israel, out of every tribe a man. 13 And it shall come to pass, as soon as the soles of the feet of the priests that bear the ark of the LORD, the Lord of all the earth, shall rest in the waters of Jordan, that the waters of Jordan shall be cut off from the waters that come down from above; and they shall stand upon an heap. 14 And it came to pass, when the people removed from their tents, to pass over Jordan, and the priests bearing the ark of the covenant before the people; 15 And as they that bare the ark were come unto Jordan, and the feet of the priests that bare the ark were dipped in the brim of the water, (for Jordan overfloweth all his banks all the time of harvest,) 16 That the waters which came down from above stood and rose up upon an heap very far from the city Adam, that is beside Zaretan: and those that came down toward the sea of the plain, even the salt sea, failed, and were cut off: and the people passed over right against Jericho. 17 And the priests that bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD stood firm on dry ground in the midst of Jordan, and all the Israelites passed over on dry ground, until all the people were passed clean over Jordan.

Ephesians 2:18-22: 18 For through him we both have access by one Spirit unto the Father.

19 Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellowcitizens with the saints, and of the household of God; 20 And are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone; 21 In whom all the building fitly framed together groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord: 22 In whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- When ye see the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God... then ye shall remove from your place, and go after it.
- Come not near unto it, that ye may know the way by which ye must go.
- Sanctify yourselves: for tomorrow the LORD will do wonders among you.
- The ark of the covenant of the Lord of all the earth passeth over before you into Jordan.
- The priests that bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD stood firm on dry ground.
- For through him we both have access by one Spirit unto the Father.

Introduction

This week brings us to the crossing of Jordan, a major turning point in the journey of Israel and in the making of God's end-time army. God's people had come to a boundary between promise and possession. Behind them were years of wilderness journeying; before them was the land God had sworn to give. Yet, before they could step into new territory, they had to learn a crucial lesson: God's people must not move without divine leading. We do not live our lives by assumptions, pressures, competitions, trends, or human calculations. Joshua did not tell the people to rush forward because the land was so close. He commanded them to watch for the ark of the covenant and follow it. The presence of God had to go before the Lord's great and exceeding army.

Jordan represents every new season, new assignment, new territory, new responsibility, and new level of obedience that God brings before His people. It may be a new burden in the local church, a campus outreach, a family altar to be rebuilt, a career decision, a ministry step, a marital decision, a financial decision, a business move, a change of location, a home decision, or a call to serve in a new role. The principle is the same: do not enter new territories without spiritual directions. Before taking major steps, we must ask: Has God led this? Is this consistent with His Word? Is there peace in the Spirit? Are we following the ark, or are we following assumptions?

Joshua Chapter 3 also teaches that consecration precedes possession. Before the miracle of Jordan, Joshua said, “Sanctify yourselves: for tomorrow the LORD will do wonders among you.” God’s wonders are not to be handled by an unclean army. The people had to be set apart and ready to follow God’s presence. Israel was also commanded to keep a space between themselves and the ark so they could clearly see the way. This teaches careful spiritual sensitivity, not careless rushing. God’s presence must be more important than speed. It is better to move slowly with God than to run quickly outside His leading.

Teachings

1. Consecration Precedes Possession: Before Israel crossed Jordan, Joshua commanded the people, “Sanctify yourselves: for tomorrow the LORD will do wonders among you.” This shows that the miracle of possession required a sanctified people. Crossing Jordan was not an ordinary movement from one riverbank to another. It was a sacred transition into covenant inheritance. The people were about to step into a land that God had promised, but they could not step into it casually. The vessel that enters new territory for the Lord must first be separated unto the Lord.

Consecration means being set apart for God. It means allowing the Lord to cleanse our motives, desires, relationships, habits, and hidden life through His Word and continued fellowship of the Holy Spirit. We cannot desire God’s wonders without God’s dealings. We cannot want open doors without clean hands. We cannot long for new territories of divine lifting in life and career without renewed hearts.

For TACEFites, consecration must precede every major life cycle. Before taking a leadership role, there must be heart-searching. Before starting a new work, there must be surrender. Before entering a new season in academics, career, business, marriage, ministry, or family life, there must be a renewed separation unto God. An army that will cross Jordan must first allow God to purify its camp.

2. The Ark Must Go Before the Army Because God’s Presence Must Lead Every Effort: Joshua commanded the people that when they saw the ark of the covenant of the LORD and the priests bearing it, they should remove from their place and go after it. The ark represented the presence and leading of God among His people. Israel was not to move because the river was so close or because the people were anxious. They were to move when the ark moved. God’s presence had to lead the army.

This is a vital lesson for us. The fact that an opportunity is attractive does not mean the ark is going before us. The fact that others are rushing to exploit a business trend does not mean we must rush. Israel was told to keep a distance from the ark so they could clearly see the way, because they had not passed that way before. New territories require fresh leading. Yesterday’s method is not enough for today’s crossing. Familiar experience must be replaced with present guidance. Therefore, God’s presence must lead every effort: academics, career, ministry, marriage, finance, business, home, investment, relocation, and everyday decisions. Even something as simple as praying over a meal should not be empty religion, but a practical acknowledgement that the Lord leads all actions. Before taking major steps, we must ask: Have I prayed? Have I received godly counsel? Am I following the ark.

3. Spiritual Leadership Carries Responsibility Before the People: The priests who carried the ark entered Jordan first before the people, and they stood firm in the river until all Israel passed over to the other side. This is a powerful picture of spiritual leadership. Leaders do not merely give instructions from a safe distance; they carry responsibility before the people. The priests had to step into the river first and they had to remain in position until everyone crossed.

Every leader at home, in the workplace, in school, in the church, and in fellowship must understand this principle. Our call to lead is not a title to display, but a burden to carry. Leadership is not sitting in front, giving instructions, being recognised, or enjoying respect. True leadership is sacrificial responsibility. It means carrying people in prayer, bearing burdens that others may not see, taking responsibility before others are ready, and standing firm until those entrusted to us are helped to cross. The priests did not send the people into Jordan while they watched from a safe distance. They entered first, stood in the midst of the river, and remained there until all Israel passed over.

This speaks to every kind of leader. A father must not only provide money; he must go first in prayer, discipline, love, patience, integrity, and spiritual example. A mother must not only organise the home; she must model faith, sacrifice, watchfulness, and godly affection. Parents must not demand from children what they are unwilling to practise. A class captain, school prefect, fellowship executive, subgroup leader, choir leader, children's church teacher, business manager, team lead, or church worker must understand that leadership requires extra sacrifice. Leaders may need to arrive first and leave last. They may need to sacrifice meals to ensure others are cared for. They may need to give up personal comfort, sleep, convenience, and leisure so that the people under their care are guided, protected, encouraged, and established. A leader cannot be late and expect punctuality from others. A leader cannot be prayerless and expect spiritual fire in the fellowship. A leader cannot be unserious with assignments and expect excellence from the team. A leader cannot be selfish and expect sacrifice from others. Those who lead must go first in consecration, prayer, punctuality, humility, responsibility, sacrifice, and faithfulness. Their lives must become a pattern others can safely follow.

4. God Opens the Way When His People Obey: Jordan did not divide while the priests were still standing at a distance. The waters parted when the feet of the priests that carried the ark touched the edge of the river. This shows that obedience is the place where God confirms His promise. Many people want the river to open before they move, but God requires obedient movement before the way becomes clear. Faith does not wait for every difficulty to disappear before obeying God. Faith steps forward because God has spoken.

Jordan was overflowing its banks at the time of harvest. Naturally, it was not the easiest time to cross. We can imagine the force of the waves at Bar Beach in Lagos, or the frightening movement of any major river anywhere in the world when the waters are high and restless. Yet, this was the very moment God chose to display His power. The overflowing river did not stop the living God. The challenge before the people became the stage on which God revealed His presence. This teaches us that difficult seasons do not cancel divine instructions. When God commands, He also makes a way. When His people obey, He confirms His presence with them. God who parted Jordan is still able to make a way for His people.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Sanctify yourself before crossing: Before taking any major step, ask the Lord to search your heart, motives, relationships, and secret life.
- Wait for the ark: Do not move by pressure, comparison, excitement, fear, or assumption. Pray until you can honestly say that God's presence is leading the step.
- Ask guiding questions before major decisions: Has God led this? Is it consistent with His Word? Is there peace in the Spirit? Have I sought godly counsel? Am I following the ark or following my own desire?
- Let God's presence be more important than speed: Do not rush because others are rushing. Israel had to keep enough space to see the ark clearly. Create space for prayer, listening, and spiritual sensitivity.
- Lead with priestly responsibility: If you are a fellowship executive, ministry lead, subgroup leader, sub-zonal or zonal officer, carry people in prayer, example, follow-up, patience, and sacrifice.
- Take the first obedient step: Once God has clearly led, do not remain permanently at the riverbank. It is time to act. Send that CV or business proposal, start the prayer altar, make the restitution, or take the specific step of obedience in response to the Lord.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why did Joshua command the people to sanctify themselves before crossing Jordan?
2. What does the ark going before the people teach us about divine leading?
3. What does the space between the people and the ark teach about spiritual sensitivity?
4. What can TACEF leaders learn from the priests who entered Jordan first and stood firm until all the people crossed?
5. Why did the waters of Jordan part only when the priests stepped into the river?
6. How can we apply divine leading to academics, career, ministry, marriage, finance, business, and everyday decisions?

Personal Reflection

Am I sanctified and ready for the new territory God is calling me to enter, or am I trying to cross Jordan with an unprepared heart? Do I wait for the ark of God's presence, or do I move by pressure, fear, what is trending, comparison, or assumption?

In my academics, career, ministry, relationships, finances, business, home, and personal decisions, do I ask whether God is truly leading me? Have I created enough space in my life to see the way God is showing, or am I rushing too quickly? If I am a leader, am I carrying responsibility like a priest, or am I only holding a title? Am I making sacrifices for the people the Lord has given me the privilege to lead?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, sanctify me and make me fit to enter every new territory You have assigned to me.
2. Lord, deliver me from careless movements, assumptions, pressures, and every decision that runs ahead of Your presence.
3. Father, let Your presence go before me in my academics, career, ministry, relationships, finances, business, family, and every area of life.
4. Lord, give every TACEFite spiritual sensitivity to follow Your leading and not the noise of the crowd.
5. Father, make every TACEF leader a responsible priest who carries others in prayer, obedience, sacrifice, and faithful example.
6. Lord, as our feet step into obedience, open every Jordan before us and bring us into the inheritance You have prepared.

Week 7 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 12 October 2026

- I must not enter new territories without divine leading. I will not move by pressures, competitions, trends, or human calculations. Lord, teach me to follow Your presence before I take any step.
- Israel was commanded to watch for the ark and go after it. I receive grace to wait for the leading of God in my academics, career, ministry, marriage, finances, business, home, and daily decisions.
- I will not rush because the land looks near or the opportunity looks attractive. Father, help me to seek your leading per time and at all times.

Tuesday, 13 October 2026

- Joshua said, "Sanctify yourselves: for tomorrow the LORD will do wonders among you." I cannot carry God's wonders with an unprepared heart. Lord, sanctify my motives, desires, and hidden life.
- Consecration must come before possession. I will not seek open doors with unclean hands or new territories with an unchanged heart. Father, consecrate me and make me fit for Your purpose.
- Before I enter new seasons in school, work, ministry, family, business, marriage, or leadership, I will always surrender my heart to God. Lord, purify my heart before You enlarge my assignment.

Wednesday, 14 October 2026

- The ark must go before the army of the Lord. God's presence must lead every effort, not human intelligence, impatience, excitement, or fear. Lord, go before me in every decision and assignment.
- Israel kept space between themselves and the ark so they could see the way clearly. I will create space for prayer, counsel, and spiritual sensitivity. Father, deliver me from careless rushing.
- It is better to move slowly with God than to run quickly outside His leading. Lord, let Your presence be more important to me than speed, pressure, or immediate results.

Thursday, 15 October 2026

- Spiritual leadership is sacrificial responsibility. I will not treat leadership as a title to display, but as a burden to carry. Lord, make me faithful wherever You have placed people under my care.
- The priests entered Jordan first and stood firm until all the people crossed. As a parent, minister over a church, fellowship executive, ministry lead, school leader, or workplace leader, I receive grace to go first in prayer, sacrifice, obedience, humility, punctuality, and faithfulness.
- I will not abandon people in the middle of Jordan. Father, help me to carry others through prayer, follow-up, patience, encouragement, sacrifice, and faithful leadership until they are helped to stand.

Friday, 16 October 2026

- God opens the way when His people obey. Jordan did not part while the priests stood at a distance; the waters opened when their feet touched the river. Lord, give me faith to take the obedient step You are asking from me.

- I will not wait for every difficulty to disappear before I obey God. Faith moves because God has spoken. Father, deliver me from fear, delay, overthinking, and unbelief at the riverbank of destiny.
- Some doors will not open while I remain far from obedience. Lord, help me to take that action by faith and take the next step in life.

Saturday, 17 October 2026

- Jordan was overflowing its banks, yet it could not stop the living God. Difficult seasons do not stop divine instruction. Father, help me to obey You even when the river before me looks high, restless, troubling, and impossible.
- The challenge before Israel became the stage on which God revealed His presence. Lord, turn every Jordan before me into a testimony of Your power, faithfulness, and divine leading.
- I receive grace to sanctify myself, follow the ark, value God's presence above speed, lead with sacrifice, and obey until every Jordan opens. Lord, bring me and all You have committed to me safely into Your inheritance.

Week 8: Monday, 19th October 2026 to Sunday, 25th October 2026

Title: Memorial Stones: Preserving Revival Testimonies for the Next Generation

Bible Texts: Joshua 4:1-24; Ephesians 1:12-14; Ephesians 3:20-21

Joshua 4:1-24

1 And it came to pass, when all the people were clean passed over Jordan, that the LORD spake unto Joshua, saying, 2 Take you twelve men out of the people, out of every tribe a man, 3 And command ye them, saying, Take you hence out of the midst of Jordan, out of the place where the priests' feet stood firm, twelve stones, and ye shall carry them over with you, and leave them in the lodging place, where ye shall lodge this night. 4 Then, Joshua called the twelve men, whom he had prepared of the children of Israel, out of every tribe a man: 5 And Joshua said unto them, Pass over before the ark of the LORD your God into the midst of Jordan, and take ye up every man of you a stone upon his shoulder, according unto the number of the tribes of the children of Israel: 6 That this may be a sign among you, that when your children ask their fathers in time to come, saying, What mean ye by these stones? 7 Then ye shall answer them, That the waters of Jordan were cut off before the ark of the covenant of the LORD; when it passed over Jordan, the waters of Jordan were cut off: and these stones shall be for a memorial unto the children of Israel for ever. 8 And the children of Israel did so as Joshua commanded, and took up twelve stones out of the midst of Jordan, as the LORD spake unto Joshua, according to the number of the tribes of the children of Israel, and carried them over with them unto the place where they lodged, and laid them down there. 9 And Joshua set up twelve stones in the midst of Jordan, in the place where the feet of the priests which bare the ark of the covenant stood: and they are there unto this day. 10 For the priests which bare the ark stood in the midst of Jordan, until every thing was finished that the LORD commanded Joshua to speak unto the people, according to all that Moses commanded Joshua: and the people hastened and passed over. 11 And it came to pass, when all the people were clean passed over, that the ark of the LORD passed over, and the priests, in the presence of the people. 12 And the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh, passed over armed before the children of Israel, as Moses spake unto them: 13 About forty thousand prepared for war passed over before the LORD unto battle, to the plains of Jericho. 14 On that day the LORD magnified Joshua in the sight of all Israel; and they feared him, as they feared Moses, all the days of his life. 15 And the LORD spake unto Joshua, saying, 16 Command the priests that bear the ark of the testimony, that they come up out of Jordan.

17 Joshua therefore commanded the priests, saying, Come ye up out of Jordan. 18 And it came to pass, when the priests that bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD were come up out of the midst of Jordan, and the soles of the priests' feet were lifted up unto the dry land, that the waters of Jordan returned unto their place, and flowed over all his banks, as they did before. 19 And the people came up out of Jordan on the tenth day of the first month, and encamped in Gilgal, in the east border of Jericho. 20 And those twelve stones, which they took out of Jordan, did Joshua pitch in Gilgal. 21 And he spake unto the children of Israel, saying, When your children shall ask their fathers in time to come, saying, What mean these stones? 22 Then ye shall let your children know, saying, Israel came over this Jordan on dry land.

23 For the LORD your God dried up the waters of Jordan from before you, until ye were passed over, as the LORD your God did to the Red sea, which he dried up from before us, until we were gone over:

24 That all the people of the earth might know the hand of the LORD, that it is mighty: that ye might fear the LORD your God for ever.

Ephesians 1:12-14

12 That we should be to the praise of his glory, who first trusted in Christ. 13 In whom ye also trusted, after that ye heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation: in whom also after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that holy Spirit of promise, 14 Which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory.

Ephesians 3:20-21

20 Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us, 21 Unto him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus throughout all ages, world without end. Amen.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- These stones shall be for a memorial unto the children of Israel for ever.
- Israel came over this Jordan on dry land.
- That all the people of the earth might know the hand of the LORD, that it is mighty.
- That we should be to the praise of his glory.

- Ye were sealed with that holy Spirit of promise.
- ... able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us

Introduction

This week brings us to the memorial stones taken from the midst of Jordan after the children of Israel crossed over on dry ground. God did not want Israel merely to enjoy the miracle and move on. He commanded Joshua to appoint twelve men, one from each tribe, to take twelve stones from the place where the priests' feet stood firm in Jordan. These stones were to be carried along into the new land and set up as a memorial. The miracle was not to be forgotten and the place of divine intervention was not to be treated casually. The story of God's mighty hand was not to end with the generation that experienced it.

In essence, the memorial stones were not ordinary stones. They were teaching stones, witness stones, memory stones, testimony stones, and covenant stones. They were physical reminders of a spiritual encounter. This shows that God's acts must not only be celebrated; they must be explained. If a generation only celebrates divine encounters but does not explain their meanings, the next generation may inherit activities without understanding the God behind them. They may inherit programmes without burden, vision statements without conviction, history without encounter, and fellowship without fire.

This is a major burden for TACEF in this season. We must not become forgetful in our journey with God. We must not forget how the Lord has helped us, corrected us, preserved us, revived us, instructed us, and carried us in different seasons. The culture of remembrance, reflection, and testimony must become part of our personal and collective walk with God. Every answered prayer, every convention encounter, every prophetic instruction, every visitation of God, every local fellowship story, every personal deliverance, every divine leading, and every testimony of God's faithfulness must be preserved with reverence. God's acts are teaching tools for covenant continuity.

Teachings

1. God's Works Must Be Remembered: After the crossing of Jordan, God immediately instructed Joshua to raise a memorial. This shows that God does not want His people to forget His works. In everyday life, we naturally preserve important memories. We save pictures, record videos, back up files, and even buy extra memory cards so that precious moments are not lost. If we take such care to preserve human memories, how much more should we preserve the acts, instructions, and testimonies of God? The same God who opened Jordan also commanded Israel to remember the opening of Jordan. The miracle was not complete until it became a memorial. The testimony was not to remain only with those who saw it; it had to be preserved for those who would come after them.

Forgetfulness is dangerous in the journey of faith. A people who forget what God has done may soon complain when new challenges arise. A believer who forgets past mercies may become fearful before new battles. A fellowship that forgets the sacrifices, prayers, tears, instructions, and visitations that shaped its beginning may become casual with the vision. A revival army that forgets its source will soon become detached from the fire that gave it life.

This is why the act of remembrance is actually a form of spiritual warfare. When we remember rightly, faith is strengthened. When we remember God's faithfulness, fear loses its power. When we remember answered prayers, we gain courage to pray again. When we remember divine instructions, we avoid careless wandering. When we remember how the Lord helped us before, we are strengthened to trust Him for what is ahead.

2. Encounters with God and Foundational Truths Must Be Explained to the Younger Generation: The memorial stones were designed to provoke questions from children. Joshua said, "When your children shall ask their fathers in time to come, saying, What mean these stones?" The answer was not to be, "These are old stones." The answer was to explain the mighty act of God: "Israel came over this Jordan on dry land." This teaches us that testimonies must be interpreted, not merely displayed. Divine encounters must be explained, not merely celebrated.

Every generation has a responsibility to explain God's dealings to the next generation. Children, teenagers, youths, new converts, and younger believers must not only see our activities and vague testimonies without details; they must understand our convictions, commitments and consecrations. They must not only attend conventions; they must understand the burden of the convention. They must not only hear about revival; they must understand the price, purpose, purity, and power of revival. They must not only join fellowship; they must understand the vision, doctrine, sacrifice, prayer, holiness, evangelism, discipleship, and burden that shaped the fellowship.

A generation that inherits activities without explanation may continue the form but lose the fire. They may repeat the language but miss the essence. They may attend the meetings but miss the meaning. This is why discipleship-based knowledge-sharing is important. We must intentionally explain the foundational truths that shaped the vision. Parents must explain God's faithfulness to their children. Fellowship leaders must explain the burden of the fellowship to new members. As a fellowship, we must therefore raise 'explainers', not only organisers. We need people who can explain why we pray, why we preach holiness, why we labour for souls, why we serve, why we honour the Word, why we focus on local fellowships, and why we do not do certain things even when many other believers do them. What is not explained may be misunderstood. What is misunderstood may be neglected. What is neglected may be lost.

3. Memorials Strengthen Future Faith by Connecting Present Obedience to Past Divine Acts: The stones from Jordan connected the present generation to what God had done. They were reminders that Israel did not cross Jordan by human strength. They crossed because the Lord dried up the waters. Joshua also connected Jordan to the Red Sea during the time of Moses when they left Egypt, saying that the Lord dried up Jordan "as the LORD your God did to the Red sea." This means that God wanted Israel to see continuity in His works. The God who made a way before was still the God who made a way again. Memorials strengthen faith because they remind us that God has a record of faithfulness. When we face a new Jordan, remembrance tells us that He has opened waters before. When we face new resistance, remembrance tells us that He has delivered before. When we face new responsibilities, remembrance tells us that He has strengthened before. When we face new seasons of uncertainty, remembrance tells us that He has led before. The memory of past divine acts becomes fuel for present obedience.

This is why testimonials, such as the TACEF Stories Series shared as part of TACEF at 30, must not be treated as entertainment. A carefully curated testimony is not merely a story that makes people clap; it is a weapon of faith. It is a reminder of God's nature, a witness of His faithfulness, and a declaration that the God who did it before can do it again according to His will and purpose. Every TACEFite must therefore learn to build personal memorials. Keep records of answered prayers. Write down instructions received during conventions, retreats, Bible studies, personal prayers, and moments of conviction. Please document how God led you, corrected you, delivered you, helped you, and provided for you. When future battles come, you can return to those memorial stones and say, "The Lord helped me before, and He is still faithful." Through such remembrance, we war a good warfare.

4. Forgetfulness Weakens Revival Continuity and Makes New Generations Vulnerable to Spiritual Decline: One of the greatest enemies of the continuity of the move of revival and personal life progress is forgetfulness. When a generation forgets God's works, it begins to lose reverence for God's ways. When people forget the source of the fire, they may start depending on structures, marketing strategy, titles, noise, numbers, social media trends and human strength. When future generations do not understand how the Lord led, they may assume that the work can continue without the same consecration, prayer, sacrifice, purity, and obedience that originally birthed it. Forgetfulness makes new generations vulnerable to spiritual decline. It creates room for compromise, error, and detachment. A generation that does not know the sacrificial cost of raising an altar of revival on a campus or a local church may easily despise the altar. A generation that does not understand the burden of soul-winning may reduce fellowship to social gathering. A generation that does not know the Word may be moved by trends and shallow excitement.

This is why disciple-makers must build others through their lives. We must not only document testimonies and stories of encounters in books, files, pictures, recordings, and archives; we must also become living memorials. Our lives must explain what God has done. Our lifestyles must preserve the truth we preach. Our sacrifices must show younger believers that revival is not a quotable quote. Our consistency must teach them faithfulness. Our sacrificial giving must show them that nothing is too big to be laid down for the Lord. Dearly beloved TACEFites, we must pass on the burden, not only the brand. We must pass on the fire, not only the format. We must pass on the doctrine, not only the documents. We must pass on the mandate, and the best channel is our own lives.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Develop a personal memorial journal: Begin to document your personal walk with God. Buy a special jotter or create a virtual journal on your phone with cloud back-up to write down answered prayers, divine instructions, Bible study insights, convention encounters, warnings, corrections, testimonies, and moments of clear leading.
- Explain testimonies clearly and in details: Do not only say, "God did it." Explain what God taught, how He led, what obedience was required, what faith was exercised, and what the testimony should produce in the next generation.

- Build archives of God's faithfulness: Keep records of convention burdens, prayer themes, prophetic instructions, local fellowship stories, campus outreaches, and ministry milestones.
- Use testimonies as teaching tools: Let testimonies lead to discipleship, obedience, and renewed faith. Do not reduce testimonies to emotional excitement or public applause.
- Remember every instruction and leading: Revisit what the Lord has spoken to you personally and collectively. Ask yourself whether you have obeyed and passed on what God entrusted to you.
- Become a living memorial: Let your life preserve the testimony of God's grace. Let everyone see in your sacrificial living, prayer life, holiness, faithfulness, and love the truth of the God you speak about.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why did God command Joshua to set up memorial stones after the crossing of Jordan?
2. What dangers can arise when believers forget the works, instructions, and testimonies of God?
3. Why must divine encounters be explained to younger generations, not merely celebrated?
4. What practical systems can TACEFites use to document personal encounters, answered prayers, convention burdens, and local fellowship stories?
5. How can older believers, parents, fellowship leaders, and disciple-makers become living memorials to younger believers?
6. What testimonies, instructions, or divine dealings in your life must you remember, document, and pass on?

Personal Reflection

Do I remember the works of God in my life, or have I become forgetful and casual with His faithfulness? What memorial stones has God placed in my journey through answered prayers, divine instructions, convention encounters, personal deliverances, corrections, and testimonies? Have I documented the things God has done, or am I allowing them to fade away with time? Do I explain God's works to children, new converts, and future TACEFites, or do I only celebrate them without teaching their meanings? Am I preserving the burden of revival through my words, lifestyle, and discipleship? Am I a living memorial of God's grace, or am I a broken link in the chain of revival continuity? Am I using those testimonies to war a good warfare?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, deliver me from spiritual forgetfulness and help me to remember Your works, instructions, and faithfulness in my life.
2. Lord, teach me to preserve every divine encounter, answered prayer, visitation, correction, and testimony with reverence and gratitude.
3. Father, make every TACEFite a faithful witness who explains Your works to children, younger believers, new converts, and future generations.
4. Lord, help us to build a culture of spiritual reflection, testimony, teaching, and consistent discipleship in the household of TACEF.
5. Lord, make us living memorials whose lives preserve the truth, fire, holiness, sacrifice, and burden of revival.
6. Father, let Your glory continue in The African Church, in TACEF, in our local fellowships, campuses, families, communities, and workplaces through all generations.

Week 8 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 19 October 2026

- God's works must be remembered. I will not forget the dealings, instructions, testimonies, and encounters that have shaped my walk with God. Lord, deliver me from spiritual forgetfulness.
- The memorial stones were not ordinary stones; they were witnesses of what the Lord had done. Father, help me to recognise and preserve the evidences of Your faithfulness in my life, family, fellowship, and church.
- I will not treat divine encounters casually. Every answered prayer, every deliverance, every instruction, every correction, and every visitation of God must become a reminder that strengthens my faith.

Tuesday, 20 October 2026

- What God has done must be explained, not merely celebrated. I receive grace to pass divine truth, revival burdens, and testimonies of God's faithfulness to the younger generation.

- The next generation must not only hear that God moved; they must understand why He moved, how He led, what He required, and how they must continue in obedience.
- I will not allow children, youths, younger believers, and future TACEFites to be disconnected from the source of the vision. Father, help me to teach, explain, mentor, disciple, and preserve truth with clarity and love.

Wednesday, 21 October 2026

- Memorials strengthen future faith by connecting present obedience to past divine acts. When I remember what God has done before, I receive courage to obey Him again.
- I will not face today's Jordan as though God has never opened a way before. Lord, remind me of Your past faithfulness so that my present obedience will be strengthened.
- Every testimony is a weapon against fear, unbelief, discouragement, and forgetfulness. Father, teach me to remember rightly and use Your past works to stand in present battles.

Thursday, 22 October 2026

- Forgetfulness weakens revival continuity. I will not allow carelessness, distraction, or familiarity to make me forget the encounters, sacrifices, and burdens that brought us this far.
- A generation that forgets God's works becomes vulnerable to spiritual decline. Lord, help me to remember Your dealings and build others through my life, testimony, and example.
- I will not be a broken link in the chain of revival. Father, make my life a bridge between what You have done before and what You want to do in the next generation.

Friday, 23 October 2026

- I must develop the discipline of reflection and remembrance. I will record God's instructions, answered prayers, convention encounters, and personal testimonies of His faithfulness.
- What is not remembered may be lost; what is not explained may be misunderstood. Lord, give me the discipline to preserve Your works with reverence and accuracy.
- I will build a catalogue of divine encounters, not for pride, but for faith, instruction, and continuity. Father, make my testimonies teaching tools for those coming after me.

Saturday, 24 October 2026

- I will remember every instruction, every leading, every visitation, every word of prophecy, and how the Lord brought them to pass in my journey. Through them, I will war a good warfare.
- God's glory must be preserved across generations through discipleship, teaching, and faithful knowledge-sharing. Lord, help TACEF to remember, explain, and pass on Your works.
- I receive grace to become a keeper of memorial stones, a faithful witness of God's acts, and a disciple-maker who preserves revival testimonies for the next generation.

Week 9: Monday, October 2026 to Sunday, 1st November 2026

Title: Gilgal and the Circumcised Army: Consecration Before Victory

Bible Texts: Joshua 5:1-9; Ephesians 4:22-24; Ephesians 5:1-8

Joshua 5:1-9

1 And it came to pass, when all the kings of the Amorites, which were on the side of Jordan westward, and all the kings of the Canaanites, which were by the sea, heard that the LORD had dried up the waters of Jordan from before the children of Israel, until we were passed over, that their heart melted, neither was there spirit in them any more, because of the children of Israel.

2 At that time the LORD said unto Joshua, Make thee sharp knives, and circumcise again the children of Israel the second time. 3 And Joshua made him sharp knives, and circumcised the children of Israel at the hill of the foreskins. 4 And this is the cause why Joshua did circumcise: All the people that came out of Egypt, that were males, even all the men of war, died in the wilderness by the way, after they came out of Egypt. 5 Now all the people that came out were circumcised: but all the people that were born in the wilderness by the way as they came forth out of Egypt, them they had not circumcised. 6 For the children of Israel walked forty years in the wilderness, till all the people that were men of war, which came out of Egypt, were consumed, because they obeyed not the voice of the LORD: unto whom the LORD swore that he would not shew them the land, which the LORD swore unto their fathers that he would give us, a land that floweth with milk and honey. 7 And their children, whom he raised up in their stead, them Joshua circumcised: for they were uncircumcised, because they had not circumcised them by the way.

8 And it came to pass, when they had done circumcising all the people, that they abode in their places in the camp, till they were whole. 9 And the LORD said unto Joshua, This day have I rolled away the reproach of Egypt from off you. Wherefore the name of the place is called Gilgal unto this day.

Ephesians 4:22-24

22 That ye put off concerning the former conversation the old man, which is corrupt according to the deceitful lusts; 23 And be renewed in the spirit of your mind; 24 And that ye put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness.

Ephesians 5:1-8

1 Be ye therefore followers of God, as dear children; 2 And walk in love, as Christ also hath loved us, and hath given himself for us an offering and a sacrifice to God for a sweet smelling savour. 3 But fornication, and all uncleanness, or covetousness, let it not be once named among you, as becometh saints; 4 Neither filthiness, nor foolish talking, nor jesting, which are not convenient: but rather giving of thanks. 5 For this ye know, that no whoremonger, nor unclean person, nor covetous man, who is an idolater, hath any inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and of God. 6 Let no man deceive you with vain words: for because of these things cometh the wrath of God upon the children of disobedience. 7 Be not ye therefore partakers with them.

8 For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- Make thee sharp knives, and circumcise again the children of Israel the second time.
- This day have I rolled away the reproach of Egypt from off you.
- Put off concerning the former conversation the old man.
- Be renewed in the spirit of your mind.
- Put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness.
- For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light.

Introduction

Our study this week introduces us to the encounter at Gilgal, the place where God dealt with the inner condition of His army before they moved deeper into the path of victory. Israel had crossed Jordan by divine leading. The waters had parted into two for them to walk through the dry land. The priests had stood firm. The people had entered the land. The fear of the Lord had already fallen upon the kings of the Amorites and the Canaanites. Naturally, this looked like the perfect time to move quickly into battle and take over the land completely. But God stopped the army at Gilgal before they moved to Jericho. They had to go through a process of circumcision. Before the conquest of the land that is ahead of them, there had to be consecration. Before public victory, there had to be private cutting away of the flesh.

Gilgal teaches us that we cannot possess the new while still carrying the old life. The people had crossed Jordan, but the reproach of Egypt still had to be rolled away. They had entered the land geographically, but they needed covenant identity spiritually. This is a serious lesson for every TACEFite. It is possible to be in the right place and still carry the wrong identity. It is possible to be among God's people and still be uncircumcised in heart. It is possible to be active in fellowship, church, choir, children's ministry, campus work, or leadership, and still carry old appetites, secret sins, worldly habits, pride, bitterness, lust, and compromise.

Ephesians explains the demand of Gilgal when Apostle Paul says we must put off the old man, be renewed in the spirit of our mind, and put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness. The flesh cannot inherit what God has prepared. The old life cannot possess new inheritance. Unbroken flesh cannot win a generation for the Lord. If God cannot win our lives, He cannot win other lives through our lives.

Teachings

1. The Reproach of Egypt Must Be Rolled Away Because Old Identities Cannot Possess New Inheritance: Joshua 5:9 says, "This day have I rolled away the reproach of Egypt from off you." Egypt was behind them, but the reproach of Egypt still needed to be rolled away. They had left Egypt physically, crossed the Red Sea, journeyed through the wilderness, and crossed Jordan, yet God still addressed something connected to their old identity. This teaches us that a person can leave a place outwardly but still carry its lifestyle inwardly. A believer can leave the world physically, yet still carry worldly desires, worldly language, worldly values, worldly friendships, worldly dressing, worldly humour, worldly ambition, and worldly appetite.

In essence, the reproach of Egypt represents every old identity, shame, bondage, habit, mindset, appetite, and lifestyle that contradicts the new life God has given His people. God did not bring Israel into Canaan so that Egypt could continue living inside them. In the same way, Christ does not save us so that the old life can continue ruling us. He saves us to make us new.

This is why the truth of our identity in Christ is important. A person who does not know who he is in Christ may continue to live according to who he was in Egypt. A believer who still sees himself mainly through past sin, old friends, former habits, family background, social pressure, or secret shame may struggle to walk in the authority of the new life. But in Christ, old things are passed away. Dear TACEFites, God is calling us to Gilgal. We cannot possess new inheritance while still living in old habits. We cannot become revival vessels while still embracing the identity of the old life. The Lord wants to remove the smell of Egypt, the language of Egypt, the pride of Egypt, the lust of Egypt, the compromise of Egypt, and the unbelief of Egypt, so that we may stand as His covenant army in the land.

2. Possession Requires Covenant Identity: Many children were born among the children of Israel after they left Egypt and journeyed through the wilderness. These children belonged to the travelling company, grew up among the covenant people, crossed Jordan with the congregation, and were physically present in the camp. Yet, they had not been circumcised. They had not personally received the covenant mark that separated Israel unto the Lord. This is a serious warning. Being in the camp is not the same as bearing the mark of covenant. Being around God's people is not the same as belonging wholly to God. Association is not transformation and fellowship attendance is not consecration. Being around the brethren is not personal encounter and being in church is not the same as salvation because religious presence is not the proof of covenant identity.

We live in a time when many people are near the things of God outwardly, but far from God inwardly. In our study on knowing God last year, we learned about the sons of Eli, who served around the altar but were called sons of Belial. They were close to sacred things, but their lives were far from God. This same danger still exists today. Some people attend fellowship, join several online prayers daily, sing in the choir, serve in ministries (subgroups), follow Christian conversations, and may even hold positions, yet their hearts have not been separated unto the Lord. Every soldier must personally bear the mark of belonging to the Lord. Every member of the revival army must encounter the Commander of the army in the place of genuine salvation, personal surrender, and covenant identity.

This is why Ephesians calls us to "put off concerning the former conversation the old man" and to "put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness." The proof of covenant identity is not that we are counted among the people of God, but that our lives are being changed by the power of God.

3. Circumcision of the Heart Is Separation unto the Lord: Circumcision did not begin at Gilgal. It was first established by God as His covenant with Abraham, a visible mark that Israel belonged to Him and was separated from the nations for His divine purpose (Genesis 17). Every male in Israel was required to bear this covenant sign in his flesh as a continual reminder that they were God's chosen people. When Israel entered the Promised Land, however, a new generation had not been circumcised during their wilderness journey. Before they could possess their inheritance, God commanded Joshua to circumcise them at Gilgal (Joshua 5). The act was painful, personal, and costly. It involved cutting away part of the flesh with a knife, bringing pain and temporary weakness. Yet this outward act was far more than a physical procedure but a covenant renewal and a public declaration that Israel belonged wholly to the Lord.

Even under the Old Testament, God made it clear that physical circumcision alone was never His ultimate desire. He repeatedly called His people to "circumcise the foreskin of your heart" (Deuteronomy 10:16; Jeremiah 4:4), revealing that the greater issue was an inward separation from sin and wholehearted devotion to Him. This reaches its fulfilment in the New Testament, where circumcision is no longer of the body but of the heart, accomplished by Christ through the Holy Spirit (Colossians 2:11). Circumcision of the heart is God's inward work of cutting away the rule of the flesh, breaking the power of sin, and separating every believer unto Himself. The flesh must be dealt with because unbroken flesh cannot safely carry divine assignments. A believer who has not allowed God to deal with the flesh may have passion, but that passion will still be polluted by self. He may preach, sing, lead, organise, or pray fervently, yet remain defeated by lust, anger, bitterness, jealousy, greed, competition, unforgiveness, or rebellion. The danger is not only that such a person may fall, but that he may wound others while appearing to serve God.

4. Consecration Precedes Conquest, and Holiness Protects the Army from Fleshly Warfare: God brought Israel to Gilgal before Jericho. This order is important. Jericho which is the land to be possessed, was ahead, but circumcision came first at Gilgal. The walls would soon fall, but God first dealt with the army because winning the inner battle against sin, as we learned at the last convention is more important than the outside war. This also teaches us that God does not want an unclean army fighting holy battles. He does not want fleshly men carrying spiritual weapons. He does not want people who are defeated in secret trying to win publicly. Holiness protects the army from fleshly warfare. When holiness is absent, the army becomes vulnerable, prayer becomes weak, discernment becomes dull, leadership becomes polluted, service becomes performance, evangelism becomes powerless, and fellowship becomes social gathering.

Clean hands and a pure heart are not optional for those who want to ascend into God's purpose. We cannot win for the Lord when our lifestyles are lost in secret sins. We cannot call people out of darkness while walking in darkness ourselves. Therefore, every revival army must return to holiness. TACEFites must confront besetting sins, weights, compromises, old habits, worldly appetite, lust, bitterness, pride, and every secret thing that weakens our walk with the Lord. For if the Lord wins our lives, He can win other lives through our lives. If God conquers our private battles, He can make us vessels of public victory. Gilgal must come before Jericho.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Ask God to reveal your Egypt: Prayerfully identify the old habits, old appetites, old mindsets, old relationships, old language, and old compromises that still follow you. Do not excuse them. Bring them honestly before God.
- Allow the reproach to be rolled away: Declare before God that the identity of the old life will not define your new life in Christ. Refuse to carry Egypt into inheritance.
- Check your covenant identity: Do not depend on church attendance as an indication of genuine salvation. Genuinely ask yourself whether your heart truly belongs to the Lord.
- Submit to circumcision of the heart: Allow God's Word, Spirit, correction, and godly accountability to cut away pride, lust, bitterness, rebellion, anger, and secret compromise.
- Put off the old man practically: Delete what feeds sin. Stop that ungodly association. End that subscription what weakens holiness. Stop what pollutes your mind.
- Put on the new man daily: Choose righteousness in everyday living, true holiness in secret life, purity in relationships, truth in speech, and light instead of darkness.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why did God stop Israel at Gilgal for circumcision before the battle of Jericho?
2. What does "the reproach of Egypt" represent in the life of a believer today?

3. Why is outward association with God's people not enough without personal covenant identity through genuine salvation?
4. What does circumcision of the heart mean to us today as New Testament believers?
5. What are some old habits, weights, besetting sins, and worldly appetites that TACEFites must confront before possessing territories for the Lord?
6. How do Ephesians 4:22-24 and Ephesians 5:1-8 help us understand putting off the old man and putting on the new man?

Personal Reflection

Am I still carrying old identities, old appetites, old habits, old relationships, old ungodly contents on my phone storage, old shame, or old compromises into the new inheritance God has prepared for me? Am I depending on outward association with church, fellowship, or spiritual activities without true covenant identity? Has my heart been genuinely circumcised and set apart for the Lord, or am I still living in the flesh? Am I allowing secret sin, besetting weakness, bitterness, lust, pride, carelessness, or worldly appetite to reign in my life? Am I truly putting off the old man and putting on the new man in righteousness and true holiness? Is God winning in my life fully so that He can win other lives through mine?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, bring me to my Gilgal encounter, where every work of the flesh meets the knife of the Lord. Cut off every fleshly lifestyle and roll away every reproach of Egypt from my life.
2. Lord, deliver me from every old identity, secret sin, besetting weakness, worldly appetite, lust, bitterness, pride, and compromise that can hinder my usefulness.
3. Father, circumcise my heart and separate me unto Yourself in truth, holiness, purity, and obedience.
4. Lord, help me to put off the old man and put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness.
5. Father, make TACEF a consecrated revival army with clean hands, pure hearts, and sanctified lives.
6. Lord, win my life completely, so that You can win other lives through my life.

Week 9 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 26th October 2026

- I will not carry old identities, old shame, old habits, and old appetites into the new inheritance God has prepared for me.
- Egypt may be behind me physically, but I must not allow Egypt to remain alive in my heart. Lord, deliver me from every bondage, mindset, appetite, and compromise of the old life.
- I receive grace to live in my new identity in Christ. I am not defined by my past, my sin, my shame, or my old life. Father, roll away the reproach of Egypt from me.

Tuesday, 27 October 2026

- Possession requires covenant identity, not outward association. My Christian walk will not be based on religion but a personal encounter of salvation and relationship with the Lord Jesus Christ.
- I must belong to God personally and completely. Lord, make my walk with You real, my surrender genuine, and my consecration personal.
- I will not hide under the name of TACEF while my life contradicts Christ. Father, mark my heart with true covenant identity and make me Yours in secret and in public.

Wednesday, 28 October 2026

- Circumcision of the heart is separation unto the Lord. I will allow God to cut away every fleshly appetite, hidden pride, lust, bitterness, rebellion, anger, and compromise.
- An uncircumcised soldier cannot carry spiritual assignment for the Lord. Lord Jesus, deal with everything in me that can weaken my walk with God and damage Your work in my life.
- The knife of God is not to destroy me, but to make me fit for His purpose. Father, cut away what must not follow me into inheritance.

Thursday, 29 October 2026

- The old life must be cut off through repentance, sanctification, and daily cross-bearing. I will not only feel sorry for sin; I will turn from it and walk in obedience to God.
- True repentance must produce visible turnaround. Lord, help me to delete what feeds sin, end what weakens holiness, and change where I must change.
- I will not resurrect what God has commanded me to bury. Father, give me daily grace to deny the flesh, carry my cross, and follow Christ in truth.

Friday, 30 October 2026

- Ephesians calls me to put off the old man and put on the new man in righteousness and true holiness. I will not live in darkness when Christ has made me light in the Lord.
- Fornication, uncleanness, covetousness, filthiness, foolish talking, and jesting must not be named in my life. Lord, cleanse my speech, lifestyle, relationships, and desires.
- I am a child of light, and I must walk as a child of light. Lord, let my life reveal purity.

Saturday, 31 October 2026

- Consecration precedes conquest. I will not fight Jericho before Gilgal. Lord, win my life fully before You use me to win territories for Your glory.
- We cannot win for the Lord when our lifestyles are lost in secret sins. Father, make me clean, whole, pure, and spiritually ready for the assignment ahead.
- If God cannot win my life, He cannot win other lives through mine. I receive grace to be a consecrated soldier, a circumcised vessel, and a revival agent with clean hands and a pure heart.

Week 10: Monday 2nd to Sunday 8th November, 2026

Tarry Week for Reflections and Prayer

Monday, 2 November 2026

- I am brought near in Christ by the blood of Jesus. I am not a stranger, foreigner, rejected soul, or hopeless life. I have received mercy, and I receive grace to see others through the redeeming power of the blood of Christ.
- I am a vessel of mercy in Christ, sent to discern hidden harvest in unlikely places. I will not write people off because of their past, behaviour, weakness, reputation, or resistance. I see souls that God can save, restore, and use for His glory.

Tuesday, 3 November 2026

- I am a witness of Christ, and I will not be silent when someone around me needs to hear the gospel. I receive grace to speak the truth with love, patience, clarity, and compassion.
- I am a scarlet cord in Christ, a channel of rescue through prayer, follow-up, discipleship, and compassionate care. I will not only condemn sin from afar; I will point sinners and to the saving grace of Christ.

Wednesday, 4 November 2026

- I am led by the presence of God in Christ. I will not enter new territories by pressure, competition, trends, excitement, fear, or assumption. I wait for the ark of God's presence before I move.
- I am sanctified in Christ for divine assignment. I will not seek open doors with unclean hands or new territories with an unchanged heart. I surrender my motives, desires, habits, words, relationships, and hidden life to the Lord.

Thursday, 5 November 2026

- I am a responsible servant-leader in Christ. I will not treat leadership as a title to display, but as a burden to carry. I receive grace to go first in prayer, sacrifice, obedience, humility, punctuality, and faithfulness.
- I am obedient in Christ, and I will not remain permanently at the riverbank of destiny. I receive grace to take the next step God is asking from me, trusting Him to open every Jordan before me.

Friday, 6 November 2026

- I am a keeper of memorial stones in Christ. I will not forget the dealings, instructions, testimonies, corrections, and encounters that have shaped my walk with God. I receive grace to remember, reflect and preserve the works of the Lord in my journey.
- I am a faithful witness of God's acts in Christ. I will not only celebrate divine encounters; I will explain them to children, youths, younger believers, new converts, and future TACEFites, so that the next generation will not be detached from the source of the vision.

Saturday, 7 November 2026

- I am a circumcised vessel in Christ, separated unto the Lord in righteousness and true holiness. I will not carry old identities, old shame, old habits, old appetites, secret sins, or worldly compromise into the inheritance God has prepared for me.
- I am a consecrated soldier in Christ, with clean hands and a pure heart. I will not fight Jericho before Gilgal. The Lord will win my life fully, so that He can win other lives through mine.

Week 11: Monday, 9th to Sunday, 15th November 2026

Title: The Captain of the Lord's Host: Submitting the Battle to Christ - the Head

Bible Texts: Joshua 5:13-15; Ephesians 1:20-23; Ephesians 6:10

Joshua 5:13-15

13 And it came to pass, when Joshua was by Jericho, that he lifted up his eyes and looked, and, behold, there stood a man over against him with his sword drawn in his hand: and Joshua went unto him, and said unto him, Art thou for us, or for our adversaries?

14 And he said, Nay; but as captain of the host of the LORD am I now come. And Joshua fell on his face to the earth, and did worship, and said unto him, What saith my lord unto his servant?

15 And the captain of the LORD's host said unto Joshua, Loose thy shoe from off thy foot; for the place whereon thou standest is holy. And Joshua did so.

Ephesians 1:20-23

20 Which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead, and set him at his own right hand in the heavenly places, 21 Far above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come:

22 And hath put all things under his feet, and gave him to be the head over all things to the church, 23 Which is his body, the fullness of him that filleth all in all.

Ephesians 6:10

10 Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- There stood a man over against him with his sword drawn in his hand.
- but as captain of the host of the LORD am I now come.
- Joshua fell on his face to the earth, and did worship.
- Loose thy shoe from off thy foot; for the place whereon thou standest is holy
- He raised him from the dead, and set him at his own right hand in the heavenly places.
- Far above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion.
- Gave him to be the head over all things to the church.

Introduction

This week's study brings us into one of the most important leadership encounters in the life of Joshua. Israel had crossed River Jordan. The memorial stones had been set. The reproach of Egypt had been rolled away at Gilgal through the cutting away of the flesh. The people had been circumcised, consecrated, and prepared to possess the Promised Land. Jericho, the first great fortified city waiting to be conquered, now stood before them. Everything appeared ready for battle. Yet before Israel could confront Jericho, Joshua himself had to undergo one final lesson. He had to discover that he was not the true commander of the army.

Joshua lifted up his eyes and saw a Man standing before him with His sword drawn. Thinking as a military leader, Joshua asked, "Art thou for us, or for our adversaries?" The answer completely changed his understanding of spiritual warfare: "Nay; but as captain of the host of the LORD am I now come." The issue was never whether God had come to support Joshua's plans. The issue was whether Joshua was willing to lay down his own authority and submit completely to the Commander of the Lord's army. The battle did not belong to Joshua. The army did not belong to Joshua. The victory would not come through Joshua's military ability. Everything belonged to the Lord, and Joshua could only succeed by receiving and obeying divine command. His first act was therefore not to fight but to fall on his face in worship and ask, "What saith my Lord unto His servant?"

This is a foundational lesson for every TACEFite and every revival army. Before God entrusts us with His battles, He first teaches us that we do not own the work, the ministry, the fellowship, the platform, the vision, or the results. We are not commanders asking God to bless our plans. We are servants receiving His instructions. Every outreach, leadership responsibility, ministry assignment, relocation plans, financial plans, career decision, and act of service must begin with the same posture of surrender: "What saith my Lord unto His servant?" Only an army that has first submitted to the Captain of the Lord's host can be trusted to advance His kingdom and fight His battles.

Teachings

1. God's Army Must Surrender to the Commander Before Conquest: Joshua had already been commissioned by God. He had crossed Jordan by divine leading. He had witnessed the power of God in opening the river. He had obeyed the instruction to circumcise the people at Gilgal. Yet, before Jericho, he still had to learn that he was not the ultimate commander of the battle. Joshua led Israel under God, but he did not own the army. He carried responsibility, but he did not carry final authority. He was a mere servant under the Captain of the Lord's host.

This is a deep lesson for every leader and every believer. The more God entrusts to us, the more surrendered we must become. Divine assignments must not create a sense of personal control. Spiritual responsibility must not turn into self-importance. Leadership must not make us forget that Christ alone is the Head. Joshua had to bow before the Captain before he could lead the people to win Jericho. The commander of Israel had to become a worshipping servant before the Commander of heaven.

In addition, we must understand that the battle belongs to the Lord. The battle for souls belongs to Him. The battle for revival belongs to Him. The battle for The African Church, our campuses, local churches, families, communities, workplaces, and nations belong to Him. We are not owners; we are servants. We are not commanders; we are soldiers under divine command. This is why the first posture Joshua took after hearing the identity of the Captain was worship. "Joshua fell on his face to the earth and did worship." Surrender begins when the heart bows. Before our business strategies, financial plans, meetings, outreaches, career assignments, and service platforms, there must be a total submission because the Lord must win the leader before the leader can lead others into victory.

2. The Army Must Ask, "What Saith My Lord?" Before Every Battle: Joshua's question changed after the Captain spoke. At first, he asked, "Art thou for us, or for our adversaries?" But after the Captain revealed Himself, Joshua asked, "What saith my lord unto his servant?" This is the question of a surrendered soldier. It is the question of a man who no longer wants God to bless his own plan, but wants to hear and obey God's command.

This question must become the governing question of every revival army. Before we organise an outreach, we must ask, "Lord, what are You saying?" Before we take up a church responsibility, we must ask, "Lord, what are You saying?" Before we start a new business venture, enter a relationship, pursue an opportunity, relocate, begin a business, or make a major decision, we must ask, "Lord, what are You saying?" This is the proof that we are not running our lives by assumptions.

A major danger in our time is that many are busy without being led. A leader can push an idea because it looks attractive, not because the Lord has spoken. A business owner can start a new venture out of pressure, not from divine instruction. A husband can force a family into a relocation or investment decision just because it is trending. In essence, we must learn to submit to the Commander of our lives because we have no plans outside His. This does not mean we should not plan but every plan must originate from Him and we intentionally submit every of our plans to the Lord for guidance. It does not mean we should not strategise. It means strategy must bow to divine instruction. It does not mean we should not use wisdom. It means wisdom must remain under the rule of Christ.

3. Holiness in Spiritual Warfare - Holy Ground Requires Surrendered Shoes: The Captain of the Lord's host said to Joshua, "Loose thy shoe from off thy foot; for the place whereon thou standest is holy." This instruction shows that spiritual warfare is not first about weapons, but about holiness. Joshua saw a drawn sword, yet the first command he received was not "fight," but "remove." Before Jericho could be confronted, Joshua's shoes had to be loosed. Before the battle could be entered, the servant had to recognise the holiness of the ground and the holiness of the Commander.

"Shoes" in this context represent contact with the old ground, worldly patterns, works of the flesh, and self-directed steps. To remove the shoe is to surrender our way of walking, our pride, our self-dependence, our old methods, our personal control, and anything unfit for holy ground. The Lord was teaching Joshua that the battle ahead was not an ordinary military effort, but a holy assignment under a holy Commander.

This connects with the pattern of Moses, who also had to remove his shoes before the burning bush. A holy encounter demands surrendered shoes. God does not only call us first to fight in spiritual warfare for souls of men; He calls us to bow, remove, surrender, and be purified. Every time we encounter the Commander of the Lord's army, we must be willing to remove old shoes. The shoes of self-will must be removed. The shoes of secret compromise must be removed. The shoes of bitterness, lust, anger, envy, prayerlessness, carelessness, worldliness, and old habits must be removed. We cannot fight spiritual battles with unclean hands. We cannot confront darkness while keeping darkness in our private lives.

4. Christ Is Head Over All Things, and Every Army Must Submit to His Rule: Ephesians 1 reveals the exalted position of Christ as our Commander and Head. God raised Him from the dead and set Him at His own right hand in the heavenly places, “far above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion.” This means Christ is not one power among many powers. He is far above all. Every principality, power, dominion, name, system, idol, fear, resistance, and opposition is under His feet. The same passage says God “gave him to be the head over all things to the church.” Christ is Head over all things to the church. The church is His body and He is the Head. The body must receive direction from the Head. The body must move when the Head commands. The body must not run ahead of the Head or act independently of the Head. A body disconnected from the head becomes lifeless, confused, and dead.

In this regard, if Christ is the Head, then our opinions must bow to His at all times. Our traditions must bow. Our preferences must bow. Our strategies must bow. Our ego must bow. Our fear must bow. Our ambition must bow. Our timing must bow. Our titles must bow. Our platforms must bow. Every plan must pass through His authority. The question is not, “Will Christ support what I want?” The question is, “Am I submitted to what Christ commands?”

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Surrender the battle before you enter it: Before confronting any challenge, whether in family, school, work, ministry, fellowship, or personal life, pause and declare that the battle belongs to the Lord.
- Ask the Joshua question daily: Before major actions, ask: “What saith my Lord unto His servant?” Do not act because you are angry, excited, pressured, or confident.
- Submit every plan to Christ: Always present all your personal plan, business plan, academic plan, career plan, or family plan unto the Lord and prayerfully submit it to the Lord. Ask Him to correct, redirect, purify, or confirm it.
- Remove old shoes before holy ground: Identify old patterns that must not follow you into divine assignment. These may include pride, self-will, secret sin, anger, bitterness, lust, worldliness, prayerlessness, carelessness, or unhealthy ambition.
- Practise holiness in warfare: Do not try to fight for God while hiding from God. Let your private life, online life, relationships, speech, appetite, and motives come under the searchlight of the Holy Spirit.
- Live under Christ’s headship: In every decision, ask whether Christ is truly ruling. Is His Word directing you? Is His Spirit restraining you? Is His character being formed in you?

Questions for Discussion

1. Why did Joshua need to meet the Captain of the Lord’s host before the battle of Jericho?
2. What does the answer “but as captain of the host of the LORD am I now come” teach us about surrendering control to God?
3. Why must every TACEFite ask, “What saith my Lord?” before every decision and life planning?
4. What are some “old shoes” that believers must remove before standing on holy ground with the Lord?
5. How can TACEFites avoid running personal agendas in God’s name?

Personal Reflection

Am I truly submitted to Christ as the Captain of the Lord’s host, or am I asking Him to endorse my own plans? Am I running any personal agenda in God’s name? Are my efforts, responsibilities, relationships, career decisions, and life plans under the headship of Christ? What old shoes must I remove before the Lord? Is there pride, self-will, secret sin, bitterness, lust, anger, fear, worldliness, carelessness, or old patterns that I am still carrying into holy ground? Am I yielding to the Lord to lead the battle of my life or am I depending on my title, talent, training, experience, intelligence, or past success?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, bring me into fresh submission to Christ, the Captain of the Lord’s host.
2. Lord Jesus, deliver me from every personal agenda that I have tried to run in Your name.
3. Father, teach me to ask, “What saith my Lord unto His servant?” before every action, life plans and ministry efforts.
4. Lord, help me to remove every old shoe of pride, self-will, secret sin, bitterness, lust, anger, worldliness, fear, and old patterns.
5. Father, make my life holy ground where Your presence can dwell, rule, correct, command, and lead.
6. Lord Jesus, rule as the Head over my life, family, fellowship, ministry, academics, career, relationships, finances, and every plan.

Week 11 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 9 November 2026

- God's army does not own the battle. Christ is the Captain of the Lord's host, and every battle must be surrendered to Him. Lord, deliver me from trying to control what belongs to You.
- Joshua had to meet the true Commander before Jericho could be conquered. I receive grace to bow before Christ before I move into any assignment, responsibility, decision, or battle.
- I will not ask God to join my personal agenda. I will submit my life, plans, methods, timing, and desires to His command. Father, take full control of every battle before me.

Tuesday, 10 November 2026

- Joshua asked, "What saith my lord unto his servant?" This must become the question of my life. Lord, teach me to seek Your voice before I act, speak, lead, serve, or move.
- I will not run by pressure, excitement, anger, ambition, competition, or human confidence. Father, help me to pause and receive Your instruction for every step.
- We have no plans outside Christ. Lord, I submit all my personal plans, relationships, academics, career, and other decisions to you.

Wednesday, 11 November 2026

- Holy ground requires surrendered shoes. I cannot stand before the Commander of the Lord's host while holding on to pride, secret sin, bitterness, lust, anger, or old patterns.
- The first instruction before the battle was not "fight," but "loose thy shoe." Lord, show me what must be removed from my life before I can carry Your battle faithfully.
- I will not carry old shoes into holy ground. Father, remove every habit, attitude, appetite, relationship, and hidden compromise that can weaken my walk with You.

Thursday, 12 November 2026

- Consecration is critical in warfare. I cannot confront darkness while tolerating darkness in my life. Lord, make my hands clean, my heart pure, and my life surrendered.
- Holiness is not optional for the Lord's army. The Captain Himself meets His people on holy ground. Father, make holiness my daily reality and experience.
- I will not fight spiritual battles with an unsearched heart. Holy Spirit, search me, correct me, cleanse me, and keep me fit for the Master's use.

Friday, 13 November 2026

- Christ is Head over all things to the church. He is far above all principality, power, might, dominion, and every name that is named. I submit to His rule over every area of my life.
- The body must not move independently of the Head. I will not run my life, family, ministry, or decisions without Christ's government. Lord Jesus, rule me completely.
- My opinions, preferences, traditions, fears, ambitions, and plans must bow to Christ. Father, let every part of my life come under the authority of Christ.

Saturday, 14 November 2026

- Victory begins with total submission, not human confidence. I will not depend on my title, talent, training, intelligence, experience, or past success. I will be strong in the Lord.
- Lord, clothe me with Your strength and deliver me from trusting in myself.
- I receive grace to surrender the battle, ask what the Lord is saying, remove old shoes, live under Christ's headship, and stand strong in His might. Father, make me a submitted soldier in Your revival army.

Week 12: Monday, 16 November 2026 to Sunday, 22 November 2026

Title: Jericho and the Fall of Strongholds: Winning God's Battle God's Way

Bible Texts: Joshua 6:1-21; Ephesians 6:10-18

Bible Texts

Joshua 6:1-21:

1 Now Jericho was straitly shut up because of the children of Israel: none went out, and none came in. 2 And the LORD said unto Joshua, See, I have given into thine hand Jericho, and the king thereof, and the mighty men of valour. 3 And ye shall compass the city, all ye men of war, and go round about the city once. Thus shalt thou do six days. 4 And seven priests shall bear before the ark seven trumpets of rams' horns: and the seventh day ye shall compass the city seven times, and the priests shall blow with the trumpets. 5 And it shall come to pass, that when they make a long blast with the ram's horn, and when ye hear the sound of the trumpet, all the people shall shout with a great shout; and the wall of the city shall fall down flat, and the people shall ascend up every man straight before him. 6 And Joshua the son of Nun called the priests, and said unto them, Take up the ark of the covenant, and let seven priests bear seven trumpets of rams' horns before the ark of the LORD. 7 And he said unto the people, Pass on, and compass the city, and let him that is armed pass on before the ark of the LORD. 8 And it came to pass, when Joshua had spoken unto the people, that the seven priests bearing the seven trumpets of rams' horns passed on before the LORD, and blew with the trumpets: and the ark of the covenant of the LORD followed them. 9 And the armed men went before the priests that blew with the trumpets, and the rereward came after the ark, the priests going on, and blowing with the trumpets. 10 And Joshua had commanded the people, saying, Ye shall not shout, nor make any noise with your voice, neither shall any word proceed out of your mouth, until the day I bid you shout; then shall ye shout. 11 So the ark of the LORD compassed the city, going about it once: and they came into the camp, and lodged in the camp. 12 And Joshua rose early in the morning, and the priests took up the ark of the LORD. 13 And seven priests bearing seven trumpets of rams' horns before the ark of the LORD went on continually, and blew with the trumpets: and the armed men went before them; but the rereward came after the ark of the LORD, the priests going on, and blowing with the trumpets. 14 And the second day they compassed the city once, and returned into the camp: so they did six days. 15 And it came to pass on the seventh day, that they rose early about the dawning of the day, and compassed the city after the same manner seven times: only on that day they compassed the city seven times. 16 And it came to pass at the seventh time, when the priests blew with the trumpets, Joshua said unto the people, Shout; for the LORD hath given you the city. 17 And the city shall be accursed, even it, and all that are therein, to the LORD: only Rahab the harlot shall live, she and all that are with her in the house, because she hid the messengers that we sent. 18 And ye, in any wise keep yourselves from the accursed thing, lest ye make yourselves accursed, when ye take of the accursed thing, and make the camp of Israel a curse, and trouble it. 19 But all the silver, and gold, and vessels of brass and iron, are consecrated unto the LORD: they shall come into the treasury of the LORD. 20 So the people shouted when the priests blew with the trumpets: and it came to pass, when the people heard the sound of the trumpet, and the people shouted with a great shout, that the wall fell down flat, so that the people went up into the city, every man straight before him, and they took the city. 21 And they utterly destroyed all that was in the city, both man and woman, young and old, and ox, and sheep, and ass, with the edge of the sword.

Ephesians 6:10-18:

*10 Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.
11 Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil.
12 For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places.
13 Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand.
14 Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness;
15 And your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace;
16 Above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked.
17 And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God:
18 Praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints.*

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- See, I have given into thine hand Jericho.
- Ye shall compass the city...Ye shall not shout, nor make any noise with your voice.
- Shout; for the LORD hath given you the city.
- The wall fell down flat.
- Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.
- Put on the whole armour of God.
- For we wrestle not against flesh and blood.

Introduction

This week brings us to Jericho, the first major fortified city Israel confronted after crossing Jordan. Jericho stood between the people of God and the practical possession of the Promised land. It was not merely a city; it was a stronghold. The Bible says, "Now Jericho was straitly shut up because of the children of Israel: none went out, and none came in." From the natural point of view, Jericho was closed, defended, resistant, and inaccessible. Yet, before any wall fell, before any shout was raised, and before any weapon was lifted, the Lord had already spoken victory to Joshua: "See, I have given into thine hand Jericho." This means that the battle was not first decided by what Israel could see, but by what God had said.

God's method for taking Jericho was unusual. Israel was not instructed to attack the wall with best of military weapons. They were commanded to march round the city in silence, follow the ark, allow the priests to blow the trumpets, and shout only at the appointed time. This teaches that spiritual victory is not secured by human formula or copied methods. Human strategies are useful, and learning from others is important, but knowing God's method for every season is much more important for a sustained life of victory. The fall of Jericho teaches us that God's battle must be won God's way.

Ephesians gives us a deeper meaning of this warfare. Paul teaches that we are not wrestling against flesh and blood, but against principalities, powers, rulers of the darkness of this world, and spiritual wickedness in high places. Jericho therefore becomes a powerful picture of the strongholds that stand against the salvation of souls, the restoration of families, the revival of local churches, the transformation of campuses, and the reclaiming of communities for the Lord. Behind many closed lives, resistant families, spiritually cold churches, and hardened territories are unseen forces that must be confronted through warfare prayer, faith, the Word of God, and the whole armour of God. Therefore, the battle for souls is not only a matter of preaching; it is also a matter of spiritual warfare. We must preach, teach, disciple, and follow up, but we must also pray until the strongholds holding lives and destinies are broken. There are walls that preaching alone cannot break. There are gates that human wisdom alone cannot open. There are powers that only bow when God's people stand in the strength of the Lord. Dear TACEFites, if we must see Jericho fall, we must be strong in the Lord, put on the whole armour of God, and win God's battle God's way.

Teachings

1. Victory Begins from Divine Promise, Not Visible Result: The first thing Scripture tells us about Jericho is that it was "straitly shut up." Nobody went out, and nobody came in. The city was fortified, defended, and resistant. From the natural point of view, Jericho was inaccessible. Yet, the Lord said to Joshua, "See, I have given into thine hand Jericho." This means that God's promise can already be sure, even when the way forward still looks closed and impossible. Jericho was locked against Israel on earth, but God had already handed it over to them in heaven.

This is very important for every revival move. A person may look hardened, but that does not mean grace cannot reach them. A family may look resistant, but that does not mean God cannot save them. A local church may look dry, but that does not mean revival cannot come. A campus may appear captured by sin, cultism, immorality, worldliness, and rebellion, but that does not mean the Lord cannot raise witnesses there. A workplace may appear corrupt, hostile, and spiritually closed, but Christ can still be represented there.

God did not first ask Joshua to focus on the wall. He asked him to "see" what heaven had already given. This was not ordinary sight; it was faith-shaped vision. Joshua had to see victory before stepping out in faith. He had to believe God's promise before the wall fell. He had to lead the people from the assurance of what God had spoken, not from the fear of what the city looked like. Dear TACEFites, we must not allow shut gates to cancel divine promises in our hearts. Some territories God has assigned to us may first appear impossible. Some souls God wants to save may first appear difficult.

Some assignments God has placed before us may look too hard. But if God has spoken, the wall will definitely fall. The possessing army must not only see walls; it must see the Lord who has already declared victory.

2. God's Strategy May Look Foolish to Men, but Obedience Wins: The strategy God gave Joshua did not look like normal military wisdom. There were no siege engines and no physical attack on the wall. The people were commanded to march round the city once each day for six days. On the seventh day, they were to march round the city seven times. The priests were to blow the trumpets, and the people were to shout only when Joshua commanded them. To natural men, this method may have looked slow, foolish, or ineffective. Yet, it carried divine authority because it came from God. This teaches us that spiritual victory is not by human formula, but by obedience to God's strategy. The fall of Jericho fell because Israel obeyed God's complete instructions. The shout had power because it came at the appointed time, after the appointed process, in obedience to the appointed word of God.

Many believers want to copy methods without seeking God. Learning from others is good, but copying without spiritual discernment can become dangerous. What God used in one place may not be His exact method for another place. What worked in one season may not be the strategy for the next season. This is important for each of us as we see walls of Jericho fall in our careers, ministry, family, calling, academics and marriage. Sometimes God's method will require silence when we want to speak. Sometimes it will require patience when we want speed. Sometimes it will require repeated obedience when we want instant results. Sometimes it will require praise before the wall falls. The method may look foolish to men, but if it is from God and obeyed fully, strongholds will fall.

3. Complete Obedience, Patient Faith, and Praise as Warfare: The command to march round Jericho required complete and patient obedience. Israel had to march once a day for six days without seeing visible results. They had to return to the camp after each march, while the wall still stood. On the seventh day, they had to march seven times before the shout came. This means that victory did not come through hurried obedience, partial obedience, or emotional impatience. It came through complete obedience to God's order. If Israel had marched for three or five days and stopped, the wall would still have stood. If they had shouted before the appointed time, they would have disobeyed. If they had changed God's method because it looked too slow, they would have missed the miracle. This connects with the truth that knowing God must produce obedience as we learned in our 2025/2026 study series. Obedience is not only proved when the instruction is exciting; it is proved when it is inconvenient and not yet producing visible results.

The shout at Jericho was also important. Joshua said, "Shout; for the LORD hath given you the city." This was not ordinary noise. It was not entertainment. It was not emotional display. It was not an attempt to excite the people. It was a shout of faith released in obedience to God's instruction. Praise becomes warfare when it flows from faith, obedience, revelation, and confidence in God's Word. We also need to note that the children of Israel did not use praise to replace obedience. They marched as commanded, kept silent as commanded, and shouted when commanded. This is a major lesson for the Lord's army. Our singing must not become entertainment. Our shouting must not become noise without obedience and our worship must not become performance without surrender. But when praise rises from a life that believes God, obeys God, and stands on His promise, it becomes a weapon of warfare.

4. Jericho as a Picture of Strongholds - Understanding Warfare Principles: Jericho was not only a physical city; it was a picture of a stronghold resisting God's people from entering into inheritance. It was shut, fortified, defended, and opposed to the progress of Israel. In the New Testament, Ephesians 6 helps us understand that behind many visible oppositions and attacks are unseen spiritual forces. Paul says, "For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places." This means the battle for souls, families, local churches, campuses, communities, and nations is spiritual and the book of Ephesians gave us the 4 layers of these forces as below:

- Principalities. These speak of organised spiritual authorities and ruling structures of darkness that influence territories, systems, cultures, and generations against the purpose of God. They represent higher levels of demonic ordering that seek to keep people, communities, institutions, and territories under spiritual blindness and rebellion. In the Jericho picture, principalities can be seen as the organised resistance that keeps an entire city shut against God's purpose.
- Powers. These refer to forces that exercise authority, oppression, control, and bondage over lives and destinies. They can manifest through addictions, fear, lust, pride, bitterness, unbelief, ancestral bondage, false worship, and patterns that keep people from responding to the gospel. In the Jericho picture, powers are like the strength behind the gates and walls that prevent access and hold the inhabitants under bondage.
- The rulers of the darkness of this world. These are forces that promote darkness, deception, corruption, sin, moral confusion, and rebellion in the systems of this world. They influence minds, values, behaviours, and social patterns so that darkness appears normal and truth appears strange. In the Jericho picture, they are like the atmosphere of the city itself, a territory organised around resistance to God's rule and opposed to the light of His people.

- Spiritual wickedness in high places. This speaks of deeper spiritual operations that oppose worship of God, holiness, truth, prayer, revival, and the knowledge of God. These forces seek to corrupt altars, pollute worship, weaken spiritual authority, frustrate intercession, and resist the purposes of God from unseen realms. In the Jericho picture, this represents the hidden spiritual force behind the visible wall, the unseen wickedness strengthening the visible resistance.

This is why every army of the Lord must be ready for spiritual warfare. The people we are trying to win are not our enemies. The real battle is against the strongholds and spiritual forces that hold lives and destinies in bondage. Therefore, salvation is beyond preaching alone; it requires prayer. Revival is beyond organising programmes alone; it requires warfare. We must preach the gospel, but we must also pray until veils are removed, gates are opened, strongholds are pulled down, and the light of Christ shines into hearts.

Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- See beyond closed gates: Identify one area of your life, family, local church, campus, workplace, or community that looks shut. Begin to pray from the assurance of God's Word and not from the fear of visible resistance.
- Seek God's method, not copied formulas: Before starting any plan, investment, programme, outreach, ministry effort, family decision, relationship step, business move, or major life decisions, ask the Lord for His specific strategy.
- Obey fully and patiently: Write down one instruction God has already given you that you have obeyed only halfway. Return to it with humility and complete the obedience.
- Practise disciplined silence: Joshua commanded the people not to speak until the appointed time. This week, watch your words. Refuse murmuring, negative confession, careless talk, and unbelieving speech.
- Turn praise into warfare: Praise God from faith, not entertainment. Spend 1 full hour this week to sing, worship, and thank Him over situations that have not yet changed, because His promise is greater than the wall.
- Pray against strongholds: Choose specific names, families, locations, or issues and invest prayer into them. Ask God to pull down every stronghold resisting salvation, holiness, revival, discipleship, and divine purpose.
- Do not fight people as enemies: Remember that we wrestle not against flesh and blood. Speak to people with love but confront strongholds in prayer.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why is it important that God said, "I have given into thine hand Jericho," even though Jericho was still shut and Israel could not enter it?
2. What does Jericho teach us about strongholds that resist the salvation of souls, revival, and territorial possession?
3. Why must TACEFites seek God's method instead of relying only on copied formulas and personal ideas?
4. What does the silence, marching, trumpet, and shout teach us about complete obedience and divine timing?
5. How can praise become warfare, and how can it become mere entertainment?
6. Why must soul-winning, discipleship, and revival work be backed by prayer and spiritual warfare?

Personal Reflection

Am I discouraged because the gates look shut, or am I standing on what God has spoken? Do I see my family, local church, campus, workplace, career, finance, community, and nation only through the walls of resistance, or through the promise of God? Do I seek God's method before taking action, or do I rely on copied formulas, human intelligence, and personal ideas? Have I obeyed God fully, or am I giving Him partial obedience while expecting complete victory? Am I patient enough to keep marching when there is no visible result yet? Is my praise rooted in faith and obedience, or is it only emotional excitement? Do I understand that the people I want to win are not my enemies, but souls under strongholds that must be pulled down by prayer? Am I putting on the whole armour of God, or am I trying to fight spiritual battles with fleshly methods?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, open my eyes to see the victory You have already given, even when the gates before me appear shut.
2. Lord, deliver me from copied formulas, fleshly methods, and self-confidence in spiritual and life assignments.
3. Father, teach me Your method for every season of my life, family, ministry, fellowship, career, and service.

4. Lord, give me grace for complete, patient, and consistent obedience until every wall standing against Your purpose falls.
5. Lord, pull down every stronghold resisting salvation, revival, holiness, discipleship, and kingdom advancement in our families, local churches, campuses, communities, workplaces, and nation.
6. Father, clothe every TACEFite with the whole armour of God, and make us strong in the Lord and in the power of His might.

Week 12 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 16 November 2026

- Jericho was shut, but already given. I will not judge divine promise by visible result. Lord, help me to see what You have spoken above what the situations are showing me.
- A closed gate does not cancel an open heaven. Father, strengthen my faith to believe Your Word over my life, family, career, health, finance, local church, campus, and community.
- I will not be intimidated by strongholds that appear fortified. If the Lord has given the city, no wall can stand God's word. Lord, teach me to stand on Your promise.

Tuesday, 17 November 2026

- God's strategy may look foolish to men, but obedience always wins strongholds. I will not despise divine instructions because they look simple, slow, or unusual.
- I refuse to work with copied formulas, personal ideas, and human methods. Lord, show me Your method for this season, and give me grace to follow it wholly.
- The method may look strange, but if it comes from God, it carries power. Father, teach me to obey Your strategy without argument.

Wednesday, 18 November 2026

- Obedience must be complete and patient. I will not stop marching because I have not yet seen the wall fall. Lord, give me strength to continue in what You have commanded.
- Partial obedience cannot produce full victory. Father, show me every area where I have obeyed halfway, and help me to return to complete obedience.
- I will not rush God's process or shout before the appointed time. Lord, teach me disciplined obedience, patient faith, and quiet trust while You work.

Thursday, 19 November 2026

- Praise becomes warfare when it flows from faith and obedience. I will not offer empty noise, entertainment, or emotional display without a surrendered heart.
- The shout came after obedience. Lord, let my worship rise from a life that believes Your Word, follows Your instruction, and trusts Your promise.
- I will always praise before the wall falls because God has spoken. Father, turn my worship into a weapon of faith against fear, discouragement, and unbelief.

Friday, 20 November 2026

- We wrestle not against flesh and blood. I will not treat people as my enemies. I will love souls, but I will confront strongholds over their lives in prayer.
- Principalities, powers, rulers of darkness, and spiritual wickedness cannot be defeated by fleshly confidence. Lord, clothe me with all the spiritual armour of God - truth, righteousness, faith, salvation, Your Word, and prayer.
- Salvation is beyond preaching alone; it is warfare. Father, make me an intercessor who prays until captives are set free and souls are brought into the light of Christ.

Saturday, 21 November 2026

- I must put on the whole armour of God. I will not face strongholds with prayerlessness, compromise, or fleshly confidence.
- I receive grace to stand in truth, righteousness, faith, salvation, the Word of God, and prayer. Lord, make me strong in You and in the power of Your might.
- I receive grace to win God's battle God's way. Father, let every Jericho before me fall as I walk in faith, obedience, praise, prayer, holiness, and divine strategy.

Week 13: Monday, 23 November 2026 to Sunday, 29 November 2026

Title: Achan and Secret Sins: How Hidden Sin Brings Defeat and Shame

Bible Texts: Joshua 7:1-26; Ephesians 4:25-32; Ephesians 5:3-11

Bible Texts

Joshua 7:1-26:

1 But the children of Israel committed a trespass in the accursed thing: for Achan, the son of Carmi, the son of Zabdi, the son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, took of the accursed thing: and the anger of the LORD was kindled against the children of Israel. 2 And Joshua sent men from Jericho to Ai, which is beside Bethaven, on the east side of Bethel, and spake unto them, saying, Go up and view the country. And the men went up and viewed Ai. 3 And they returned to Joshua, and said unto him, Let not all the people go up; but let about two or three thousand men go up and smite Ai; and make not all the people to labour thither; for they are but few.

4 So there went up thither of the people about three thousand men: and they fled before the men of Ai. 5 And the men of Ai smote of them about thirty and six men: for they chased them from before the gate even unto Shebarim, and smote them in the going down: wherefore the hearts of the people melted, and became as water. 6 And Joshua rent his clothes, and fell to the earth upon his face before the ark of the LORD until the eventide, he and the elders of Israel, and put dust upon their heads. 7 And Joshua said, Alas, O Lord GOD, wherefore hast thou at all brought this people over Jordan, to deliver us into the hand of the Amorites, to destroy us? would to God we had been content, and dwelt on the other side Jordan! 8 O Lord, what shall I say, when Israel turneth their backs before their enemies! 9 For the Canaanites and all the inhabitants of the land shall hear of it, and shall environ us round, and cut off our name from the earth: and what wilt thou do unto thy great name? 10 And the LORD said unto Joshua, Get thee up; wherefore liest thou thus upon thy face? 11 Israel hath sinned, and they have also transgressed my covenant which I commanded them: for they have even taken of the accursed thing, and have also stolen, and dissembled also, and they have put it even among their own stuff. 12 Therefore the children of Israel could not stand before their enemies, but turned their backs before their enemies, because they were accursed: neither will I be with you any more, except ye destroy the accursed from among you. 13 Up, sanctify the people, and say, Sanctify yourselves against to morrow: for thus saith the LORD God of Israel, There is an accursed thing in the midst of thee, O Israel: thou canst not stand before thine enemies, until ye take away the accursed thing from among you. 14 In the morning therefore ye shall be brought according to your tribes: and it shall be, that the tribe which the LORD taketh shall come according to the families thereof; and the family which the LORD shall take shall come by households; and the household which the LORD shall take shall come man by man. 15 And it shall be, that he that is taken with the accursed thing shall be burnt with fire, he and all that he hath: because he hath transgressed the covenant of the LORD, and because he hath wrought folly in Israel.

16 So Joshua rose up early in the morning, and brought Israel by their tribes; and the tribe of Judah was taken: 17 And he brought the family of Judah; and he took the family of the Zarhites: and he brought the family of the Zarhites man by man; and Zabdi was taken: 18 And he brought his household man by man; and Achan, the son of Carmi, the son of Zabdi, the son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, was taken. 19 And Joshua said unto Achan, My son, give, I pray thee, glory to the LORD God of Israel, and make confession unto him; and tell me now what thou hast done; hide it not from me. 20 And Achan answered Joshua, and said, Indeed I have sinned against the LORD God of Israel, and thus and thus have I done: 21 When I saw among the spoils a goodly Babylonish garment, and two hundred shekels of silver, and a wedge of gold of fifty shekels weight, then I coveted them, and took them; and, behold, they are hid in the earth in the midst of my tent, and the silver under it. 22 So Joshua sent messengers, and they ran unto the tent; and, behold, it was hid in his tent, and the silver under it. 23 And they took them out of the midst of the tent, and brought them unto Joshua, and unto all the children of Israel, and laid them out before the LORD. 24 And Joshua, and all Israel with him, took Achan the son of Zerah, and the silver, and the garment, and the wedge of gold, and his sons, and his daughters, and his oxen, and his asses, and his sheep, and his tent, and all that he had: and they brought them unto the valley of Achor. 25 And Joshua said, Why hast thou troubled us? the LORD shall trouble thee this day. And all Israel stoned him with stones, and burned them with fire, after they had stoned them with stones. 26 And they raised over him a great heap of stones unto this day. So the LORD turned from the fierceness of his anger. Wherefore the name of that place was called, The valley of Achor, unto this day.

Ephesians 4:25-32:

25 Wherefore putting away lying, speak every man truth with his neighbour: for we are members one of another. 26 Be ye angry, and sin not: let not the sun go down upon your wrath:

27 Neither give place to the devil. 28 Let him that stole steal no more: but rather let him labour, working with his hands the thing which is good, that he may have to give to him that needeth.

29 Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, but that which is good to the use of edifying, that it may minister grace unto the hearers. 30 And grieve not the holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption. 31 Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and evil speaking, be put away from you, with all malice: 32 And be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.

Ephesians 5:3-11:

3 But fornication, and all uncleanness, or covetousness, let it not be once named among you, as becometh saints; 4 Neither filthiness, nor foolish talking, nor jesting, which are not convenient: but rather giving of thanks. 5 For this ye know, that no whoremonger, nor unclean person, nor covetous man, who is an idolater, hath any inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and of God.

6 Let no man deceive you with vain words: for because of these things cometh the wrath of God upon the children of disobedience. 7 Be not ye therefore partakers with them. 8 For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light: 9 For the fruit of the Spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth; 10 Proving what is acceptable unto the Lord. 11 And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them.

Introduction

Our study this week brings us to one of the most sobering moments in Israel's journey of possession. After the mighty fall of the wall of Jericho, Israel moved towards a small city called Ai (not AI - Artificial Intelligence) with confidence. Ai looked smaller and easier than Jericho. The spies even advised Joshua that only a few thousand men needed to go, because the city was not as intimidating as Jericho. Yet Israel suffered defeat before a smaller enemy. The hearts of the people melted, Joshua fell before the ark of the Lord, and the whole camp was thrown into confusion. The defeat at Ai was not because God had become weak. It was not because Ai was stronger than Israel, but it was because there was hidden sin in the camp.

The story of Achan teaches us that secret sin can bring open defeat. One Israelite by name Achan saw, coveted, took what he was not meant to take, and troubled the camp. What one man did in secret affected the whole nation in battle. This shows that God's army is spiritually connected. The sin of one person can trouble a household, weaken a marriage, pollute a family, damage a fellowship, hinder a local church, or affect a group assignment. This is not to create fear, suspicion, or condemnation, but to teach us that private compromise is never as private as we think.

Ephesians gives the New Testament clarity for this lesson. Paul reminds us that "we are members one of another," meaning that the Church is one body and the actions of one member can affect others. He warns against lying, stealing, corrupt communication, bitterness, wrath, anger, evil speaking, uncleanness, covetousness, and fellowship with darkness. These are not small matters before God. They grieve the Holy Spirit, give place to the devil, and weaken the atmosphere of holiness required for spiritual victory. Therefore, this study calls every TACEFite to take secret sin seriously. Besetting sins, cheating, financial dishonesty, bitterness, gossip, covetousness, sexual compromise, and hidden uncleanness can weaken local revival fire.

Teachings

1. One Man's Sin Can Trouble the Camp Because the Body Is Spiritually Connected: The Bible begins Joshua 7 with a striking statement: "But the children of Israel committed a trespass in the accursed thing: for Achan... took of the accursed thing." Although Achan was the person who took the forbidden items, the Bible says the children of Israel committed a trespass. This reveals the principle of corporate defilement. Achan sinned privately and alone, but the effect was felt publicly. One man's secret act brought defeat, shame, and grief upon the whole camp.

This may be difficult for some people to accept because we often think of sin only as a personal matter. We say, "It is my life," "It is my secret," "It does not concern anybody," or "Nobody is affected." But the Word of God teaches that no member of God's people lives in complete isolation. In a family, one person's action can affect the peace of the household. In a marriage, one person's secret sin can destroy the future of the children. In a fellowship, one person's hidden compromise can weaken the spiritual atmosphere. In a campus fellowship, one person's moral failure can damage the credibility of the whole work. In a church, the carelessness of a few can bring shame to many.

Ephesians 4:25 says, "Wherefore putting away lying, speak every man truth with his neighbour: for we are members one of another." This means that our purity, discipline, forgiveness, and obedience matter because we belong to one body. A member of the body cannot wound himself without affecting the rest of the body. A hidden wound in one part can bring pain to the whole body. In the same way, hidden sin in one life can trouble a group, family, fellowship, or church. This does not mean we should become suspicious of one another or live in accusation. It means we must become more responsible before God. We must understand that our secret lives matter. Our purity matters. Our honesty matters. Our handling of money matters. Our relationships matter. Our hidden choices matter. The army of the Lord must not be weakened from within by the secret compromise of those who are meant to be firebrands of revival.

2. Hidden Compromise Brings Defeat: Israel had just seen Jericho fall by the power of God. They had experienced victory through divine strategy, obedience, and faith. Yet, soon after that victory, they were defeated by Ai, a smaller city. The issue was not the size of Ai, but the state of Israel. A hidden sin had weakened the army. God said, "Therefore the children of Israel could not stand before their enemies." This means that hidden compromise can remove spiritual strength and make God's people vulnerable before battles they should have won.

This is a major warning to every revival army. We cannot win outward battles while tolerating inward pollution. We cannot pray for revival while secretly living in sin. We cannot preach holiness while hiding impurity. We cannot confront darkness while giving place to the devil in our private lives. Ephesians 4:27 says, "Neither give place to the devil." Sin gives the enemy space to operate. Bitterness, lies, stealing, corrupt communication, and unforgiveness give him space.

This is why ministry labour with impurity is rejected by God. The Lord is not only interested in what we do for Him but He is interested in the state of the vessels doing the work. A singer can sing powerfully and still grieve the Holy Spirit. A preacher can speak strongly and still be weakened by secret sin. A fellowship worker can be active and still be spiritually leaking. A leader can organise programmes and still carry hidden immorality and bitterness. God does not separate the work from the worker. The condition of the vessel affects the purity of the service.

Dear TACEFites, local revival fire can be weakened by sins we refuse to confront. Bitterness can poison fellowship. Cheating can corrupt testimony. Financial dishonesty can destroy credibility. Sexual compromise can destroy the testimony of the vision of revival. If we want to stand before the enemies of the Lord, we must remove the accursed thing from the camp.

3. Covetousness and Hidden Desires Can Destroy Victory: Achan's confession shows the progression of sin. He said, "When I saw among the spoils a goodly Babylonish garment, and two hundred shekels of silver, and a wedge of gold... then I coveted them, and took them." First, he saw. Then he coveted. Then he took. Then he hid. This is how many secret sins grow. They begin with unguarded sight, then unsundered desire, then sinful action, then hiding.

Covetousness made him value a garment, silver, and gold above the commandment of the Lord, the safety of the camp, and the purpose of God. He wanted what God had forbidden, and he was willing to hide it under his tent.

Ephesians 5:3 warns that "fornication, and all uncleanness, or covetousness" should not be once named among saints. Verse 5 further states that a "covetous man... is an idolater." This means covetousness is not just wanting more but it is allowing uncontrolled desire to become a god in one's life. When desire controls a person, that person becomes capable of lying, stealing, cheating, manipulating, betraying trust, or disobeying God. A person who is not content will cheat in examinations, falsify records, steal funds, do online fraud called Yahoo-yahoo, exaggerate achievements, enter ungodly relationships, misuse church resources, or compromise truth to gain advantage.

Dear TACEFites, our journey of victory can be destroyed by covetousness when our desires are no longer surrendered to Christ. We must stop longing for what God has not given us, stop pretending to live a life we cannot afford, and stop entering unnecessary debt just to impress people. Do not take loans from mobile apps to buy clothes, phones, shoes, wigs, gadgets, or party outfits simply because you want to look successful before others. That path can lead to pressure, shame, lies, anxiety, and deeper compromise. We must also reject the deception of "fake it till you make it." A child of God is not called to live by false appearance. Do not allow social media to push you into unhealthy comparison. Many pictures online do not tell the full story. A person may change borrowed clothes several times just to take pictures for Instagram. Someone may pose beside a car that does not belong to them. Do not let another person's edited life make you despise your own process. Always remember that godliness with contentment is great gain.

4. Sin Must Be Exposed and Judged through Repentance, Restitution, & Holiness: When Joshua lay before the Lord, God told him to rise and deal with the sin in the camp. Prayer was important, but prayer was not a substitute for obedience. God said, "Up, sanctify the people," and also, "thou canst not stand before thine enemies, until ye take away the accursed thing from among you." This shows that hidden sin must not be covered, excused, or spiritualised. It must be exposed and judged before the Lord. Achan eventually confessed, "Indeed I have sinned against the LORD God of Israel." Confession is necessary, but true repentance must go beyond words. The hidden items were brought out and laid before the Lord. This teaches that sin must be brought into the light. Ephesians 5:11 says, "And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them." Darkness survives by secrecy. Sin grows when it is hidden. Compromise becomes stronger when it is protected. But when the light of God's Word enters, darkness loses its hiding place.

True repentance produces fruits. It may require confession to God, apology to people, restitution where wrong has been done under proper guidance and divine leading, accountability to mature believers, breaking ungodly relationships with boyfriends and girlfriends, returning what was taken, correcting dishonest records, stopping corrupt communication, and submitting to discipline. He that covers his sin will not prosper, but the one who confesses and forsakes sin will find mercy. We must not only feel sorry because sin was exposed; we must turn away from it because it grieves God. Dear TACEFites, secret sin must be treated seriously. The Lord is calling us to clean tents, truthful lips, pure hearts, honest hands, forgiving spirits, disciplined desires, and lives that walk as children of light. If God wins our lives, He can use our lives to win others.

Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Search your tent before God: Set aside time this week to ask the Lord to search your heart, finances, relationships, words, habits, and secret life. Do not excuse what God is asking you to remove.
- Treat private sin as a serious matter: Do not say, "It is only my secret." Your life is connected to your spouse, family, fellowship, local church, workplace, and the body of Christ.
- Remove every accursed thing: Identify any behaviour, object, relationship, habit, or hidden practice that is weakening your walk with God. Take clear steps to remove it.
- Address covetousness and discontentment: Ask God to deliver you from unhealthy comparison, greed, pressure to belong, and desire for what He has forbidden.
- Practise truthfulness: Put away lying, exaggeration, deception, dishonest claims, and false appearances. Speak the truth because we are members one of another.
- Seek accountability: If you are struggling with a besetting sin, speak to a mature and trusted spiritual leader who can pray with you, guide you, and help you walk in victory.
- Make restitution where necessary: Return what was taken, correct what was falsely presented, apologise where you wounded others, and repair what you damaged as the Lord leads and with the guidance of a spiritual leader

Questions for Discussion

1. Why did the sin of Achan affect the whole camp of Israel?
2. How can one person's action affect a family, marriage, fellowship, ministry team, local church, business partnership, or workplace?
3. Why does hidden sin weaken corporate warfare and revival fire?
4. How did covetousness lead Achan from seeing to taking and then hiding?
5. What are some modern examples of "accursed things" believers may hide in their tents today?
6. What is the difference between feeling sorry because sin is exposed and true repentance that produces fruit?

Personal Reflection

Is there any hidden sin in my tent that is weakening my walk with God? Am I treating private compromise as if it has no effect on others? Are there lies, dishonest dealings, secret habits, bitterness, gossip, covetousness, uncleanness, or wrong relationships that I need to bring before God? Have I allowed lack of contentment or comparison to make me desire what God has forbidden? Am I giving place to the devil in any area of my life? Am I sincere to confess, repent, seek help, make restitution, and walk in accountability? Can God trust my private life as much as my public service? If God cannot win my life, how can He win other lives through my life?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, search my heart and reveal every hidden thing that is weakening my walk with You.
2. Lord, deliver me from secret sin and every accursed thing in my tent.
3. Father, give me grace to treat private sin seriously and to understand that my life affects others in the body of Christ.
4. Lord, cleanse me from lying, stealing, corrupt communication, bitterness, uncleanness, covetousness, and every fellowship with darkness.
5. Father, deliver me from lack of contentment, unhealthy comparison, greed, and every desire that is not surrendered to Christ.
6. Lord, help me to confess, repent genuinely, make restitution as appropriate, and walk in godly accountability.

Week 13 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 23 November 2026

- Secret sin can bring open defeat. I will not treat hidden sin as a small matter. Lord, search my heart and deliver me from every accursed thing in my tent.
- Achan's private sin troubled the whole camp. My life is connected to others in the body of Christ. Father, help me to live responsibly before You, my family, and other believers.
- I refuse to hide what God is asking me to remove. Lord, give me grace to bring every secret thing into Your light.

Tuesday, 24 November 2026

- The Church is one body, and we are members one of another. I will not live as if my private choices have no effect on others. I will live carefully and accountably.
- One person's action can affect a family, marriage, fellowship, team, business, or local church. Father, make me a blessing to the body, not a source of trouble or weakness.
- I receive grace to walk in truth, purity, honesty, and accountability. Lord, let my private life strengthen, not weaken, the army of the Lord.

Wednesday, 25 November 2026

- Hidden sin weakens the entire team. Israel could not stand before Ai because sin was hidden in the camp. Lord, remove anything in me that gives the enemy an advantage.
- I will not give place to the devil through lies, bitterness, dishonesty, corrupt words, uncleanness, or secret compromise. Father, close every door I have opened through sin.
- Ministry with impurity cannot please God. Lord, make me a clean vessel, useful for Your purpose and fit for revival.

Thursday, 26 November 2026

- Achan saw, coveted, took, and hid. I will guard my eyes, surrender my desires, and refuse what God has forbidden.
- Covetousness can destroy believers when desire is not surrendered to Christ. Father, deliver me from greed, comparison, and pressure to possess what is not Your will.
- I will not allow desire to become an idol in my heart. Lord, teach me contentment and self-control.

Friday, 27 November 2026

- Sin must be exposed and judged through repentance. I will not cover what God is calling me to confess, forsake, and correct.
- True repentance produces fruit. Lord, give me courage to apologise, return what must be returned, correct what must be corrected, and submit to godly accountability.
- Darkness survives by secrecy, but light brings freedom. Father, bring my life into Your light and break the power of hidden compromise.

Saturday, 28 November 2026

- Holiness preserves the atmosphere for victory. I will not grieve the Holy Spirit by making peace with sin.
- I am light in the Lord, and I must walk as a child of light. Father, let my words, relationships, finances, lifestyle, and private life prove what is acceptable unto You.
- I receive grace to live as part of the Lord's army in purity, fit for possession and free from shame. Lord, win my life fully, so You can win other lives through me.

Week 14: Monday, 30 November 2026 to Sunday, 6 December 2026

Title: Ai and the Mercy of Restoration: Rising Again After Failure

Bible Texts: Joshua 8:1-35; Ephesians 2:4-10; Ephesians 6:13

Bible Texts

Joshua 8:1-35: 1 And the LORD said unto Joshua, Fear not, neither be thou dismayed: take all the people of war with thee, and arise, go up to Ai: see, I have given into thy hand the king of Ai, and his people, and his city, and his land: 2 And thou shalt do to Ai and her king as thou didst unto Jericho and her king: only the spoil thereof, and the cattle thereof, shall ye take for a prey unto yourselves: lay thee an ambush for the city behind it. 3 So Joshua arose, and all the people of war, to go up against Ai: and Joshua chose out thirty thousand mighty men of valour, and sent them away by night. 4 And he commanded them, saying, Behold, ye shall lie in wait against the city, even behind the city: go not very far from the city, but be ye all ready: 5 And I, and all the people that are with me, will approach unto the city: and it shall come to pass, when they come out against us, as at the first, that we will flee before them, 6 For they will come out after us, till we have drawn them from the city; for they will say, They flee before us, as at the first: therefore we will flee before them. 7 Then ye shall rise up from the ambush, and seize upon the city: for the LORD your God will deliver it into your hand. 8 And it shall be, when ye have taken the city, that ye shall set the city on fire: according to the commandment of the LORD shall ye do. See, I have commanded you. 9 Joshua therefore sent them forth: and they went to lie in ambush, and abode between Bethel and Ai, on the west side of Ai: but Joshua lodged that night among the people. 10 And Joshua rose up early in the morning, and numbered the people, and went up, he and the elders of Israel, before the people to Ai. 11 And all the people, even the people of war that were with him, went up, and drew nigh, and came before the city, and pitched on the north side of Ai: now there was a valley between them and Ai. 12 And he took about five thousand men, and set them to lie in ambush between Bethel and Ai, on the west side of the city.

13 And when they had set the people, even all the host that was on the north of the city, and their liers in wait on the west of the city, Joshua went that night into the midst of the valley.

14 And it came to pass, when the king of Ai saw it, that they hasted and rose up early, and the men of the city went out against Israel to battle, he and all his people, at a time appointed, before the plain; but he wist not that there were liers in ambush against him behind the city.

15 And Joshua and all Israel made as if they were beaten before them, and fled by the way of the wilderness. 16 And all the people that were in Ai were called together to pursue after them: and they pursued after Joshua, and were drawn away from the city. 17 And there was not a man left in Ai or Bethel, that went not out after Israel: and they left the city open, and pursued after Israel. 18 And the LORD said unto Joshua, Stretch out the spear that is in thy hand toward Ai; for I will give it into thine hand. And Joshua stretched out the spear that he had in his hand toward the city. 19 And the ambush arose quickly out of their place, and they ran as soon as he had stretched out his hand: and they entered into the city, and took it, and hasted and set the city on fire. 20 And when the men of Ai looked behind them, they saw, and, behold, the smoke of the city ascended up to heaven, and they had no power to flee this way or that way: and the people that fled to the wilderness turned back upon the pursuers. 21 And when Joshua and all Israel saw that the ambush had taken the city, and that the smoke of the city ascended, then they turned again, and slew the men of Ai. 22 And the other issued out of the city against them; so they were in the midst of Israel, some on this side, and some on that side: and they smote them, so that they let none of them remain or escape. 23 And the king of Ai they took alive, and brought him to Joshua.

24 And it came to pass, when Israel had made an end of slaying all the inhabitants of Ai in the field, in the wilderness wherein they chased them, and when they were all fallen on the edge of the sword, until they were consumed, that all the Israelites returned unto Ai, and smote it with the edge of the sword. 25 And so it was, that all that fell that day, both of men and women, were twelve thousand, even all the men of Ai. 26 For Joshua drew not his hand back, wherewith he stretched out the spear, until he had utterly destroyed all the inhabitants of Ai. 27 Only the cattle and the spoil of that city Israel took for a prey unto themselves, according unto the word of the LORD which he commanded Joshua. 28 And Joshua burnt Ai, and made it an heap for ever, even a desolation unto this day. 29 And the king of Ai he hanged on a tree until eventide: and as soon as the sun was down, Joshua commanded that they should take his carcase down from the tree, and cast it at the entering of the gate of the city, and raise thereon a great heap of stones, that remaineth unto this day. 30 Then Joshua built an altar unto the LORD God of Israel in mount Ebal, 31 As Moses the servant of the LORD commanded the children of Israel, as it is written in the book of the law of Moses, an altar of whole stones, over which no man hath lift up any iron: and they offered thereon burnt offerings unto the LORD, and sacrificed peace offerings. 32 And he wrote there upon the stones a copy of the law of Moses, which he wrote in the presence of the children of Israel. 33 And all Israel, and their elders, and officers, and their judges, stood on this side the ark and on that side before the priests the Levites, which bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, as well the stranger, as he that was born among them; half of them over against mount Gerizim, and half of them over against mount Ebal; as Moses the servant of the LORD had commanded before, that they should bless the people of Israel.

34 And afterward he read all the words of the law, the blessings and cursings, according to all that is written in the book of the law. 35 There was not a word of all that Moses commanded, which Joshua read not before all the congregation of Israel, with the women, and the little ones, and the strangers that were conversant among them.

Ephesians 2:4-10:

4 But God, who is rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith he loved us, 5 Even when we were dead in sins, hath quickened us together with Christ, by grace ye are saved; 6 And hath raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus: 7 That in the ages to come he might shew the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness toward us through Christ Jesus. 8 For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: 9 Not of works, lest any man should boast. 10 For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them.

Ephesians 6:13:

13 Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- Fear not, neither be thou dismayed.
- Arise, go up to Ai.
- See, I have given into thy hand the king of Ai, and his people, and his city, and his land
- According to the commandment of the LORD shall ye do.
- Joshua built an altar unto the LORD God of Israel.
- He read all the words of the law.
- But God, who is rich in mercy.
- By grace ye are saved.
- Having done all, to stand.

Introduction

Our study this week takes us back to Ai, the same place where Israel had earlier suffered a painful defeat because of sin in the camp due to the sin of one man called Achan. After the victory at Jericho, Israel assumed that Ai would be easy, but they soon discovered that yesterday's victory does not automatically guarantee today's victory when hidden sin is permitted and divine instruction is neglected. The first defeat at Ai exposed the danger of disobedience, self-confidence, and unjudged sin. Yet, Joshua 8 shows us the depth of the mercy of God in restoring His army after failure. After sin had been judged and obedience was renewed, the Lord spoke again to Joshua: "Fear not, neither be thou dismayed: take all the people of war with thee, and arise, go up to Ai." God did not abandon His army because they had failed; He restored them, instructed them, and sent them again to win where they once lost.

The story of Ai teaches us that failure must not be hidden, excused, defended, or spiritualised. Grace restores, but grace does not excuse sin. Sin must be dealt with honestly before God, and where necessary, before the people, so that holy fear, caution, and spiritual seriousness can be restored in the great house. Yet correction must never become destruction. The goal of godly correction is restoration, not rejection or dejection. The Lord's army must learn how to stand again after correction. None should be lost to sin. No backslider should be abandoned to the devil. No fallen soldier should be written off when there is genuine repentance. After failure, confession, genuine repentance, renewed obedience, and fresh instruction can bring the people of God back into victory.

Ephesians explains this restoration through the riches of God's mercy and grace. Paul says, "But God, who is rich in mercy," and reminds us that even when we were dead in sins, God quickened us together with Christ. This means that the mercy of God does not merely forgive; it raises. It does not only pardon; it restores. It does not only rescue us from the past; it prepares us again for the good works God has ordained. We are saved by grace and when we fall and repent genuinely, grace brings us back so that we can walk again in obedience, holiness, service, and divine purpose.

Teachings

1. God Can Restore a Defeated Army When Sin Is Judged and Obedience Is Renewed: Ai first appeared in Israel's journey as a place of shame, defeat, and painful correction. Israel had just seen the walls of Jericho fall by the power of God, but they soon failed at Ai because sin had entered the camp. Yet Joshua 8 opens with a word of mercy: "Fear not, neither be thou dismayed." God was not finished with Joshua. God was not finished with Israel. The place of defeat was about to become the place of renewed victory.

This is a major truth for every believer and every revival army. Failure is serious, but failure is not final when there is genuine repentance. Sin must be judged, but the sinner who repents must be restored. A soldier may fall, but the Lord can raise him again. A fellowship may make mistakes, but God can restore order. A believer may have failed in holiness, relationships, or service, but mercy can bring such a person back to God. The devil wants failure to become permanent shame, but God wants correction to lead to restoration. However, restoration does not happen by pretending nothing happened. God did not restore Israel while sin remained hidden. Sin had to be exposed and judged before the army could rise again. Grace is not a covering for sin but the power of God that brings us back into obedience.

2. Failure Must Be Confessed, Not Hidden, Excused, or Spiritualised: The defeat at Ai teaches that failure must be brought into the light. When sin is hidden, it weakens the whole camp. When wrong is excused, the fear of God is reduced. When failure is spiritualised, people avoid repentance and intentional change. Genuine restoration begins when a person stops defending sin and begins to agree with God. There are many ways believers hide failure. Some blame others. Some say, "It is my weakness." Some excuse sin because of pressure, loneliness, disappointment, family background, or past wounds. Some use spiritual activities to cover secret sins. Some continue to serve publicly while refusing to deal with private sin. Others become silent and withdraw because they feel ashamed, but they do not open up for help, correction, and restoration.

The path of restoration is confession, repentance, correction, cleansing, and renewed obedience. This connects with repentance as a daily posture for the believer as we learned last year. Repentance is not only for the day we first came to Christ. A believer must keep a tender conscience before God. When the Holy Spirit convicts us, we must not delay. When the Word exposes us, we must not argue. When godly leaders correct us, we must not harden our hearts.

There is also a place for open rebuke when sin is public, damaging, or capable of weakening others. This is not for humiliation or cruelty, but to restore holy fear, protect the flock, and preserve order in the great house. Open rebuke must be done with wisdom, love, and spiritual maturity. The goal is not to disgrace people, but to prevent sin from becoming normal. The church must not make repentance difficult for those who have fallen or make sin comfortable for those who refuse to repent

3. Victory Cannot Rest on Yesterday's Method: When Israel first went against Ai, they approached the battle with confidence drawn from the recent victory at Jericho. They assumed that Ai would be easy. But after correction and repentance, God did not simply tell Joshua to repeat the Jericho method. He gave a fresh instruction for Ai. Jericho fell through marching, trumpet, silence, and shout. Ai was taken through a different strategy involving careful positioning, ambush, timing, and renewed obedience. This teaches that every spiritual advance requires specific new leading from God. What God used before must not become a formula we now apply without seeking Him. A method that worked in one season may not be the instruction for another season. We must always ask, "Lord, what are You saying now?"

Presumption is dangerous because it assumes God will support what we have not submitted to Him. Israel could not defeat Ai by mere courage. They needed renewed instructions. In the same way, TACEFites must not enter academic decisions, career choices, ministry efforts, relationships, financial decisions, mission work, or fellowship plans based only on past experience. We need fresh leading. God told Joshua, "Arise, go up to Ai," but He also gave a specific strategy. Restoration does not mean rushing back carelessly into activity. After failure, there must be humility to patiently wait and ask for direction again. The restored soldier must not return with pride, but with obedience. The army that will win after failure must listen again, obey again, and move again under the fresh command of the Lord.

4. Restoration Requires the Renewal of the Word and Grace for Good Works: After the victory at Ai, Joshua did something very important. He built an altar unto the Lord, wrote a copy of the law of Moses upon stones, and read all the words of the law before the congregation. This means that victory after failure had to be followed by the renewal of covenant with God. Israel must not only win a battle but must also return to the Word. They must remember the blessings and warnings of the covenant. They must hear again what God had commanded. The Word had to be brought back to the centre.

After failure and restoration, we must not only feel relieved that God has forgiven us. We must return to the Word. We must read it, meditate on it, obey it, and live it. The Word restores order to the heart, renews conviction, rebuilds spiritual discipline and teaches us how to walk carefully after mercy has restored us. Ephesians 6:13 says, “having done all, to stand.” After failure, stand. After correction, stand. After repentance, stand. After restoration, stand. After renewed instruction, stand. The devil may accuse but stand. Shame may speak but stand. People may remember your failure but stand in humility and renewed obedience. God’s mercy can make the place of defeat become the place of testimony.

Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Do not hide failure: If you have fallen into sin, prayerlessness, bitterness, dishonesty, or immorality, bring it honestly before God.
- Seek godly help quickly: Do not withdraw into shame. Speak to a mature discipler, fellowship leader, or trusted spiritual guide who can help you return to God properly.
- Receive correction with humility: Correction is not rejection. God corrects those He wants to restore. Do not resist rebuke.
- Restore holiness before service: Do not rush back into activity without dealing with the root of the fall. Rebuild your altar, Word life, prayer life, relationships, and walk with God.
- Ask God for fresh instruction: Do not assume that yesterday’s method will win today’s battle. Ask the Lord for present leading in your life, ministry, business, marriage, academics, career, family, and fellowship.
- Return to the Word: Read, meditate on, obey, and live the Word. Let Scripture renew your mind, restore order, rebuild conviction, and guide your next steps.
- Help fallen soldiers return: Do not mock, gossip, or abandon those who have failed. Pray for them, restore them in meekness.
- Stand again: After genuine repentance and restoration, do not give up. Arise again, serve again, pray again, fight again, and win in the strength of the Lord.

Questions for Discussion

1. What lessons can we learn from Israel’s restoration after the first defeat at Ai?
2. Why must failure be confessed instead of hidden, excused, or spiritualised?
3. What is the difference between godly corrections and condemnation?
4. Why is it dangerous to rely on yesterday’s method without seeking fresh instruction from God?
5. Why did Joshua renew the reading of the Word after the victory at Ai?
6. How can TACEFites help fallen soldiers return quickly to God, rebuild holiness, and re-enter service with humility?

Personal Reflection

Have I failed in any area and tried to hide, excuse, or spiritualise it? Do I receive correction as God’s mercy, or do I resist it because of pride? Have I ever allowed shame to keep me away from God after failure of sin and falling? Am I helping fallen believers return to God, or am I making restoration harder through gossip, judgement, or rejection? Am I relying on yesterday’s victory and method, or am I seeking fresh leading from the Lord? Is the Word of God central in my restoration, decisions, service, and daily life? Do I believe that after genuine repentance, God can help me stand again, serve again, fight again, and win where I once lost?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, thank You because You are rich in mercy and full of grace to help us to come back when we fall, falter, faint or fail.
2. Lord, deliver me from hiding, excusing, defending, or spiritualising sin. Give me a tender heart that responds quickly to conviction.
3. Father, restore every fallen soldier in the great house of TACEF. Weapons of war will no longer perish in our hands.
4. Lord, help us to correct sin with truth, love, and holy fear, without destroying those who genuinely repent.
5. Father, teach me to seek fresh instruction for every season of my life.
6. Lord, where I once failed, let me rise again and win again by Your mercy.

Week 14 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 30 November 2026

- God can restore a defeated army when sin is judged. I will not allow failure to become my final identity. Lord, restore me by Your mercy and bring me back into obedience.
- The Lord said to Joshua, "Fear not, neither be thou dismayed." I receive grace to rise from shame, fear, discouragement, and past defeat into renewed faith.
- The place where I once failed can become the place where God gives me new victory. Father, help me to arise again, obey again, and win by Your mercy.

Tuesday, 1 December 2026

- Failure must be confessed, not hidden, excused, or spiritualised. I will not cover sin with religious activity or denial. Lord, give me an honest heart before You.
- Grace restores, but grace does not excuse sin. Father, help me to repent quickly, receive correction humbly, and forsake whatever weakens my walk with You.
- I will not run from godly correction. Correction is not rejection when it is bringing me back to God. Lord, make my heart tender, teachable, and broken before You.

Wednesday, 2 December 2026

- Jericho and Ai did not fall by the same method. Father, deliver me from copied formulas and guide me by Your present command.
- I will not assume that yesterday's victory is enough for today's battle. Lord, teach me to seek fresh instructions from You.
- I will not move by assumptions, excitement, or past experience. Lord, lead me again in my life, family, academics, career, ministry, and service.

Thursday, 3 December 2026

- After Ai, Joshua brought the people back to the Word. I must not only rejoice in restoration; I must return to the Word that keeps me in covenant order.
- The Word must be read, meditated upon, obeyed, and lived. Father, rebuild my convictions, correct my ways, and restore my spiritual discipline through Your Word.
- I will not live by feelings or human judgements after failure. I will live by the Word of God. Lord, let Your Word guide my repentance and restoration.

Friday, 4 December 2026

- God is rich in mercy. Even when I was dead in sins, He made me alive together with Christ. I receive the mercy that forgives, raises, restores, and strengthens.
- I am saved by grace, not by boasting or self-righteousness. Lord, keep me humble after restoration and deliver me from pride in service.
- I am God's workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works. Father, restore me for the works You ordained, and help me to serve again with humility.

Saturday, 5 December 2026

- Having done all, I must stand. I will not remain on the ground because I once failed. Lord, clothe me with the whole armour of God and help me to stand again.
- I will help fallen soldiers return to God, not push them deeper into shame. Father, make me a vessel of mercy, correction, and restoration.
- After genuine repentance, I can launch out again and win in Jesus name. Lord, let every place of past defeat become a testimony of Your mercy, grace, and renewed victory.

Week 15: Monday, 7 December 2026 to Sunday, 13 December 2026

Tarry Week for Reflections and Prayer

Monday, 7 December 2026

- I am under the command of Christ, the Captain of the Lord's host. I am not the owner of the battle, the work, the fellowship, the ministry, the business or my life. I submit every plan, decision, and assignment to the rule and headship of Christ.
- I am a servant under divine authority in Christ. I will not ask God to join my side while I continue in self-will. I receive grace to bow before the Lord and ask daily, "What saith my Lord unto His servant?"

Tuesday, 8 December 2026

- I am led by Christ, the Head over all things to the church. I will not run personal agendas in God's name. I surrender my service, family, career, studies, relationships, ministry, and future to His command.
- I am standing on holy ground in Christ. I remove the shoes of self-confidence, old patterns, personal control, and fleshly ambition. Lord, make my heart humble, teachable, obedient, and fully yielded to You.

Wednesday, 9 December 2026

- I am more than the walls standing before me. Every Jericho may look shut on earth, but if God has spoken, no wall can stand forever. I receive grace to see God's promise above visible resistance.
- I am a soldier in the Lord's army, and I will win God's battle God's way. I will not depend on copied formulas or human strategies. Lord, teach me Your method for every season of my life and service.

Thursday, 10 December 2026

- I am clothed with the whole armour of God in Christ. I will not face strongholds with prayerlessness, compromise, or fleshly confidence. I stand in truth, righteousness, the Word of God, and prayer.
- I am an intercessor for souls. I know that we wrestle not against flesh and blood. I will love people, but I will confront principalities, powers, rulers of darkness, and spiritual wickedness in prayer.

Friday, 11 December 2026

- I am called to walk in holiness in Christ. I will not hide secret sin, excuse immorality, or spiritualise failure. Lord, search me, cleanse me, and deliver me from every accursed thing.
- I am a vessel of light in Christ. I will not allow bitterness, lust, pride, dishonesty, rebellion, corrupt speech, anger, or unforgiveness to weaken my testimony. Father, help me to put off the old man and walk as a child of light.

Saturday, 12 December 2026

- I am restored by the mercy of God in Christ. Failure will not become my final identity. Where I have fallen, I receive grace to confess, repent, rise again, and return to obedience.
- I am God's workmanship in Christ, created unto good works. I receive grace to stand again after correction, serve again after restoration, and win where I once lost. Lord, restore every fallen soldier and make us stronger, humbler, and more obedient in Your army.

SECTION 4: How God's Army Must Return to the Word, Discern Deception, Stand against United Opposition, and Give No Place to the Devil

The journey of God's end-time army does not end with the first victories of possession; it now enters a deeper season of discernment, covenant order, and enlarged warfare. After Jericho had fallen and Ai had been conquered, Joshua brought the people back to the altar and to the public reading of the Word. This teaches us that victory must not carry God's people away from God. Every conquest must return to worship, every breakthrough must deepen obedience, and every movement of revival must remain rooted in the Word. The army that will continue to possess the land must not only know how to fight; it must know how to hear, read, obey, and live by the Word of God.

After victory, the enemy does not always return with open warfare; sometimes he comes through deception, false peace, attractive offers, and ungodly alliances. The Gibeonites did not come with swords; they came with old bread, worn garments, and a convincing story. This teaches that not every harmless-looking offer is from God. Not every peaceful proposal is spiritually safe. Not every good-looking partnership, relationship, business opportunity, ministry collaboration, or life decision carries divine approval. God's army must therefore walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise. Discernment, prayer, patience, and spiritual counsel are necessary to preserve inheritance.

Ephesians explains this section by calling us back to the Word, wisdom, spiritual alertness, and warfare. The Word of God is the sword of the Spirit, and it must shape the whole army. Ephesians also warns us to walk circumspectly, redeem the time, and avoid deception. As opposition multiplies, we are commanded to be strong in the Lord and in the power of His might, because we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against organised spiritual forces that resist God's purpose. Therefore, TACEFites must understand that expanded inheritance will often attract expanded warfare.

This fourth section therefore calls the Lord's army to become Word-rooted, discerning, prayerful, and spiritually alert. We must not allow victory to become carelessness. We must not make covenant decisions by appearance alone. We must not fear when enemies join forces against the work of God. We must not leave hidden kings and unfinished battles to grow again in secret. The army that will possess the land must keep returning to the Word, test every alliance, stand firm when opposition multiplies, and give no place to the devil.

Week 16: Mount Ebal and the Altar of the Word - Returning Victory to Covenant Obedience: After victory at Ai, Joshua built an altar and read all the words of the law before the people. This teaches that conquest must return to worship and covenant obedience. The whole army, men, women, children, leaders, and strangers, needed the Word. We must remain deeply rooted in the Scripture, sound doctrine, meditation, and daily obedience. Revival must not become an activity without the Word, emotion without doctrine, or conquest without covenant.

Week 17: The Gibeonite Deception - The Need for Discernment, Prayer, and the Danger of Unholy Alliances: The Gibeonites teach us that deception often appears harmless, reasonable, peaceful, and attractive to natural judgement. Old bread can hide false identity. Because Israel did not ask counsel of the Lord, they entered into a covenant that created long-term crisis and pain. TACEFites must not make marital, career, business, investment, ministry, or partnership decisions by appearance only.

Week 18: When Enemies Come Together - Standing Firm When Opposition Multiplies: As Israel's possession expanded, enemies began to unite against them. This teaches that the mandate of winning souls and possessing territories for Christ will attract resistance. Darkness does not easily give up territories it has occupied. Yet, no coalition of enemies can cancel divine purpose when God's people stand in submission, alignment, and prayer. TACEFites must not fear multiplied resistance. Spiritual warfare intensifies as inheritance expands, but one with God is a majority.

Week 19: The Hidden Kings and Unfinished Battles - Giving No Place to the Devil: Joshua's pursuit of the hidden kings teaches that victory must be completed and not left unfinished. Hidden enemies, tolerated compromises, secret sins, unresolved bitterness, careless habits, and unjudged patterns can rise again if they are not dealt with. Ephesians warns us to give no place to the devil. TACEFites must therefore close every spiritual opening, confront hidden battles, and refuse to allow small compromises to become future strongholds. The Lord's army must finish well, stand firm, and leave no room for the enemy to regain ground.

Week 16: Monday, 14 December 2026 to Sunday, 20 December 2026.

Title: Mount Ebal and the Altar of the Word: Returning Victory to Covenant Obedience

Bible Texts: Joshua 8:30-35; Ephesians 5:15-17; Ephesians 6:17

Bible Texts

Joshua 8:30-35: 30 Then, Joshua built an altar unto the LORD God of Israel in mount Ebal, 31 As Moses the servant of the LORD commanded the children of Israel, as it is written in the book of the law of Moses, an altar of whole stones, over which no man hath lift up any iron: and they offered thereon burnt offerings unto the LORD, and sacrificed peace offerings. 32 And he wrote there upon the stones a copy of the law of Moses, which he wrote in the presence of the children of Israel. 33 And all Israel, and their elders, and officers, and their judges, stood on this side the ark and on that side before the priests the Levites, which bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, as well the stranger, as he that was born among them; half of them over against mount Gerizim, and half of them over against mount Ebal; as Moses the servant of the LORD had commanded before, that they should bless the people of Israel. 34 And afterward he read all the words of the law, the blessings and cursings, according to all that is written in the book of the law. 35 There was not a word of all that Moses commanded, which Joshua read not before all the congregation of Israel, with the women, and the little ones, and the strangers that were conversant among them.

Ephesians 5:15-17: 15 See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, 16 Redeeming the time, because the days are evil. 17 Wherefore be ye not unwise, but understanding what the will of the Lord is.

Ephesians 6:17: 17 And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- Joshua built an altar unto the LORD God of Israel in mount Ebal.
- He wrote there upon the stones a copy of the law of Moses.
- He read all the words of the law.
- There was not a word of all that Moses commanded, which Joshua read not.
- See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise.
- Understanding what the will of the Lord is.
- The sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God.

Introduction

As we start this new section of study this week, we are brought into a very important moment after the victory at Ai. Joshua did not allow the success of battle to become a reason for spiritual carelessness. After Israel had risen again from failure, received fresh instructions, and won where they once lost, Joshua led the people to Mount Ebal and built an altar unto the Lord God of Israel. He offered burnt offerings and peace offerings. He wrote a copy of the law of Moses on stones and read all the words of the law before the whole congregation. This teaches us that victory must always return us back to intimate fellowship with the Lord. The Lord's great and exceeding army must never become so excited about success that it forgets the God who gave the victory.

Mount Ebal teaches that possession must remain under continued fellowship and covenant obedience. The people had won a battle, but they still needed the Word. They had conquered a city, but they still needed to hear the law of God. They had seen divine restoration after failure, but they still needed to be gathered around the altar and the Scriptures. Men, women, children, leaders, officers, judges, elders, strangers, and those born among them all stood and learn before the Word. Joshua read everything. There was not a word of all that Moses commanded which he did not read. This means that the whole army must be shaped by the whole counsel of God. Victory must not take God's people away from the Word; it must drive them deeper into fellowship and covenant consciousness.

Ephesians deepens this lesson by showing that the people of God must walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, understanding what the will of the Lord is. The will of God cannot be properly understood outside the Word of God. A revival army that moves without Scripture will soon become emotional, careless, and easily corrupted. Ephesians also calls the Word of God "the sword of the Spirit." This means the Word is not only for teaching; it is also a weapon for warfare, discernment, correction, defence, and victory. Therefore, TACEFites must keep the Word as an integral core in the execution of the mandate of revival. We must raise a generation that is worded, deeply rooted in Scripture, vast in doctrine, and Careful to meditate on the Word until it becomes practical obedience in everyday living. Revival must not become activity without the Word and every victory must bring us back to the altar, back to Scripture, back to obedience, and back to deeper encounter with the Lord.

Teachings

1. Every Victory Must Lead to Intimate Fellowship: After the victory at Ai, Joshua built an altar unto the Lord God of Israel in Mount Ebal. Joshua did not rush from one victory to another without stopping to worship, fellowship and reconnect with his source. He did not allow the excitement of victory and busy ministerial schedule to replace personal fellowship and reverence for God. He understood that victory belongs to the Lord, and every victory must return to the Lord in deeper intimacy, thanksgiving, surrender, and renewed obedience.

This is a major lesson for the Lord's army because the danger after victory is that the heart can become careless. A student may succeed academically and forget the God who gave wisdom. A worker may receive promotion or secure a new job and become too busy for fellowship or even quiet time. A mother may receive the gift of a baby and use the baby as an excuse for being too busy to serve the Lord. This is why every increase, victory and enlargement must end at God's altar. The altar reminds us that every victory came from Him and must be returned to Him.

Joshua's altar was not built according to personal preference. It was built "as it is written in the book of the law of Moses." This means worship, fellowship and intimacy with God must also be governed by the Word. True worship is not emotional singing, loud sound, or religious activity but a life returned to God in obedience and a heart of thanksgiving that leads to surrender. Dear TACEFites, every answer to prayer must take us closer to God. Every breakthrough must increase our loyalty to the Lord. Every career, financial and life opportunity must increase our obedience. Every lifting must bring us back to the altar. If victory takes us away from our relationship with God, then we are already in danger. The Lord's army must learn to win and still worship, possess and still bow, advance and still remain broken before God.

2. The Whole Army Must Be Shaped by the Whole Word: Joshua wrote a copy of the law of Moses on stones and read all the words of the law before the people. The Scripture says, "There was not a word of all that Moses commanded, which Joshua read not." This shows us that God's revival army must not be shaped by partial truth, selected verses, popular quotable quotes, or emotional messages alone. The whole army needs the whole Word. The Word was read to all Israel, including elders, officers, judges, women, little ones, strangers, and those born among them. The Word was not reserved only for leaders, teachers, ministers, or older believers. Everyone needed the Word, including the children. Do not let us turn our Sunday school children's classes to cartoon playground without the Word of the Lord being taught. The whole congregation needs to hear, understand, and be shaped by the commandment of the Lord.

As we pursue the mandate of revival, we must not raise a generation that is active but shallow, excited but not grounded, gifted but not governed, or zealous but not doctrinally sound. We must raise TACEFites who are worded, deeply rooted in Scripture, trained in doctrine, and able to apply the Word to everyday life. The Word must shape our homes, studies, careers, relationships, dressing, speech, leadership, fellowship, evangelism, finances, service, and private conduct. If the Word does not shape us, social media will shape us. If the Word does not govern us, culture will govern us. If doctrine does not settle us, emotion will move us. Therefore, the Word must be read, taught, meditated upon, obeyed, and lived by all.

3. Revival without the Word Becomes Dangerous, Shallow, and Easily Corrupted: Israel had begun to possess the land, but Joshua brought them back to the Word. This teaches that every revival movement, spiritual activity, or ministry advance becomes dangerous when it is not grounded in the Word of God. Today, we organise many programmes described as revival, but they often focus more on what participants can receive from God in the short term than on what God who to make of their lives in the long term. The emphasis is commonly on blessings, riches, healing, miracles, promotion, breakthroughs, open doors, and material enlargement. These things are not wrong, but Jesus called them "all these things" that should follow those who first seek the kingdom of God and His righteousness. True revival must go beyond what God can give us to what God can remove from us, correct in us, and produce through us. It must lead to repentance, holiness, obedience, humility, love, spiritual discipline, and conformity to the character of Christ. When the Word is absent, programmes can produce excitement without transformation. We see people receive prophecies without knowing Jesus, celebrate miracles without overcoming sin, and speak loudly about spiritual experiences while remaining weak in spiritual substance. This is why Ephesians says, "See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise." The Word helps us walk carefully. It checks our motives, corrects our excesses, exposes our errors, strengthens our convictions, and guides our decisions.

Without the Word, a revival movement can be sincere but sincerely wrong. We can be active for God without being aligned with God, and loud in spiritual language while lacking the nature of Christ.

Revival without Scripture also becomes easily corrupted because popularity, growth, testimonies, and visible success attract pride, imitation, manipulation, and compromise. A fellowship that grows numerically may reduce the demands of discipleship in order to retain the crowd. A ministry that becomes popular may entertain rather than teach, while a gifted leader may depend on manifestations and neglect the secret place. Beloved, the absence of Scripture is a doorway to spiritual decay. Any spiritual labour that lacks the Word may appear impressive for a season, but it will eventually become worthless. Jesus taught that the seed without sufficient depth sprang up quickly but withered when pressure came. In the same way, revival that produces excitement without roots cannot raise believers who endure temptation, persecution, disappointment, or delay. The true evidence of revival is not what happens during the programme but what remains after the meeting ends. Are people more prayerful, holy, loving, truthful, disciplined, and obedient? Are they grounded in sound doctrine? Are they becoming disciples who can disciple others?

4. The Word Is the Sword of the Spirit for Wisdom, Warfare, and Daily Obedience:

Ephesians 6:17 calls the Word of God "the sword of the Spirit." This means that the Word is not only a book to read but a weapon to carry. It is the Spirit's sword in the hands, mouth, mind, and heart of the believer. No army can fight well without a sword. No TACEFite can stand well without the Word. No revival work can remain pure without Scripture. The sword of the Spirit helps us fight lies, temptations, fear, unbelief, deception, false doctrine, compromise, spiritual confusion, and every thought that opposes the will of God. When Jesus was tempted in the wilderness, He answered with the Word of God. In the same way, every believer must learn to answer the enemy, the flesh, the world, and wrong thoughts with the Scripture. The Word of God must be in our hearts through meditation, in our mouths through confession, in our decisions through obedience, and in our lives through practice.

Ephesians 5:17 also says, "Wherefore be ye not unwise, but understanding what the will of the Lord is." The Word of God helps us understand the will of the Lord at all times. Many believers are confused because they want directions outside the Scripture. They want spiritual power without scriptural guidelines. They want victory without obedience. But the Word reveals God's mind, trains our discernment, and helps us know what pleases the Lord. For us in the great house of TACEF, this means that the Word must remain at the centre of the revival mandate. We must not only be prayerful; we must be scriptural. We must not only be zealous; we must be doctrinally sound. Beloved, read the Word, study the Word, memorise the Word, meditate on the Word, obey the Word and most importantly live the Word. The army that is deeply rooted in the Word of God will not be deceived, corrupted, or defeated.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Return every victory to God: After every answer to prayer, breakthrough, success, promotion, deliverance, or ministry impact, deliberately return to God in intimate fellowship, thanksgiving, and renewed surrender.
- Build a personal altar of the Word: Set a daily time to read, meditate on, and respond to Scripture. Do not only read the Bible for the purposes of preaching or fellowship assignments.
- Read the Word to all: Parents should read and explain Scripture to children. Leaders should teach younger believers. Fellowship leaders must ensure new converts and members are grounded in the Word.
- Become worded: Commit to becoming deeply rooted in the Scripture and sound doctrine. Do not be a believer who only knows songs and quotable quotes but cannot explain basic truth from the Word.
- Apply the Word daily: Apply the Lord's instruction from Scripture each day and obey it practically in your speech, dressing, relationships, studies, work, finances, and private life.
- Use the Word as a sword: When temptation, fear, discouragement, anger, lust, pride, or unbelief comes, answer with the Word of God, not with feelings.
- Walk circumspectly: Before making decisions, ask, "What does the Word of God say? Is this wise? Does this reflect the will of the Lord?"

Questions for Discussion

1. Why did Joshua build an altar after the victory at Ai?
2. What does Mount Ebal teach us about returning victory to more intimate fellowship with the Lord and deeper covenant obedience?
3. Why did Joshua read the Word to men, women, children, leaders, and even strangers?
4. What dangers can arise when possession, ministry, or revival activity continues without the Word of God?

5. How can the Word of God shape our everyday living, not only our fellowship activities?
6. How can we keep TACEF's revival mandate rooted in Scripture, doctrine, meditation, and obedience?

Personal Reflection

Do I turn my victories and testimonies into deeper intimate fellowship and surrender to God, or do I become careless after success? Has any breakthrough, promotion, result, ministry fruit, miracle or answer to prayer taken me away from deeper fellowship with the Lord? Am I shaped by the Word, or only moved by emotion and activities? Do I read, meditate on, obey, and live the Word of God daily? Is the Word of God shaping my speech, dressing, relationships, conduct, studies, work, leadership, attitude at work or in school and private life? Am I helping children, younger believers, new converts, and other TACEFites to be rooted in Scripture? Do I carry the Word of God as the sword of the Spirit in spiritual warfare? Is TACEF's revival mandate in my hands becoming activity without the Word?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, help me to turn every victory, breakthrough, and testimony to You into intimate fellowship, increased consecration, thanksgiving, and renewed obedience.
2. Lord, deliver me from success that takes me away from Your altar, Your Word, and Your presence.
3. Father, make me deeply rooted in the Scripture, sound in doctrine, and obedient in daily living.
4. Lord, raise in TACEF a generation that is worded, discerning, doctrinally pure, and faithful to Your truth.
5. Father, let the Word shape our men, women, children, leaders, workers, new converts, and every member of the great house of TACEF.
6. Father, teach me to take the sword of the Spirit and use Your Word against fear, temptation, compromise, deception, and every attack of the enemy.

Week 16 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 14 December 2026

- Joshua built an altar after the victory at Ai. Father, teach me to turn every testimony into greater levels of surrender, humility, and renewed obedience.
- Victory must return us into genuine intimate fellowship with the Lord. I will not allow success, breakthrough, promotion, or ministry fruits to take me away from God's altar.
- Every lifting we encounter must end at God's altar. Lord, let every victory in my life draw me deeper into worship, fellowship, holiness, and obedience.

Tuesday, 15 December 2026

- The law was read to all Israel. The whole army must be shaped by the whole Word of God. Lord, make me a believer who is deeply rooted in the Scripture.
- I will not live on slogans, quotable quotes, emotions, or activities without Word-based doctrine. Father, write Your Word deeply upon my heart and make truth my daily foundation.
- Men, women, children, leaders, workers, new converts, and strangers all need the Word. Lord, make TACEF a Word-shaped revival army.

Wednesday, 16 December 2026

- Possession without Scripture is dangerous. I will not allow activity, visibility, or success to replace the Word of God in my life.
- Revival must not become activity without the Word, ministration without doctrinal purity, or conquest without covenant.
- Father, let Your Word correct my motives, guide my decisions, purify my service, and keep me faithful in the work You have committed to me.

Thursday, 17 December 2026

- I must walk circumspectly, not as a fool, but as wise. I will not make decisions by impulse, pressure, trend, emotion, or careless desire.
- Lord, help me to understand Your will through Your Word. Teach me to ask, "What does Scripture say?" before I act, speak, choose, or move.

- I receive grace to apply the Word to my studies, work, relationships, dressing, speech, leadership, finances, family life, and private conduct.

Friday, 18 December 2026

- The Word of God is the sword of the Spirit. I will confront every temptation, fear, deception, compromise, or spiritual warfare with the Word of God.
- Jesus answered temptation with the Scripture. Father, fill my heart and mouth with Your Word, so that I can stand against every lie of the enemy.
- I take the sword of the Spirit by reading, meditating, memorising, confessing, obeying, teaching, and living the Word of God.

Saturday 19 December 2026

- I am called to be worded, deeply rooted in Scripture, grounded in doctrine, and careful to obey the Word in everyday life.
- Victory must not take me away from God. Lord, let every testimony, answers to prayer, open door, career increase, business growth, financial lifting and enlargement bring me back into deeper fellowship with You.
- I receive grace to return to the altar, live by the Word, walk circumspectly, and carry the sword of the Spirit. Father, make me a Word-shaped soldier in Your exceeding great army.

Title: The Gibeonite Deception: The Need for Discernment, Prayer, and the Danger of Unholy Alliances

Bible Texts: Joshua 9:1-27; Ephesians 5:6-17

Bible Texts

Joshua 9:1-27: 1 And it came to pass, when all the kings which were on this side Jordan, in the hills, and in the valleys, and in all the coasts of the great sea over against Lebanon, the Hittite, and the Amorite, the Canaanite, the Perizzite, the Hivite, and the Jebusite, heard thereof; 2 That they gathered themselves together, to fight with Joshua and with Israel, with one accord. 3 And when the inhabitants of Gibeon heard what Joshua had done unto Jericho and to Ai, 4 They did work wilily, and went and made as if they had been ambassadors, and took old sacks upon their asses, and wine bottles, old, and rent, and bound up; 5 And old shoes and clouted upon their feet, and old garments upon them; and all the bread of their provision was dry and mouldy. 6 And they went to Joshua unto the camp at Gilgal, and said unto him, and to the men of Israel, We be come from a far country: now therefore make ye a league with us. 7 And the men of Israel said unto the Hivites, Peradventure ye dwell among us; and how shall we make a league with you? 8 And they said unto Joshua, We are thy servants. And Joshua said unto them, Who are ye? and from whence come ye? 9 And they said unto him, From a very far country thy servants are come because of the name of the LORD thy God: for we have heard the fame of him, and all that he did in Egypt, 10 And all that he did to the two kings of the Amorites, that were beyond Jordan, to Sihon king of Heshbon, and to Og king of Bashan, which was at Ashtaroth. 11 Wherefore our elders and all the inhabitants of our country spake to us, saying, Take victuals with you for the journey, and go to meet them, and say unto them, We are your servants: therefore now make ye a league with us. 12 This our bread we took hot for our provision out of our houses on the day we came forth to go unto you; but now, behold, it is dry, and it is mouldy: 13 And these bottles of wine, which we filled, were new; and, behold, they be rent: and these our garments and our shoes are become old by reason of the very long journey. 14 And the men took of their victuals, and asked not counsel at the mouth of the LORD. 15 And Joshua made peace with them, and made a league with them, to let them live: and the princes of the congregation sware unto them. 16 And it came to pass at the end of three days after they had made a league with them, that they heard that they were their neighbours, and that they dwelt among them. 17 And the children of Israel journeyed, and came unto their cities on the third day. Now their cities were Gibeon, and Chephirah, and Beeroth, and Kirjathjearim. 18 And the children of Israel smote them not, because the princes of the congregation had sworn unto them by the LORD God of Israel. And all the congregation murmured against the princes. 19 But all the princes said unto all the congregation, We have sworn unto them by the LORD God of Israel: now therefore we may not touch them. 20 This we will do to them; we will even let them live, lest wrath be upon us, because of the oath which we sware unto them. 21 And the princes said unto them, Let them live; but let them be hewers of wood and drawers of water unto all the congregation; as the princes had promised them. 22 And Joshua called for them, and he spake unto them, saying, Wherefore have ye beguiled us, saying, We are very far from you; when ye dwell among us? 23 Now therefore ye are cursed, and there shall none of you be freed from being bondmen, and hewers of wood and drawers of water for the house of my God. 24 And they answered Joshua, and said, Because it was certainly told thy servants, how that the LORD thy God commanded his servant Moses to give you all the land, and to destroy all the inhabitants of the land from before you, therefore we were sore afraid of our lives because of you, and have done this thing. 25 And now, behold, we are in thine hand: as it seemeth good and right unto thee to do unto us, do. 26 And so did he unto them, and delivered them out of the hand of the children of Israel, that they slew them not. 27 And Joshua made them that day hewers of wood and drawers of water for the congregation, and for the altar of the LORD, even unto this day, in the place which he should choose.

Ephesians 5:6-17: 6 Let no man deceive you with vain words: for because of these things cometh the wrath of God upon the children of disobedience. 7 Be not ye therefore partakers with them. 8 For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light: 9 For the fruit of the Spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth; 10 Proving what is acceptable unto the Lord. 11 And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them. 12 For it is a shame even to speak of those things which are done of them in secret. 13 But all things that are reprov'd are made manifest by the light: for whatsoever doth make manifest is light. 14 Wherefore he saith, Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light. 15 See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, 16 Redeeming the time, because the days are evil. 17 Wherefore be ye not unwise, but understanding what the will of the Lord is.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- They did work wilily.
- Make ye a league with us.
- The men took of their victuals, and asked not counsel at the mouth of the LORD.
- Joshua made peace with them, and made a league with them.
- Let no man deceive you with vain words.
- Proving what is acceptable unto the Lord.
- Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness.
- See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise.

Introduction

We progress our study this week as God's exceeding great army into the critical matter of the deception of the Gibeonites, one of the most important lessons on discernment in the journey of winning the hearts of men and our generation for the Lord. After Jericho had fallen and Ai had been conquered, the enemies of Israel began to respond in different ways. Some kings gathered themselves together to fight with Joshua and Israel. But the inhabitants of Gibeon chose another method. They did not come openly with weapons; they came with deception. They took old bags, old wine bottles, old shoes, old garments, and dry, mouldy bread, pretending that they had come from a far country. Their appearance looked harmless, their request sounded peaceful, and their words seemed reasonable. Yet behind the old bread and worn garments was a false identity.

The tragedy of this story is not only that the Gibeonites deceived Israel, but that Israel made a covenant with them without asking counsel at the mouth of the Lord. The Bible says, "And the men ... asked not counsel at the mouth of the LORD." Joshua and the princes examined the evidence before them, listened to their story, considered the old bread, and made peace with them. After three days, they discovered that the people were not from a far country, but their neighbours who dwelt among them. This teaches us that human judgement is not enough for the Lord's army. What looks peaceful may not be safe. What sounds respectful may not be sincere. Every revival army must learn that we do not live by sight, and we must not be ruled by appearances.

Ephesians deepens this lesson by warning believers against deception, vain words, unfruitful works of darkness, and ungodly alliances or association. Paul says, "Let no man deceive you with vain words," and then commands, "See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise." To walk circumspectly is to walk carefully, prayerfully, watchfully, and with spiritual understanding. Ephesians also teaches us to prove what is acceptable unto the Lord. This means that every relationship, partnership, offer, opportunity, ministry collaboration, career direction, business proposal, investment decision, and life milestone must be tested by the Word, prayer, spiritual counsel, and the leading of the Holy Spirit. This study calls all TACEFites to learn the practice of discernment in all decisions. Not every open door is God's door and not every opportunity carries divine approval. Covenant decisions require time to seek the Lord, and all life milestones must not be handled in haste.

Teachings

1. Deception Often Appears Harmless, Peaceful, and Reasonable: The Gibeonites did not approach Israel with open violence. They did not come as obvious enemies. They came as humble travellers who came from a very far country, seeking peace. Their presentation was carefully arranged to convince Israel. Their old sacks, torn bottles, worn shoes, old garments, and mouldy bread were all part of the deception. Everything they showed Israel was designed to make their story believable. This teaches us that deception does not always appear evil at first. Sometimes deception appears harmless and peaceful. Sometimes it sounds respectful, religious, sympathetic, and reasonable. The Gibeonites even spoke about the name of the Lord and what He had done in Egypt and beyond Jordan. They used spiritual language, but their intention was false. This means that speaking like a believer and using spiritual language alone is not proof of spiritual truth. A person, proposal, relationship, opportunity, or partnership can sound spiritual to us and still be dangerous. Many believers have entered marriage only to discover that the calm, tongue-speaking brother they married was merely wearing a Christian mask, while his true character told a very different story. Likewise, some have married sisters who appeared godly, humble, and submissive during courtship, only to discover later that it was pretence all the way.

Natural judgement can easily be impressed by what it sees and hears. Israel looked at the bread and the garments. They listened to the story and everything appeared to agree, but appearance was not truth. This is why the Lord's revival army must not be ruled by impressions, pity, pressure, or packaging. We must not assume that every calm voice is truthful, every humble posture is sincere, every spiritual statement is God-led, or every partnership offer is from God. Dear TACEFites, in these last days, discernment is critical. Deception will not always announce itself as deception. It may come as a friendly social media request, an invitation to a so-called professional club by a respected brother in church, a well-packaged partnership offer at a Christian event, a juicy job or scholarship opportunity, an exciting investment proposal, or even an invitation to minister in song from someone you deeply admire. Beloved, we must not be careless, even as we remain kind and loving. We must be open-hearted, but not spiritually blind. We must walk in wisdom, because not everything that appears harmless is safe.

2. Do not Be Ruled by Appearances: The Gibeonites used old bread to support a false identity. They said the bread had been taken hot from their houses when they began the journey but had become dry and mouldy because they had travelled from a very far country. The bread became their evidence. The old garments became their proof. The worn shoes became their argument. Yet everything was arranged to support a lie. This is a serious warning because what people present as evidence may not always reveal the truth. A person can package a story to create sympathy and generate pity. A proposal can be arranged to look urgent. A relationship can be presented as harmless. A business opportunity can be dressed as destiny helper has come. A ministry collaboration can be wrapped in religious language while an offer for a career relocation may be well packaged to deceive us of our hard-earned money. Beloved, be aware that appearance can be manipulated, but truth must be discerned.

This is the essential reason why we are told to “walk by faith, not by sight.” We must not live by sight, because sight can be deceived and manipulated. Sight sees the bread, but the Spirit searches the matter. Sight sees the garment, but the Word tests the fruit. Sight hears the story, but prayer brings the matter before God. When we depend only on what is seen, we may make decisions that create long-term crisis and problems with no end. Beloved, please see beyond the packaging. In marriage decisions, we must not be deceived by beauty, so-called spiritual gifts, education, or family background. In career decisions, we must not choose because of immediate gains, salary, title, or prestige. In ministry and church decisions, we must not choose by popularity, crowd, or invitation. We must ask: What is the spirit behind this? Is this consistent with the Word? Is there peace in the Holy Ghost? Have I prayed? Have I sought godly counsel? Is this helping or weakening my walk with God?

3. Human Judgement Is Not Enough: The men of Israel actually suspected something at first. They asked, “How do we know you aren’t local people? How could we then make a covenant with you?” (Message version) This means there was already a warning sign. Something in the matter required deeper enquiry. Yet, instead of taking the matter to the Lord, they continued the conversation and later made a covenant. This is the reality of many of us. We sometimes have a quiet suspicion, an inward hesitation, or a small unrest in the spirit, but we ignore it because the opportunity looks too good, the people sound sincere, or the evidence appears convincing. Many times, the Lord in His mercy prompts us to check a matter again before we commit ourselves. It may come through the quiet voice of a wife saying to her husband, “Dear, can we pray more about this?” It may come through a child saying, “Mummy, I am not sure we should invest this money.” It may come through a spiritual son or daughter saying, “I do not think we should invite that minister to our fellowship.” Sometimes, God uses these simple cautions as divine interruptions to slow us down before we enter a covenant, partnership, relationship, investment, or decision that may later bring trouble. Therefore, we must not despise godly caution. The Lord can use a spouse, a child, a junior person, a spiritual mentee, or even a quiet burden in our heart to call us back to prayer.

Moreover, our text of study this week gives the root of the mistake clearly: “And asked not counsel at the mouth of the LORD.” This is the central lesson of the Gibeonite’s deception. Israel did not fail because there was no evidence but because they trusted evidence without enquiry from God. They did not fail because they were unintelligent; they failed because intelligence cannot replace divine guidance. They did not fail because they were weak soldiers; they failed because strong soldiers can still make wrong decisions when they neglect prayer.

4. Prayerlessness Opens the Door to Error and Long-Term Problems: Joshua made peace with the Gibeonites, and the princes of the congregation swore unto them. After three days, the truth was revealed. The Gibeonites were not from a far country; they were neighbours dwelling among them. But because Israel had sworn by the Lord God of Israel, they could no longer simply destroy them. This teaches that rash and hasty decisions can create long-term consequences. Some decisions are not easily reversed. Many erroneous commitments, relationships, vows, agreements, partnerships, business commitments, ministry connections, financial obligations, and marital choices can create troubles that continue for years. This is why we must never be in haste to make decisions on life milestones. The fact that an offer is urgent does not mean it is divine. The fact that a door is open does not mean God opened it. The fact that people are pressuring you does not mean you must act immediately.

We must also understand that lack of prayer in decision making opens the door to error because it leaves the soul under the rule of appearance, emotion, fear, greed, and human persuasion. When prayer is absent, the flesh becomes louder. When the Word is not consulted, worldly reasoning becomes normal. Ephesians warns us not to be partakers with darkness, but to walk as children of light. This requires carefulness, separation, and patience to wait when we appear to be too slow and the courage to say no when everyone is putting us under pressure. Beloved, do not make marital, career, business, investment, ministry, relocation, leadership, or partnership decisions by appearance. Seek God's accurate leading. Pray, wait, test the matter by the Word, seek mature counsel. Do not be rushed because perfect discernment protects inheritance.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Do not be ruled by appearance: Do not make decisions by what looks good, sounds peaceful, appears urgent, or seems profitable.
- Ask counsel at the mouth of the Lord: Before entering major decisions, take the matter to God in prayer and wait for His guidance.
- Test every offer by the Word: Ask whether the decision agrees with Scripture, strengthens holiness, preserves peace, and honours Christ.
- Watch spiritual language carefully: Do not assume that a person, group, proposal, or opportunity is safe because it uses spiritual words or appears "Christian-like"
- Slow down covenant decisions: Marriage, business, investment, ministry partnerships, relocation, and career choices require prayer, patience, counsel, and discernment.
- Seek godly counsel: Speak with spiritually mature leaders, disciplers, and trusted believers before major commitments.
- Pay attention to warning signs: When there is inner unrest, inconsistency, pressure, or confusion, do not ignore it.
- Walk as a child of light: Refuse unfruitful works of darkness, ungodly alliances, and relationships that weaken your walk with God.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why did the Gibeonites choose deception instead of open warfare?
2. What does the old bread teach us about false identity and deceptive appearances?
3. Why is human judgement not enough for spiritual decisions and why must covenant decisions not be made in haste?
4. What was the danger in Israel not asking counsel at the mouth of the Lord?
5. How can TACEFites practise discernment in marriage, career, ministry, business, and investment decisions?
6. How can prayer, the Word, the Holy Spirit, and godly counsel protect our inheritance?

Personal Reflection

Do I make decisions by appearance, emotion, pressure, or profit? Have I entered any relationship, partnership, agreement, investment, or commitment without asking counsel at the mouth of the Lord? Do I slow down enough to pray before major decisions, or do I only ask God to bless what I have already chosen? Am I easily moved by spiritual language, sympathy, urgency, or attractive packaging? Do I test opportunities by the Word of God and the leading of the Holy Spirit? Do I seek godly counsel, or do I hide decisions until they become difficult to correct? Am I walking circumspectly as a child of light? Is there any alliance, habit, relationship, or agreement that is weakening my obedience to God?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, deliver me from deception, false appearances, vain words, and every ungodly alliance.
2. Lord, help me not to be ruled by sight, emotion, pressure, fear, profit, or attractive packaging.
3. Father, give me discernment by Your Spirit and Your Word to know what is acceptable unto You. Lord, teach me to ask counsel from Your mouth before entering life's decisions and covenant commitments.
4. Father, deliver TACEFites from rash decisions and commitment in marriage, business, ministry, career, investment, friendship, relocation move and life advancement.

5. Father, expose every hidden deception and give me courage to obey Your warning, even when men do not understand.
6. Lord, make TACEF a discerning revival army that walks as children of light and preserves the inheritance You have committed to us.

Week 17 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 21 December 2026

- Deception often appears harmless, peaceful, and reasonable. I will not be careless because a matter looks calm, attractive, or respectful.
- The Gibeonites came with old sacks, old bottles, old shoes, old garments, and mouldy bread. Father, help me to discern beyond appearances.
- Lord, deliver me from every deception that comes through friendship, opportunity, relationship, partnership, platform, sympathy, or spiritual language.

Tuesday, 22 December 2026

- Old bread of the Gibeonites is a symbol that represents deceit and false identity. I will not allow packaging, stories, urgency, or emotional blackmails to rule my decisions.
- I do not live by sight. Father, teach me to test every matter by Your Word, Your Spirit, prayer, and godly counsel.
- Lord, help me to see beyond what is presented before me and discern the truth behind every offer, relationship, invitation and opportunity.

Wednesday, 23 December 2026

- Human judgement is not enough. Education, experience, exposure, age, and leadership position cannot replace divine guidance.
- Israel took of their victuals, but asked not counsel at the mouth of the Lord. Father, deliver me from decisions made without prayers.
- Lord, give me discernment from Your Spirit and Your Word, so that I may understand what is acceptable unto You.

Thursday, 24 December 2026

- Prayerlessness opens the door to error. I will not make life's decisions first and ask God to bless them later.
- Prayer is communion and guidance. Father, teach me to bring my desires, plans, opportunities, ideas, and decisions before You.
- Lord, restrain my haste, purify my motives, and guide me accurately before I enter any covenant decision.

Friday, 25 December 2026

- Hasty decisions create long-term problems. I will not be pressured into marital, career, business, investment, ministry, or partnership decisions.
- Not every peaceful offer is from God. Not every door is God's door for my life. Not every good-looking deal is a godly one. Father, help me to walk circumspectly, not as a fool, but as wise.
- Lord, give me courage to wait, courage to ask questions, courage to seek counsel, and courage to say no when a matter is not from You.

Saturday, 26 December 2026

- I am a child of light in Christ. I will have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but will prove what is acceptable unto the Lord.
- Discernment protects inheritance. Father, protect my life, family, ministry, local fellowship, career, relationships, and destiny from ungodly alliances and relationships
- I receive grace to walk in wisdom, patience, the Word, and the leading of the Holy Spirit. Lord, make me a discerning soldier in Your exceeding great army.

Week 18: Monday, 28 December 2026 to Sunday, 3 January 2027

Title: When Enemies Come Together: Standing Firm When Opposition Multiplies

Bible Texts: Joshua 10:1-15; Ephesians 6:10-13

Bible Texts

Joshua 10:1-15: 1 Now it came to pass, when Adonizedek king of Jerusalem had heard how Joshua had taken Ai, and had utterly destroyed it; as he had done to Jericho and her king, so he had done to Ai and her king; and how the inhabitants of Gibeon had made peace with Israel, and were among them; 2 That they feared greatly, because Gibeon was a great city, as one of the royal cities, and because it was greater than Ai, and all the men thereof were mighty. 3 Wherefore Adonizedek king of Jerusalem sent unto Hoham king of Hebron, and unto Piram king of Jarmuth, and unto Japhia king of Lachish, and unto Debir king of Eglon, saying, 4 Come up unto me, and help me, that we may smite Gibeon: for it hath made peace with Joshua and with the children of Israel. 5 Therefore the five kings of the Amorites, the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, the king of Eglon, gathered themselves together, and went up, they and all their hosts, and encamped before Gibeon, and made war against it. 6 And the men of Gibeon sent unto Joshua to the camp to Gilgal, saying, Slack not thy hand from thy servants; come up to us quickly, and save us, and help us: for all the kings of the Amorites that dwell in the mountains are gathered together against us. 7 So Joshua ascended from Gilgal, he, and all the people of war with him, and all the mighty men of valour. 8 And the LORD said unto Joshua, Fear them not: for I have delivered them into thine hand; there shall not a man of them stand before thee. 9 Joshua therefore came unto them suddenly, and went up from Gilgal all night. 10 And the LORD discomfited them before Israel, and slew them with a great slaughter at Gibeon, and chased them along the way that goeth up to Bethhoron, and smote them to Azekah, and unto Makkedah. 11 And it came to pass, as they fled from before Israel, and were in the going down to Bethhoron, that the LORD cast down great stones from heaven upon them unto Azekah, and they died: they were more which died with hailstones than they whom the children of Israel slew with the sword. 12 Then spake Joshua to the LORD in the day when the LORD delivered up the Amorites before the children of Israel, and he said in the sight of Israel, Sun, stand thou still upon Gibeon; and thou, Moon, in the valley of Ajalon. 13 And the sun stood still, and the moon stayed, until the people had avenged themselves upon their enemies. Is not this written in the book of Jasher? So the sun stood still in the midst of heaven, and hasted not to go down about a whole day. 14 And there was no day like that before it or after it, that the LORD hearkened unto the voice of a man: for the LORD fought for Israel. 15 And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, unto the camp to Gilgal.

Ephesians 6:10-13: 10 Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. 11 Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. 12 For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. 13 Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- The five kings of the Amorites gathered themselves together.
- All the kings of the Amorites that dwell in the mountains are gathered together against us.
- Fear them not: for I have delivered them into thine hand.
- There shall not a man of them stand before thee.
- The LORD discomfited them before Israel.
- The LORD cast down great stones from heaven upon them.
- The sun stood still, and the moon stayed...The LORD fought for Israel.
- Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of His might.
- Put on the whole armour of God.
- We wrestle not against flesh and blood.

Introduction

Our study this week explored the moment when the enemies of Israel began to unite together to fight against the progress of God's people. After Jericho had fallen, Ai had been conquered, and Gibeon had made peace with Israel, Adonizedek, king of Jerusalem at that time, became afraid. He saw that the influence of Israel was spreading and that territories were beginning to fall as the army of the Lord advanced. It is important to note that the Gibeonites who deceived Israel into an alliance were not from a small place, but from a great city, one of the royal cities, and all its men were mighty. So, when the whole city of Gibeon aligned with Israel, the surrounding kings recognised that the force of Israel was not ordinary and that the balance of power in the land had changed. Therefore, five kings gathered themselves together to fight against Gibeon because it had made peace with the children of Israel.

This study teaches us that the mandate of winning souls for the Lord as an exceeding great army will attract oppositions. Darkness does not quietly surrender territories it has occupied. When souls begin to turn to the Lord, when campuses begin to open to revival, when local churches begin to awake unto righteousness, when families begin to return to holiness, when young people begin to stand for truth, and when communities begin to experience the light of Christ, opposition will arise. Sometimes the enemy fights as one force; at other times, enemies come together in networks and alliances with intense pressures, accusations, distractions, temptations, discouragements, and organised resistance. Yet, we know that no coalition of darkness can cancel divine purpose when God's people stand in obedience and submission.

The book of Ephesians deepens this lesson by showing that spiritual warfare is real. Paul tells us to be strong in the Lord and in the power of His might, and to put on the whole armour of God because we wrestle not against flesh and blood. He then describes four layers of organised spiritual oppositions: principalities, powers, rulers of the darkness of this world, and spiritual wickedness in high places, which we have also studied in Week 12. These speak of demonic structures, authorities, forces, and operations that resist the advancement of God's purpose in lives, families, churches, communities, and territories. The battle is never against people but against the unseen forces that use systems, cultures, fears, bondages, and spiritual blindness to resist the rule of Christ. As we advance as a revival army to win our territories and hearts of men for the Lord, we must expect resistance because spiritual warfare intensifies as inheritance expands. The enemy may form stronger networks to scatter focus, corrupt purity, frustrate leadership, discourage intercession, or resist soul-winning, but we must hold strong from the standpoint of victory in Christ.

Teachings

1. The Mandate of Winning Souls and Possessing the Land Attracts Opposition: The five kings did not gather together simply because Israel existed. They gathered because Israel was advancing in its destiny to take over the Promised Land. They saw clearly that Jericho had fallen, Ai had been conquered, and Gibeon had made peace with Israel. The influence of God's people was spreading, and the kings of the land became afraid. The enemy's response is often to oppose the expansion of God's work, and this opposition increases when territory begins to shift. We know that the mandate of winning souls for the Lord will always attract resistance because every soul saved is a territory reclaimed from darkness, every home restored to holiness is a territory recovered for Christ, and every campus touched by revival is a territory challenged by the Kingdom of God. In the same vein, every local church awakened unto repentance is a territory where darkness begins to lose ground, and every workplace where a believer stands for righteousness becomes a place where Christ's light confronts corruption, and spiritual darkness. This is why the enemy resists soul-winning, discipleship, holiness, and revival.

Darkness is not only interested in individual sin but seeks territorial influence as it works through cultures, patterns, ungodly systems, false beliefs, addictions, fear, pride, lust, and spiritual blindness to keep lives and communities under bondage. Territorial domination means that darkness tries to normalise sin, silence truth, weaken prayer, corrupt leadership, and make people comfortable without God. Therefore, as God's exceeding great army of revival, we must not be surprised when resistance rises as the mandate advances. When you begin to win souls, distractions may multiply. When a local fellowship begins to grow, opposition may arise through church politics and even through other groups/societies within the church. Do not be moved. Please learn to focus on drawing strength and power from the Lord through sustained intercession and spiritual warfare. Do not shift your attention to men or the crisis itself. Continue to stand in warfare until the strongholds controlling the hearts of men and initiating the tensions are broken, because everything we see in the physical answers to spiritual powers behind the scenes. We must also note that the increase of opposition does not mean God is absent. It only means that the territory is being contested. Therefore, we stand firm, because the Lord who called us also fights with us.

2. Enemies Can Unite against God's End-Time Agenda, but No Coalition Can Cancel Divine Purpose: King Adonizedek did not fight alone. He sent to other kings, saying, "Come up unto me, and help me." The five kings gathered themselves together with all their hosts and made war against Gibeon. This was a coalition battle. Their strength was multiplied, their armies were gathered, and their intention was clear. They wanted to punish Gibeon for aligning with the God of Israel and stop the spread of Israel's influence. This is a clear picture of how opposition can network against God's end-time agenda. Sometimes different forces that do not normally agree can suddenly unite against revival, salvation message and the advancement of God's Kingdom. In our instance, we may see a collation of false doctrine, discouragement, family pressure, financial pressure, health challenges, distraction, confusion, relationship battles, institutional resistance, and spiritual attacks appearing together to overwhelm us, weaken our hands and get us from our duty posts.

Ephesians 6:12 helps us understand this more deeply. Paul says we wrestle against principalities, powers, rulers of the darkness of this world, and spiritual wickedness in high places. These are organised spiritual forces of evil and demonic hierarchies that resist believers as they advance the purpose of God. Jesus also revealed that demonic powers can operate in organised networks, as seen in the "Legion" of demons in Mark 5:9. He further taught that victory over a territory requires first binding the "strong man" who exercises influence over it, as seen in Matthew 12:29. He also warned that evil spirits can return to a life with additional forces to strengthen their hold if their influence is not permanently displaced (Matthew 12:43-45). This shows that spiritual warfare is not casual but involves confronting organised forces of darkness through the authority of Christ in warfare prayer.

3. Fear Must Not Control the Revival Army When Resistance Multiplies: When Gibeon came under attack, the men of Gibeon cried to Joshua, saying, "Slack not thy hand from thy servants; come up to us quickly, and save us, and help us." The situation was urgent. All the kings of the Amorites that dwelt in the mountains had gathered against them. Naturally, this could have produced fear. But the Lord spoke to Joshua, saying, "Fear them not: for I have delivered them into thine hand; there shall not a man of them stand before thee."

This word from the Lord is very important. God did not deny that the enemies had gathered or that there was no opposition, but instead, He gave Joshua a higher truth: "Fear them not." Fear must not be the controlling spirit of the revival army. When fear controls the heart, obedience becomes weak and when fear rules the mind, prayer becomes unstable. As revival army, we must know that when fear enters our camp, we begin to see the enemy more than the promise of God.

The sovereignty of God must settle the heart of every soldier. God rules over our lives, our battles, our assignments, our seasons, and our enemies. No darkness can overrule His purpose. If He sends us, He will sustain us. If He commands us, He will back us. If He promises victory, no enemy can stand before Him. However, this sense of assurance does not mean we should be careless. Joshua still acted. He moved all night. He took the people of war and the mighty men of valour because faith does not remove responsibility. However, Joshua moved without fear because the Lord had spoken and he acted from confidence in God, not panic before the enemy.

4. God Fights with His People And His Power over Nature: Joshua responded to the cry of Gibeon and went up from Gilgal with all the people of war and all the mighty men of valour. The Lord had spoken, and Joshua obeyed. Then the Bible says, "And the LORD discomfited them before Israel." The word "discomfited" means that God threw the enemy into confusion, panic, disorder, and terror. The enemies plans broke down, their coordination failed, their confidence melted away, and they became unable to fight effectively. What Israel could not have achieved by military strength, the Lord accomplished, by supernaturally troubling the enemy camp and turning their strengths into weakness before His people. This is the secret of divine victory when we allow the Lord to fight for us as we follow His leading.

The battle at Gibeon also teaches that God enlists creation for His redemptive agenda. As the Lord cast down great stones from heaven, Joshua spoke, commanding the sun to stand still over Gibeon and the moon over the valley of Ajalon. Nature submitted perfectly to fulfill God's purpose, proving that the Creator of all things can command all things, influencing weather, solar systems, timing, seasons, and resources for His glory. Remarkably, this event aligns with modern science. A 2017 study by Cambridge University researchers re-examined the original Hebrew text, revealing that the phrase translated as "stand still" (dôm) can linguistically mean "to stop shining." By recalculating ancient planetary orbits, scientists confirmed that a rare annular solar eclipse passed directly over Canaan on October 30, 1207 BCE, providing a concrete, scientifically verifiable anchor for the biblical timeline.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Expect resistance: Do not be surprised when opposition rises as you pursue soul-winning, discipleship, holiness, prayer, and revival.
- Discern territorial battles: Recognise that some challenges are not merely personal, but connected to souls, families, campuses, local churches, workplaces, and communities being reclaimed for Christ.
- Do not fight people as enemies: Remember that we wrestle not against flesh and blood. Love people, but confront the spiritual forces behind bondage and resistance through prayer.

- Put on the whole armour of God: Stand in truth, righteousness, faith, salvation, the Word of God, and prayer. Do not face battles with carelessness or compromise.
- Practise corporate intercession: Organise prayer burdens around families, local churches, campuses, workplaces, communities, cities, nations and unsaved souls.
- Stand from victory, not fear: Pray knowing that Christ has already conquered. Warfare prayer is not panic but it is enforcing victory through faith on what Christ has done already.
- Remain aligned with God: Check your motives, methods, obedience, holiness, and submission. God fights with those who stand in His will.
- Trust God for unusual help: Believe that God can command circumstances, timing, opportunities, resources, and even creation to serve His redemptive purpose.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why did the five kings gather themselves together against Gibeon?
2. What does this battle teach us about opposition to soul-winning, revival, and territorial possession?
3. Why must TACEFites avoid fear when resistance multiplies?
4. How can we fight spiritual warfare from the standpoint of victory rather than fear?
5. Why are corporate intercession and warfare prayers important for breaking territorial yokes?
6. What does the sun standing still teach us about God's authority over creation and circumstances?

Personal Reflection

Do I become afraid when opposition multiplies? Do I understand that the mandate of winning souls and possessing territories for Christ will attract resistance? Am I fighting people instead of confronting spiritual forces in prayer? Am I putting on the whole armour of God daily, or am I facing battles with carelessness, compromise, and prayerlessness? Do I spend time in long intercession for my family, local fellowship, church, campus, workplace, community, city and nation? Am I standing in obedience and alignment with God, or am I asking God to fight for me while I remain in self-will? Do I believe that God can command nature, circumstances, timing, resources, and creation for His redemptive purpose and for our good?

Prayer Points

1. Lord, deliver me from fear when opposition multiplies around my life, family, fellowship, church, campus, workplace, business and community.
2. Father, teach me to understand spiritual warfare without panic or carelessness.
3. Lord, open my eyes to discern territorial forces resisting salvation, revival, discipleship, and the advancement of Your Kingdom.
4. Father, clothe me with the whole armour of God so that I may stand against the wiles of the devil.
5. Father, let every network of darkness against Your purpose over my life, destiny and life assignment be destroyed by the authority of Christ.
6. Lord, command circumstances, seasons, resources, opportunities, and all creation to serve Your redemptive agenda and bring glory to Your name over my life and the mandate of revival.

Week 18 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 28 December 2026

- The mandate of winning souls and possessing the land attracts opposition. I will not be moved or discouraged when resistance rises as God's purpose advances.
- Darkness resists territories being reclaimed for Christ. Father, strengthen me to stand for souls of men and not to yield to forces of oppositions in Jesus' name.
- Lord, teach me the principles of spiritual warfare, not from fear, but from the victory that is already mine in Christ.

Tuesday, 29 December 2026

- Enemies can unite against God's agenda for my life, family and mandate of revival, but no coalition of the devil can cancel divine purpose.
- The five kings gathered against Gibeon, but the Lord had already spoken victory to Joshua. Father, help me to trust Your Word above the size of the battle.
- It does not matter how many they are. One with God is a majority. Lord, make me bold in Your promise.

Wednesday, 30 December 2026

- We wrestle not against flesh and blood. I will not treat people as the enemies, but I will confront spiritual forces in prayer and sustained spiritual warfare
- Principalities, powers, rulers of darkness, and spiritual wickedness cannot withstand the authority of Christ. Lord, teach me to stand in the whole armour of God.
- Father, give TACEF discernment to identify and break territorial yokes resisting salvation, revival, holiness, and discipleship.

Thursday, 31 December 2026

- Fear must not control the revival army when resistance multiplies. The Lord said to Joshua, "Fear them not."
- I will not be ruled by fear, discouragement, intimidation, or the size of opposition. Father, settle my heart in Your sovereignty.
- Lord, help me to move in obedience like Joshua, not in panic, but in confidence that You fight with Your people.

Friday, 1 January 2027

- Happy New Year to all TACEFites! Welcome to 2027!
- The sun stood still for divine purpose. Creation answers to God's redemptive agenda and submits to His desire to bring glory to His name.
- Father, in this New Year 2027, let all circumstances, timing, resources, opportunities, and all creation serve Your purpose in my life, family, and in the great house of TACEF.
- I receive grace to stand firm when opposition multiplies. Lord, make me strong in You, clothed with Your armour, fearless in battle, and faithful in the mandate of revival.

Saturday, 2 January 2027

- Like the five kings, every network of darkness resisting the fulfilment of God's will in my life in this New Year 2027, is defeated. I rise in faith and declare my victory in Jesus' name.
- Surely, they shall gather, but because their gathering is not of the Lord, they shall fall for my sake in Jesus' name.
- Every alliance of men or spirits seeking to stop the mandate of revival in our church and the move of God in our generation is frustrated, scattered, and destroyed in Jesus' name.

Week 19: Monday, 4 January 2027 to Sunday, 10 January 2027

Title: The Hidden Kings and Unfinished Battles: Giving No Place to the Devil

Bible Texts: Joshua 10:16-43; Ephesians 4:27; Ephesians 5:11

Bible Texts

Joshua 10:16-43: 16 But these five kings fled, and hid themselves in a cave at Makkedah. 17 And it was told Joshua, saying, The five kings are found hid in a cave at Makkedah. 18 And Joshua said, Roll great stones upon the mouth of the cave, and set men by it for to keep them: 19 And stay ye not, but pursue after your enemies, and smite the hindmost of them; suffer them not to enter into their cities: for the LORD your God hath delivered them into your hand. 20 And it came to pass, when Joshua and the children of Israel had made an end of slaying them with a very great slaughter, till they were consumed, that the rest which remained of them entered into fenced cities. 21 And all the people returned to the camp to Joshua at Makkedah in peace: none moved his tongue against any of the children of Israel. 22 Then said Joshua, Open the mouth of the cave, and bring out those five kings unto me out of the cave. 23 And they did so, and brought forth those five kings unto him out of the cave, the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, and the king of Eglon. 24 And it came to pass, when they brought out those kings unto Joshua, that Joshua called for all the men of Israel, and said unto the captains of the men of war which went with him, Come near, put your feet upon the necks of these kings. And they came near, and put their feet upon the necks of them. 25 And Joshua said unto them, Fear not, nor be dismayed, be strong and of good courage: for thus shall the LORD do to all your enemies against whom ye fight. 26 And afterward Joshua smote them, and slew them, and hanged them on five trees: and they were hanging upon the trees until the evening. 27 And it came to pass at the time of the going down of the sun, that Joshua commanded, and they took them down off the trees, and cast them into the cave wherein they had been hid, and laid great stones in the cave's mouth, which remain until this very day. 28 And that day Joshua took Makkedah, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and the king thereof he utterly destroyed, them, and all the souls that were therein; he let none remain: and he did to the king of Makkedah as he did unto the king of Jericho. 29 Then, Joshua passed from Makkedah, and all Israel with him, unto Libnah, and fought against Libnah: 30 And the LORD delivered it also, and the king thereof, into the hand of Israel; and he smote it with the edge of the sword, and all the souls that were therein; he let none remain in it; but did unto the king thereof as he did unto the king of Jericho. 31 And Joshua passed from Libnah, and all Israel with him, unto Lachish, and encamped against it, and fought against it: 32 And the LORD delivered Lachish into the hand of Israel, which took it on the second day, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and all the souls that were therein, according to all that he had done to Libnah. 33 Then Horam king of Gezer came up to help Lachish; and Joshua smote him and his people, until he had left him none remaining. 34 And from Lachish Joshua passed unto Eglon, and all Israel with him; and they encamped against it, and fought against it: 35 And they took it on that day, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and all the souls that were therein he utterly destroyed that day, according to all that he had done to Lachish. 36 And Joshua went up from Eglon, and all Israel with him, unto Hebron; and they fought against it: 37 And they took it, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and the king thereof, and all the cities thereof, and all the souls that were therein; he left none remaining, according to all that he had done to Eglon; but destroyed it utterly, and all the souls that were therein. 38 And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, to Debir; and fought against it: 39 And he took it, and the king thereof, and all the cities thereof; and they smote them with the edge of the sword, and utterly destroyed all the souls that were therein; he left none remaining: as he had done to Hebron, so he did to Debir, and to the king thereof; as he had done also to Libnah, and to her king. 40 So Joshua smote all the country of the hills, and of the south, and of the vale, and of the springs, and all their kings: he left none remaining, but utterly destroyed all that breathed, as the LORD God of Israel commanded. 41 And Joshua smote them from Kadeshbarnea even unto Gaza, and all the country of Goshen, even unto Gibeon. 42 And all these kings and their land did Joshua take at one time, because the LORD God of Israel fought for Israel. 43 And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, unto the camp to Gilgal.

Ephesians 4:27: 27 Neither give place to the devil.

Ephesians 5:11: 11 And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- These five kings fled and hid themselves in a cave at Makkedah.
- Roll great stones upon the mouth of the cave.
- Stay ye not, but pursue after your enemies.

- Suffer them not to enter into their cities.
- Bring out those five kings unto me out of the cave.
- Fear not, nor be dismayed, be strong and of good courage.
- The LORD God of Israel fought for Israel.
- Neither give place to the devil.
- Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them.

Introduction

This week takes a further deep dive into the battle that began when the five kings gathered themselves against Gibeon. After the Lord discomfited the enemies before Israel and fought for His people, the five kings fled and hid themselves in a cave at Makkedah. Their armies had been defeated, but the kings were still alive and hidden. Joshua did not ignore them or pretend that the battle was fully over. He ordered that great stones be rolled upon the mouth of the cave where the kings were hidden and that men should keep them there, while Israel continued to pursue the remaining enemies. Later, Joshua commanded that the kings be brought out of the cave and dealt with openly.

This principle in spiritual warfare teaches us that we must not start celebrating victory when the battle is not yet fully over. Every remaining threat must be dealt with completely. The hidden kings represent strong forces that are behind the scene who sustain the open opposition. A battle may appear to have been won outwardly, while the deeper rulers of that spiritual battle remain untouched. This is why the Lord's army must not be satisfied with partial victory. God does not call us to manage what He has commanded us to conquer. Joshua did not allow the five kings to remain hidden in the cave. He brought them out and ended their influence. In the same way, TACEFites must not allow any "king" of immorality, covetousness, unforgiveness, bitterness, lust, pride, dishonesty, spiritual laziness, wrong relationships, or secret compromise to rule over our lives.

Ephesians explains this clearly with two clear warnings. First, "Neither give place to the devil." This means believers must not create openings, spaces, footholds, permissions, or access points through which the enemy can operate and sustain their influence. Second, "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them." This means darkness must not be tolerated, managed, excused, entertained, or covered. It must be exposed by the light of Christ and judged by the Word of God.

Teachings

1. Hidden Kings Must Be Brought Out and Not Allowed to Hide: The five kings fled and hid themselves in a cave at Makkedah. Their armies had been scattered, but the rulers behind the attacks were still alive. If these kings had been left hidden, they could have become a future source of renewed attack and war against Israel. Joshua understood that the battle was not complete simply because the visible enemies had been defeated. The hidden kings had to be brought out.

This is a very important spiritual lesson for all TACEFites. Many people fight outward symptoms while leaving inward rulers untouched. A person may stop a visible habit for a while, but still leave the root of lust, pride, bitterness, greed, fear, unforgiveness, or rebellion hidden in the heart. A fellowship may address outward disorder but fail to deal with the hidden spirit of offence, prayerlessness, worldliness, or disunity operating underneath. A family may settle arguments on the surface but leave unresolved anger, pride, wounds, and unforgiveness hidden in the cave. We must identify and destroy these root causes because if these "kings" remain hidden, they will continue to influence decisions, weaken consecration, and reopen doors the Lord wants closed.

Ephesians says, "Neither give place to the devil." A place can be a small opening, but if it is not dealt with, it can become a stronghold. The devil does not need full ownership to cause damage; he only needs a small access, a crack or a small gap. Therefore, we must not keep hidden spaces where darkness can operate. We must bring such areas into the light through repentance, confession, godly counsel, discipline, and obedience to the Word. Beloved, we must not allow hidden kings to remain in the cave. Ask the Lord to search your heart and bring hidden sin, bitterness, careless habits, wrong relationships, secret compromises, and unfinished obedience into the light for correction. The Lord's army cannot possess territory while secret enemies are still ruling within.

2. Victory Must Be Completed, Not Celebrated Too Early: Joshua did not stop the battle when the five kings hid in the cave. He told the people, "Stay ye not, but pursue after your enemies." This means he understood that victory required completion. He did not allow the army to be distracted by the captured kings while other enemies were escaping. He secured the cave, continued the pursuit, and later returned to deal with the kings. This was discipline, focus, and thoroughness. Many believers lose lasting victory because they celebrate too early. They rejoice after one breakthrough but stop praying. They overcome one temptation but relax their guard. They attend one powerful programme but do not continue in sustaining the encounter. They confess one sin but do not build new spiritual disciplines not fall again. They win one soul but do not follow up. They start a revival prayer siege for their local fellowship but do not sustain it.

Victory must be completed. A student who has begun to overcome laziness must continue until discipline becomes a lifestyle. A believer who has broken away from wrong relationships must also delete all the memories of the ungodly relationship while building an accountability layer. A fellowship that has experienced revival must continue in the teaching, discipleship, and intercession. The Lord's army must learn to finish what God has started. Spiritual victory is not only an event but a continued walk. Deliverance must be followed by discipline. Repentance must be followed by obedience. Restoration must be followed by watchfulness. Revival must be followed by discipleship.

3. Partial Obedience Is Future Danger: Joshua's victory in this text of our study this week is marked by thoroughness and attention to details. Again and again, the Bible says that he left none remaining and acted as the Lord God of Israel commanded. What God commands must not be obeyed halfway. What God says must be judged must not be preserved secretly. Partial obedience is dangerous because it leaves seeds for future trouble. A small secret sin today can become a stronghold for the future. A small offence can become tomorrow's bitterness. A small secret habit can become bondage of a lifetime. A careless casual relationship with an opposite sex outside marriage can become a source of permanent spiritual damage. A tolerated wrong association in business can become a destiny destroyer. What is not dealt with today may rise stronger tomorrow.

As revival army, we must understand that lasting revival requires complete obedience. Revival must be protected by discipline, truth, correction, and obedience. If we keep excusing what God has condemned, we will weaken spiritual grace upon the mandate and if we keep negotiating with the flesh, we will lose boldness to walk in the Spirit. This applies to our personal and corporate lives. In personal life, TACEFites must not give room to hidden sin, ungodly entertainment, wrong relationships, bitterness, pride, laziness, dishonest practices, or get-rich-quick schemes like betting because they are seeds that destroy a glorious future. As a group, we must not tolerate doctrinal errors, gossip, immorality, rebellion, careless leadership, or spiritual shallowness. What is wrong must be corrected in love, truth, and spiritual maturity. Beloved, be thorough in your spiritual walk. Do not manage what God says must die. Do not pamper what God says must be judged.

4. The Revival Army Must Give No Place to the Devil: Ephesians 4:27 gives a direct command: "Neither give place to the devil." This is one of the clearest warnings to believers. The devil looks for a place. He looks for an opening, a little crack and a careless moment. He looks for a foothold. That place may be unresolved anger, secret sin, bitterness, pride, lies, lust, unforgiveness, disobedience, careless friendship, corrupt communication, prayerlessness, or compromise. Once a place is given, influence begins. Ephesians 5:11 adds, "And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them." This means that we must not be friendly with darkness. We must not condemn sin in others while hiding it in ourselves. We must not excuse what God calls unfruitful works of darkness. Darkness must be brought into the light and reprovved by truth.

This calls for honest personal examination. Is there any king hiding in the cave of my heart? Is there a habit that has not been surrendered? Is there bitterness being protected? Is there a secret sin weakening my prayer life? Is there an ungodly relationship that keeps pulling my heart away from God? Is there a form of entertainment, conversation, appetite, or online behaviour that is opening a door to the enemy?

The Lord Jesus has redeemed us to walk in light, not darkness. We must refuse every foothold of the enemy and submit every area of life to Christ. We must give no place to the devil. Close every door. Bring every hidden king into the light. Have no fellowship with darkness. Walk in truth, purity, discipline, and complete obedience. The army that will possess the land must not be ruled by hidden kings.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Ask God to reveal hidden kings: Pray sincerely for the Lord to expose secret sins, wrong desires, unresolved bitterness, hidden pride, careless habits, and unfinished obedience.
- Do not manage what God says must die: Stop negotiating with habits, relationships, entertainments, associations, appetites, and compromises that weaken your walk with God.

- Complete every unfinished obedience: Return to instructions God has already given you concerning prayer, restitution, service, forgiveness, discipline, study, giving, witnessing, or consecration.
- Do not celebrate too early: After a testimony, continue in prayer, Word study, watchfulness, accountability, and obedience.
- Close every door to the devil: Avoid anything that gives the enemy access through anger, lust, bitterness, dishonesty, pride, fear, rebellion, or careless associations.
- Bring darkness into the light: Confess sin to God, seek godly help where needed, and allow the Word to correct what has been hidden.
- Practise spiritual thoroughness: Deal with root issues, not only outward symptoms. Ask what is feeding the weakness, not only what is showing outside.
- Protect corporate revival: Fellowships must lovingly and firmly correct sin, doctrinal error, immorality, gossip, and rebellion before they weaken the whole army.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why was it important for Joshua to bring the five hidden kings out of the cave?
2. What are examples of “hidden kings” that can rule a believer secretly today?
3. Why is it dangerous to celebrate victory while threats remain?
4. What does Ephesians 4:27 mean when it says, “Neither give place to the devil”?
5. What does it mean to have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness?
6. How can TACEFites deal thoroughly with secret sin, bitterness, careless relationships, and spiritual laziness?

Personal Reflection

Are there hidden kings in my life that I have allowed to remain in the cave to dominate my thoughts, emotions and lifestyle? Am I dealing only with outward symptoms while protecting inward roots? Have I celebrated any victory too early and relaxed in prayer, holiness, discipline, or accountability? Is there any area where I am obeying God halfway? Have I given place to the devil through unresolved anger, bitterness, lust, pride, dishonesty, careless relationships, spiritual laziness, pornography or secret sins? Am I having fellowship with any unfruitful work of darkness? What instruction from God remains unfinished in my life? What must I bring into the light before it becomes a future danger?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, expose every hidden king in my life and bring every secret enemy of my soul into the light.
2. Lord, deliver me from secret sins, unresolved bitterness, careless relationships, spiritual laziness, and unfinished obedience.
3. Father, help me not to celebrate too early while threats remain. Teach me to continue in prayer, watchfulness, and obedience.
4. Father, help me not to manage or keep what You have commanded me to conquer, kill and eliminate.
5. Lord, close every door I have opened to the devil through sin, ungodly relationships, anger, lust, sexual immorality, fear, or disobedience.
6. Father, help TACEFites to have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but to walk in truth, holiness, love, and correction.

Week 19 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 4 January 2027

- The five kings hid in a cave, but Joshua brought them out. Father, expose every hidden sin, weakness, satanic pattern, and compromise in me.
- Hidden kings must be brought out. I will not allow private sins to dominate my life.
- Lord, give me courage to bring all hidden king sponsoring sins and immoralities in my life and to expose them unto the light through repentance, truth, correction, and obedience.

Tuesday, 5 January 2027

- Victory must be completed, not celebrated prematurely while threats remain. I will not relax because one battle has been won.

- Joshua said, “Stay ye not, but pursue after your enemies.” Father, help me to continue in prayer, discipline, and obedience until Your instruction is done and full victory is secured.
- Lord, deliver me from careless celebration that stops watchfulness, weakens consecration, or abandons unfinished battles.

Wednesday, 6 January 2027

- Partial obedience is future danger. I will not obey God halfway and call it faithfulness.
- Small compromise can become a stronghold. Father, help me to deal with every seed of future trouble before it grows.
- Lord, give me grace for complete obedience in my thoughts, habits, relationships, service, marriage, business, studies, work, leadership, and private life.

Thursday, 7 January 2027

- God does not call me to manage what He has commanded me to conquer, kill and destroy. I will not negotiate with what weakens my walk with Him.
- I will not manage sexual immorality, covetousness, bitterness, pride, lust, dishonesty, unforgiveness, rebellion, or spiritual laziness. Father, help me to put away what You have condemned.
- Lord, make me thorough in repentance, disciplined in obedience, and faithful in holiness.

Friday, 8 January 2027

- Neither give place to the devil. I will not create openings for the enemy through unresolved secret sin, wrong relationships, or other acts of compromise.
- Father, close every door I have opened through carelessness, disobedience, fear, or ungodly appetite.
- I refuse every foothold of darkness in my heart, home, and destiny. Lord, keep me walking in the light of Christ.

Saturday, 9 January 2027

- I will have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness but will reprove them by the light of Christ.
- Father, help TACEF to protect revival mandate through holiness, truth, correction, love, discipline, and complete obedience.
- I receive grace to bring out every hidden king, close every door to the devil, and possess the land with thoroughness, discipline, and obedience.

Week 20: Monday, 11 January 2027 to Sunday, 17 January 2027

Tarry Week for Reflections and Prayer

Daily Reflective Prayer Declarations

Monday, 11 January 2027

- I am called to return every victory to God's altar. I will not allow success, breakthrough, open doors, or answered prayers to take me away from intimate fellowship, humility, and obedience. Lord, let every victory draw me deeper into fellowship with You.
- I am a Word-shaped soldier in Christ. I will not live by activities or excitement without the Word of God. I receive grace to be deeply rooted in the Word, sound in doctrine, and obedient in daily living.

Tuesday, 12 January 2027

- I am called to walk circumspectly, not as a fool, but as wise. I will not make decisions by appearance, pressure, emotion, urgency, profit, or attractive packaging. Lord, teach me to prove what is acceptable unto You.
- I am a discerning soldier in Christ. I will not be deceived by old bread, false identity, spiritual pretence, peaceful offers, or good-looking opportunities. Father, help me to seek Your counsel before every relationship, partnership, career, business, ministry, and life decision.

Wednesday, 13 January 2027

- I am led by the Spirit and governed by the Word of God. Human judgement alone is not enough for my journey. Lord, deliver me from prayerless decisions, rash agreement, thoughtless commitments, and unguided alliances that can become long-term problems.
- I am a child of light in Christ. I will have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness. I receive grace to walk in truth, godly counsel, spiritual discernment, and accurate obedience.

Thursday, 14 January 2027

- I am strong in the Lord and in the power of His might. I will not fear when opposition multiplies, when enemies gather, or when darkness resists the mandate of revival. Lord, strengthen my heart to stand firm in Your victory.
- I am clothed with the whole armour of God. I know that we wrestle not against flesh and blood. I will love people, but I will confront principalities, powers, rulers of darkness, and spiritual wickedness in prayer.

Friday, 15 January 2027

- I am part of God's revival army, and I will not retreat because opposition has increased. One with God is a majority. Father, teach me to fight from the standpoint of victory, not fear, panic, pride, or fleshly confidence.
- I am aligned with God in obedience, submission, and prayer. Lord, fight with us as we stand for souls of men. Let every network of darkness against Your purpose be scattered in Jesus' name.

Saturday, 16 January 2027

- I will not allow hidden kings to remain in the cave of my heart. Lord, expose every secret sin, bitterness, pride, lust, covetousness, unforgiveness, spiritual laziness, careless relationship, and unfinished obedience.
- I will give no place to the devil. I will not manage what God has commanded me to destroy. I receive grace to bring every hidden battle into the light, close every door to darkness, and walk in complete obedience, holiness, discipline, and victory.

SECTION 5: How God's Army Must Grow in Consecration, Endurance, Testimony, and Expanding Burden for More Land

The journey of God's end-time army now enters a wider and deeper phase of possession. After Jericho, Ai, the Gibeonite deception, the southern coalition, and the hidden kings, Israel was not permitted to relax as though the work was finished. A new and larger northern coalition arose against them. Joshua also had to fight a long war, record the defeated kings, and later hear from the Lord that there still remained very much land to be possessed. This teaches us that spiritual progress does not remove the need for vigilance. Bigger victories can attract bigger battles. Greater enlargement requires deeper consecration. Early success must not become the burial ground of future obedience.

As God enlarges His army, He also deepens its dependence on Him. The battle that came after earlier victories required fresh courage, fresh obedience, and fresh leading. The long war required endurance beyond seasonal excitement. The list of defeated kings became a written testimony of God's power over named enemies and specific territories. Yet, the reminder that there remained very much land taught Israel not to confuse progress with completion. God's people must not measure the mandate only by what has been achieved; we must also be burdened by what remains unfinished.

This series of four studies calls TACEFites to mature beyond early excitement into sustained kingdom responsibility. We must not relax after early success, because the enemy does not easily give up territories. We must not abandon our duty posts because results appear slow. We must remember and document the victories of the Lord, because testimonies strengthen future faith and teach the next generation. We must not settle too early, because there are still souls to win, youths to disciple, children to nurture, local churches to strengthen, campuses to recover, families to restore, and communities to reach. The land belongs to the Lord, but there remains very much land to be possessed.

Week 21: The Northern Coalition - Deeper Consecration for Bigger Battles: After Jericho, Ai, and the southern kings, another coalition gathered against Israel. This teaches that progress often attracts resistance, and bigger victories can bring bigger battles. When God begins to enlarge a life, fellowship, career, business, marriage, prayer altar, or soul-winning burden, increased pressure should not surprise us. TACEFites must not relax after early success.

Week 22: Joshua's Long War - Endurance in Labouring for Lasting Revival: Joshua 11:18 reminds us that Joshua made war a long time with those kings. Possession is not always instant, and lasting revival is not sustained by short term momentum. Some mission assignment, local church challenges, campus fields, family situations, academic goals, career journeys, and spiritual growth processes require long path to victory. Ephesians teaches us to stand after doing all, while Galatians reminds us not to be weary in well doing. TACEFites must not abandon their duty posts too early, even when transformation is slow, results delay, or labour feels hidden.

Week 23: The Defeated Kings - Remembering the Victories of Christ Over Every Power: Joshua 12 is not merely a historical list; it is a written testimony of conquest and a theological record of God's sovereignty. The naming of kings and territories shows that God defeats specific enemies, both small and great. In the light of Ephesians, these defeated kings point us to Christ, who is exalted far above all principality, power, might, dominion, and every name. TACEFites must learn to record and remember victories, souls saved, youths disciplined, prayers answered, families restored, fellowships revived, and battles overcome, because testimonies strengthen future faith and become teaching tools for the next generation.

Week 24: There Remaineth Yet Very Much Land - The Danger of Settling Too Early: Joshua 13:1 teaches that age, experience, and past success do not mean the work is finished. Israel had truly advanced, but advancement was not the same as full possession. Ephesians calls believers into the fullness of God, reminding us that God's purpose is larger than our present achievement. TACEFites must not settle into celebration while there are still unreached souls, weak local churches, neglected campuses, undisciplined children, wounded families, and communities waiting for the light of Christ. The unfinished work should not make us hopeless; it should drive us back to prayer, planning, evangelism, discipleship, and renewed obedience.

Week 21: Monday, 18 January 2027 to Sunday, 24 January 2027

Title: The Northern Coalition: Deeper Consecration for Bigger Battles

Bible Texts: Joshua 11:1-15; Ephesians 6:10-18

Bible Texts

Joshua 11:1-15: 1 And it came to pass, when Jabin king of Hazor had heard those things, that he sent to Jobab king of Madon, and to the king of Shimron, and to the king of Achshaph, 2 And to the kings that were on the north of the mountains, and of the plains south of Chinneroth, and in the valley, and in the borders of Dor on the west, 3 And to the Canaanite on the east and on the west, and to the Amorite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite, and the Jebusite in the mountains, and to the Hivite under Hermon in the land of Mizpeh. 4 And they went out, they and all their hosts with them, much people, even as the sand that is upon the sea shore in multitude, with horses and chariots very many. 5 And when all these kings were met together, they came and pitched together at the waters of Merom, to fight against Israel. 6 And the LORD said unto Joshua, Be not afraid because of them: for tomorrow about this time will I deliver them up all slain before Israel: thou shalt hough their horses, and burn their chariots with fire. 7 So Joshua came, and all the people of war with him, against them by the waters of Merom suddenly; and they fell upon them. 8 And the LORD delivered them into the hand of Israel, who smote them, and chased them unto great Zidon, and unto Misrephothmaim, and unto the valley of Mizpeh eastward; and they smote them, until they left them none remaining. 9 And Joshua did unto them as the LORD bade him: he houghed their horses, and burnt their chariots with fire. 10 And Joshua at that time turned back, and took Hazor, and smote the king thereof with the sword: for Hazor beforetime was the head of all those kingdoms. 11 And they smote all the souls that were therein with the edge of the sword, utterly destroying them: there was not any left to breathe: and he burnt Hazor with fire. 12 And all the cities of those kings, and all the kings of them, did Joshua take, and smote them with the edge of the sword, and he utterly destroyed them, as Moses the servant of the LORD commanded. 13 But as for the cities that stood still in their strength, Israel burned none of them, save Hazor only; that did Joshua burn. 14 And all the spoil of these cities, and the cattle, the children of Israel took for a prey unto themselves; but every man they smote with the edge of the sword, until they had destroyed them, neither left they any to breathe. 15 As the LORD commanded Moses his servant, so did Moses command Joshua, and so did Joshua; he left nothing undone of all that the LORD commanded Moses.

Ephesians 6:10-18: 10 Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. 11 Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. 12 For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. 13 Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand. 14 Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness; 15 And your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace; 16 Above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked. 17 And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God: 18 Praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- They came and pitched together at the waters of Merom, to fight against Israel.
- Be not afraid because of them.
- Tomorrow about this time will I deliver them up all slain before Israel.
- Joshua did unto them as the LORD bade him.
- He left nothing undone of all that the LORD commanded Moses.
- Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.
- Put on the whole armour of God.
- Watching thereunto with all perseverance.

Introduction

As we progress into our studies into the making of an exceeding great army, our study this week explores another major battle in Israel's journey of possession. After Jericho, Ai, the southern kings, and the hidden kings had been defeated, another group of cities formed a coalition and rose from the north against Israel. Jabin king of Hazor gathered many kings, many people, horses, and chariots in very great number. The Bible says they were "much people, even as the sand that is upon the sea shore in multitude." This was not a small battle. It was a larger, more organised, and more intimidating opposition. The progress of God's people had attracted more enemies on their journey to their Promised Land. The victories of yesterday had not ended the battles of tomorrow.

This study into the northern coalition teaches us that bigger victories often attract bigger battles. As God enlarges a life, fellowship, family, career, business, ministry, or revival mandate, new levels of challenges, temptations and oppositions may also arise. When God begins to use a person, the demands of consecration increase. When a fellowship begins to grow, the need for watchfulness increases. When a believer moves into new responsibility in his career or gets promoted, the battle also expands. This does not mean God is absent but it shows the need to grow deeper in Christ.

Ephesians deepens this lesson by commanding believers to be strong in the Lord and in the power of His might. It does not say we should be strong in our past victories, titles, intelligence, strategies, achievements or confidence. It says we must be strong in the Lord. As battles become more complex, the whole armour of God becomes necessary. Truth, righteousness, the gospel of peace, faith, salvation, the Word of God, prayer, watchfulness, perseverance, and supplication in the Spirit are required for every new level of warfare and life demands. Spiritual advancement brings new dimensions of warfare, and new battles demand deeper roots in Christ. This study teaches TACEFites how to seek God afresh for every season because God gives specific strategies for new levels, not mere repetition of old methods. Every lifting we receive comes with a greater responsibility, deeper dependence on God, and renewed submission to the Holy Spirit.

Teachings

1. Bigger Victories Attract Bigger Battles, Requiring Deeper Roots in Christ: After many victories had been won, Israel faced another combined enemy from the north. Jabin king of Hazor did not come alone. He sent to many kings, and they gathered with much people, horses, and chariots. Their number was described as the sand upon the sea shore in multitude. This shows that the battle had moved to another level. Israel had progressed, and the attacks by the enemy had also intensified. We must therefore understand that when God begins to enlarge a life in his career, local church, community, campus, or workplace, the demands and pressure will also increase.

For example, a firebrand local church or campus fellowship doing great work in discipleship may suddenly face distractions, offences, leadership pressures, and spiritual attacks. A brother who has just been promoted to a managerial role at work may begin to have less time for quiet time or fellowship with the brethren. Another brother who has started a new business or start-up may spend most of his time building the business, managing staff, and carrying the pressure of paying salaries, and this can create great spiritual tension. A sister whose singing ministry has been favoured by the Lord may become so busy with different invitations to the extent that she becomes detached from accountable spiritual oversight and no longer maintains a consistent prayer life. A brother appointed as a Church Warden may also become so occupied with multiple church meetings that he no longer has time to join the local fellowship, spend time with his family, follow-up converts or sustain personal quiet time of prayer and study of the Word of God.

2. Courage Must Grow with Kingdom Assignment: When the northern coalition gathered with much people, horses, and chariots, the situation could have intimidated Israel. They had seen victories before, but this battle looked bigger and more organised. Yet, the Lord spoke to Joshua again, saying, "Be not afraid because of them." This shows that fear can return even after earlier victories if the heart begins to focus on the size of the opposition rather than the faithfulness of God. Therefore, our boldness in the Lord must mature with assignment. The courage needed at Jericho was real, but the courage needed at Merom to meet this bigger battle also had to be renewed. Every new level demands fresh courage. A believer who trusted God yesterday must still trust Him today. A brother or sister who was strong in his or her day on campus must remain stronger even during youth service or when in the workplace or marriage. No season of life must diminish our consistent courage in our walk of faith because courage is not something we use once and abandon but something that must grow as the assignment grows.

Fear often comes back when we face a new kind of battle, one that is different from what we have faced before. Israel had fought Jericho, Ai, and the southern kings, but now they were facing horses, chariots, many kings, and a multitude like the sand of the sea. New kinds of opposition can awaken old fears. New responsibilities can expose hidden anxieties. New seasons can make people feel unprepared. But the Word of the Lord remains the same: "Be not afraid." A brother who maintained a strong level of discipline as a single person may face a new demand after marriage, as he learns to adjust to his wife's style, builds a new rhythm together, and embrace their future without fear or unnecessary tension. A firebrand sister on campus may also face unfamiliar battles during National Youth Service (NYSC), especially when she is posted to a heavily compromised workplace where integrity, purity, and faith are constantly tested. She must now learn to maintain spiritual discipline when no one is watching, stand for Christ without the support structure she enjoyed on campus, and remain faithful in prayer, holiness, and witness in a new environment.

Also, someone who has always enjoyed perfect health may begin to notice new health issues as age increases, and fear may begin to whisper thoughts of serious or terminal disease every day. Every symptom searched on the internet may deepen that fear and make the person imagine the worst. Such a person must learn to trust God in a new season, seek proper medical care without fear, avoid feeding anxiety through constant online searches, and refuse to allow fear to replace faith, peace, and daily dependence on the Lord. As a member of the Lord's exceeding great army, we must not be controlled by fear when new battles come. Always remember that the God who brought you through earlier battles can carry you through new ones.

3. God Gives Fresh Strategy, but His Army Must Not Adopt the Enemy's Methods: The Lord gave Joshua a specific instruction for this new battle: "You must cut the legs of their horses so that they cannot run well. You must also burn their chariots." (Easy Bible Version). This was a precise strategy for the kind of battle before them. God did not only promise victory; He also gave instruction on what to do with the instruments of enemy strength. The horses and chariots represented the speed, strength, confidence, sophistication, and military advantage of the enemy. Naturally, Israel could have thought, "These are powerful tools and valuable technologies. Let us keep them for future battles." But God commanded them to destroy the horses and burn the chariots. This teaches us that the Lord's army must not adopt or adapt the enemy's methods simply because they look sophisticated, attractive, or useful. God was teaching Israel not to transfer confidence from Him to captured strength. In the same way, we must be careful when the methods of the world look exciting to us. Always remember that our exposure to the enemy's sophistication and knowledge must not become permission to yield our dependence on them.

This applies in many practical ways. A fellowship may begin to copy worldly entertainment methods to attract youths, until it gets to a point that holiness message, prayer, holiness, doctrine, and discipleship are pushed aside. A music minister may accept every platform because it gives visibility and access to collect honorarium, but slowly lose his prayer life and the fear of God. A preacher may adopt motivational language that excites people but removes the cross and sound doctrine of salvation. A business owner may adopt a strategy that promises growth but requires exaggeration, manipulation, bribery, or dishonest positioning. A professional may begin to copy workplace politics, flattery, compromise, and ungodly networking because "that is how things are done." These are horses and chariots that look useful, but can become paths of backsliding. Beloved, when the Lord gives instructions on what must be rejected, destroyed, and not carried into the next battle, do not try to keep the enemy's chariots because they look advanced. Do not preserve what God has commanded you to burn.

4. Obedience Must Remain Complete Even When Battles Become Complex: Joshua obeyed the Lord fully in the northern battle. The Scripture says, "So Joshua did to them as the LORD had told him." It also says, "He left nothing undone of all that the LORD commanded Moses." These are powerful statements as we learned how Joshua remained obedient to what God said. Complexity did not become an excuse for partial or no obedience. The presence of advanced enemy resources did not make Joshua adjust God's instruction.

When battles become complex, the temptation to modify God's instruction becomes strong. People may want to use natural wisdom to manage what God has commanded them to let go. They may want to obey only the convenient part of divine instruction and keep what seems useful to them. This was the danger before Israel. The horses and chariots looked valuable, but God said they must be destroyed. If Israel had kept them, what looked like military advantage could have become spiritual danger. Like Achan, who saw, desired, took, and hid what God had forbidden, believers can also begin to treasure what God has clearly condemned because it looks profitable, attractive, modern, or strategic.

This lesson is very relevant to us all as revival army today with many everyday temptations to want to adapt to the horses and chariots of the world. A young professional may be told to "package" false experience on a CV, inflate results, or manipulate reports in order to advance quickly and a Christian minister may begin to use emotional manipulation, heavily funded social media deceptions or celebrity culture to build influence instead of focusing on the Word, prayer, discipleship, and the Spirit of God. Beloved, be careful when new methods, platforms, relationships, technologies, networks, or opportunities begin to reduce your dependence on God. Do not adjust divine instruction to satisfy personal interest. Always keep your confidence in the Lord, not in the horses and chariots of the enemy.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Do not relax after early success: Keep praying, watching, learning, and obeying, even after victories, testimonies, growth, or breakthroughs.
- Grow deeper as responsibility increases: When God enlarges your influence, career, business, fellowship, or ministry, respond with deeper consecration, not pride, excuses or carelessness.
- Resist the return of fear: Do not allow bigger battles, new pressures, or stronger opposition to make you forget God's past faithfulness.
- Seek God afresh for each season: Ask for fresh leading before outreaches, fellowship plans, leadership decisions, career steps, business moves, family matters, and personal commitments.
- Burn the chariots of the enemy: Do not be intimidated into copying or adopting the so-called sophisticated methods of the enemy. God has His own method; learn to discern it, follow it, and depend on Him fully
- Obey completely: Do not keep what God says to remove, burn, cut off, or surrender. Partial obedience weakens lasting victory.

Questions for Discussion

1. What did the northern coalition of more enemies with more advanced weapons teach us about how the enemy responds to our progress and enlargement?
2. What are some of the examples of the horses and chariots of the enemies that we are adopting and adapting to as individuals and as a fellowship?
3. Why must TACEFites seek God afresh for each season and not rely only on former methods?
4. What does Joshua's obedience teach us about leaving nothing undone?
5. Why did God command Joshua to destroy the horses and burn the chariots?
6. How can TACEF deepen consecration as the revival mandate enlarges?

Personal Reflection

Have I relaxed because of earlier victories, testimonies, or successes? Do I lose my spiritual grip when bigger assignments come with bigger pressures? Is fear returning because the current battle looks different from the previous one? Am I relying on old methods without seeking fresh leading from the Holy Spirit? Do I ask God for strategy before each decision, plan, career step, business move, or family matter? Is there anything God has told me to remove, cut off, or surrender that I am still keeping because it looks useful? Am I adapting the methods and weapons of the enemy in order to feel good and become more accepted?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, deepen my roots in Christ as You enlarge my assignment, influence, service, and responsibility.
2. Father, help me not to fear when bigger battles, stronger oppositions, or new pressures arise.
3. Lord, give me courage that matures with every new assignment You commit to my hands.
4. Father, teach me to seek fresh leading from Your Spirit for every season, fellowship plan, personal decision, career step, relocation plans, financial investments, business partnerships and ministry burden.
5. Lord, help me not to be intimidated into copying or adopting the so-called sophisticated methods of the enemy. I will learn to discern and depend on God fully.
6. Father, help me to obey completely, leaving none of Your commands undone.

Week 21 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 18 January 2027

- Bigger victories can attract bigger battles. I will not be thrown off balance when challenges increase as God enlarges my life, family, career, business, or ministry.
- Progress often attracts opposition. Father, help me not to relax after early success, but to grow deeper in prayer, holiness, obedience, discernment, and the Word.
- Lord, make my roots in Christ deeper than the battles before me. Let every enlargement in my life produce deeper consecration.

Tuesday, 19 January 2027

- Fear must not return after earlier victories. The Lord said to Joshua, "Be not afraid because of them."

- I will not fear the size, number, strength, or complexity of the opposition before me. Father, settle my heart in Your faithfulness.
- Lord, let my courage and my boldness in You mature with my assignment. As responsibility increases, strengthen my faith, wisdom, patience, and obedience.

Wednesday, 20 January 2027

- God gives specific leading and guidance for new levels. I will not rely on former methods, old patterns, or past experiences.
- Fresh battles require fresh obedience and precise leading. Father, teach me to seek You afresh for every season of my life and every assignment given to me.
- Lord, guide my personal decisions, plans, career steps, business moves, and ministry burdens by Your Spirit.

Thursday, 21 January 2027

- Spiritual advancement brings new dimensions of warfare. I must be strong in the Lord and in the power of His might.
- I put on the whole armour of God. I stand in truth, righteousness, faith, salvation, the Word of God, prayer, watchfulness, and perseverance.
- Father, prepare me for the battles that come with enlargements. Make me firm, discerning, and spiritually alert.

Friday, 22 January 2027

- Obedience must remain complete even when battles become complex. Joshua left nothing undone of all that the Lord commanded.
- I will not keep what God has commanded me to remove or destroy. I will not keep what God has told me to burn.
- Lord, deliver me from partial obedience, delayed obedience, convenient obedience, and selective obedience.

Saturday, 23 January 2027

- Every revival army must depend on fresh leading of the Spirit. I will not move by assumption, routine, pride, or old success.
- Father, make TACEF a deeply consecrated army that seeks Your mind for every season, plan, and life's decision.
- I receive grace for deeper consecration and complete alignment with God. Lord, make me ready for bigger battles and to secure greater harvest for the kingdom.

Week 22: Monday, 25 January 2027 to Sunday, 31 January 2027

Title: Joshua's Long War: Endurance in Labouring for Lasting Revival

Bible Texts: Joshua 11:18; Ephesians 6:13; Galatians 6:9

Bible Texts

Joshua 11:18: 18 Joshua made war a long time with all those kings.

Ephesians 6:13: 13 Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand.

Galatians 6:9: 9 And let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- Joshua made war a long time with all those kings.
- Take unto you the whole armour of God.
- That ye may be able to withstand in the evil day.
- Having done all, to stand.
- Let us not be weary in well doing.
- In due season, we shall reap.
- If we faint not.

Introduction

Our study this week x-rays one of the shortest but deepest statements in the book of Joshua: “Joshua made war a long time with all those kings.” After the fall of Jericho, the defeat and restoration at Ai, the southern coalition, the hidden kings, and the northern coalition, the journey of possession still required time, patience, discipline, and endurance. The land was promised, but it was not possessed in one day. The battles were real, the enemies were many, and the process was long. Joshua had to continue until the work assigned to him was accomplished.

This study teaches us that accomplishing things for God is not always instant. Some victories come suddenly, but some labour in His vineyard require long season of obedience. Some battles will fall quickly like the wall of Jericho, but some require years of faithfulness, patience, perseverance, and repeated obedience. This means that the transformation we hope to see in our church, campus, family or community may take time. A family situation we are been trusting God for may require long sustained prayer, such as all your desired academic goals, career growth, business development, and total health recovery may all demand long season of endurance. As a revival army, we must learn that revival is not a sprint for a short time but a marathon for a long-term.

Ephesians deepens this lesson by teaching us that after we have done all, we must stand. Standing is part of warfare. Sometimes victory is not only seen in moving forward quickly but it is also seen in remaining faithful under pressure, abiding during delay and holding strong in God even when we do not understand what is happening. “To stand” means to refuse to abandon one's duty post. It means to continue trusting God in prayer even when results are slow and circumstances are contradicting our hope. This is when we hope against hope and we do not become weary in well doing, because in due season we shall reap if we faint not. This lesson teaches all TACEFites to remain faithful even when transformation looks slow, labour seems unrecognised, and breakthrough results do not come as quickly as expected.

Teachings

1. Possession Is Not Always Instant, and Long Warfare Requires Endurance: Joshua 11:18 says, “Joshua made war a long time with all those kings.” This verse reminds us that even though God had promised Israel the land, possession still required persistent long season of warfare. The promise was real, but the process was long. The inheritance was certain, but the battles had to be fought. God had spoken, but Joshua still had to endure. Many believers struggle because they expect every divine promise to manifest immediately and easily. We want instant transformation, instant growth, instant answers, instant revival, instant change in people, instant open doors, and instant harvest. But the ways of God often require patience. Some prayers require continued faith. Some people require patient discipleship. Some fields require years of sowing before harvest becomes visible.

Long warfare is not a sign that God has failed. Delay is not denial. Slow transformation does not mean the work is useless. The fact that a local church has not changed quickly does not mean the prayer labour of many years is wasted. The fact that a campus field is difficult does not mean the Lord is absent. The fact that a family situation remains challenging after many days of fasting does not mean God is not working. The fact that a business or investment is not picking us as expected does not mean God did not lead us into them.

The Lord often forms endurance in His soldiers through long battles. This is why every revival army must grow in patience and longsuffering as fruits of the Spirit. We must not only be excited when there is visible result but also learn to remain obedient when results are hidden and delayed. Possession requires endurance. Dear TACEFites, do not give up because the transformation is slow. Do not abandon the labour of revival or the divine leading to pursue an entrepreneurial path because the result is delayed. Do not leave your duty post because the battle is long. If God has assigned the work, receive grace to continue.

2. Longsuffering for Long Battles - Sustaining Grace for a Long Journey: Longsuffering is the fourth fruit of the Spirit, and it means more than ordinary patience. It carries the idea of being able to “suffer long,” to remain steady under pressure, to endure delay without giving up, and to continue in obedience even when the process is demanding. It is the grace to stay faithful when results are slow, when the burden is heavy, when people are difficult, and when the promise appears delayed. Therefore, seasonal excitement is not enough for the pursuit of divine purpose. Many people begin well when the atmosphere is charged, when programmes are fresh, when leaders are present, when public attention is strong, or when testimonies come quickly. But the fruit of longsuffering helps us to continue when excitement reduces and the work becomes hard. It keeps a believer serving after the crowd has gone. It keeps a soul-winner following up even when converts are slow to grow. It keeps a leader standing when criticism, fatigue, pressure, and discouragement come.

Joshua did not make war for a short time; he made war a long time. Sarah also waited for the promise. This demand of longsuffering applies to our everyday lives. A local fellowship may start the journey of discipleship with energy, but it takes longsuffering to keep teaching, mentoring, correcting, praying, and visiting people month after month. A young professional may start a career with big dreams, but it takes longsuffering to learn, fail, improve, serve under authority, receive queries and grow without bitterness or grudges. A couple may love each other deeply, but it takes longsuffering to understand differences, forgive quickly, adjust patiently, and build a peaceful home. A person working on health recovery process may begin with motivation, but it takes longsuffering to continue with treatment, exercise, rest, diet, and prayer when progress is slow.

Longsuffering also refines our knowledge of God. Through prolonged labour, delay, pressure, and affliction, God teaches His army to know Him beyond excitement. We learn His faithfulness when results are not immediate. We learn His strength when our own strength is small. We learn His patience when our timetable is not fulfilled. We learn His comfort when the journey is difficult. So, when the Bible speaks of longsuffering as a fruit of the Spirit, it means the Holy Spirit forms in us the capacity to suffer long without losing love, faith, obedience, purity, or hope.

3. Weariness Is a Real Challenge: Galatians 6:9 warns us, “And let us not be weary in well doing.” This means it is possible to become weary while doing what is right. A person can become tired in prayer, tired in service, tired in giving, tired in discipleship, tired in waiting, tired in leadership, tired in intercession, and tired in carrying people. Weariness is a real threat to every revival army. Weariness comes when results are slow, when people do not appreciate the labour, when those being helped resist correction, when resources are limited, when prayers seem delayed, when the local church that you know you are giving all of yourself into is abusing you, or when personal needs remain unresolved.

This is why every revival army must know how to renew strength through prayer, fasting, and fellowship. Prayer brings the heart back into communion with God. Fasting disciplines the flesh and sharpens spiritual sensitivity. Fellowship strengthens weary soldiers through encouragement, accountability, shared burden, and corporate prayer. No soldier should carry the battle alone. Isolation can multiply weariness, but fellowship can restore courage.

Dear TACEFites, do not pretend that weariness is not real. Take it to God. Renew your strength in prayer. Fast when your spirit needs fresh fire. Stay connected to fellowship. Share burdens with mature believers. Encourage one another. The long war requires a renewed army.

4. Standing Is Part of Warfare, Because Faithfulness under Pressure Is Victory:

Ephesians 6:13 says, “Having done all, to stand.” This means that after praying, obeying, serving, fasting, teaching, giving, and labouring, the command is still to stand. Standing means refusing to fall, refusing to retreat, refusing to compromise, and refusing to abandon the place God has assigned. We live at a time when many people define victory only as visible progress, but this is not always so. In long warfare, standing itself is already a victory. When a believer remains holy under pressure, that is a great victory. It is also victory when a leader continues faithfully despite discouragement; when a parent keeps praying for a child even when the child's behaviour seems to be getting worse; and when a worker remains honest in a corrupt workplace despite demotion, rejection, or a poor annual review.

Faithfulness under pressure is precious to God. The Lord does not only reward visible success; He honours steadfast obedience. He sees hidden labour. He sees tears in prayer. He sees consistent service. He sees the believer who continues when nobody claps. He sees the fellowship that remains faithful in a difficult field. He sees the TACEFite who refuses to abandon the duty post. Dear TACEFites, after doing all, stand. Stand in prayer. Stand in holiness. Stand in doctrine. Stand in your duty post. Stand in love. Stand in patience. Stand in faith. In due season, we shall reap if we faint not.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Accept that some victories take time: Do not become discouraged because transformation, growth, or harvest is slow.
- Refuse to abandon your duty post: Remain faithful in your family, local church, campus, workplace, mission field, fellowship assignment, business leading, and personal consecration.
- Build endurance beyond excitement: Do not depend only on the programme atmosphere, public applause, leadership presence, or emotional momentum. Keep serving when no one is there.
- Renew strength regularly: Use prayer, fasting, the Word, and fellowship to recover strength when weariness begins to rise.
- Stand after doing all: When there is no immediate result, keep standing in faith, holiness, truth, obedience, and service.
- Encourage weary soldiers: Strengthen those who are tired, discouraged, delayed, or labouring without visible results.
- Trust God's due season: Do not measure God's faithfulness only by your preferred timetable. In due season, we shall reap if we faint not.

Questions for Discussion

1. What does Joshua 11:18 teach us about the nature of revival as a life's mandate that is not a short-term sprint but a long marathon?
2. How should a family labouring with all they have in a local church respond to increasing abuse, rejection, and accusations, especially from people they have invested their lives in through prayers, care, sacrifice, and personal resources? Also, use this to explain why many revival army become weary in well doing?
3. Why must revival labour outlast recognition of men, leadership changes, and programme momentum?
4. How should believers manage the pressure and emotional pain that come when other believers appear to flaunt their success with statements like, "See my result, where is your own result?" How can we guard our hearts from discouragement, comparison, impatience, and the temptation to give up on God when our own results seem delayed?
5. What does Ephesians 6:13 mean by "having done all, to stand"?
6. How can standing under pressure also be a form of victory, especially in life, career, academic pursuit, business growth, and ministry labour?

Personal Reflection

Am I willing to continue when results are not coming on time? Do I give up when transformation is slow or results are delayed? Is my service built on conviction or seasonal excitement? Do I depend on public recognition of men, leadership presence, or programme momentum before I remain faithful? Am I becoming weary in well doing? Am I already allowing the so-called results or success of others to affect my service unto the Lord? Do I renew my strength through prayer, fasting, the Word, and fellowship? Have I abandoned any duty post too early? Am I still standing in faith, holiness, obedience, and service after doing all?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, give me patience and longsuffering to stand strong through my life's assignment and the revival mandate You have committed to me.
2. Lord, deliver me from giving up because results are slow or transformation is not immediate.

3. Lord, renew my strength and help me not to fall, fail, faint or falter in my journey.
4. Father, deliver every weary TACEFite from discouragement, fainting, and premature withdrawal from duty.
5. Lord, help me to stand after doing all, in truth, holiness, faith, patience, and obedience.
6. Father, strengthen TACEFites labouring in challenging local churches, campuses, workplaces, and delayed personal seasons.

Week 22 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 25 January 2027

- Results we desire are not always instant or come at our own time. I will not give up because transformation is slow or results are delayed.
- Joshua made war a long time with all those kings. Father, give me longsuffering for every long assignment You have committed to my hands. I will not give up in Jesus' name.
- I receive grace to continue in prayer, obedience, holiness, and faithfulness, even when the journey is long.

Tuesday, 26 January 2027

- Long warfare requires endurance, not seasonal excitement. I will not build my service on situational emotion, recognition of men, exciting atmosphere, or programme momentum.
- Lord, deepen my convictions beyond temporary excitement. Let my obedience remain strong when the crowd is gone and the work becomes hard.
- Father, refine my knowledge of You through every season of pressure, waiting, affliction, and prolonged labour.

Wednesday, 27 January 2027

- Revival labour must outlast public applause, human recognition, change of leadership, change of local ministers, and programme momentum.
- I will not abandon my duty post because men do not notice, appreciate, or celebrate my labour.
- Lord, make me faithful in hidden service, difficult fields, slow processes, and assignments that require long obedience.

Thursday, 28 January 2027

- Weariness is a real challenge, but I will not faint in well doing. In due season, I shall reap if I faint not.
- Father, renew my strength and help me not to fall, fail, faint or falter in my journey. Deliver me from discouragement and spiritual tiredness.
- Lord, strengthen every weary TACEFite going through demanding seasons, whether labouring in local churches, village missions, and campus work, or facing career pressure, business challenges, marital delays, family waiting periods, job delays, and academic frustrations.

Friday, 29 January 2027

- Standing strong and firm is part of warfare. After doing all, I receive grace to stand.
- I will stand in truth, holiness, prayer, love, patience, faith, and obedience, even when visible results are not yet seen.
- Father, clothe me with the whole armour of God, so that I may withstand in the evil day and remain faithful under pressure.

Saturday, 30 January 2027

- Faithfulness under pressure is victory. I will not measure victory by speed, visibility, applause of men, or immediate results.
- Lord, help TACEFites not to abandon their duty posts too early. Strengthen us to keep sowing, praying, discipling, serving, and trusting You.
- I receive grace for long waiting, patient labour, renewed strength, and steadfast faith. In due season, I shall reap if I faint not.

Title: The Defeated Kings: Remembering the Victories of Christ Over Every Power

Bible Texts: Joshua 12:1-24; Ephesians 1:19-23

Bible Texts

Joshua 12:1-24: 1 Now these are the kings of the land, which the children of Israel smote, and possessed their land on the other side Jordan toward the rising of the sun, from the river Arnon unto mount Hermon, and all the plain on the east: 2 Sihon king of the Amorites, who dwelt in Heshbon, and ruled from Aroer, which is upon the bank of the river Arnon, and from the middle of the river, and from half Gilead, even unto the river Jabbok, which is the border of the children of Ammon; 3 And from the plain to the sea of Chinneroth on the east, and unto the sea of the plain, even the salt sea on the east, the way to Bethjeshimoth; and from the south, under Ashdothpisgah: 4 And the coast of Og king of Bashan, which was of the remnant of the giants, that dwelt at Ashtaroth and at Edrei, 5 And reigned in mount Hermon, and in Salcah, and in all Bashan, unto the border of the Geshurites and the Maachathites, and half Gilead, the border of Sihon king of Heshbon. 6 Them did Moses the servant of the LORD and the children of Israel smite: and Moses the servant of the LORD gave it for a possession unto the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh. 7 And these are the kings of the country which Joshua and the children of Israel smote on this side Jordan on the west, from Baalgad in the valley of Lebanon even unto the mount Halak, that goeth up to Seir; which Joshua gave unto the tribes of Israel for a possession according to their divisions; 8 In the mountains, and in the valleys, and in the plains, and in the springs, and in the wilderness, and in the south country; the Hittites, the Amorites, and the Canaanites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites: 9 The king of Jericho, one; the king of Ai, which is beside Bethel, one; 10 The king of Jerusalem, one; the king of Hebron, one; 11 The king of Jarmuth, one; the king of Lachish, one; 12 The king of Eglon, one; the king of Gezer, one; 13 The king of Debir, one; the king of Geder, one; 14 The king of Hormah, one; the king of Arad, one; 15 The king of Libnah, one; the king of Adullam, one; 16 The king of Makkedah, one; the king of Bethel, one; 17 The king of Tappuah, one; the king of Hopher, one; 18 The king of Aphek, one; the king of Lasharon, one; 19 The king of Madon, one; the king of Hazor, one; 20 The king of Shimronmeron, one; the king of Achshaph, one; 21 The king of Taanach, one; the king of Megiddo, one; 22 The king of Kedesh, one; the king of Jokneam of Carmel, one; 23 The king of Dor in the coast of Dor, one; the king of the nations of Gilgal, one; 24 The king of Tirzah, one: all the kings thirty and one.

Ephesians 1:19-23: 19 And what is the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe, according to the working of his mighty power, 20 Which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead, and set him at his own right hand in the heavenly places, 21 Far above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come: 22 And hath put all things under his feet, and gave him to be the head over all things to the church, 23 Which is his body, the fullness of him that filleth all in all.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- These are the kings of the country which Joshua and the children of Israel smote.
- Joshua gave unto the tribes of Israel for a possession according to their divisions.
- All the kings thirty and one.
- The exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe.
- According to the working of his mighty power.
- Far above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion.
- Hath put all things under his feet.

Introduction

This week brings us to Joshua 12, a chapter that may appear at first to be only a historical list of conquered kings. Yet this list is beyond just a catalogue of listing but a written testimony of how God enabled victory for His people. It records the kings defeated by Moses on the other side Jordan and the kings defeated by Joshua in the land of Canaan. It names territories, kings, cities, and victories. It reminds Israel that the Lord defeated named enemies, gave specific victories, and brought His people into real victory. Joshua 12 teaches that victories must be remembered so that the Lord's revival army does not lose confidence in God. The list includes great kings, small kings, fortified cities, known territories, and repeated battles. Each name is a witness that God ruled in the affairs of His people. Each conquered king points to God's superior authority. The listing of all the defeated kings is also a reminder that our God is the Lord over all the "satanic kings" like personal struggles, family crisis, campus disappointments, local church challenges, career pressures, business failures, relationship collapses, spiritual opposition, and territorial forces that seek to have dominion over our lives.

We also learn from this detailed listing the act of recording God's work in our midst, which must be elaborate, comprehensive and not shallow. We must keep record of when God answers prayer, saves souls, restores families, revives fellowships, strengthens weak believers, heals broken lives, gives a contract, opens doors for relocation, expands a business, grants an unexpected promotion, or gives examination success when hope seems lost. The Lord's works in the midst of His people must be remembered, named, documented, and passed on.

Ephesians deepens this lesson by lifting our eyes from Joshua's earthly conquest to Christ's supreme victory. Joshua subdued earthly kings, but Christ defeated all principality, power, might, dominion, and every name that is named. The defeated kings in Joshua point us to the higher victory of Christ over every spiritual power, every dominion, every throne, every name, and every authority that opposes God's purpose. The same mighty power that raised Christ from the dead is working in all revival army. Therefore, our testimonies are not merely records of human survival; they are witnesses of Christ's authority and victory in our lives.

Teachings

1. Victories Must Be Recorded, Reflected on and Remembered: Joshua 12 records the victories God gave His people. It names the kings defeated on both sides of Jordan and reminds Israel of their journey of victory. This was not for information but for gratitude and appreciative remembrance. God's people needed to remember what the Lord had done so that they would not lose confidence in Him as the work continued. One danger in the journey of faith is forgetfulness as we studied in week 8. A believer may forget past divine interventions when facing a present challenge. A family may forget how God once made a way when another crisis comes. When memory becomes weak, faith can become unstable.

Remembering victories strengthens confidence in God, and it also reminds us that the God who helped us before can help us again. The God who opened a door before can open another and the same God who gave strength in one season can supply grace in another. This is why testimonies must not be treated casually. They are weapons against fear, discouragement, doubt, and unbelief. When we rehearse the works of God, our hearts become strong again. These acts of reflection also help us to remember that our journey is sustained by the faithfulness of the Lord. Dear TACEFites, do not forget the victories of God. Remember how He saved you, kept you, corrected you, restored you, led you, provided for you, and used you.

2. God Defeats Specific Enemies, Showing His Authority over Named Strongholds: Joshua 12 does not only say that God gave victory. It names kings. It mentions territories. It lists Jericho, Ai, Jerusalem, Hebron, Jarmuth, Lachish, Eglon, Gezer, Debir, Hazor, and many more. This is important because it shows that God's victory was specific, definite and documented. This act of specific naming takes us into a deeper dimension of spiritual warfare where we engage in direct confrontation and dethronement of the satanic forces or what we call "strongman" behind a life, family, city, campus, village, lineage, or destiny. Jesus taught that "except we first bind the strong man," his house cannot be destroyed. This means that some battles are not only about scattered symptoms; they are connected to a ruling influence that must be named, identified, confronted, and displaced by the authority of Christ. In some families, there may be repeated patterns of delay, immorality, untimely death, marital collapse, poverty, addiction, idolatry, or rejection of the gospel. In some campuses, there may be a ruling atmosphere of lust, cultism, confusion, rebellion, intellectual pride, or spiritual coldness. In some villages or cities, there may be ancient altars, blood covenants, idolatrous traditions, occult networks, or territorial powers that have shaped the behaviour, bondage, and resistance of many people over time.

This is why taking over territories for the Lord sometimes requires more than general prayer. The Holy Spirit may lead the revival army to trace the root of a bondage, discern the pattern behind a repeated battle, and confront the ruling influence in the name of Jesus. This must not be done through fear, superstition, curiosity, or carnal boldness, but through revelation, discernment, and spiritual authority in Christ. When the strongman is bound, his influence is broken; just as when the root is destroyed, the fruit begins to dry up. This is why warfare prayers must sometimes specifically name and confront the spirit of bondage, divination, infirmity, fear, lust, rebellion, idolatry, death, confusion, or deception operating in a place or family.

However, this warfare must remain Christ-centred and Word-governed. We are not called to glorify demons, magnify ancestral battles, or become obsessed with hidden names and dark histories. Our confidence is not in knowing the enemy's name but in the name of Jesus, which is above every name. The purpose of revelation, when God chooses to give it, is not to make us fearful, but to make our warfare accurate. Therefore, TACEFites must learn to pray with understanding: asking God to expose the strongman, break genealogical bondages, silence ancestral voices, overthrow territorial altars, destroy inherited patterns of sin, and establish the government of Christ over families, campuses, villages, cities, careers, marriages, and destinies.

3. Kingdom Documentation Teaches Attention to Detail and Excellence: Joshua 12 teaches us that the work of God must be recorded with accuracy, detail, and excellence. The chapter does not only mention the major battles that had already been narrated in detail, such as Jericho, Ai, the southern coalition, and the northern coalition. It also records many kings and territories whose battles were not fully explained in the earlier story that we have studied. We saw new names like Bethel, Geder, Hormah, Arad, Adullam, Tappuah, Hephher, Aphek, Lasharon, Taanach, Kedesh, Jokneam, Dor, Tirzah, and others, which were not forgotten when the final summary was written. This means that what may look small in the daily story still matters in the final record. This is a major lesson for TACEFites. Kingdom work must not be handled carelessly. We must pay attention to details in documentation, reporting, planning, organisation, welfare, communication, and service delivery. Excellence is stewardship with respect for the Lord. For example, sleeping arrangements for campers must consider age, gender, safety, privacy, and comfort. Feeding arrangements must consider timing, quantity, quality, and the kind of food that will help participants remain alert and not distracted. Weather forecast can affect travel, outdoor sessions, seating, equipment, and emergency planning. Technical teams must master sound, projection, livestreaming, lighting, recordings, backup devices, and internet stability. Welfare teams must know who is ill, who needs support, who arrives late, who has special needs, and who must not be left behind. These “little things” are not little before God because they affect the overall fruitfulness of His work.

In the same vein, it is very sad today that many people miss very important programme details, and many do not even submit proper reports, such as weekly local fellowship report, ministry report, post-event report, kingdom financial reports, converts’ reports, and other necessary records. This is contrary to biblical excellence because documentation is proof of the value we attach to kingdom work. These act of documentation are now even easier, as we can use voice notes to record updates and later convert them to text with many free tools. If the fathers of faith who used ink to write the Bible had lived on excuses as many of us do today, we would not have the written records that now guide our faith. This excellence in documentation also applies to personal life, marriage, and private business. Many people struggle to find important documents because they have not been properly filed or archived. Some have lost important business meeting records that could have helped their competitive advantage.

4. Kingdom Documentation Must Preserve Continuity, Not Promote Self Glory: Joshua 12 also teaches that kingdom documentation is not about personal glory. The chapter records both the victories under Moses and the victories under Joshua. Joshua was the leader who brought Israel into the land, yet his record did not erase Moses. The victories on the other side of Jordan were named first and Moses was honoured as “the servant of the LORD.” This shows that the work of God is bigger than one man, one generation, one leader, or one season. God’s work is continuous, and no servant should rewrite the story in a way that removes those who laboured before. This is an important lesson for every revival army. When God begins to move through us, we must not behave as if the work began with us. We must not name God’s move after ourselves, exaggerate our roles, or diminish the labour of others in order to appear more important. We must not erase past sacrifices, older leaders, hidden intercessors, supportive parents, senior disciplers, alumni labour, village missionaries, and quiet supporters whose labour prepared the ground.

Blowing out someone else’s candle will not make yours shine brighter. Honour given to others does not reduce what God is doing through us but only makes the testimony more truthful.

Of a truth, Moses planted certain victories before Joshua completed others. Joshua’s series of victories did not cancel Moses’ labour, instead they built on it. In the same way, a present fellowship leader may be harvesting from prayers sown by past leaders. A present revival move may have been prepared by many generations of mothers, fathers, and elders who prayed for years. A convention may succeed because many unseen people planned, cooked, cleaned, carried chairs, paid bills, drove buses, hosted guests, managed the media, and interceded quietly. Therefore, when we document kingdom achievements, we must write in a way that gives glory to God and give honour to all vessels He used. The story must not be self-centred. It must not become “my ministry, my vision, my achievement, my platform.” It must remain the Lord’s work. We must record contributions honestly, acknowledge those who went before, and make it clear that no man owns the move of God.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Record your testimonies with detail: Write down answered prayers, souls saved, victories over sin, divine provisions, healings, restorations, instructions, divine encounters, open doors, examination success, business breakthroughs, and family deliverances.
- Name the battles God has conquered: Avoid vague thanksgiving. Mention the specific fears, temptations, delays, strongholds, family patterns, local church challenges, career pressures, and spiritual battles the Lord has helped you overcome.
- Pray with spiritual understanding: Ask God to expose and dethrone every strongman, hidden influence, ancestral voice, territorial altar, inherited pattern, and spiritual force resisting Christ's rule over lives, families, campuses, churches, villages, cities, careers, marriages, and destinies.
- Practise kingdom documentation with excellence: Keep proper records of local fellowship reports, ministry reports, converts' reports, post-event reports, financial reports, welfare records, testimonies, lessons learnt, challenges faced, decisions taken, and follow-up needs.
- Do not despise details in kingdom service: Pay attention to planning, feeding, accommodation, welfare, communication, transport, media, sound, livestreaming, backup arrangements, safety, and follow-up. These details affect the fruitfulness of God's work.
- Use simple tools to improve documentation: Voice notes, shared documents, spreadsheets, photos, forms, Google Drive, Google Form for feedback, and free transcription tools can help preserve important records and reduce excuses.
- Preserve continuity, not self-glory: When documenting God's work, honour those who laboured before, those who served quietly, and those who supported behind the scenes. The story must glorify God, not promote personal importance.
- Let every record lead to worship and future obedience: Documentation should not end in archives; it should strengthen faith, guide decisions, improve service, fuel intercession, and preserve revival continuity.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why is Joshua 12 more than a historical list of defeated kings but an important lesson in kingdom excellence, attention to detail, reporting, documentation, and excellence in kingdom service?
2. Why must the Lord's army record, reflect on, and remember past victories?
3. What does the naming of kings and territories teach us about God's authority over specific strongholds?
4. Why is it important to identify and confront the strongman behind repeated negative patterns in lives, families, campuses, communities, and territories?
5. How can poor documentation weaken continuity, accountability, planning, follow-up, and future learning in fellowship work?
6. Why must kingdom documentation preserve continuity instead of promoting self-glory?

Personal Reflection

Do I remember the victories God has given me, or do I easily forget the goodness of God in my life? Have I documented the specific ways God has helped, corrected, restored, provided, delivered, strengthened, and used me? Do I give vague thanks, or do I name the specific battles the Lord has conquered for me intentionally? Are there repeated patterns in my life, family, fellowship, campus, workplace, or local church that require deeper prayer and spiritual understanding? Do I treat kingdom documentation as important, or do I handle reports, testimonies, follow-up records, welfare records, financial reports, and meeting notes carelessly? Am I faithful in small details, or do I miss important things because I am disorganised or casual? When I document God's work, do I give glory to God and honour all vessels He used, or do I present the story as though it is about me? Do I acknowledge those who prayed, served, gave, led, taught, supported, cooked, cleaned, followed up, organised, and laboured before me?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, help me to remember, record, and reflect on Your victories with gratitude, accuracy, and reverence. Lord, deliver me from spiritual forgetfulness, shallow thanksgiving, and careless handling of my personal journey with You.
2. Lord Jesus, reveal to us the greatness of Your power and Your authority above all principality, power, might, dominion, and every name.

3. Father, expose and dethrone every strongman, hidden influence, inherited pattern, territorial force, and spiritual opposition resisting Your purpose in our lives, families, campuses, churches, communities, and destinies.
4. Lord, help TACEFites to embrace kingdom excellence in documentation, reporting, planning, welfare, follow-up, communication, administration, and service delivery.
5. Lord, deliver us from carelessness, poor record-keeping, disorganisation, and excuses that weaken the continuity of Your work.
6. Lord, let our testimonies and records preserve revival continuity, strengthen future faith, and guide the next generation into deeper obedience.

Week 23 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 1 February 2027

- Victories must be recorded, reflected on, and remembered. I will not forget the battles the Lord has helped me overcome.
- Joshua 12 is a written testimony of many divine victories. Father, help me to remember, record, and rehearse Your faithfulness in my life, family, fellowship, church, and journey.
- Lord, deliver me from spiritual forgetfulness. Let the memory of past victories strengthen my faith for present and future battles.

Tuesday, 2 February 2027

- God defeats specific enemies and shows His authority over named strongholds. I received spiritual understanding to engage God in gratitude for specific interventions and victories.
- Father, teach me to name my blessings and testimonies one by one - doors opened, fears overcome, sins defeated, souls saved, families restored, and burdens lifted.
- Every conquered king points to God's superior authority. Lord, let my testimony declare Your power over every opposition.

Wednesday, 3 February 2027

- Christ is exalted far above all principality, power, might, dominion, and every name that is named.
- I will not fear any strongman, inherited pattern, territorial force, family bondage, campus resistance, or spiritual opposition. The name of Jesus is above every name.
- Father, teach me to pray with understanding, accuracy, and faith until every influence resisting Christ is dethroned and every territory opens to salvation, revival, and discipleship.

Thursday, 4 February 2027

- Kingdom documentation teaches attention to detail and excellence. I will not handle the work of God carelessly.
- Father, make me faithful in reports, records, planning, communication, follow-up, welfare, administration, finances, testimonies, and all details committed to my hands.
- Lord, deliver TACEF from excuses, poor documentation, missed details, weak reporting, and disorganisation. Make us excellent stewards of Your work.

Friday, 5 February 2027

- Nothing important in God's work should be lost through carelessness. If Joshua 12 could record many kings and territories, I must also preserve the details of God's dealings.
- Father, help me to document answered prayers, salvations, restorations, lessons learnt, challenges faced, decisions taken, and future action points.
- Lord, make our records useful for learning, accountability, planning, follow-up, and revival continuity.

Saturday, 6 February 2027

- Kingdom documentation must preserve continuity, not promote self-glory. I will not rewrite the story of God's work around myself.
- Father, help me to honour those who laboured before me, hidden intercessors, faithful leaders, supportive parents, quiet workers, and every vessel You have used.
- I receive grace to remember, document, testify, honour others, give glory to God, and preserve revival continuity for the next generation.

Week 24: Monday, 8 February 2027 to Sunday, 14 February 2027

Title: There Remaineth Yet Very Much Land: The Danger of Settling Too Early

Bible Texts: Joshua 13:1; Ephesians 3:14-21

Bible Texts

Joshua 13:1: 1 Now Joshua was old and stricken in years; and the LORD said unto him, Thou art old and stricken in years, and there remaineth yet very much land to be possessed.

Ephesians 3:14-21: 14 For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, 15 Of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named, 16 That he would grant you, according to the riches of his glory, to be strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man; 17 That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith; that ye, being rooted and grounded in love, 18 May be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height; 19 And to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fullness of God. 20 Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us, 21 Unto him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus throughout all ages, world without end. Amen.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- Joshua was old and stricken in years.
- There remaineth yet very much land to be possessed.
- Strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man.
- Filled with all the fullness of God.
- Able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think.
- According to the power that worketh in us.

Introduction

Our text of study this week is a sobering moment in the life and ministry of Joshua. Joshua was declared old and stricken in years. He has advanced in age and has grown very old. He had seen the wilderness, followed Moses, crossed Jordan, conquered Jericho, recovered from Ai, defeated southern and northern coalitions, endured long warfare, and led Israel through many seasons of possession. Yet the Lord said to him, "You are old, advanced in years, and there remains very much land yet to be possessed." This statement teaches that growth in age, experience, past victories, and visible achievements do not always mean the work is finished. Israel had truly advanced, but advancement was not the same as full accomplishment of the mandate the Lord set for them.

This is a deep warning to every revival army. The danger after progress is the temptation to settle too early. A people can celebrate what God has done and forget what remains undone. A fellowship can rejoice over past growth and lose burden for unreached souls. A leader can remember former labours and become satisfied while the next generation remains unprepared and unmotivated to continue the labour. Beloved, it is very possible to become thankful for what God has done and yet become careless about what He is still demanding. The Lord measures not only the completed work but also points to the remaining work yet to be done.

Ephesians deepens this burden by calling believers into the fullness of God – not half or even ninety nine percent of attainment. Paul bows his knees in prayer that the saints may be filled with all the fullness of God. This means God's purpose is larger than our present experience. There is always more of Christ to know, more of His love to comprehend, more of His power to experience, more of His life to express, and more of His fullness to carry. We must not confuse progress with fullness.

Teachings

1. Age or Past Success Does Not Mean the Work Is Finished: The Lord's word to Joshua is striking and worrisome: "You are old, advanced in years, and there remains very much land yet to be possessed." Joshua's age was real. His labour was real. His victories were real. His faithfulness was commendable, yet the remaining work that has not been done was also real. God acknowledged Joshua's condition, but He still pointed to the unfinished land.

This understanding brings to light that a believer may have served faithfully for years, but there may still be more souls to reach, more disciples to raise, more prayers to pray, more instructions to obey, more lives to strengthen, and more territories to cover for the Lord.

In essence, growth in age, experience, position, and past sacrifice must not become excuses for spiritual retirement from the mandate and assignment of the Lord. Even when physical roles or titles change, the burden of revival must continue. Older or past fellowship executives may not carry the same daily activities as before, but they must continue to labour. They can still pray, mentor, counsel, teach, encourage, support, and preserve the integrity of the vision. In the same vein, younger brethren must not wait until they are old before they become serious. Every season of life carries responsibility before God.

Dear TACEFites, a successful handover is not the same as the completion of the assignment. Transitioning the day-to-day leadership of a local fellowship, subzone, zone, ministry/subgroup or the Central Executive Council to new executives does not mean that the burden of raising an exceeding great army has ended or reduced. Like Joshua, who became old while much land still remained to be possessed, every outgoing leader must recognise that the work continues, even when the nature of their responsibility changes. For there remains very much land and lives to be possessed for the Lord.

2. Unpossessed Land Must Still Burden the Heart of Every Revival Army: God did not only tell Joshua what had been achieved; He showed him what remained. The unpossessed land still mattered to God. The remaining territories were not forgotten because Israel had already won many battles. This means that the heart of the revival army must continue to carry the burden of unpossessed land because they represent every territory where Christ is not yet fully known, honoured, obeyed, and glorified. It includes unsaved souls, weak local churches, unreached campuses, undisciplined children, broken families, neglected communities, compromised workplaces, and believers who have not yet come into maturity.

The vision of God is for all men to be saved. His purpose is that the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea. Therefore, revival must keep expanding. It must move into homes, campuses, communities, markets, schools, offices, families, and local churches. It must touch children, youths, parents, ministers, workers, students, professionals, artisans, traders, and the elderly. The Lord wants His knowledge to spread. A revival army must therefore not lose the burden and passion for what remains. If we only celebrate those already attending fellowship and forget those outside, we are settling too early. If we only care for strong members and ignore weak ones, we are settling too early. If we only focus on central programmes and neglect local fellowship and other grassroot activities, we are settling too early.

3. Complacency Is an Enemy of Inheritance: Celebration is good when it leads to thanksgiving and renewed obedience but it becomes a concern when it creates a feeling of self-satisfied contentment with one's current status, achievement or situation

Celebration becomes dangerous when it makes us feel we have arrived and have done all that is expected of us. Israel had many reasons to rejoice, but the Lord still reminded Joshua that much land remained and so much has not yet been done. This shows that thanksgiving must not blind us from seeing the unfinished assignment. The feeling of "I have arrived" while we are still in the middle of the journey does not always look like a problem at first. It may appear as satisfaction, comfort, routine, nostalgia, or self-congratulation. A believer may say, "At least I am better than before," while refusing important call to consecration. A fellowship may say, "At least we are doing well," while neglecting the core mandate of revival and discipleship. A career person may say, "I am now certified," while neglecting the need to build practical skills beyond certification. A student may say, "At least I passed," while refusing to improve study discipline, deepen understanding, or prepare better for future opportunities.

We must also be careful about what we celebrate or call progress. We can celebrate numerical growth and ignore spiritual depth. We can celebrate positions and forget responsibility. This is why every testimony must lead us back to God's unfinished work. We must thank God for what He has done, but we must also ask, "Lord, what remains?" Which souls remain unreached? Which children remain undisciplined? Which campuses remain untouched? Which communities remain without witness? Which areas of my life remain incomplete? Dear TACEFites, celebrate with humility, not complacency. Thanksgiving must lead to renewed consecration. Past success must become fuel to go farther and further, not an excuse to stop halfway.

4. God's Fullness Is More than Present Experience, So Do Not Confuse Progress with Completion: Ephesians 3 shows Paul praying for believers to be strengthened in the inner man, rooted and grounded in love, and filled with all the fullness of God. This prayer was not for unbelievers; it was for saints. They already belonged to Christ, yet Paul prayed that they would enter deeper fullness. This means that present experience is not the end of God's intention.

The journey of knowing God is continuous and never ending. We may know Him, but there is still more of Him to know. We may have seen His power, but there is still more of His fullness to experience. We may have witnessed revival move in one place, but there are still more territories to cover for the Lord.

This is why we must not confuse progress with completion. Israel had advanced, but the land was not fully possessed. We need to know that God measures the remaining work, not only the completed work. He sees what has been done, but He also sees what is yet undone. He receives our thanksgiving for what has been done, but He also gives fresh burden for the work that remains undone. He honours our labour, but He calls us into greater fullness. Dear TACEFites, do not stop at the present experience. There is more of Christ to know, more of His love to comprehend, more of His fullness to carry, and more land to possess for Him. Thank God for the current lifting in your career, the expansion in business, the global platforms to showcase what He has put in your hands, the peace in your marriage, the growing stability in your home, the consistency in your local fellowship, the permission given to TACEF by the church to run programmes, the expansion of campus ministry, the souls being saved, and the new doors opening before us. However, we must also remember that there is still more ahead.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Thank God for past victories, but ask what remains: After every testimony, breakthrough, programme, convention, or season of progress, ask, “Lord, what land is still unpossessed? and “what more have I left undone?”
- Do not settle into spiritual comfort: Refuse to let past success, age, experience, title, or history become an excuse for reduced burden.
- Identify the unpossessed land around you: Look at your family, local church, campus, workplace, community, and fellowship. Where is Christ not yet fully known and obeyed?
- Turn unfinished work into prayer: Let remaining needs push you into intercession, fasting, evangelism, follow-up, and discipleship.
- Resist complacency hidden under celebration: Celebrate what God has done, but do not allow celebration to stop you from advancing further.
- Pursue the fullness of God: Keep seeking deeper knowledge of Christ, deeper love, deeper obedience, deeper consecration, and deeper manifestation of His life.
- Continue even when roles change: Whether old or young, visible or hidden roles or titles, leading or supporting, keep carrying the burden for souls, discipleship, prayer, and revival.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why did God tell Joshua that much land still remained despite his age, experience, and many past victories?
2. What are examples of “unpossessed land” in our personal lives, local churches, campuses, workplaces, and communities?
3. What does Ephesians 3:14–21 teach us about growing into the fullness of God?
4. Why must we never confuse progress with the completion of God’s assignment?
5. How can unfinished work move TACEFites into deeper prayer, planning, evangelism, discipleship, and renewed obedience?
6. What practical system are you aware of in TACEF that ensures former executives, alumni, and past leaders continue to serve the Lord in the mandate of revival after completing their administrative tenures?

Personal Reflection

Have I become satisfied because of past victories, testimonies, or achievements? Am I using age, experience, position, or past labour as an excuse to reduce my commitment on soul winning and active participation in the mandate of revival? What land remains unpossessed in my family, local church, campus, workplace, community, or personal life? Have I confused progress with completion? Am I celebrating what God has done while ignoring what He is still asking me to do? Do I still carry burden for children, youths, local churches, families, campuses, and communities? I am reaching out for the next level in my career, business, academics and family life? Am I pressing into the fullness of God, or am I living only on past experiences?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, thank You for past victories, testimonies, breakthroughs, and seasons of help.
2. Lord, open my eyes to see the land that still remains to be possessed for You and many tasks you have for me that I have not yet completed.
3. Father, deliver me from complacency and the spirit of “I have arrived” that leads to carelessness.
4. Father, help me not to confuse progress with completion or past success with finished assignment.
5. Father, root and ground me in Your love, and fill me with all the fullness of God.
6. Lord, make TACEF a revival army that keeps pressing into more land and more of Christ.

Week 24 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 8 February 2027

- Moments of achievements or past success do not mean the work is finished. I will not allow experience, title, or former victories to reduce my present commitment to kingdom service.
- The Lord said to Joshua, “... there remains very much land yet to be possessed.” Father, open my eyes to every unfinished assignment around me.
- Lord, help me to honour past victories without settling too early or abandoning the tasks that remains.

Tuesday, 9 February 2027

- Unpossessed land must burden the heart of every revival army. I will not be satisfied while souls remain unreached and territories remain untouched.
- Father, burden my heart for every field where Christ must be known.
- Lord, let revival fire keep expanding until the knowledge of Your glory fills the earth as the waters cover the sea.

Wednesday, 10 February 2027

- Complacency is an enemy of progress. I will not get to a point where I feel I have arrived when there are many grounds to cover for You.
- Father, deliver me from stopping when you have so much for me to do for Your glory.
- Lord, let every testimony of lifting, promotion, blessings and enlargement in my life and in the house of TACEF lead to deeper consecration, not carelessness.

Thursday 11 February 2027

- God measures the remaining work, not only the completed work. I will ask not only what has been done, but what still remains to be done.
- Father, show me the souls still unreached and the fields still waiting for Your light.
- Lord, turn every unfinished work into a new burden and mobilise us for the harvest in Jesus’ name.

Friday, 12 February 2027

- God’s fullness is more than my present experience. I will not stop at yesterday’s encounter, yesterday’s knowledge, or yesterday’s labour.
- Father, strengthen me with might by Your Spirit in the inner man, and let Christ dwell in my heart by faith to attain the fullness of Your calling for my life.
- Lord, root me and ground me in love, and fill me with all the fullness of God.

Saturday, 13 February 2027

- I will not confuse progress with completion. Israel had advanced, but advancement was not the same as full possession.
- Father, help TACEFites to keep the momentum of our calling as we continue to seek for new grounds to cover, more souls to win, local churches to strengthen, campuses to recover, children to disciple, families to restore, and communities to reach.
- I receive grace to press into more maturity, more obedience, and more of Christ. Lord, make me faithful until every portion You assign to me is possessed for Your glory.

Week 25: Monday, 15 February 2027 to Sunday, 21 February 2027

Tarry Week for Reflections and Prayer

Daily Reflective Prayer Declarations

Monday, 15 February 2027

- I am called to grow deeper as God enlarges my assignment. I will not relax after early victories, testimonies, promotions, business growth, or fellowship progress. Lord, let every enlargement in my life produce deeper consecration.
- I will not fear bigger battles, stronger oppositions, or unfamiliar pressures. The God who helped me in former battles will help me in new ones. Father, make my roots in Christ deeper than every battle before me.

Tuesday, 16 February 2027

- I will not copy the enemy's methods because they look sophisticated, attractive, profitable, or popular. I will not keep the horses and chariots that God has commanded me to burn.
- I receive grace for complete obedience. I will not adjust divine instruction to satisfy personal interest, career ambition, business pressure, or social acceptance. Father, help me to leave nothing undone of all that You command.

Wednesday, 17 February 2027

- I receive the fruit of longsuffering for long battles. I will not abandon my duty post because results are slow, people are difficult, or the effort is unrecognised.
- I will not be weary in well doing. I will continue in prayer, service, discipleship, family responsibility, career growth, academic pursuit, business building, health discipline, and ministry labour until Your purpose is fulfilled.

Thursday, 18 February 2027

- Having done all, I will stand. I will stand in prayer, holiness, doctrine, love, patience, faith, and my assigned duty post. Lord, strengthen every weary TACEFite labouring in local churches, village missions, campus, and in many other hidden kingdom assignments.
- I will not measure victory by visible progress. Standing under pressure is also victory. Father, strengthen those facing career pressure, business challenges, marital delays, family waiting periods, job delays, academic frustrations, and ministry burdens.

Friday, 19 February 2027

- I will remember and document the victories of the Lord. I will not forget the prayers answered, souls saved, families restored, fellowships revived, doors opened, etc.
- I will serve with excellence, attention to detail, and faithful reporting. I will not handle kingdom work carelessly. Father, make me sharp in planning, documentation, welfare, communication, follow-up, finance, organisation, and every little detail of Your work.

Saturday, 20 February 2027

- I will not settle too early while there remains very much land to be possessed. I will not confuse progress with completion. Lord, open my eyes to the assignments that still remains uncompleted and lands waiting to be occupied for the kingdom of God.
- I press into more of Christ and more territories for the Lord. There are still many souls to win, children to disciple, youths to strengthen, campuses to recover, local churches to revive, families to restore, and communities to reach. Father, renew my burden and commitment for the unfinished work.

Week 26: Monday, 22 February 2027 to Sunday, 28 February 2027

Title: Dividing the Land: Stewarding Our Portion in the Body of Christ

Bible Texts: Joshua 13:6-33; Ephesians 1:11; Ephesians 4:7-16

Bible Texts

Joshua 13:6-33: 6 All the inhabitants of the hill country from Lebanon unto Misrephothmaim, and all the Sidonians, them will I drive out from before the children of Israel: only divide thou it by lot unto the Israelites for an inheritance, as I have commanded thee. 7 Now therefore divide this land for an inheritance unto the nine tribes, and the half tribe of Manasseh, 8 With whom the Reubenites and the Gadites have received their inheritance, which Moses gave them, beyond Jordan eastward, even as Moses the servant of the LORD gave them; 9 From Aroer, that is upon the bank of the river Arnon, and the city that is in the midst of the river, and all the plain of Medeba unto Dibon; 10 And all the cities of Sihon king of the Amorites, which reigned in Heshbon, unto the border of the children of Ammon; 11 And Gilead, and the border of the Geshurites and Maachathites, and all mount Hermon, and all Bashan unto Salcah; 12 All the kingdom of Og in Bashan, which reigned in Ashtaroth and in Edrei, who remained of the remnant of the giants: for these did Moses smite, and cast them out. 13 Nevertheless the children of Israel expelled not the Geshurites, nor the Maachathites: but the Geshurites and the Maachathites dwell among the Israelites until this day. 14 Only unto the tribe of Levi he gave none inheritance; the sacrifices of the LORD God of Israel made by fire are their inheritance, as he said unto them. 15 And Moses gave unto the tribe of the children of Reuben inheritance according to their families. 16 And their coast was from Aroer, that is on the bank of the river Arnon, and the city that is in the midst of the river, and all the plain by Medeba; 17 Heshbon, and all her cities that are in the plain; Dibon, and Bamothbaal, and Bethbaalmeon, 18 And Jahazah, and Kedemoth, and Mephaath, 19 And Kirjathaim, and Sibmah, and Zarethshahar in the mount of the valley, 20 And Bethpeor, and Ashdothpisgah, and Bethjeshimoth, 21 And all the cities of the plain, and all the kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites, which reigned in Heshbon, whom Moses smote with the princes of Midian, Evi, and Rekem, and Zur, and Hur, and Reba, which were dukes of Sihon, dwelling in the country. 22 Balaam also the son of Beor, the soothsayer, did the children of Israel slay with the sword among them that were slain by them. 23 And the border of the children of Reuben was Jordan, and the border thereof. This was the inheritance of the children of Reuben after their families, the cities and the villages thereof. 24 And Moses gave inheritance unto the tribe of Gad, even unto the children of Gad according to their families. 25 And their coast was Jazer, and all the cities of Gilead, and half the land of the children of Ammon, unto Aroer that is before Rabbah; 26 And from Heshbon unto Ramathmizpeh, and Betonim; and from Mahanaim unto the border of Debir; 27 And in the valley, Betharam, and Bethnimrah, and Succoth, and Zaphon, the rest of the kingdom of Sihon king of Heshbon, Jordan and his border, even unto the edge of the sea of Chinnereth on the other side Jordan eastward. 28 This is the inheritance of the children of Gad after their families, the cities, and their villages. 29 And Moses gave inheritance unto the half tribe of Manasseh: and this was the possession of the half tribe of the children of Manasseh by their families. 30 And their coast was from Mahanaim, all Bashan, all the kingdom of Og king of Bashan, and all the towns of Jair, which are in Bashan, threescore cities: 31 And half Gilead, and Ashtaroth, and Edrei, cities of the kingdom of Og in Bashan, were pertaining unto the children of Machir the son of Manasseh, even to the one half of the children of Machir by their families. 32 These are the countries which Moses did distribute for inheritance in the plains of Moab, on the other side Jordan, by Jericho, eastward. 33 But unto the tribe of Levi Moses gave not any inheritance: the LORD God of Israel was their inheritance, as he said unto them.

Ephesians 1:11: 11 In whom also we have obtained an inheritance, being predestinated according to the purpose of him who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will.

Ephesians 4:7-16: 7 But unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ. 8 Wherefore he saith, When he ascended up on high, he led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men. 9 Now that he ascended, what is it but that he also descended first into the lower parts of the earth? 10 He that descended is the same also that ascended up far above all heavens, that he might fill all things. 11 And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; 12 For the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ: 13 Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ: 14 That we henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive; 15 But speaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things, which is the head, even Christ: 16 From whom the whole body fitly joined together and compacted by that which every joint supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure of every part, maketh increase of the body unto the edifying of itself in love.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- Divide this land for an inheritance.
- Only unto the tribe of Levi he gave none inheritance.
- The LORD God of Israel was their inheritance.
- In whom also we have obtained an inheritance.
- According to the purpose of him who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will.
- Unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ.
- He gave gifts unto men.
- Every joint supplieth.
- According to the effectual working in the measure of every part.

Introduction

Our year-long study into the making of an exceeding great army brings us to the critical phase of dividing the land among the tribes of Israel. After many battles had been fought and much land had been subdued, God instructed Joshua to divide the land for inheritance. The land was not to be shared through competition, personal ambition, or tribal jealousy. It was to be distributed by divine order. Reuben, Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh had already received their possessions on the eastern side of the Jordan, while Levi's inheritance was different because the Lord God of Israel Himself was their inheritance. This teaches us that God assigns portions according to His will, and every portion must be received with gratitude and stewarded faithfully.

The division of the land also teaches that possession is not only about winning battles; it is about taking responsibility for what God has given unto us. Every tribe had a portion, but not every tribe had the same portion. The difference in size or portion did not mean inferiority. The fact that Levi did not receive land like the other tribes did not make Levi useless or less than others. Their portion was unique and sacred. In the same way, every believer has a place in the body of Christ. No believer is useless. No assignment is accidental. No grace is too small when it is yielded to the Lord because the divine order is that "every joint must supply," as we always say in the great house of TACEF.

Ephesians deepens this lesson by showing that in Christ, we have obtained an inheritance according to the purpose of God, who worketh all things after the counsel of His own will. It also teaches that grace is given to every believer according to the measure of the gift of Christ. These gifts are not given for status, superiority, self-display, or personal importance. They are given for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, and for the edifying of the body of Christ. The body grows when every joint supplies its measure and every part works effectually. In this regard, every TACEFite must know that they have a portion of divine assignment in God. Like we said at the convention, everyone have a duty post, that is, the place of primary assignment. Everyone must serve in their respective postings. Nothing is small when used for the Lord. The mandate of revival will grow stronger when each part supplies its measure faithfully, committedly, consistently, and in love.

Teachings

1. Inheritance Must Be Distributed by Divine Order, Not Competition: When God instructed Joshua to divide the land, inheritance was not left to personal preference, influence, or ambition. The land was not to be taken by the tribe that could argue best, fight hardest, or position itself most strongly. It was to be divided according to divine order. God had a portion for each tribe, and each tribe needed to receive and steward what God assigned.

This understanding teaches us that an assignment in the Lord's army is not a contest for visibility, titles, or recognition. A believer does not become important because his role is public, and another does not become unimportant because his role is hidden. God distributes portions according to His purpose, and every portion matters when it is used faithfully.

Competition becomes dangerous when it enters spiritual service because it makes people compare their portion with another person's portion. It makes gifted people seek attention instead of service and it makes hidden workers feel useless and unrecognised. The grace given to another person should not make you despise your own grace, and the fact that someone teaches, sings, leads, gives, organises, or prays in a visible way does not mean your own portion is small. What matters is whether you are faithful in what God has committed into your hands. Dear TACEFites, do not fight for another person's portion. Do not despise your own giftings and never serve from envy, rivalry, or the desire to be noticed.

2. Every Tribe Has a Portion, and Every Believer Has a Place in the Body: Joshua 13 that we are studying this week carefully describes the inheritance of two and a half of the tribes – tribes of Reuben, Gad, and the half tribe of Manasseh. Their borders, cities, families, villages, and territories were recorded. These details show that God was specific about their portion. God knew where each tribe belonged and what each tribe was expected to manage. This is very important for the body of Christ. Ephesians says, "But unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ." This means grace is not given only to pastors, teachers, or fellowship leaders. Every TACEFite irrespective of age, gender, background or spiritual experience has received grace and carries something from God that can build, strengthen, encourage, equip, or bless others. We all have a specific duty post as we heard at the last convention.

This understanding means everyone has something to offer. No believer is useless. Some people may have visible assignments, while others may serve in hidden ways. Some may be strong in teaching, while others may be strong in prayer, hospitality, administration, music, writing, counselling, mentoring, follow-up, evangelism, children's ministry, visitation, media, technical support, or practical care. The problem begins when believers do not know their place or refuse to function in it. The body of Christ becomes weak when parts are present but inactive, dormant and doing nothing. A fellowship becomes weak when many members receive but only few make effort to contribute and supply. The household of TACEF will mature when every part begins to function especially when we realise that everyone of us has a place in God and we have something special to offer. Do not say, "I am not needed." Do not say, "My role is too small." Do not bury what God has placed in you. Find your place, grow in grace, and supply your measure.

3. Assignment Differs, but Purpose Is One in Christ: The tribes of Israel did not all receive the same land, but they still belonged to the same, one covenant people of Israel. Their portions differed, but their purpose was one. Each tribe had its boundaries and inheritance, yet all were part of God's larger plan for Israel. This means that difference in assignment was not meant to create division but to complement one another so that we can complete the corporate inheritance. This is the same principle in the body of Christ. Ephesians 4 shows different gifts and graces, but one purpose of building up of the body of Christ. Christ gave apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, and teachers for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, and for the edifying of the body. These gifts were not given to create personality centres, spiritual competition, or private kingdoms. They were given so that the whole body may grow into Christ.

Therefore, each of us as God's end-time revival army must walk in the understanding that though our gifts and assignments differ, our purpose is one in Christ. We all need one another for the sake of winning more hearts for the Lord. We are not competing on assignments, but manifesting different expressions of one purpose, which is that Christ may be formed in His people and His body may be built. As we learned in our annual study last year, this is why serving God with other believers requires humility, love, honour, and understanding. If we do not understand the unity of purpose, we may begin to compare, criticise, isolate ourselves, or compete. A person who teaches must not despise those serving in administration. A person who sings must not despise intercession. A person who leads must not despise those who serve quietly in the kitchen or clinic. Every part matters because the mandate is bigger than any single person.

4. Understanding the Five-Fold Ministry as Distributed Grace for Building the Body:

Ephesians 4 teaches that Christ gave gifts unto men for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, and for the edifying of the body of Christ. These gifts are not titles for show-off, ranks for superiority, or platforms for self-display. They are distributed graces given by Christ to build, equip, strengthen, and mature His body, as explored below:

- Apostolic grace: This helps to lay foundations, open new territories, establish order, strengthen doctrines, and raise people into kingdom assignment. It carries a burden to build beyond one season and ensure that the work of God is properly planted and sustained.
- Prophetic grace: This helps the body to hear God clearly, discern His mind, expose compromise, call the people back to holiness, and remain sensitive to divine direction. It must bring the saints into alignment with God's will.
- Evangelistic grace: This carries a burden for souls and those who are far from God. It stirs the body to go beyond church walls, preach Christ, win the lost, and bring men into the saving knowledge of the Lord Jesus.
- Pastoral grace: This nurtures, feeds, guides, protects, and cares for the flock of God with patience and love. It carries the burden of stability, follow-up, restoration, encouragement, and the spiritual wellbeing of the people.

- Teaching grace: This explains truth, grounds believers in sound doctrines, corrects errors, and helps the saints understand and apply the Word of God. It protects the body from shallowness, confusion, deception, and every wind of doctrine.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Receive your portion with humility: Stop comparing your assignment with another person's assignment. Ask God to show you your place and serve there faithfully.
- Honour the portions of others: Celebrate the grace of God in other people without envy, criticism, jealousy, or competition.
- Discover your measure: Identify the area where God has given you special grace, ability, opportunity, or spiritual gift, and begin to develop it.
- Serve beyond visibility: Do not serve because you want to be seen. Hidden service before God is precious.
- Use your gifts to build others: Let your teaching, singing, leadership, giving, writing, organising, mentoring, intercession, welfare, visitation, digital skills and follow-up strengthen the body of Christ.
- Steward your resources: Use your time, talent, treasure, knowledge, relationships, and spiritual gifts for the advancement of God's purpose.
- Function as part of the body: Do not isolate yourself or behave as though your grace is independent of others or better than others. Serve in love, humility, and accountability.
- Supply your measure in TACEF: The mandate will grow stronger when every TACEFite serves faithfully, committedly, consistently, and in love.

Questions for Discussion

1. What does the division of the land teach us about divine order in kingdom assignments?
2. What does it mean that every tribe had a portion and every believer has a place in the body?
3. How can comparison, envy, or personal ambition weaken the Lord's army?
4. While God's leading into a distinct ministry or platform can be genuine, what explains the growing trend in which many people now establish parallel ministries outside their primary ministry assignments? Why has this become so common today, unlike in the early revival days, with almost everyone quickly and easily creating an online platform, personal music ministry, side ministry, or special prayer platform outside the shared calling and collective labour of the fellowship?
5. What does Ephesians Chapter 4 teach about the body being built by every joint supplying its measure?
6. What practical steps can help every member of the household of TACEF find and serve in their portion?

Personal Reflection

Am I labouring at my duty post or I do not yet know my portion of kingdom service? Do I know my portion of divine assignment, or am I only watching others serve? Am I comparing my grace with another person's grace? Do I envy visible gifts while despising what God has given me to do for Him in the closet? Am I using my gifts for service or for status? Am I stewarding my time, talent, treasure, and spiritual gifts for the edifying of the body of Christ? Is there any area where I am present but not functioning? What measure am I supplying to the household of TACEF? How can I serve more faithfully, committedly, consistently, and in love?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, help me to receive my portion of divine assignment with humility, obedience, and faithfulness.
2. Lord, deliver me from competition, envy, comparison, personal ambition, and the desire for empty visibility.
3. Father, show every TACEFite their place in the body and help every part to function according to Your will.
4. Lord, teach me to honour the grace, gifts, and assignments You have given to others.
5. Lord, make me a faithful steward of my time, talent, treasure, opportunities, and spiritual gifts.
6. Father, let the whole household of TACEF be fitly joined together, with every joint supplying its measure.

Week 26 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 22 February 2027

- Inheritance must be distributed by divine order, not competition or personal ambition. I will not struggle for another person's portion or despise the one God has given me.
- Lord, deliver me from envy, comparison, self-promotion, and the desire to be seen. Teach me to receive my assignment with humility and faithfulness.

- I receive grace to serve where God has placed me and honour what He has given others.

Tuesday, 23 February 2027

- Every tribe had a portion, and every believer has a place in the body of Christ. I am not useless and my assignment is important for the advancement of God's kingdom.
- Unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ. Father, help me to discover, develop, and use the grace You have placed in me.
- I will not bury my gift because it looks small or hidden. Nothing is small when it is used for the Lord.

Wednesday, 24 February 2027

- Assignment differs, but purpose is one in Christ. I will not compete with others because we serve one Lord, one body, and one Kingdom.
- Lord, help me to serve with other believers in humility, love, honour, order, and unity of purpose.
- I refuse the spirit of rivalry, criticism, and isolation. Father, make me a faithful part of the body that strengthens others and advances Your purpose.

Thursday, 25 February 2027

- Gifts are for service and not for status. I will not use what God has given me to promote myself, seek applause, or build personal importance.
- Christ gave gifts for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, and for the edifying of the body. Lord, make my gift useful in building others.
- Father, purify my motives in the use of my gifts, so that in all things You alone will receive all the glory

Friday, 26 February 2027

- I will faithfully manage my time, talent, treasure, opportunities, and spiritual gifts for God's glory.
- Lord, deliver me from waste, laziness, carelessness, and buried potential. Teach me to cultivate what You have committed to my hands.
- I receive grace to be faithful in service, consistent in duty, disciplined in growth, and fruitful in my portion.

Saturday, 27 February 2027

- The whole body grows when every joint supplies its measure. I will not be present but inactive in the household of TACEF and the larger body of Christ
- Father, help every TACEFite to find their place, function in grace, and supply their measures for the strengthening of the revival mandate.
- I receive grace to serve faithfully, committedly, consistently, and in love. Lord, make me a responsible steward of my portion in the body of Christ.

Week 27: Monday, 1 March 2027 to Sunday, 7 March 2027

Title: Give Me This Mountain: Inner Strength for the Possession of God's Promise

Bible Texts: Joshua 14:6-15; Ephesians 3:16-20

Bible Texts

Joshua 14:6-15: 6 Then the children of Judah came unto Joshua in Gilgal: and Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenezite said unto him, Thou knowest the thing that the LORD said unto Moses the man of God concerning me and thee in Kadeshbarnea. 7 Forty years old was I when Moses the servant of the LORD sent me from Kadeshbarnea to espy out the land; and I brought him word again as it was in mine heart. 8 Nevertheless my brethren that went up with me made the heart of the people melt: but I wholly followed the LORD my God. 9 And Moses sware on that day, saying, Surely the land whereon thy feet have trodden shall be thine inheritance, and thy children's for ever, because thou hast wholly followed the LORD my God. 10 And now, behold, the LORD hath kept me alive, as he said, these forty and five years, even since the LORD spake this word unto Moses, while the children of Israel wandered in the wilderness: and now, lo, I am this day fourscore and five years old. 11 As yet I am as strong this day as I was in the day that Moses sent me: as my strength was then, even so is my strength now, for war, both to go out, and to come in. 12 Now therefore give me this mountain, whereof the LORD spake in that day; for thou heardest in that day how the Anakims were there, and that the cities were great and fenced: if so be the LORD will be with me, then I shall be able to drive them out, as the LORD said. 13 And Joshua blessed him, and gave unto Caleb the son of Jephunneh Hebron for an inheritance. 14 Hebron therefore became the inheritance of Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenezite unto this day, because that he wholly followed the LORD God of Israel. 15 And the name of Hebron before was Kirjatharba; which Arba was a great man among the Anakims. And the land had rest from war.

Ephesians 3:16-20: 16 That he would grant you, according to the riches of his glory, to be strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man; 17 That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith; that ye, being rooted and grounded in love, 18 May be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height; 19 And to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fullness of God. 20 Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- Thou knowest the thing that the LORD said unto Moses the man of God concerning me and thee.
- I wholly followed the LORD my God.
- As yet I am as strong this day as I was in the day that Moses sent me.
- Give me this mountain.
- If so be the LORD will be with me, then I shall be able to drive them out.
- Strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man.
- That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith.
- According to the power that worketh in us.

Introduction

Our study this week x-rays the life of Caleb, one of the strongest examples of long-standing faith, inner strength, disciplined courage, and wholehearted following in the book of Joshua as we continue to learn the characters of an exceeding great army. Caleb was forty years old when Moses sent him from Kadeshbarnea to spy out the land with Joshua when twelve spies were sent out. While the other ten spies returned with fear and made the heart of the people melt, Caleb with Joshua brought back a good report, because of their personal relationship with God which made them see through the lens of heaven and not human sight. Forty-five years later, at the age of eighty-five years, Caleb did not come to Joshua asking for the easiest land or the most convenient inheritance. He boldly said, "Now therefore give me this mountain."

Caleb's request is deeply instructive. The mountain he asked for was not an easy territory. The huge and dangerous Anakims were still there, and the cities were great and fenced. Yet Caleb did not run from difficulty. He did not use age as an excuse for smallness. He did not settle for comfort because he had waited long. He did not say, "I have tried enough." Instead, he looked at a difficult territory and asked for it because he trusted the God who had promised.

Ephesians expands this lesson by showing us that true strength begins in the inner man. Paul prays that believers may be strengthened with might by the Spirit in the inner man. This means the deepest strength of a believer is not physical energy, youthful appearance, or natural capacity but also the inner man. The outer man may face age, pressure, tiredness, delay, affliction, responsibility, and weariness, but the inner man must be renewed day by day, strengthened by the Spirit, and rooted in Christ. When the Spirit strengthens the inner man, believers can continue to believe, obey, serve, endure, and take on difficult assignments beyond natural limitations. This study also reminds us that we have to manage our bodies well in good health so that at old age we can do much more for the Lord like Caleb.

Teachings

1. Faith Can Remain Alive after Long Delay: Caleb waited forty-five years for the promise God gave concerning his inheritance. Many people would have allowed time, age, delay, disappointment, wilderness seasons, or leadership transitions to weaken their confidence. But Caleb's faith remained alive. Time did not bury the promise, and long waiting time did not destroy his conviction. This teaches us that divine promises can mature in waiting because some promises from God require seasons of testing, endurance, discipline, preparation, and continued obedience before fulfilment comes. Caleb did not forget what the Lord said and he did not treat the promise as an old story. He carried it in his heart until the appointed time came.

However, Caleb did not only remember the promise; he claimed it with courage. He said to Joshua, "Thou knowest the thing that the LORD said unto Moses the man of God concerning me and thee." He then added, "Now therefore give me this mountain." This was not arrogance but a covenant confidence. Caleb knew what God had spoken, and he came in the right order to receive what had been promised. The promise of God did not remove his responsibility. Waiting did not lead to inactivity. Caleb came forward with courage because he trusted the faithfulness of God. He had seen the Lord keep him alive up to eighty-five years, and he believed that the same God who preserved him could still help him possess the land.

Dear TACEFites, thirty-two years of revival pursuit must not make us become tired of the burden. Time must not weaken the mandate. Years must not reduce our passion for souls, discipleship, prayer, holiness, and genuine revival in our local churches, campuses and communities. If God has called us to turn the hearts of men unto Him, then we must keep the promise alive from one generation to another.

2. Taking Mountains for the Lord Requires Inner-Man Renewal: Caleb asked for the mountain where the dangerous Anakims lived and where the cities were fenced. He did not ask for the easiest portion. He did not seek the most convenient inheritance. He did not say, "I have tried enough; give me anything that is available." Instead, he looked at a hard territory and said, "Give me this mountain." This mindset shows that Caleb's strength was not merely physical; it was the strength of faith, conviction, courage, and inner renewal. The book of Ephesians teaches us that true strength begins in the inner man, that is, the hidden part of us where our convictions, character, faith, desires, and relationship with God reside. It is the control centre of our spiritual life, shaping how we think, respond, endure trials, and walk with God even when the outward man is weak or under pressure.

Apostle Paul therefore prayed that believers may be "strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man." The outer man can face age, pressure, delay, and weariness, but the inner man must be renewed by the Spirit of God day by day. We need inner strength for the work of revival because it can become a hard territory of difficult souls, neglected children, frustrating systems, broken families, and resistant communities. The outer man may grow tired, but the inner man must not collapse. The body may feel pressure, but the spirit must remain alive. It is also important to note that the inner-man renewal is daily. A yesterday's encounter cannot sustain today's walk. We must return daily to the Word, pray continually, fast with understanding, maintain fellowship, guard the heart, and remain rooted in the love and fullness of Christ. The mountain is not possessed by outward boldness but by inward strength that has been renewed by God.

3. The Mountain Belongs to Those Who Seek Hard Territories and Follow the Lord Wholeheartedly: Caleb's request, "Give me this mountain," reveals the spirit of a wholehearted follower. He did not ask for what was easy, safe, comfortable, or already settled. He asked for a place where the Anakims were and where the cities were difficult and tough. He was not looking for convenience and was not trying to avoid difficulty. He was determined to possess what God had promised. Even at eighty-five years old, Caleb was still speaking the language of faith and responsibility. While others might have been looking for a place to rest, Caleb was asking for a mountain to possess. His focus was not on his age, limitations, or the strength of the enemy, but on the faithfulness of God. This disposition of Caleb is a major kingdom principle where every revival army must not always look for the easiest assignment, the most comfortable environment, or the place where everything is already formed with the right spiritual atmosphere. Sometimes, God calls His soldiers to remain in difficult places until His light breaks forth there.

This principle is equally applicable to our personal lives. We must not settle for less when God has given us the capacity and grace for much more. Caleb teaches us that spiritual vitality is not determined by age but by vision, faith, and purpose. Why should a formal retirement age of sixty years stop a believer from remaining productive? Retirement from a profession should never become retirement from purpose. There are still mountains to possess, lives to impact, disciples to raise, books to write, businesses to build, communities to transform, and nations to influence. In the same way, a professional should not settle into complacency when there are greater opportunities in God's will for leadership, innovation, and impact as a potential business owner.

4. As Thy Days, So Shall Thy Strength Be: Preserving the Body for the Fulfilment of God's Promise: Caleb said, "I am as strong now as I was when Moses sent me on that journey, and I can still travel and fight as well as I could then" NLT version. At eighty-five years old, Caleb still had strength for war, to go out and to come in. This does not mean that age had no effect on his body, but it shows that Caleb had been preserved by God and had lived in such a way that he could still respond to divine assignments even at old age. His testimony reminds us that long life, health, and usefulness are blessings that should be stewarded for the fulfilment of God's promise.

There is a spiritual principle here. The inner man must be renewed daily and the outer physical bodies must also be managed wisely. We need the body to serve God on earth. We need strength to pray, travel, teach, mentor, work, visit, evangelise, attend fellowship, raise children, support the church, and carry responsibilities. If we constantly abuse our bodies through careless eating, unhealthy habits, poor rest, unmanaged stress, and lack of self-control, we may weaken our ability to fulfil long-term assignments. Therefore, every revival army who seeks to go far for God must embrace the principles of wellness and healthy living. We must avoid excessive sugar, sugary drinks, late-night eating, and unhealthy indulgence. We should eat with wisdom, take enough water, maintain good rest, practise regular body movement or exercise, and emotional wellness. We should avoid bitterness, anxiety, anger, hidden stress, and tensions that weaken the body.

It is also important to note that healthy living and wellness are not vanity when they are submitted to God's purpose. We are not preserving the body for appearance or selfish comfort. We are preserving strength so that we can serve long, finish well, and accomplish the promise of God.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Keep old promises alive: Write them down and revisit the promises, instructions, prophecies, burdens, and convictions God has given you. Do not allow time, delay, or changing seasons to bury them.
- Claim promises with courageous obedience: Do not only remember what God said. Take responsible steps through prayer, planning, sacrifice, and faith.
- Renew the inner man daily: Feed on the Word, pray in the Spirit, worship, fast, meditate, repent quickly, and remain rooted in fellowship with God.
- Ask for mountains, not ease alone: Do not always choose the easiest way out. Be willing to serve in hard fields, difficult fellowships, demanding ministries, unreached places, and burdensome responsibilities.
- Manage the body for long-term usefulness: Eat wisely, reduce sugary drinks and excessive sugar, take water, exercise regularly, rest properly, and avoid destructive habits.
- Care for mental and emotional wellness: Bring anxiety, bitterness, anger, pressure, disappointment, and hidden stress to God in prayer. Seek godly counsel and support when needed.
- Do not retire from the vision of revival: Past excos, alumni, leaders, and older believers should continue to serve, mentor, counsel, teach, give, encourage, and model faithfulness.
- Preserve strength for divine assignment: Do not live carelessly with the body God gave you. Ask for grace to live long, serve well, finish strong, and accomplish God's promise.

Questions for Discussion

1. What does Caleb's forty-five-year waiting period teach us about faith and divine promises?
2. What does "Give me this mountain" teach us about hard assignments and kingdom responsibility?
3. Why do some ministers today actively seek preferred postings while showing little interest in serving in smaller churches, village churches and less paying parishes?

4. How can the inner man be renewed daily even when the outer man is wearied by age, pressure, or responsibility?
5. What practical wellness principles can help TACEFites preserve strength for long-term usefulness in God's work? Why should believers reduce unhealthy habits such as excessive sugar, poor dieting, lack of exercise, poor rest, unmanaged stress, and careless living?
6. What does it mean to wholly follow the Lord in a way that chooses the mountain rather than convenience?

Personal Reflection

What promise, instruction, or conviction from God have I become silent about because of delay? Am I still carrying the fire of what God spoke to me years ago? Have I become more interested in easy assignments than in taking mountains for the Lord? Is my inner man being renewed daily, or am I depending only on outward energy, position, age, or experience? Do I feed my spirit with the Word, prayer, fasting, and fellowship, or am I becoming inwardly weak while outwardly active? Am I managing my body wisely for God's long-term assignment? Do I abuse my body through poor dieting, excessive sugary drinks, unhealthy eating, lack of exercise, poor sleeping, unmanaged stress, anger, bitterness, anxiety, or careless habits? If my official role changes, will my burden for souls and revival remain alive?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, keep my faith alive through every season of waiting, delay, pressure, and transition.
2. Lord, help me not to forget Your promises, instructions, burdens, and dealings in my life.
3. Father, give me courage to claim old promises with obedience, prayer, sacrifice, and responsible action.
4. Lord, deliver me from convenience-based Christianity and give me grace to ask for mountains that must be possessed for You.
5. Father, strengthen me with might by Your Spirit in the inner man. Lord, renew my inner man daily through Your Word, prayer, worship, fasting, fellowship, and deeper communion with You.
6. Father, give me wisdom to steward my body for long-term usefulness in Your work. Lord, deliver me from unhealthy habits, careless eating, excessive sugary drinks, poor rest, lack of exercise, unmanaged stress, bitterness, anxiety, and every lifestyle that weakens strength for divine assignment. Lord, grant TACEFites who are sick in the body, perfect healing in Jesus name.

Week 27 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 1 March 2027

- Faith can remain alive after long period of delay and waiting. I will not allow waiting, time, age, pressure, or changing seasons to kill what God has spoken to me.
- Caleb waited forty-five years, yet his confidence in God's promise remained alive. Father, keep my faith alive through every delay.
- Lord, let time deepen my conviction, not weaken it. Let every promise from You mature in prayer, patience, and trust.

Tuesday, 2 March 2027

- Old promises must be claimed with courage and obedience. I will not only remember what God said; I will arise to obey it.
- Caleb said, "Give me this mountain" Father, give me courage to claim what You have promised and to move in faith.
- Lord, help me to embrace Your promise with responsible action, obedience, sacrifice, and faithful service.

Wednesday, 3 March 2027

- Taking mountains for the Lord requires inner-man renewal, strength, and courage. I will not settle only for convenience and ease.
- Caleb asked for the territory where the Anakims were and where the cities were difficult and tough. Father, give me courage for hard assignments. I will not settle for less.
- Lord, help me to be able to serve in difficult terrains, challenging revival fields, unreached places, demanding responsibilities, and hidden burdens for Your glory.

Thursday, 4 March 2027

- True strength begins in the inner man by the Spirit before it is expressed outwardly in action.
- Father, strengthen me with might by Your Spirit in the inner man. Let Christ dwell in my heart by faith.
- Lord, renew my inner man daily, even when the outer man is wearied by age, labour, pressure, waiting, or responsibility.

Friday, 5 March 2027

- The mountain belongs to those who seek hard territories and follow the Lord wholeheartedly. I receive grace to go the extra mile with the Lord.
- Father, deliver me from partial obedience, seasonal commitment, and convenience-based service. Help me to wholly follow You to accomplish great tasks for the kingdom.
- Lord, make TACEFites ready to go to the mountains of next levels in career growth, financial enlargement, business expansion, ministry increase and academic pursuit.

Saturday, 6 March 2027

- As my days are, so shall my strength be. I will steward my body wisely so that I can serve God faithfully across seasons till old age in good health.
- Father, give me discipline to avoid destructive habits, careless eating, poor sleeping pattern, lack of exercise, unmanaged stress, bitterness, anxiety, and unhealthy living.
- I receive grace to be strong in the inner man, wise in caring for my body, courageous for hard territories, and wholehearted in following the Lord until every promise is possessed.

Title: The Daughters of Zelophehad: Claiming Covenant Inheritance with Boldness

Bible Texts: Joshua 17:3-6; Numbers 27:1-11; Ephesians 1:11-14

Bible Texts

Joshua 17:3-6: 3 But Zelophehad, the son of Hepher, the son of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, had no sons, but daughters: and these are the names of his daughters, Mahlah, and Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah. 4 And they came near before Eleazar the priest, and before Joshua the son of Nun, and before the princes, saying, The LORD commanded Moses to give us an inheritance among our brethren. Therefore according to the commandment of the LORD he gave them an inheritance among the brethren of their father. 5 And there fell ten portions to Manasseh, beside the land of Gilead and Bashan, which were on the other side Jordan; 6 Because the daughters of Manasseh had an inheritance among his sons: and the rest of Manasseh's sons had the land of Gilead.

Numbers 27:1-11: 1 Then came the daughters of Zelophehad, the son of Hepher, the son of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, of the families of Manasseh the son of Joseph: and these are the names of his daughters; Mahlah, Noah, and Hoglah, and Milcah, and Tirzah. 2 And they stood before Moses, and before Eleazar the priest, and before the princes and all the congregation, by the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, saying, 3 Our father died in the wilderness, and he was not in the company of them that gathered themselves together against the LORD in the company of Korah; but died in his own sin, and had no sons. 4 Why should the name of our father be done away from among his family, because he hath no son? Give unto us therefore a possession among the brethren of our father. 5 And Moses brought their cause before the LORD. 6 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, 7 The daughters of Zelophehad speak right: thou shalt surely give them a possession of an inheritance among their father's brethren; and thou shalt cause the inheritance of their father to pass unto them. 8 And thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If a man die, and have no son, then ye shall cause his inheritance to pass unto his daughter. 9 And if he have no daughter, then ye shall give his inheritance unto his brethren. 10 And if he have no brethren, then ye shall give his inheritance unto his father's brethren. 11 And if his father have no brethren, then ye shall give his inheritance unto his kinsman that is next to him of his family, and he shall possess it: and it shall be unto the children of Israel a statute of judgment, as the LORD commanded Moses.

Ephesians 1:11-14: 11 In whom also we have obtained an inheritance, being predestinated according to the purpose of him who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will: 12 That we should be to the praise of his glory, who first trusted in Christ. 13 In whom ye also trusted, after that ye heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation: in whom also after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that holy Spirit of promise, 14 Which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- Zelophehad had no sons, but daughters.
- Give unto us therefore a possession among the brethren of our father.
- Moses brought their cause before the LORD.
- The daughters of Zelophehad speak right.
- The LORD commanded Moses to give us an inheritance among our brethren.
- In whom also we have obtained an inheritance.
- Predestinated according to the purpose of him who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will.

Introduction

Our study this week explores the remarkable story of the five daughters of Zelophehad (Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah). To fully appreciate the significance of their story, we must understand that it did not begin in the book of Joshua. Their story began during the days of Moses, long before Israel crossed the Jordan. In Numbers 27:1–11, these daughters appeared before Moses, Eleazar the priest, the princes, and the congregation to make a case concerning their inheritance. Their father had died in the wilderness and had no sons. Under the customary practices of that time, this could have meant that their father's name, family line, and inheritance would disappear from among his brethren. Yet these women understood that God's covenant purposes were greater than human customs. They refused to allow ignorance, fear, or cultural limitations to rob them of what God intended for their family. What makes their story even more instructive is Moses' response. Moses did not dismiss them because they were women and neither did he make a hasty personal judgment. Instead, he brought their case before the Lord (Numbers 27:5), and God Himself declared, "The daughters of Zelophehad speak right." Their request therefore became more than a personal appeal; it became a divine statute in Israel.

The background above is critical because when we arrive in Joshua 17 and find the daughters of Zelophehad standing before Joshua, Eleazar, and the leaders to claim their inheritance, they were not making a new request. They were standing upon a promise already established and a covenant matter already settled before the Lord through Moses. Joshua's positive disposition towards them was therefore not merely an act of kindness but an act of faithfulness to a divine precedence. He honoured what God had already spoken through Moses and ensured that a previous revelation became a present reality. This act of the daughters of Zelophehad teaches us that we do not need to fight, manipulate, complain, or create tension in the house of God to gain attention. They approached the matter through the proper channels and respectfully reminded the leaders of God's established word. Their request was bold but respectful. They did not speak against the leadership, form a pity party, or create division among the people. They respectfully engaged the leadership and communicated their intention clearly within order.

This teaching also helps us understand the biblical place of women in God's purposes. The daughters of Zelophehad demonstrate that women have a covenant portion in God's inheritance and can serve His purposes meaningfully while maintaining the spirit of submission, order, and teachability required in the household of faith. The book of Ephesians further highlights this study by showing us that in Christ we have obtained an inheritance according to the purpose of God, and this inheritance is not determined by gender, social class, background, age, or human evaluation. It is secured in Christ and sealed by the Holy Spirit of promise. Therefore, no TACEFite should allow gender, age, family background, or past failure to define their destiny.

Teachings

1. Inheritance Must Be Claimed Because Ignorance Can Lead to Loss: The daughters of Zelophehad understood that they had a legitimate inheritance. If they had remained ignorant, their father's name could have disappeared from among his family. If they had silently accepted the situation as unavoidable, they would have lost what God was willing to give them. Their knowledge of covenant inheritance gave them the confidence to speak. They knew enough to ask, and their asking resulted in a righteous judgment that benefited not only them but future generations of Israel. This teaches us that we must know enough to access what God has made available to us in our faith and life journey. Many opportunities in life are not lost because they do not exist, but because people do not know they exist. Many workplace benefits often go unclaimed because employees never take time to understand their entitlements. Many young professionals are unaware of legitimate opportunities for professional certifications, internships, grants, fellowships, entrepreneurship support, and career development programmes. Students miss bursaries, scholarships, exchange programmes, research opportunities, government supported student loans, and academic grants because they never search for them. Small business owners sometimes struggle unnecessarily because they do not know about available intervention funds, non-interest financing schemes, business support programmes, mentorship platforms, or market access opportunities through many non-profits. Around the world, there are countless opportunities for learning, leadership development, holiday employment, and enterprise creation, many of them freely available to those who are willing to seek, learn, and apply. However, all of these searches must always remain within the boundaries of God's will and leading,

As kingdom-minded believers, we must not live in ignorance of either spiritual truth or practical life knowledge because ignorance can result in significant loss. A believer who does not know what God has provided in Christ may live far below the provisions of grace. A believer who does not understand their identity may accept rejection, fear, shame, condemnation, limitation, or inferiority as destiny. A believer who does not know their gifts and calling may watch others serve effectively while burying their own grace and potential. Dear TACEFites, study the Word until you know what God has given you in Christ. Do not allow ignorance to rob you of your inheritance. Know your identity, portion, calling, and your place in the body of Christ and in the mandate of revival. At the same time, pursue knowledge diligently in every legitimate area of life, learn new skills, understand available opportunities, explore avenues for growth and development, seek wisdom concerning your career, finances, education, business, family, and ministry. What you do not know, you may never claim and what you do not understand, you may fail to access.

2. Bold Faith Can Make a Claim without Rebellion or Disorder: The daughters of Zelophehad were bold, but they were respectful and orderly. They did not speak in secret rebellion, murmur or create any form of tension within the camp. They did not gather a faction. They did not insult leadership but they approached through the right channel and presented their cause with clarity. As modern-day believers, we must know that boldness is not the same as rebellion. A believer can respectfully make a claim without dishonouring authority, age and leadership. A youth can ask questions without arrogance. The lesson here is that we learn to walk in humility, wisdom, and submission to godly process.

This principle is highly relevant in everyday life. As children relating with parents, employees interacting with employers, students engaging with teachers, TACEFites relating with ministers in charge of our local churches, or even believers interacting with one another, there will be moments when we need to speak up, seek clarification, request opportunities, challenge assumptions respectfully, or present a legitimate concern. However, how we pursue these things matters as much as the things themselves. Some people lose opportunities because they approach them with impatience, accusation, or a sense of entitlement. Others remain silent and miss their inheritance because they are afraid to ask. As believers, we must learn to communicate clearly, ask respectfully, and pursue God's promises courageously while maintaining the spirit of Christ. As a member of God's exceeding great army, we must be bold but remain respectful. We must seek clarity, do not manipulate people. We must learn to present our case and not cause division.

It is also important to learn from the response of Moses when the daughters of Zelophehad asked about their inheritance. He did not dismiss them because they were women. He did not silence them because their case was unusual. He did not judge them by tradition and culture. He brought their cause before the Lord. This is a pattern for spiritual leadership. Leaders must be careful not to reject people on things that we do not yet understand clearly. When a matter is unclear, it must be brought before the Lord, tested by the Word, and handled with spiritual maturity.

3. Women Also Have Covenant Portion -Biblical Inclusion, Ministry, Submission, and Order: The daughters of Zelophehad show clearly that women also have covenant portion in God because God has purpose, grace, and assignment for women as well as men. The wider testimony of Scripture confirms that women have been used by God in significant ways. Miriam led the women of Israel in worship after the crossing of the Red Sea. Deborah judged Israel and gave prophetic leadership in a difficult season. Huldah the prophetess was consulted concerning the book of the law in the days of Josiah. There were women who followed Jesus and ministered to Him of their substance. Philip had daughters who prophesied. Junia was described by Paul as someone "prominent among the apostles". He also commended Phoebe as a servant of the church and recognised many other women who laboured in the gospel. These examples show that God's work has never been without women who believed, served, witnessed, taught, supported, prayed, prophesied, and laboured faithfully.

At the same time, biblical inclusion must always operate within biblical order in the home, the church, and the household of faith. This context helps us understand difficult passages such as 1 Corinthians 14:34–35 and 1 Timothy 2:11–12, which are sometimes interpreted as though women have no spiritual voice or place of service in God's kingdom. Such an interpretation would be difficult to reconcile with the broader testimony of Scripture. In the same Corinthian letter, Paul already acknowledges that women prayed and prophesied in the assembly under proper authority and order (1 Corinthians 11:5). Therefore, the issue in Corinth and Ephesus is not a universal prohibition against all forms of female participation in ministry. The historical and cultural context of these verses are important. In both Corinth and Ephesus, the early church was ministering within societies where many women had limited access to formal religious instruction and theological training. The churches were also dealing with false teachings, disorderly conduct that were carried over by women from their past lifestyle before they became believers which Paul needed the church to manage for order in public worship.

Therefore, we must see our mothers and sisters as vital members of the great and exceeding army that God is raising. We must encourage our sisters to pray, serve, disciple believers, lead initiatives, coordinate kingdom projects, engage in evangelism, and fully deploy the graces that God has entrusted to them. Our TACEF Mothers Fellowship should continue to grow into a battalion of intercessors, nurturing mothers who carry the burden of revival, discipleship, and kingdom influence. Likewise, our weekly Tuesday morning Sisters Programme and general Sisters Fellowship should be treated with intentional commitment and seriousness, serving as strategic platforms for spiritual growth, leadership development, mentorship, discipleship, and preparation for kingdom service.

4. Silence Can Lead to Loss Due to Ignorance: The daughters of Zelophehad could have remained silent. They could have accepted their situation simply because their father had no sons. They could have concluded that nothing could be done and allowed their family's inheritance to disappear. But they understood enough about God's covenant and His promises to speak up. Their holy boldness preserved their inheritance, secured their father's name, and established a righteous precedent for future generations. Many believers today lose ground because they do not fully understand who they are in Christ or the opportunities that God has made available to them in various spheres of life. They remain silent when they should pray, seek counsel, ask questions, apply, volunteer, or step forward in faith. They withdraw when they should pursue opportunities. More painfully, many believers settle for far less than God's purpose for their lives because they assume certain opportunities are beyond their reach while others bury their gifts in silence because of fear, low self-esteem, societal limitations, cultural expectations, background, or status.

Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Know your inheritance in Christ: Study the Word to understand your, identity, spiritual blessings, calling, gifts, access to God, and place in the body.
- Do not allow ignorance to rob you in life: In life generally, learn to ask questions, seek contemporary knowledge, be abreast of facts, and grow in understanding.
- Make righteous claims with humility: When you have a burden, request, concern, or conviction, approach through the right channel with wisdom, respect, and order.
- Be bold without rebellion: Do not confuse confidence with pride or courage with disorder. Speak truth with humility and honour.
- Encourage women's ministry with biblical order: Sisters should be encouraged to serve faithfully within sound doctrine, submission, holiness, and godly structure.
- Do not silence God-given portions: Leaders must not suppress sisters, converts, quiet workers, or less-visible members whom God is calling to serve.
- Claim your portion responsibly: Do not use inheritance for self-promotion. Use your grace to serve, build, strengthen, and edify the body.
- Reject limiting labels: Do not allow background, fear, age, gender, past failure, or human rejection to define your destiny.

Questions for Discussion

1. What did the daughters of Zelophehad understand about inheritance that gave them courage to speak?
2. How is ignorance causing many believers to lose valuable opportunities today?
3. How would you advise two believers in a business partnership where there are no written contracts or clearly agreed terms? They began the partnership based on assumptions, but both parties now feel cheated, hurt, and unfairly treated, while neither is willing to speak openly or assert what they believe is rightfully theirs.
4. Why was it important that Moses brought their cause before the Lord instead of dismissing them?
5. What biblical examples show that women have covenant portion and can be used by God?
6. Why must leaders avoid silencing people who need to express concerns, ask questions, clarify ambiguities, address unclear issues, or share their fears in order to receive proper guidance and clarity from leadership?

Personal Reflection

Do I understand my inheritance in Christ, or am I living below what God has given me? Have I allowed ignorance, fear, gender, background, past failure, or rejection to limit my service? Do I know my portion in the body of Christ? When I have a burden or concern, do I approach with humility, wisdom, and respect, or with pride, backbiting and disorder? Am I bold enough to ask, but humble enough to submit? Do I make righteous claims in the spirit of Christ? Am I willing to be taught, corrected, disciplined, and guided so that my gift can serve the body properly? Am I using my inheritance for self-promotion, or for the praise of God's glory and the edifying of the body?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, open my eyes to understand my inheritance in Christ.
2. Lord, deliver me from ignorance, fear, shame, rejection, and every lie that makes me live below my portion.
3. Father, help me to claim and steward my God-given inheritance with godly boldness, humility, and responsibility.
4. Lord, teach me to be bold without rebellion, courageous without pride, and confident without disorder.
5. Lord, strengthen our Mothers and Sisters Fellowship as a strategic platform for raising an exceeding great army of revival. Let our mothers and sisters grow in sound doctrine, holiness, discipleship, humility, spiritual maturity, and fruitfulness, becoming effective vessels for revival.
6. Father, let no TACEFite be silenced by fear, background, past failure, poverty, quietness, or human rejection in Jesus' name.

Week 28 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 8 March 2027

- Inheritance must be understood, because ignorance can lead to total loss. I will not live below what God has given me in Christ.
- The daughters of Zelophehad knew they had a legitimate inheritance. Father, open my understanding to know my portion in You and give me the grace to access them by faith.
- Lord, deliver me from ignorance, fear, shame, and every lie that makes me silent where I am meant to be a voice.

Tuesday, 9 March 2027

- Women have covenant portion in Christ and must be treated with respect and dignity, as co-heirs of God's heritage in our local fellowships, leadership roles or marriage.
- Father, strengthen our sisters, women, and daughters in TACEF to know their place, grow in the Word, and serve faithfully.
- Lord, help us to build women's ministries (TACEF Mothers Fellowship and TACEF Sisters Fellowship) on the Scripture, holiness, sound doctrine, humility, and spiritual order.

Wednesday, 10 March 2027

- I will pursue and claim every inheritance, opportunity, and privilege that God has ordained for me with holy boldness, while remaining respectful, humble, and orderly
- The daughters of Zelophehad approached the leadership through the right channel. Father, teach me to speak, ask, serve, and claim my portion with humility and wisdom.
- Lord, help me to make righteous claims without disorder, and to submit my concerns to godly counsel and Your Word.

Thursday, 11 March 2027

- Lord, deliver us from ignorance, being laid back, and fear that cause people to miss opportunities, and give us the wisdom and diligence to discover, pursue, and maximise every legitimate opportunity You have prepared for our lives.
- Father, grant us the courage to step forward in faith, apply for opportunities, seek knowledge, build new skills, and pursue growth in our careers, businesses, education, ministry, and every area of kingdom assignment.
- Lord, break every mindset of limitation, complacency, and low expectation. Help us not to settle for less than Your purpose for our lives.

Friday, 12 March 2027

- Silence can lead to loss when believers do not know who they are in Christ. I will not bury my grace because of fear.
- I am sealed with the Holy Spirit of promise, and I have obtained an inheritance in Christ. Father, make me bold in my identity.
- Lord, help every TACEFite to walk in the understanding of their identity and serve in humility of hearts.

Saturday, 13 March 2027

- God honours righteous claims made with humility, faith, and covenant understanding. I will claim my portion responsibly.
- Father, help TACEF leaders not to silence those You have given a portion, but to disciple, guide, correct, and support with maturity.
- I receive grace to know my inheritance, serve my portion, walk in godly order, and live to the praise of God's glory.

Week 29: Monday, 15 March 2027 to Sunday, 21 March 2027

Title: Why Are Ye Slack? Redeeming the Time for God's Assignment

Bible Texts: Joshua 18:1-10; Ephesians 5:14-17

Bible Texts

Joshua 18:1-10: 1 And the whole congregation of the children of Israel assembled together at Shiloh, and set up the tabernacle of the congregation there. And the land was subdued before them. 2 And there remained among the children of Israel seven tribes, which had not yet received their inheritance. 3 And Joshua said unto the children of Israel, How long are ye slack to go to possess the land, which the LORD God of your fathers hath given you? 4 Give out from among you three men for each tribe: and I will send them, and they shall rise, and go through the land, and describe it according to the inheritance of them; and they shall come again to me. 5 And they shall divide it into seven parts: Judah shall abide in their coast on the south, and the house of Joseph shall abide in their coasts on the north. 6 Ye shall therefore describe the land into seven parts, and bring the description hither to me, that I may cast lots for you here before the LORD our God. 7 But the Levites have no part among you; for the priesthood of the LORD is their inheritance: and Gad, and Reuben, and half the tribe of Manasseh, have received their inheritance beyond Jordan on the east, which Moses the servant of the LORD gave them. 8 And the men arose, and went away: and Joshua charged them that went to describe the land, saying, Go and walk through the land, and describe it, and come again to me, that I may here cast lots for you before the LORD in Shiloh. 9 And the men went and passed through the land, and described it by cities into seven parts in a book, and came again to Joshua to the host at Shiloh. 10 And Joshua cast lots for them in Shiloh before the LORD: and there Joshua divided the land unto the children of Israel according to their divisions.

Ephesians 5:14-17: 14 Wherefore he saith, Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light. 15 See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, 16 Redeeming the time, because the days are evil. 17 Wherefore be ye not unwise, but understanding what the will of the Lord is.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- There remained among the children of Israel seven tribes, which had not yet received their inheritance.
- How long are ye slack to go to possess the land?
- They shall rise, and go through the land.
- Joshua divided the land unto the children of Israel according to their divisions.
- Awake thou that sleepest.
- Redeeming the time, because the days are evil.
- Understanding what the will of the Lord is.

Introduction

This week's study brings us to a serious moment in Israel's journey of possession the land and winning their territory for the Lord as a reference example of an exceeding great army. The whole congregation assembled at Shiloh, and the tabernacle of the congregation was set up there. The land had been subdued before them, yet seven tribes out of the twelve had not received their inheritance. This means that the promise had been given and the land had been brought under control, but many of the people had still not moved into what God had apportioned to them. Joshua therefore asked a searching question: "How long will you delay going out to take possession of the land that the LORD, the God of your ancestors, gave you?" (CSB version).

Joshua's question is a prophetic charge to every TACEFite, every family, fellowship, local church, campus, business, career and believer who has received divine promises but remains passive, delayed, distracted, or laid back. God's promise does not cancel man's responsibility. Divine provision must be met with timely action. The land may be available while people remain slack. Access may be granted while souls remain unclaimed. A door may open for youth Sunday outreaches in our local churches or opportunity to run the children church, yet the work may still be delayed because people refuse to pray, arise in the spirit, plan, act, and follow through.

The book of Ephesians further elaborates on this by calling believers to awake out of sleep and to redeem the time because the days are evil, and therefore time must not be wasted. Spiritual laziness often hides under excuses, busyness, fear, poor planning, lack of discipline, and endless postponement. It is possible to attend programmes but remain slack in personal obedience. It is possible to talk about revival but fail to plan, pray, follow up, disciple, and possess the souls God has placed within our reach. Therefore, our Week 29 calls all TACEFites, as true revival army to arise from delay into timely God-initiated actions. Joshua did not only rebuke the seven tribes on being slack, but he also went further to give them a practical approach of what needs to be done. He asked them to select men, survey the land, describe it, return with findings, and divide the land into parts.

Teachings

1. Slackness Delays Inheritance Even When the Land Has Already Been Provided: Joshua 18 shows a painful reality when the Promised Land had been subdued before Israel, but seven tribes had not yet received their inheritance. The problem was not that God had failed or that the land was unavailable. The problem was that the people had become slack, comfortable, lazy and unwilling to take the necessary steps to possess what had already been provided. The promise was available, but possession was delayed because responsibility was neglected. This teaches us that God may open great doors and God's people may never walk into it. He may provide access that people never utilise and bring many opportunities our way that we may never pursue. God may bring a person into a season of favour, yet fear, procrastination, poor planning, lack of discipline, distraction, or complacency can prevent them from entering fully into what He has prepared. This is because divine provision never eliminates the need for human responsibility. God gives the land, but we must still rise and possess it.

Many believers live in this condition today. They know what God has been prompting them to do, yet they keep postponing action. They know they need to restore their prayer altar, reconcile with someone, follow up on souls, let go of the pains of the past, join a service unit, teach children, support the fellowship, or grow deeper in the Word, but they keep saying, "I will do it later." The same pattern extends into everyday life. Some know they should obtain a professional certification, learn digital skills, improve their communication and social skills, pursue an advanced degree, update their CV, start a side business, write a proposal, apply for a scholarship, seek a mentor, improve their health, or develop leadership capacity, yet they continually postpone taking action. Others spend years talking about what they hope to do while watching opportunities pass by. They become stale in their skills, outdated in their knowledge, and limited in their impact. Beloved, do not postpone action until the opportunity is gone. When God provides the land, rise and possess it. The time to act is now, as the Lord leads.

2. Spiritual Laziness Hides under Excuses: Joshua's question, "How long are ye slack?" reveals that the delay had persisted for far too long. Slackness does not always appear as open rebellion but hides behind seemingly reasonable excuses and endless postponement. Sometimes it disguises itself as busyness, because we can always find genuine reasons why we have not yet done what God has instructed us to do. At other times, it hides behind fear, uncertainty, over-analysis, lack of confidence, or waiting for the "perfect time." Yet delayed obedience remains delayed obedience, no matter how convincing the excuse may sound. Indeed, slackness can sound religious. It may say, "We are waiting on God," when God is actually waiting for us to obey and act. It may say, "The time is not yet right," when fear is the real problem. It may say, "We are very busy," when the issue is wrong priority. It may say, "There is no money," when the real issue is lack of planning.

Ephesians warns us, "Awake thou that sleepest." This means some people can be spiritually asleep while surrounded by many opportunities, even while pretending to be overwhelmed in spiritual activities. They may speak the language of revival but lack the discipline of doing the right thing at the right time and in the right way. They may rejoice over promises but remain laid back and irresponsible to act on time. This is the time for us to press a pause and examine our excuses. Beloved, it is time to awake, arise, and possess the land.

3. Possession Requires Structure, Practical Actions and Territorial Mapping: Joshua did not merely rebuke the tribes for their slackness; he went further and provided a practical framework for action. This is an important lesson for every leader. It is not enough to identify a problem; effective leadership must also provide a clear pathway toward a solution. Joshua instructed the tribes to appoint representatives to survey the land, describe it according to its territories, document their findings, return with a report, and then proceed with the allocation and occupation of the inheritance. This reveals a powerful kingdom principle: possession requires more than desire or good intentions. It requires structure, planning, execution, accountability, and follow-through. Joshua's six step process can be summarised as: (1) define the territory; (2) understand the landscape; (3) document the realities; (4) assign responsibility; (5) establish a plan; and (6) take action. The men did as instructed and returned with a report. In doing so, they transformed a promise into a practical pathway for possession.

This same principle applies to every area of life. In our spiritual lives, we should not merely desire spiritual growth; we must create structures that support it. A believer who desires a stronger prayer life should have a prayer schedule and create an accountability structure. A local fellowship that desires growth must identify new converts, engage inactive members, and create outreach programmes for new members. A campus fellowship should understand its campus environment, map faculties, hostels, departments, and student groups, identify where students are concentrated, and how best to maximise programmes like “Catch Them Young” during new session for growth. The same principle applies to career development, business growth, and personal advancement. Many people desire promotion but have never honestly assessed their current competencies, identified skill gaps, or developed a learning plan. A professional should periodically survey their career landscape, do skills audit, identify areas requiring improvement, build relevant skills, strengthen professional networks, and create measurable development goals. A business owner should understand the market, study customer needs, analyse competitors, identify growth opportunities, review financial performance, and create deliberate plans to increase value and sales. A student should periodically review academic performance, identify weak subjects, improve study habits, seek mentorship, and establish learning goals. In every case, growth begins with understanding the territory before attempting to possess it.

4. Time Must Be Redeemed through Kingdom Focus and Planning: Ephesians says, “Redeeming the time, because the days are evil.” This means time is a spiritual resource that can be invested, wasted, lost, abused, delayed, misused, or redeemed. A believer who does not manage time well may miss seasons, lose opportunities, delay divine lifting, and become unfruitful. Redeeming time requires thorough planning. Every revival army must ask: What has God assigned to me in this season? What must I do now? What must not be postponed? What skill must I build now? What certification must I complete before year-end? What spiritual discipline must I maintain now? What relationship must I build? What soul must I follow up? What local church assignment must I carry? What opportunity is time-sensitive? What door may not remain open forever?

It is a sad reality that many believers delay doing the right things at the right time. They postpone personal development opportunities until the season for advancement has passed. Some remain in the same career position for years because they never prepared themselves for the next level. Others pray for business growth but never study their customers, understand the market, improve their products, or develop the skills required to compete effectively. Some desire financial increase but never learn budgeting, investment, or financial stewardship. Others dream of ministry enlargement but neglect prayer, study, and discipleship. They become stale in their skills, outdated in their knowledge, and limited in their influence while praying for enlargement. This explains our text of study from Ephesians which calls us to walk “not as fools, but as wise.” Wisdom helps us recognise opportunities, prepare for them, and act when God opens the door.

Time must also be redeemed by avoiding the waste of precious hours on endless social media browsing, consuming irrelevant videos, pictures, and content that add little or no value to our lives. Much of that same time can be invested in learning new skills, acquiring knowledge, improving professional competence, deepening spiritual understanding, or developing practical capabilities through the countless free learning resources available online. Platforms such as YouTube, online courses platform like Coursera, digital libraries, and professional learning communities provide unprecedented access to knowledge for those who are intentional about growth.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Identify where you have been slack: Write down areas where you have being slack, avoided responsibility, postponed growth, or refused to act.
- Separate access from possession: Ask whether the doors God has opened have produced real fruits, such as souls saved, people disciplined, members restored, children taught, or families strengthened.
- Practise territorial mapping: List the people, families, church units, campuses, departments, businesses, homes, communities, and groups that need divine encounter.
- Describe the land clearly: Do not keep the assignment vague. Write names, needs, locations, challenges, opportunities, possible actions, and follow-up plans for both spiritual and your career or business efforts.
- Break vision into action: Convert every assignment to be done into steps, timelines, responsibilities, resources needed, and accountable reporting.
- Redeem time for kingdom tasks: Set weekly time for every activity and hold yourself accountable.
- Plan your life wisely: Identify skills development programmes, certifications, advanced degrees, professional skills, business disciplines, health routines, financial habits, and spiritual disciplines that must not be delayed.

- Avoid becoming stale or obsolete: Keep learning, reading, training, and improving so that your usefulness in God's hand is not diminished by outdated knowledge or poor preparation.
- Stop hiding behind excuses: Replace "I will do it later" with a clear decision, a first step, and a date for action.
- Review progress regularly: Like the men who returned to Joshua with a written description, report progress, learn lessons, adjust plans, and keep moving until the land is possessed.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why were seven tribes still without their inheritance even though the land had been subdued?
2. How can spiritual laziness hide under excuses or being busy in so-called spiritual activities?
3. What does Joshua's survey instruction teach us about planning, mapping, reporting, and ordered action?
4. How can TACEFites practise territorial mapping in families, campuses, local churches, children's ministry, youth church, and communities?
5. What does it mean to redeem the time as a believer?
6. How can delayed professional growth, delayed certification, stale skills, or obsolete knowledge reduce usefulness in God's hands?

Personal Reflection

Where have I been slack in possessing what God has already provided? Am I hiding spiritual laziness under excuses or religious routine? Am I busy around God's work but avoiding the specific instruction God has given me? Do I have opportunities or open doors that have not yet produced real kingdom fruit? Am I redeeming time, or am I wasting seasons? What professional certification, self development, new skills, reading plan, health discipline, financial habit or spiritual discipline have I delayed for too long? Am I becoming stale in skill, weak in discipline, or obsolete in knowledge because I keep postponing the right things? What land must I plan for and possess now?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, deliver me from slackness, delay, and every excuse that keeps me from possessing my portion in life and destiny.
2. Lord, wake me from spiritual sleep, break the yoke of laziness in my life and help me to arise into divine action.
3. Father, give me wisdom to break kingdom vision into steps, timelines, responsibilities, and accountable actions.
4. Lord, help me to redeem the time and walk circumspectly, not as a fool, but as a wise person.
5. Lord, help me to stop postponing professional growth, certification, advanced learning, skill development, spiritual discipline, and life planning.
6. Father, make TACEFites diligent, organised, disciplined, prayerful, and fruitful in every land You have given us access to possess.

Week 29 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 15 March 2027

- Slackness delays inheritance even when the land has already been given by the Lord. I will not be lazy where God has given me opportunities and open doors.
- Joshua asked, "How long are ye slack to go to possess the land?" Father, expose every area where I have delayed timely action.
- Lord, deliver me from excuses, fear, and laziness. Help me to arise and possess what You have assigned to me.

Tuesday, 16 March 2027

- The land may be available while people remain distracted, passive, or laid back. I will not be distracted from taking the possession that the Lord has given unto me.
- Father, help me to turn every access and roles you have given me into fruitful and tangible kingdom impact.
- Lord, let every platform, responsibility, assignment, influence, and church access You give me produce souls, disciples, restoration, and revival in Jesus name.

Wednesday, 17 March 2027

- Spiritual laziness can hide under excuses and religious routine. I will not be busy around God's work while avoiding God's instruction.
- Father, show me where I am using activity to cover delay, poor planning, or lack of discipline.

- Lord, wake me from spiritual sleep. Help me to walk circumspectly, not as a fool, but as one who is wise.

Thursday, 18 March 2027

- Possession requires practical actions. I receive insights for practical step by step to do what the Lord has called me into.
- Joshua sent men to walk through the land, describe it, and return with a report. Father, teach me to map the land You have assigned to me and document the details for right and timely action.
- Lord, help me to identify souls, families, children, youths, campuses, church units, friends, colleagues, and communities that need divine encounter so as to act on time as You lead.

Friday, 19 March 2027

- Kingdom vision must be broken into steps, responsibilities, timelines, and accountable actions. I will not only talk about kingdom assignments, but I will act in obedience and on time.
- Father, give me wisdom to write the plan, assign responsibility, follow up, and review progress.
- Lord, make TACEFites diligent in territorial mapping, soul follow-up, discipleship planning, fellowship organisation, and kingdom execution.

Saturday, 20 March 2027

- Time must be redeemed because delay can lead to missed opportunities. I will not postpone the right things at the right time.
- Father, help me to stop delaying spiritual discipline, professional certification, skill development, health routines, financial planning, and kingdom service.
- I receive grace to redeem the time, plan my life wisely, grow in usefulness, and possess the land for the Lord with prompt obedience.

Week 30: Monday, 22 March 2027 to Sunday, 28 March 2027

Tarry Week for Reflections and Prayer

Daily Reflective Prayer Declarations

Monday, 22 March 2026

- I have obtained an inheritance in Christ according to the purpose of God. I will not compare my portion with another person's portion, neither will I despise the assignment God has entrusted to me.
- Father, help me to discover, embrace, and faithfully steward my place in Your kingdom. Let me supply my measure in the household of TACEF with commitment, humility, and love.

Tuesday, 23 March 2027

- I will not bury my gifts, opportunities, talents, experiences, resources, or spiritual graces. Every portion You have given me shall be used for Your glory and the strengthening of Your people.
- Lord, deliver me from envy, competition, self-promotion, and every attitude that diminishes my kingdom service. Teach me to labour faithfully in my assigned duty post.

Wednesday, 24 March 2027

- Like Caleb, I will not allow time, age, delay, disappointment, or changing seasons to weaken my faith. The promises of God concerning my life remain alive and will come to pass.
- Father, strengthen me with might by Your Spirit in the inner man. Let my confidence in You grow stronger with every passing year and every season of waiting.

Thursday, 25 March 2027

- I receive grace to ask for mountains and not seek comfort. I will not avoid difficult assignments, hard responsibilities, or demanding fields of labour.
- Lord, make me a faithful soldier in Your revival army. Give me courage to remain where Your light is needed until Your purpose is fulfilled.

Friday, 26 March 2027

- I will not live below my inheritance through ignorance, fear, low expectations, cultural limitations, or human opinion. I receive grace to know what God has provided for me in Christ.
- Father, open my eyes to opportunities, responsibilities, privileges, and assignments that You have prepared for me. Let me walk in holy boldness while remaining humble, teachable, and respectful

Saturday, 27 March 2027

- I reject every form of slackness, laziness, procrastination, delay, poor planning, carelessness, and wasted opportunities. I will arise and possess every territory God has assigned to me.
- Lord, help me to redeem the time. Teach me to plan wisely, develop myself intentionally, grow in spiritual discipline, and maximise every season for Your glory.

SECTION 7: How God's Army Preserves Order, Extends Ministry, and Trusts God's Faithfulness

The journey of God's end-time army now moves from possessing inheritance into preserving order, extending ministry, building healthy communities, and resting in the faithfulness of God. After the land had been divided and the inheritance allocated, Israel still needed structures that would sustain covenant life across generations. Boundaries had to be defined, cities of refuge established, the Levites distributed among the people, and the nation continually reminded that every promise God had spoken would surely come to pass. This section therefore explores how God's people must move beyond receiving blessings to building systems, relationships, and ministries that preserve His purposes in every territory. Possession is not complete until what has been received is properly ordered, protected, stewarded, and passed on.

There is also a pattern of divine administration throughout this section. Every tribe had boundaries that defined its portion. Every city of refuge reflected God's balance of justice and mercy. Every Levitical city ensured that no territory was left without spiritual influence. Every fulfilled promise reminded Israel that God's faithfulness is the foundation of covenant inheritance. This teaches us that God's work thrives where there is order, responsibility, accountability, spiritual coverage, and faithful stewardship. Confusion, rivalry, isolation, and lack of structure weaken what God has built. The army that has received inheritance must now learn to preserve unity, distribute ministry, restore the wounded, and maintain covenant order across every territory.

Week 31: Setting the Boundaries – Serving God Faithfully in Your Assigned Portion: The division of the land teaches that every tribe had boundaries and every assignment had a defined territory. Boundaries are not restrictions but provisions for fruitfulness, order, and effectiveness. Ephesians teaches that every part of the body must supply its measure. TACEFites must learn to serve faithfully within their God-given assignments without comparison, competition, jealousy, or unnecessary interference in another person's portion. The mandate advances when every member knows their place, respects Godly boundaries, and serves with wisdom, focus, and accountability.

Week 32: Cities of Refuge – Building Communities of Mercy, Healing, and Restoration: The cities of refuge reveal the heart of God for justice, mercy, restoration, and protection. They remind us that Christ is our ultimate refuge, whose atoning work secures our salvation and inheritance. TACEFites must learn to build fellowship cultures where truth and mercy walk together, where correction seeks restoration rather than humiliation, and where wounded, struggling, repentant, and recovering believers can find healing. God's revival army must neither crush people through harshness nor excuse sin through careless tolerance.

Week 33: The Levites Among the People – Distributing Ministry Across Every Territory: The Levites were scattered among the tribes so that every territory would have access to spiritual instruction, worship, counsel, and covenant guidance. Ephesians teaches that ministry gifts are given to equip the saints for the work of ministry. TACEFites must therefore carry revival beyond central programmes into local churches, campuses, homes, workplaces, communities, and families. No territory should be left spiritually uncovered. The burden of ministry must be shared so that every believer becomes both a recipient and a distributor of kingdom life.

Week 34: The God Who Fulfills Every Promise – Trusting God's Faithfulness Over Every Inheritance: Joshua concludes this section with one of the strongest testimonies in the Scripture that not one good thing failed of all that the Lord had spoken. Israel possessed the land because God remained faithful to His covenant. Ephesians reminds us that the Holy Spirit is the earnest of our inheritance and that God is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think. TACEFites must therefore learn to trust God beyond delays, opposition, uncertainties, and changing circumstances. Every promise, inheritance, and assignment rests upon the faithfulness of God, who never fails and whose Word cannot fall to the ground.

Bible Texts

Joshua 19:1-51: 1 And the second lot came forth to Simeon, even for the tribe of the children of Simeon according to their families: and their inheritance was within the inheritance of the children of Judah. 2 And they had in their inheritance Beersheba, or Sheba, and Moladah, 3 And Hazarshual, and Balah, and Azem, 4 And Eltolad, and Bethul, and Hormah, 5 And Ziklag, and Bethmarcaboth, and Hazarsusah, 6 And Bethlebaoth, and Sharuhem; thirteen cities and their villages: 7 Ain, Remmon, and Ether, and Ashan; four cities and their villages: 8 And all the villages that were round about these cities to Baalathbeer, Ramath of the south. This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Simeon according to their families. 9 Out of the portion of the children of Judah was the inheritance of the children of Simeon: for the part of the children of Judah was too much for them: therefore the children of Simeon had their inheritance within the inheritance of them. 10 And the third lot came up for the children of Zebulun according to their families: and the border of their inheritance was unto Sarid: 11 And their border went up toward the sea, and Maralah, and reached to Dabbasheth, and reached to the river that is before Jokneam; 12 And turned from Sarid eastward toward the sunrising unto the border of Chislothabor, and then goeth out to Daberath, and goeth up to Japhia, 13 And from thence passeth on along on the east to Gittahhepher, to Ittahkazin, and goeth out to Remmonmethoar to Neah; 14 And the border compasseth it on the north side to Hannathon: and the outgoings thereof are in the valley of Jipthahel: 15 And Kattath, and Nahallal, and Shimron, and Idalah, and Bethlehem: twelve cities with their villages. 16 This is the inheritance of the children of Zebulun according to their families, these cities with their villages. 17 And the fourth lot came out to Issachar, for the children of Issachar according to their families. 18 And their border was toward Jezreel, and Chesulloth, and Shunem, 19 And Hapharaim, and Shion, and Anaharath, 20 And Rabbith, and Kishion, and Abez, 21 And Remeth, and Engannim, and Enhaddah, and Bethpazzez; 22 And the coast reacheth to Tabor, and Shahazimah, and Bethshemesh; and the outgoings of their border were at Jordan: sixteen cities with their villages. 23 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Issachar according to their families, the cities and their villages. 24 And the fifth lot came out for the tribe of the children of Asher according to their families. 25 And their border was Helkath, and Hali, and Beten, and Achshaph, 26 And Alammelech, and Amad, and Misheal; and reacheth to Carmel westward, and to Shihorlibnath; 27 And turneth toward the sunrising to Bethdagon, and reacheth to Zebulun, and to the valley of Jipthahel toward the north side of Bethemek, and Neiel, and goeth out to Cabul on the left hand, 28 And Hebron, and Rehob, and Hammon, and Kanah, even unto great Zidon; 29 And then the coast turneth to Ramah, and to the strong city Tyre; and the coast turneth to Hosah; and the outgoings thereof are at the sea from the coast to Achzib: 30 Ummah also, and Aphek, and Rehob: twenty and two cities with their villages. 31 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Asher according to their families, these cities with their villages. 32 The sixth lot came out to the children of Naphtali, even for the children of Naphtali according to their families. 33 And their coast was from Heleph, from Allon to Zaanannim, and Adami, Nekeb, and Jabneel, unto Lakum; and the outgoings thereof were at Jordan: 34 And then the coast turneth westward to Aznothtabor, and goeth out from thence to Hukkok, and reacheth to Zebulun on the south side, and reacheth to Asher on the west side, and to Judah upon Jordan toward the sunrising. 35 And the fenced cities are Ziddim, Zer, and Hammath, Rakkath, and Chinnereth, 36 And Adamah, and Ramah, and Hazor, 37 And Kedesh, and Edrei, and Enhazor, 38 And Iron, and Migdalel, Horem, and Bethanath, and Bethshemesh; nineteen cities with their villages. 39 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Naphtali according to their families, the cities and their villages. 40 And the seventh lot came out for the tribe of the children of Dan according to their families. 41 And the coast of their inheritance was Zorah, and Eshtaol, and Irshemesh, 42 And Shalabbin, and Ajalon, and Jethlah, 43 And Elon, and Thimnathah, and Ekron, 44 And Eltekeh, and Gibbethon, and Baalath, 45 And Jehud, and Beneberak, and Gathrimmon, 46 And Mejarkon, and Rakkon, with the border before Japho. 47 And the coast of the children of Dan went out too little for them: therefore the children of Dan went up to fight against Leshem, and took it, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and possessed it, and dwelt therein, and called Leshem, Dan, after the name of Dan their father. 48 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Dan according to their families, these cities with their villages. 49 When they had made an end of dividing the land for inheritance by their coasts, the children of Israel gave an inheritance to Joshua the son of Nun among them: 50 According to the word of the LORD they gave him the city which he asked, even Timnathserah in mount Ephraim: and he built the city, and dwelt therein. 51 These are the inheritances, which Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel, divided for an inheritance by lot in Shiloh before the LORD, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation. So they made an end of dividing the country.

Ephesians 4:16: 16 From whom the whole body fitly joined together and compacted by that which every joint supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure of every part, maketh increase of the body unto the edifying of itself in love.

Ephesians 5:15: 15 See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise.

- Divided for an inheritance by lot in Shiloh before the LORD.
- The whole body fitly joined together.
- Every joint supplieth.
- According to the effectual working in the measure of every part.
- Maketh increase of the body unto the edifying of itself in love.

Introduction

As we continue to learn the principles of becoming a great and exceeding army, our study this week brings us to the setting of boundaries among the tribes of Israel. Joshua 19 gives detailed descriptions of the inheritances of Simeon, Zebulun, Issachar, Asher, Naphtali, Dan, and finally the inheritance given to Joshua himself. The chapter may look like a list of names, cities, borders, and territories, but it teaches a deep principle of divine order. God did not only give Israel the land generally but also assigned portions specifically to each tribe. Each tribe had its place, its boundary, its cities, and its responsibility.

We can also learn that the setting of boundaries teaches that God is a God of order, placement, and purpose. He does not only call people generally, but He also assigns them specifically to tasks and assignments. A tribe could not simply take another tribe's portion because it looked better and a tribe could not abandon its portion because another field appeared more visible. Some tribes received large territories, some smaller. Some were near the sea, some inland. Some were in strategic areas, some in ordinary-looking places. Yet every portion mattered because it came under the instruction of God.

Ephesians expands this principle by using it to show us how the body of Christ grows when every part supplies its portion. The whole body is fitly joined together and compacted by that which every joint supplies. This means each part has a role to play and add something special to contribute, such that the body becomes stronger when each part functions in love. Without boundaries, there will be confusion, stepping on each other, rivalry, offence, wasted energy, and jealousy. But when every part understands its role and serves faithfully, the whole body is edified.

This study generally teaches us that there is no competition or comparison in the pursuit of the mandate the Lord has given us. Not every portion will look the same and not every assignment will carry the same visibility. We must stop measuring usefulness by visibility but each of us must serve in our assigned areas faithfully without competition or jealousy.

Teachings

1. Every Tribe Had Boundaries, Showing That Assignment Must Be Understood and Respected: God's people were not meant to live in confusion, disorder, or constant overlap of responsibilities. Each tribe needed to know the portion assigned to it, the cities within its care, and the boundaries of its stewardship. Assignments had to be understood, embraced, and respected. Although God calls His people into one corporate purpose, He distributes different responsibilities within that purpose. In the body of Christ, some are called to teach, some to intercede, some to evangelise in specific communities, some to organise, some to serve children, some to coordinate welfare, some to support administration, some to provide counsel, and others to lead. Every believer must understand their portion and serve there faithfully, knowing that effectiveness comes through clarity of assignment.

Boundaries as seen in our texts are important because they help us focus our energy, maximise our effectiveness, and avoid unnecessary confusion. A person without boundaries may attempt to do everything and ultimately do nothing well. A leader without boundaries may interfere in every department and weaken those entrusted with responsibility. A worker without boundaries may neglect their assigned duty while pursuing what appears more visible or prestigious. The same principle applies beyond ministry. A student without clear priorities may be distracted by too many activities and neglect academic excellence. A professional without focus may pursue multiple directions without developing expertise in any. A business owner without defined goals may spend time on activities that generate little value while ignoring customers, products, or market opportunities. Unclear boundaries often result in duplicated efforts, neglected responsibilities, wasted energy, reduced productivity, and avoidable conflict.

2. Every Part Must Supply Something to the Whole Body: Ephesians 4 vs 16 teaches that the whole body grows by “that which every joint supplieth.” This means the health of the body of Christ depends on every part functioning because no part is useless or unnecessary. The whole body is strengthened when each part supplies its own unique measure of grace. We can only have strong and impactful fellowships when everyone brings the best of what God has given unto them in terms of grace, gift and goodness into the community of believers. In addition, when Paul says that the whole body grows by “that which every joint supplieth,” he is using the picture of a human body to explain how Christ intends His Church to function. In the body, joints connect, support, enable movement, transfer strength, and hold different parts together in proper alignment. A finger may be small, but without the joints, it cannot bend, grip, write, serve, or function properly. In the same way, no believer is useless in the body of Christ. Every member may not be as visible as the head, mouth, or hands, but every joint supplies something necessary for the body’s growth.

This principle of an interconnected body of Christ points to contribution, connection, support, and proper working together. The Church is not a crowd of independent people but one fold under one Shepherd, one connected body under one Head, which is Christ. Therefore, God does not want isolated gifts, competing parts, or disconnected believers, but a living system where every part supplies its measure in love. The tragedy is when any joint refuses to supply, the whole body feels the weakness. Therefore, no part should boast, and no part should feel useless. Every little act of faithful service becomes part of the strength, movement, and increase of the whole body. This is why every TACEFite must find their duty post, stay connected to Christ, remain joined to the vision, and faithfully supply their measure for the growth of the great house.

3. Assignment Requires Focus, Because Not Every Need Is Your Field: There are many needs in the kingdom, but not every need is your field of assignment. This does not mean we should be selfish, indifferent, or unwilling to help others. Rather, it means we must serve with wisdom, discernment, and focus. A person who attempts to carry every burden without divine direction may eventually become weary, distracted, offended, or ineffective. God never intended one person to solve every problem. Assignments require focus. The tribes of Israel received different portions. Some were located by the sea, some inland; some received larger territories, while others received smaller ones. If every tribe had abandoned its own inheritance in pursuit of another tribe’s land, confusion, neglect, and disorder would have followed. In the same way, believers must continually ask: What has God placed in my hand in this season? Where has He called me to serve? What responsibility am I accountable for before Him?

This principle is equally important in managing the many relationships, requests, and demands that surround us in everyday life. We cannot become everything to everybody. We are not called to become the assistant Holy Spirit for every person we meet. Some believers become emotionally exhausted, financially strained, and spiritually depleted because they feel guilty saying no to any request for help. They give beyond their capacity which leads them to borrow and even to the extent of not having enough to meet the needs of their immediate family. While we are called to love all people, pray for all people, and help others within our God-given capacity, not every person who needs help should have unlimited access to our time, energy, resources, emotions, or attention. For example, a parent must not neglect their family while trying to solve everyone’s problems. Discernment helps us distinguish between compassion and distraction, and between a genuine burden and an unnecessary weight. There comes a point where spreading yourself too thin becomes destructive to your own stewardship. God wants us to serve generously, but He also wants us to serve wisely, faithfully, and within the boundaries of our assignment.

4. Serve with Wisdom and Order: Ephesians 5:15 says, “See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise.” Service in God’s house requires wisdom, discernment, and order. A gift may be genuine, but it must be exercised in the right spirit, at the right time, through the right channels, and under the right authority. Without wisdom, even a good gift can become a source of offence, confusion, pride, rivalry, distraction, or disorder. God is not only concerned with what we do, but also with how we do it. Kingdom service must reflect the character of the God we represent, that is, a God of peace, order, and purpose.

A person may have a teaching gift, but must still submit to leadership and sound doctrine. A person may have prophetic sensitivity, but must exercise caution, humility, and accountability in sharing what they believe God has revealed for mutual testing and acceptance. A person may have leadership ability but must not dominate people or build personal followership. The Spirit of God does not produce confusion, disorder, or self-exaltation. The work of God must be carried out in love, humility, wisdom, and submission. This was one of the major challenges in the church at Corinth. The believers were rich in spiritual gifts, yet many gatherings had become disorderly. People were speaking simultaneously, interrupting one another, competing for attention, and creating confusion during worship. Some were exercising spiritual gifts without consideration for the edification of others. Paul did not condemn spiritual gifts; rather, he provided guidance for their proper use. He taught that “the spirits of the prophets are subject to the prophets” (1 Corinthians 14:32). In other words, spiritual inspiration does not remove personal responsibility or self-control. No one should claim that the Holy Spirit forced them to act disorderly. Paul therefore, instructed that all things should be done “decently and in order” (1 Corinthians 14:40). Likewise, during the Lord’s Supper, some believers were eating selfishly while others went hungry, turning a sacred gathering into an occasion for division and disorder (1 Corinthians 11:20–22). Paul corrected them because spiritual activities, no matter how sincere, must always reflect God’s order.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Know your assigned portion: Ask God to show you the specific area where you should serve in this season.
- Respect the portion of others: Do not compete with, despise, or trespass into another person’s assignment.
- Define roles clearly: Local fellowships should have clear responsibilities for prayer, Bible study, follow-up, welfare, children, youths, outreach, finance, and administration.
- Supply your measure: Do not remain passive. Identify what you can contribute and serve faithfully.
- Avoid comparison: Do not measure usefulness by visibility, crowd size, title, platform, or public recognition.
- Practise godly boundaries: Love people wisely. Not every need is your field, and not every relationship should have unlimited access to your time, emotions, or commitment
- Serve under order: Use your gift in the right spirit, at the right time, under godly structure and accountability.
- Focus on fruitfulness: Concentrate on the field God has assigned to you and labour there with faithfulness, humility, and consistency.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why is it important for believers to understand and respect their assignments?
2. How can lack of boundaries create confusion, jealousy, rivalry, offence, and wasted energy?
3. How would you advise a brother who has little time for personal quiet time, his family, or his full-time work because he is overwhelmed by numerous ministry responsibilities, frequent ministration schedules, several independent online ministry platforms, and multiple counselling commitments?
4. What does Ephesians 4:16 mean by “every joint supplieth”?
5. What are practical examples of godly boundaries in service, relationships, commitment or allocation of your time?
6. Why must a right gift be used in the right spirit, at the right time, under the right order?

Personal Reflection

Do I understand my assigned portion, or am I trying to do everything without clarity? Am I faithful in the field God has given me, or am I distracted by another person’s assignment? Do I compare my portion with others because theirs looks larger, more visible, or more celebrated? Am I passive in the body, or am I supplying my measure? Do I respect boundaries in service and relationships? Do I know when to say yes and when to wait? Am I carrying burdens God has not assigned to me while neglecting the duty post He has given me? Do I use my gift in the right spirit, at the right time, and under the right order? Is my service building the body in love or creating confusion?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, show me my assigned portion in Your mandate and help me to serve there faithfully without distraction.
2. Lord, deliver me from confusion, comparison, jealousy, rivalry, and personal ambition in service.
3. Lord, make me a faithful part of the body that supplies its measure in love.
4. Lord, deliver me from distraction and carrying burdens You have not assigned to me.
5. Father, help TACEF local fellowships to build clear roles, accountable structures, and fruitful service systems.
6. Lord, help me to use every gift in the right spirit, at the right time, under the right order.

Week 31 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 29 March 2027

- Every tribe had boundaries, showing that assignments must be understood and respected. I will not serve in confusion.
- Father, show me my assigned portion in this season and help me to steward it faithfully.
- Lord, teach me to honour the boundaries, gifts, and assignments You have given to others.

Tuesday, 30 March 2027

- Every part must supply something to the whole body. I will not remain present but inactive.
- The body grows when every joint supplies its measure. Father, help me to function faithfully in the household of TACEF. Lord, let my life be a supplier of grace, strength and impact in the great house of TACEF.
- Lord, deliver me from being inactive and make my life useful in building others.

Wednesday, 31 March 2027

- Assignment requires focus, because not every need is my field. I will serve with wisdom and discernment.
- Father, deliver me from distraction, comparison, and carrying assignments You have not assigned to me.
- Lord, help me to focus on the field You have given me and labour there faithfully.

Thursday, 1 April 2027

- Not every portion of kingdom assignment will look the same. I will not measure usefulness by visibility, title, or public recognition.
- Father, deliver me from jealousy, rivalry, offence, and competition in Your work.
- Lord, help me to serve faithfully in every task, even in hidden responsibilities and less-visible assignments.

Friday, 2 April 2027

- Not every field is my field, so wisdom is needed in service and in how I allocate my time, talent and treasure
- Father, teach me godly boundaries in ministry, fellowship work, and all forms of commitments I make in my spiritual, academic, career or business.
- Lord, help me to serve genuinely out of pure hearts without disorder, compromise, confusion, or misplaced responsibility.

Saturday, 3 April 2027

- A right gift must be used in the right spirit, at the right time, under the right order.
- Father, purify my motives and teach me to serve with humility, wisdom, accountability, and love.
- I receive grace to supply my measure, respect boundaries, honour others, and serve faithfully in my assigned portion.

Week 32: Monday, 5 April 2027 to Sunday, 11 April 2027

Title: Cities of Refuge: Building Communities of Mercy, Healing, and Restoration

Bible Texts: Joshua 20:1-9; Ephesians 4:1-3, 31-32

Bible Texts

Joshua 20:1-9: 1 The LORD also spake unto Joshua, saying, 2 Speak to the children of Israel, saying, Appoint out for you, cities of refuge, whereof I spake unto you by the hand of Moses: 3 That the slayer that killeth any person unawares and unwittingly may flee thither: and they shall be your refuge from the avenger of blood. 4 And when he that doth flee unto one of those cities shall stand at the entering of the gate of the city, and shall declare his cause in the ears of the elders of that city, they shall take him into the city unto them, and give him a place, that he may dwell among them. 5 And if the avenger of blood pursue after him, then they shall not deliver the slayer up into his hand; because he smote his neighbour unwittingly, and hated him not beforetime. 6 And he shall dwell in that city, until he stand before the congregation for judgment, and until the death of the high priest that shall be in those days: then shall the slayer return, and come unto his own city, and unto his own house, unto the city from whence he fled. 7 And they appointed Kedesh in Galilee in mount Naphtali, and Shechem in mount Ephraim, and Kirjatharba, which is Hebron, in the mountain of Judah. 8 And on the other side Jordan by Jericho eastward, they assigned Bezer in the wilderness upon the plain out of the tribe of Reuben, and Ramoth in Gilead out of the tribe of Gad, and Golan in Bashan out of the tribe of Manasseh. 9 These were the cities appointed for all the children of Israel, and for the stranger that sojourneth among them, that whosoever killeth any person at unawares might flee thither, and not die by the hand of the avenger of blood, until he stood before the congregation.

Ephesians 4:1-3: 1 I therefore, the prisoner of the Lord, beseech you that ye walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called, 2 With all lowliness and meekness, with longsuffering, forbearing one another in love; 3 Endeavouring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace.

Ephesians 4:31-32: 31 Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and evil speaking, be put away from you, with all malice: 32 And be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.

- Endeavouring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace.
- Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and evil speaking, be put away from you.
- Be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another.

Introduction

This week takes our study into the setting up of the cities of refuge in the land of Israel. After the land had been divided and boundaries had been established, God instructed Joshua to designate specific cities of refuge where those who had unintentionally caused the death of another person, as well as those who were vulnerable and at risk of unjust retaliation, could flee for protection and safety until their case was properly heard and judged according to God's justice and order. These cities were not created to excuse wrongdoing or encourage lawlessness but were created to prevent reckless revenge, false accusation, and careless destruction before a matter was properly heard. This act is because God's justice is not rash punishment, but righteous, patient and merciful. The cities of refuge also teach us that the Lord's people must know how to handle wounded lives, complicated matters, struggling believers, and people who have made regrettable mistakes. The person who fled to the city had to declare his cause before the elders, and he still had to stand before the congregation for judgment. This means refuge did not take away accountability. Mercy did not remove truth as grace did not abolish order. But until the matter was heard, the person was protected from destruction. The city became a place where justice and mercy worked together.

Ephesians further provides the practical guidelines to how we relate with others who need different forms of refuge by calling believers to walk in lowliness, meekness, longsuffering, forbearance, kindness, tenderheartedness, and forgiveness.

It also commands that bitterness, wrath, anger, evil speaking, and malice must be put away. This means the church must not become a place of anger, uncontrolled accusation, or spiritual cruelty. The fellowship must reflect the forgiveness we have received in Christ. We must be truthful, but not harsh. We must correct sin, but not crush the repentant and we must preserve holiness, but not destroy wounded people.

Teachings

1. God Provides Refuge for the Vulnerable, Wounded, and Mistaken: The cities of refuge reveal the heart of God towards people in danger. The person who fled to the city of refuge was not immediately handed over to destruction but was given space to be heard. Such person stood at the gate, declared his cause to the elders, and was received into the city until judgment could be properly made. This shows that God is concerned not only with justice, but also with the process by which justice is carried out. This means that as believers, we must not condemn people before they are heard. Matters must not be judged by gossip, anger, assumption, emotion, partial information, or mob pressure. A believer who has fallen into sin, become wounded, misunderstood, falsely accused, or caught in a complicated matter must be handled with spiritual maturity, patience, and fairness. The Lord does not delight in reckless destruction.

It is very important as end-time army that our fellowships do not become places where people hide their struggles until they collapse, especially because many brethren are struggling silently because they fear shame, rejection, or public disgrace. Some youths are battling temptations but do not know who to talk to and many carry wounds, confusion, family pressure, secret guilt, or backsliding tendencies but remain silent because they do not believe the fellowship can handle their pain with wisdom without turning it into public gossip. This does not mean careless tolerance of sin but that any wounded soldier can find help before they are destroyed. This also means that leaders must be approachable, confidential, and mature; and that correction must not come across as cruelty. We must have a heart of a refuge where the wounded find care, the repentant find restoration, the struggling find counsel, the mistaken find truth and not crushed before they are heard.

2. Christ Is Our Ultimate Refuge and Eternal High Priest: The cities of refuge point beyond themselves to the saving work of Christ. They protected a person from immediate destruction, but they could not provide final and eternal redemption. They gave shelter under the Old Testament order, but Christ gives salvation, forgiveness, peace with God, and eternal inheritance. Jesus is the true and ultimate refuge for sinners. Every sinner needs refuge because sin exposes man to judgment. No human being can save himself by personal effort, religious activity, morality, church attendance, or good intentions. The soul needs a refuge greater than human sympathy. We need a Saviour who can deal with guilt, judgment, condemnation, fear, and the power of sin. Christ is that refuge. In Him, the guilty can find forgiveness, the condemned can find justification, the wounded can find healing, and the lost can find salvation.

The cities of refuge also help us understand Christ's work of atonement as our High Priest. Numbers 35 teaches that the person who fled to a city of refuge had to remain there until the death of the high priest. Joshua 20 repeats the same instruction. When the high priest died, the person was released and could return safely to his inheritance. This points forward to Jesus Christ, our great High Priest. Through His sacrificial death, Jesus secured freedom for everyone who believes in Him. Through His resurrection, He opened the way to eternal life and our heavenly inheritance. Jesus did not only shelter us from judgment; He carried our judgment upon Himself. He did not merely delay the punishment for sin; He fully paid for our sin with His blood. He did not provide temporary protection but eternal redemption. Because Jesus lives forever as our High Priest, we are safe and secure in Him. He is our refuge, advocate, righteousness, peace, and the One who gives us access to the Father.

3. Discipline Must Be Redemptive, Not Destructive: The cities of refuge did not deny the seriousness of wrongdoing because the person who fled still had to declare his cause and stand before the congregation for judgment. However, the process protected him from reckless destruction. This shows that discipline in the household of God must be redemptive, not destructive. Redemptive discipline seeks restoration, and is not driven by anger, revenge, embarrassment, gossip, or the desire to disgrace someone. It is driven by love for God, love for truth, love for holiness, and love for the soul being corrected. Correction must make sin uncomfortable, but we must not make repentance difficult for the fallen.

This is a very delicate but important balance. If there is no discipline, sin spreads and weakens the fellowship. If discipline is cruel, wounded people may be destroyed beyond recovery. If correction is hidden when public harm has been done, others may be weakened and corruption spreads even more. If correction is harsh, the person may be crushed. Therefore, leaders must depend on the Spirit, the Word, prayer, counsel, and maturity in handling discipline. Every act of correction must ask: What truth must be upheld? What harm must be repaired? What danger must be prevented? What repentance must be encouraged? What restoration process is needed? What confidentiality must be preserved? What accountability must be established? What support must be provided? In all instances, our goal is preserving holiness and recovery and not humiliation. Dear revival army, particularly leaders, let us not be careless with wounded soldiers. We must not despise or mock those who are trying to return to God. We must not gossip in the name of concern, and we must ensure that discipline in the great house is fair, compassionate, and redemptive.

4. Refuge Does Not Cancel Accountability: Joshua 20:6 says, “And he shall dwell in that city, until he stand before the congregation for judgment.” This reveals a major kingdom principle. The city of refuge provided protection, but it did not remove the need for accountability and judgment. Mercy did not cancel responsibility, and refuge was never a licence for lawlessness. This principle is especially important in the church today, where grace is sometimes misunderstood and misapplied. The abuse of grace through hyper-grace teachings can create the false impression that repentance, holiness, and accountability are no longer necessary. Yet biblical grace does not merely protect people from destruction; it also leads them into truth, transformation, and obedience. A person who has sinned should not be crushed, rejected, or abandoned, but neither should they be excused without genuine repentance and a willingness to change. A person who has fallen should be restored with love, but restoration must be accompanied by accountability, discipleship, and evidence of spiritual recovery. Mercy and holiness must therefore walk together.

There are two dangerous extremes that TACEFites must avoid. The first is harsh condemnation without mercy. This approach wounds people, promotes fear, discourages honesty, and often causes struggling believers to hide their failures rather than seek help. The second is careless tolerance without accountability. This approach makes sin comfortable, weakens conviction, lowers spiritual standards, and gradually corrupts the fellowship. The kingdom way is neither extreme but upholding the truth with compassion, mercy with order, grace with discipline, forgiveness with fruit-bearing repentance, and restoration with accountability. God's desire is not merely to forgive people but to transform them into the likeness of Christ.

In the same vein, Ephesians provides important guidance on how believers should handle matters of correction, discipline, and restoration. We are commanded to put away bitterness, wrath, anger, clamour, evil speaking, and malice because these attitudes corrupt the process of restoration. When discipline is administered through bitterness, it becomes destructive. When accountability is driven by anger, it becomes oppressive. When correction is carried out through gossip, public embarrassment, or unhealthy exposure, it becomes unsafe and damaging. In the same vein, Ephesians also commands us to be kind, tender-hearted, and forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake has forgiven us. The standard for dealing with those who have fallen is the mercy that we ourselves have received in Christ. Therefore, we must build a fellowship culture where people feel safe to seek help, confess struggles, receive counsel, and pursue restoration. No one should be excused in sin, but neither should anyone be crushed beyond recovery.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Create safe channels for help: Local fellowships and zonal structure must have mature, trusted, prayerful leaders and counsellors that struggling members can approach confidentially.
- Hear matters before judging: Do not condemn people by rumour, assumption, past opinion, anger, gossip, partial information, or public pressure.
- Run to Christ as refuge: Teach every believer that salvation, forgiveness, and true freedom are found only in Christ, our ultimate refuge and eternal High Priest.
- Practise redemptive discipline: Correction must uphold truth, protect the flock, prevent further harm, and help the repentant return to the Lord in genuine brokenness.
- Avoid gossip disguised as concern: Do not turn someone's fall, weakness, wound, or struggle into discussion, mockery, or careless sharing.
- Restore through discipleship: Help repentant people rebuild prayer, Word study, fellowship, accountability, restitution where needed, and fruit-bearing lifestyle.
- Balance mercy and accountability: Do not crush the repentant, but do not excuse sin. Grace must bring people into truth and responsibility.
- Put away bitterness and evil speaking: Correction must not be driven by anger, malice, revenge, or the desire to humiliate.
- Build healing communities: Let TACEF fellowships be places of recovery, counsel, forgiveness, confidentiality, healing, and renewal.

- Protect holiness: Make sin uncomfortable for the careless, but make restoration possible for the fallen and the repentant.

Questions for Discussion

1. What do the cities of refuge teach us about justice, mercy, patience, and fairness?
2. Why must brethren not be condemned before they are heard?
3. How can we re-engage a sister who left the fellowship after a personal challenge she shared confidentially with the Sisters' Coordinator was mentioned as a prayer burden and later became a rumour within the fellowship, leaving her deeply hurt and uncomfortable?
4. How would you correct a leader whose young children of under 6-years old casually discussed with other children in their Sunday school class that the fellowship's choir members were "not singing in the Spirit and are polluted in sin," after overhearing their parents discuss the matter during a Zoom meeting with other leaders in the family living room?
5. Why must discipline in the fellowship be redemptive and not destructive?
6. What are the dangers of harsh condemnation without mercy and careless tolerance without accountability?

Personal Reflection

Do I run to Christ as my refuge, or do I hide behind excuses, fear, secrecy, or human approval?

Am I the kind of believer wounded people can approach for prayer, counsel, and restoration, or do my words make people hide their struggles? Do I judge matters by gossip, assumption, anger, or partial information? Do I speak about people's failures carelessly? When someone falls, do I desire their humiliation or their restoration? Am I guilty of either harsh condemnation without mercy or careless tolerance without accountability? Is our fellowship a safe place for struggling brethren, repentant sinners, backsliders, wounded believers, and young people seeking help?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, thank You for giving us Christ as our ultimate refuge and eternal High Priest.
2. Father, make TACEF fellowships cities of refuge and total recovery for the wounded, struggling, repentant, and backsliding for
3. Father, teach us to handle every matter with truth, fairness, patience, prayer, maturity, and spiritual discernment.
4. Lord, help us to practise discipline that restores, not discipline that humiliates or destroys.
5. Father, let truth and mercy walk together in every local fellowship.
6. Lord, make us kind, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven us.

Week 32 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 5 April 2027

- God provides refuge for the wounded, mistaken, and repentant. I will not crush people who need mercy, truth, and restoration.
- The cities of refuge protected people until they were properly heard. Father, deliver me from judging matters by gossip, anger, assumption, or partial information.
- Lord, make TACEF fellowships safe places where struggling brethren can find prayer, counsel, confidentiality, and help before they collapse.

Tuesday, 6 April 2027

- Christ is my ultimate refuge. I will not hide behind excuses, religion, fear, secrecy, or human approval.
- Jesus is my great High Priest, and His atoning death has secured forgiveness, freedom, and eternal inheritance for me and all who believe.
- Father, help me to run to Christ daily and to point wounded, guilty, fearful, and struggling souls to Him as their true refuge.

Wednesday, 7 April 2027

- Justice and mercy must work together. God's justice is not reckless punishment, but righteous, patient, and merciful.
- Father, teach me to uphold truth without cruelty and show mercy without excusing sin.
- Lord, help TACEFites to handle correction with spiritual maturity, fairness, and love.

Thursday, 8 April 2027

- Discipline must be redemptive, not destructive. Correction must seek restoration, not humiliation.
- Father, deliver me from turning another person's fall into gossip, mockery, or careless discussion.
- Lord, help us to make sin uncomfortable for the careless, but repentance possible for the fallen.

Friday, 9 April 2027

- Safe spaces enable restoration, discipleship, healing, and renewal. I will not permit careless tolerance that promotes sin and ungodliness.
- Father, help us to guide repentant people into prayer, the Word, accountability, restitution where needed, and fruit-bearing change.
- Lord, build TACEF into a healing community shaped by the forgiveness we have received in Christ.

Saturday, 10 April 2027

- Refuge does not cancel accountability. Mercy is not lawlessness, and grace brings people into truth and responsibility.
- Father, deliver us from harsh condemnation without mercy and careless tolerance without accountability.
- I receive grace to be kind, tenderhearted, forgiving, truthful, discerning, and restorative. Lord, make me a builder of communities of mercy, healing, and restoration.

Title: The Levites Among the People: Distributing Ministry Across Every Territory

Bible Texts: Joshua 21:1-45; Ephesians 4:11-13

Bible Texts

Joshua 21:1-45: 1 Then came near the heads of the fathers of the Levites unto Eleazar the priest, and unto Joshua the son of Nun, and unto the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel; 2 And they spake unto them at Shiloh in the land of Canaan, saying, The LORD commanded by the hand of Moses to give us cities to dwell in, with the suburbs thereof for our cattle. 3 And the children of Israel gave unto the Levites out of their inheritance, at the commandment of the LORD, these cities and their suburbs. 4 And the lot came out for the families of the Kohathites: and the children of Aaron the priest, which were of the Levites, had by lot out of the tribe of Judah, and out of the tribe of Simeon, and out of the tribe of Benjamin, thirteen cities. 5 And the rest of the children of Kohath had by lot out of the families of the tribe of Ephraim, and out of the tribe of Dan, and out of the half tribe of Manasseh, ten cities. 6 And the children of Gershon had by lot out of the families of the tribe of Issachar, and out of the tribe of Asher, and out of the tribe of Naphtali, and out of the half tribe of Manasseh in Bashan, thirteen cities. 7 The children of Merari by their families had out of the tribe of Reuben, and out of the tribe of Gad, and out of the tribe of Zebulun, twelve cities. 8 And the children of Israel gave by lot unto the Levites these cities with their suburbs, as the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses. 9 And they gave out of the tribe of the children of Judah, and out of the tribe of the children of Simeon, these cities which are here mentioned by name, 10 Which the children of Aaron, being of the families of the Kohathites, who were of the children of Levi, had: for theirs was the first lot. 11 And they gave them the city of Arba the father of Anak, which city is Hebron, in the hill country of Judah, with the suburbs thereof round about it. 12 But the fields of the city, and the villages thereof, gave they to Caleb the son of Jephunneh for his possession. 13 Thus they gave to the children of Aaron the priest Hebron with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Libnah with her suburbs, 14 And Jattir with her suburbs, and Eshtemoa with her suburbs, 15 And Holon with her suburbs, and Debir with her suburbs, 16 And Ain with her suburbs, and Juttah with her suburbs, and Bethshemesh with her suburbs; nine cities out of those two tribes. 17 And out of the tribe of Benjamin, Gibeon with her suburbs, Geba with her suburbs, 18 Anathoth with her suburbs, and Almon with her suburbs; four cities. 19 All the cities of the children of Aaron, the priests, were thirteen cities with their suburbs. 20 And the families of the children of Kohath, the Levites which remained of the children of Kohath, even they had the cities of their lot out of the tribe of Ephraim. 21 For they gave them Shechem with her suburbs in mount Ephraim, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Gezer with her suburbs, 22 And Kibzaim with her suburbs, and Bethhoron with her suburbs; four cities. 23 And out of the tribe of Dan, Eltekeh with her suburbs, Gibbethon with her suburbs, 24 Aijalon with her suburbs, Gathrimmon with her suburbs; four cities. 25 And out of the half tribe of Manasseh, Tanach with her suburbs, and Gathrimmon with her suburbs; two cities. 26 All the cities were ten with their suburbs for the families of the children of Kohath that remained. 27 And unto the children of Gershon, of the families of the Levites, out of the other half tribe of Manasseh they gave Golan in Bashan with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Beeshterah with her suburbs; two cities. 28 And out of the tribe of Issachar, Kishon with her suburbs, Dabareh with her suburbs, 29 Jarmuth with her suburbs, Engannim with her suburbs; four cities. 30 And out of the tribe of Asher, Mishal with her suburbs, Abdon with her suburbs, 31 Helkath with her suburbs, and Rehob with her suburbs; four cities. 32 And out of the tribe of Naphtali, Kedesh in Galilee with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Hammothdor with her suburbs, and Kartan with her suburbs; three cities. 33 All the cities of the Gershonites according to their families were thirteen cities with their suburbs. 34 And unto the families of the children of Merari, the rest of the Levites, out of the tribe of Zebulun, Jokneam with her suburbs, and Kartah with her suburbs, 35 Dimnah with her suburbs, Nahalal with her suburbs; four cities. 36 And out of the tribe of Reuben, Bezer with her suburbs, and Jahazah with her suburbs, 37 Kedemoth with her suburbs, and Mephaath with her suburbs; four cities. 38 And out of the tribe of Gad, Ramoth in Gilead with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Mahanaim with her suburbs, 39 Heshbon with her suburbs, Jazer with her suburbs; four cities in all. 40 So, all the cities for the children of Merari by their families, which were remaining of the families of the Levites, were by their lot twelve cities. 41 All the cities of the Levites within the possession of the children of Israel were forty and eight cities with their suburbs. 42 These cities were every one with their suburbs round about them: thus were all these cities. 43 And the LORD gave unto Israel all the land which he swore to give unto their fathers; and they possessed it, and dwelt therein. 44 And the LORD gave them rest round about, according to all that he swore unto their fathers: and there stood not a man of all their enemies before them; the LORD delivered all their enemies into their hand. 45 There failed not ought of any good thing which the LORD had spoken unto the house of Israel; all came to pass.

Ephesians 4:11-13: 11 And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; 12 For the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ: 13 Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ.

Introduction

Our study this week takes a deeper look at the distribution of the tribe of Levi (the Levites) among the remaining eleven tribes of Israel. After the land had been divided and the various inheritances assigned, the Levites, the special tribe of priests specially chosen by God to oversee the Tabernacle, worship, priestly service, and the teaching of God's law, came to Eleazar the priest, Joshua, and the leaders of the tribes, reminding them that the Lord had commanded Moses to give them cities in which to dwell. In obedience to God's instruction, the children of Israel gave cities to the Levites out of their own inheritances. Unlike the other eleven tribes, the Levites were not gathered into one large territory separated from the people. Instead, they were distributed throughout the nation in forty-eight cities spread across the inheritance of the other tribes. They lived among the other eleven tribes and were not concentrated into one location unlike the other tribes. It appeared the Lord wanted them to share in the everyday realities of the people that they present before the Lord through their priestly service.

This unique arrangement teaches a profound kingdom principle that everything that represents God and His worship must remain close to the people. No tribe was to be left without priestly influence, and no territory was to be spiritually neglected. The Levites helped preserve covenant instructions, worship, prayer, and spiritual order. Their presence ensured that the Word of God, spiritual counsel, and worship were not confined to a central location but were accessible wherever God's people lived. This provides a powerful pattern for the Lord's army today. Revival cannot be sustained from conventions and major gatherings alone, but it must be rooted in local churches, campus fellowships, families, workplaces, and communities where people live their daily lives.

Teachings

1. Ministry Must Be Present Among the People and Embedded Within Everyday Life: The Levites were strategically distributed among the tribes of Israel. They did not receive one large, separate territory like the other tribes. Instead, they were given cities within the inheritance of the various tribes so that worship, covenant instruction, and spiritual oversight would be present throughout the land. God did not want any part of Israel to be separated from priestly influence, spiritual guidance, or access to His Word. This arrangement reveals an important kingdom principle that kingdom ministry is most effective when it is close to the people. Every territory needs spiritual coverage. Every community needs access to sound teaching, godly counsel, and discipleship. If the Word is distant from the people, spiritual weakness will grow. If discipleship is absent from homes, campuses, and local churches, believers will remain immature. If spiritual guidance is unavailable, many will struggle silently without help. The Levites among the people teach us that ministry work and revival labour must not be removed from everyday life.

There is another important lesson here. The Levites did not isolate themselves from the people because of their spiritual calling and a perceived sense of higher spirituality. They lived among the people they served. Likewise, Jesus, our Great High Priest, is touched with the feeling of our infirmities because He entered fully into the realities of human life. True ministry of revival requires closeness, humility, and identification with the people we are sent to. We cannot effectively serve people whose struggles we do not understand or whose realities we refuse to share. Revival work becomes shallow when spiritual leaders become distant, inaccessible, or detached from the lives of those they serve. We must remain humble enough to sit throughout the so-called boring Sunday service to show commitment. We must remain faithful in local church even when we feel spiritually mature or highly gifted. The work of revival requires presence, consistency, and a willingness to stay among the people until God's purposes are established in their lives.

2. Christ: From God Above Us, to God Among Us, to God in Us: One of the most beautiful themes running through the entire Bible is God's desire to dwell among His people which is also expressed through God's system of having Levites distributed among the people and not concentrated in one corner in the land. In the Old Testament, God revealed Himself primarily as God above His people, the sovereign Lord who ruled from heaven and manifested His presence through extraordinary encounters. He appeared to Moses in the burning bush, descended upon Mount Sinai in fire and thunder, and later caused His glory to dwell in the Tabernacle and the Temple. Even though God was with Israel, there remained a sense of distance. The people approached Him through priests, sacrifices, and sacred structures. His holiness was real, but access was limited. Throughout the Old Testament, God's redemptive plan was progressively moving towards a greater reality—the day when He would no longer merely dwell above His people but would come near to them in a new and personal way.

This promise reached its fulfilment in Jesus Christ. John 1:14 declares, "And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us." In Christ, God became God among us. The eternal Creator stepped into human history, taking on flesh and living among ordinary men and women. He walked their roads, entered their homes, touched their sicknesses, bore their sorrows, and died for their sins. This is the wonder of Emmanuel, meaning "God with us." Through Christ, God was no longer represented only by a cloud, a pillar of fire, or a sacred building. He became visible, approachable, and accessible. The disciples could hear His voice, observe His character, and experience His love firsthand. Yet, even this was not the final destination of God's plan. Before His departure, Jesus made a remarkable promise: "I will not leave you comfortless: I will come to you" (John 14:18). He spoke of the coming of the Holy Spirit, through whom God's presence would move even closer.

Today, through the ministry of the Holy Spirit, God has become God in us. The New Testament reveals a profound reality: believers are now the temple of the Holy Spirit (1 Corinthians 6:19). God's presence is no longer confined to a building, a city, or a geographical location. Through salvation, Christ dwells in our hearts by faith, and the Holy Spirit takes up residence within every believer. This means that God's truth, grace, wisdom, power, and character are intended to be expressed through His people wherever they are found. Just as the Levites were distributed among the tribes so that every territory would have access to God's presence and instruction, God's ultimate design has always been nearness to His people. He moved from dwelling above His people, to dwelling among His people, and now dwells within His people, so that His presence can fill every territory through transformed lives that faithfully represent Him.

(3) Making Provision for the Levites -Supporting Those Who Labour in the Word and Ministry: One often-overlooked lesson in Joshua 21 is that while the Levites did not receive a tribal territory like the other tribes, God ensured that they were not neglected. The same God who assigned them the responsibility of preserving worship, teaching the law, and maintaining spiritual order also made provision for their welfare. The Levites were given cities to dwell in and pasture lands for their needs. Their livelihood was tied to the faithfulness of God's people in honouring His instructions concerning offerings, tithes, and practical support. This reveals an important kingdom principle that whenever God assigns a responsibility, He also ordains provision for those who carry that responsibility.

This principle continues throughout the Scripture. Jesus taught that "the labourer is worthy of his hire" (Luke 10:7), and Paul reinforced it by saying, "Even so hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel" (1 Corinthians 9:14). In Galatians 6:6, believers are instructed to share all good things with those who teach them in the Word. First Timothy 5:17–18 further teaches that elders who labour in the Word and doctrine are worthy of honour, quoting the Scripture, "The labourer is worthy of his reward." These passages establish that caring for ministers, missionaries, church workers, and those who devote themselves to kingdom service is an act of biblical stewardship. The Church must avoid two extremes. The first is neglecting faithful labourers and assuming they should carry every burden alone because they are "doing God's work." The second is promoting materialism and turning ministry into a platform for personal enrichment. Scripture does not support neglect nor extravagance. God's pattern is the provision of needs so that ministry can flourish and His servants can labour effectively.

The house of TACEF must therefore learn the culture of practical support for ministers. This may involve supporting missionaries in difficult locations, helping a minister's family, contributing towards ministry needs, caring for elderly ministers, assisting church workers, or strengthening those who labour faithfully behind the scenes. TACEFites who are involved in church governance like our Missionary in Church Administration (MICA) must ensure that local ministers are well treated with decent wages and other basic necessities of life. We must learn to recognise legitimate needs and respond with divine leading, wisdom, generosity, and gratitude. We must also distinguish between needs and wants. The kingdom is not built on the pursuit of comfort, luxury, or excess, but neither should God's servants be abandoned to unnecessary hardship when the local church has the capacity to help. The same God who distributed the Levites among the tribes also moved the tribes to make room for them and provide for them.

4. Ministry Must Be Distributed to Preserve Covenant Continuity Across Generations and Territories: One of the reasons God distributed the Levites among all the tribes rather than concentrating them in a single location was to ensure that worship, instruction, discipleship, and spiritual oversight would reach every territory and continue across generations. The Levites were not merely caretakers of the Tabernacle but were custodians of covenant knowledge, teachers of God's law, preservers of spiritual order, and guides to the people. Their presence among the tribes ensured that no community was left without access to spiritual instruction and that the knowledge of God would not be confined to a central location. This arrangement reveals a powerful kingdom principle that God's work is sustained through distributed ministry. Revival cannot survive on occasional gatherings, conventions, or a few gifted leaders. The truth must be taught, modelled, practised, and passed on continually from one generation to another and at all local fellowship and family levels.

This is precisely the pattern reinforced in Ephesians 4. Christ gave apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, and teachers to the Church, not so that a few people would do all the ministry while everyone else watches, but "for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ." Ministry gifts therefore exist to equip others. A teacher must raise people who can teach. A pastor must develop believers who can care for others. An evangelist must inspire others to win souls. An intercessor must raise more intercessors. A leader must train future leaders. The goal of ministry is multiplication, not dependence. When ministry becomes centralised around a few gifted individuals, those leaders become exhausted, members remain immature, and the work becomes vulnerable. If one leader relocates, graduates, or becomes unavailable, the entire structure may struggle because too few people have been equipped to continue the work. This is a major burden for TACEF. The vision of revival must not end with those who first received it. The fire must be intentionally transferred to the next generations.

Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Carry ministry close to the people: Do not let revival remain only in conventions, central programmes, or zonal gatherings; take the fire into local churches, children churches, campuses, homes, and families.
- Be present where God has assigned you: Ministry requires sustained presence. Do not be an occasional visitor in your duty post; be on ground, consistent, available, and involved.
- Strengthen spiritual coverage: Every territory needs people who can stay to teach, pray, counsel, disciple, follow up, and watch over souls.
- Recognise God's nearness through Christ and the Spirit: God moved from being God above us, to God among us in Christ, and now God in us by the Holy Spirit; therefore, let His presence be expressed through your life wherever you are.
- Support those who labour in ministry: Honour ministers, missionaries, church workers, and faithful labourers by meeting legitimate needs with divine leading, wisdom, generosity, and gratitude.
- Distinguish needs from wants: Caring for ministers is biblical stewardship, but we must avoid both neglect and materialistic excess.
- Build others, not only yourself: Do not only serve alone; raise people who can pray, teach, follow up, disciple, lead, and continue the work.
- Reject centralised ministry: The work must not depend on only a few gifted people. Every believer must be equipped for the work of ministry.
- Preserve covenant continuity: Pass the fire to children, youths, new converts, younger leaders, and future generations like TACEF Sons of Purpose and Seeds of Purpose.

Personal Reflection

Am I close to the people God has assigned me to serve, or am I only active during major programmes? Am I present and consistent in my local church, campus fellowship, family or ministry field? Do I understand that God's desire is to dwell among His people and express His presence through my life? Am I allowing Christ in me to become visible through discipleship, prayer, care, and holiness? Do I support those who labour in the Word and ministry, or do I assume they should carry every burden alone? Am I careful to support legitimate needs without encouraging materialism or excess?

Am I building others who can continue the work, or am I centralising ministry work around myself? Who am I training, mentoring, discipling, or preparing to carry the burden of revival into the next generation?

Prayer Points

1. Father, help me to carry Your presence, truth, and revival fire into every territory where You have planted me.
2. Father, make me a present and consistent labourer, not an occasional participant in the work You have assigned to me. Lord, deliver me from convention-only Christianity and make me faithful in my local church, campus fellowship, and family altar.
3. Lord, let Christ in me be expressed through holiness, love, service, and spiritual watchfulness.
4. Father, help TACEFites to support and give to ministers, missionaries, church workers, and faithful labourers with divine leading, wisdom, generosity, and gratitude.
5. Father, raise distributed labourers across all TACEF territories, local churches, campuses, homes, and communities.
6. Father, give us grace to disciple children, youths, new converts, younger leaders, and future generations. Lord, let the burden of revival continue from generation to generation until every territory is spiritually covered.

Week 33 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 12 April 2027

- God's ministry and reality of His presence must be distributed among the people. I will represent God wherever I am planted and bring the encounter of Christ into my family and my local fellowship.
- Father, make me a faithful labourer in my local church, campus, family, and community.
- Lord, help TACEFites to provide spiritual coverage wherever You have planted us.

Tuesday, 13 April 2027

- The Levites did not carry spiritual pride seeking to be separated from the people they were sent to. They stayed with them. My service in the vision of revival requires presence.
- I will not be an occasional participant in the territory God has assigned to me. I will be on ground serving the purpose of God. Father, give me grace to be on ground, consistent, available, and faithful in follow-up.
- Lord, deliver me from absentee service and make my labour fruitful through sustained presence.

Wednesday, 14 April 2027

- God's design has always been nearness: God above us, God among us in Christ, and God in us by the Holy Spirit.
- Father, let Your presence in me be visible through holiness, love, and spiritual fruitfulness.
- Lord, make my life a dwelling place through which Your truth and grace reach others.

Thursday, 15 April 2027

- Those who labour in the Word and ministry must not be neglected. The labourer is worthy of his reward.
- Father, teach us to support and give to ministers, missionaries, church workers, and faithful labourers with wisdom and gratitude.
- Lord, deliver us from neglect on one side and materialistic excess on the other.

Friday, 16 April 2027

- Ministry gifts are given to equip the saints, not to centralise ministry around a few people.
- Father, make me willing to be equipped, trained, corrected, and released for service.
- Lord, help every TACEF leader to raise others who can take the mandate farther and further.

Saturday, 17 April 2027

- Covenant continuity requires distributed discipleship across generations and territories. I will not only serve alone; I will build others.
- Father, help us to pass the fire of revival to children, younger leaders, and local fellowships.
- Lord, make TACEF an army where every territory is covered, every believer is equipped, and every generation carries the burden forward.

Title: The God Who Fulfills Every Promise: Trusting God's Faithfulness Over Every Inheritance

Bible Texts: Joshua 21:43-45; Ephesians 1:13-14; Ephesians 3:20-21

Bible Texts

Joshua 21:43-45

43 And the LORD gave unto Israel all the land which he swore to give unto their fathers; and they possessed it, and dwelt therein.

44 And the LORD gave them rest round about, according to all that he swore unto their fathers: and there stood not a man of all their enemies before them; the LORD delivered all their enemies into their hand.

45 There failed not ought of any good thing which the LORD had spoken unto the house of Israel; all came to pass.

Ephesians 1:13-14

13 In whom ye also trusted, after that ye heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation: in whom also after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that holy Spirit of promise,

14 Which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory.

Ephesians 3:20-21

20 Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us,

21 Unto him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus throughout all ages, world without end. Amen.

Introduction

Our study this week brings us to one of the most powerful summary statements in the entire book of Joshua. After years of warfare, territorial conquest, inheritance allocation, and the establishment of God's order in the land, the Holy Spirit pauses to give a divine verdict concerning God's dealings with Israel. Joshua 21:45 declares: "Not a single one of all the good promises the LORD had given to the family of Israel was left unfulfilled; everything he had spoken came true."(NLT version). These words are a testimony to the unchanging character of God's faithfulness. The God who made the promise fulfilled the promise. The God who spoke the word performed the word. The God who began the work completed what He had declared. Indeed, what makes this testimony remarkable is the long journey behind it. The promise of the land was first given to Abraham several centuries before Joshua entered Canaan. Abraham died without fully possessing it. Isaac and Jacob lived as strangers in the land. Israel went into Egyptian bondage for over four hundred years. Moses led them out but did not enter the Promised Land. An entire generation died in the wilderness because of unbelief. Yet despite delays, failures, oppositions, and human weaknesses, God's promise remained alive. The covenant survived every obstacle because its success depended on God's faithfulness rather than human perfection.

This lesson is particularly important for us today as God's end-time revival army in the great house of TACEF. We live in a generation that desires immediate results. Many become discouraged when prayers appear unanswered, revival seems delayed, ministries grow slowly, or personal expectations remain unfulfilled. Yet, Joshua 21 teaches us that God's faithfulness is not measured by speed but by certainty. His promises may take time, but they do not fail. Delay is not denial when God remains committed to His covenant. One of the beautiful truths in this chapter is that God did not merely give Israel the land but He also gave them rest round about and delivered all their enemies into their hands. God's faithfulness included inheritance, victory, protection, and peace. In the same way, God's plans for His people extend beyond survival. He desires to bring us into kingdom usefulness, covenant rest, and the full expression of His purposes in our lives.

Therefore, Week 34 calls us to strengthen our confidence in God's faithfulness, learn to rest in Him while continuing to labour diligently, and trust that every promise He has spoken concerning our lives, families, local churches, ministries, and the TACEF revival mandate will find full expression in His appointed time.

1. God Fulfills What He Speaks Because His Character Cannot Fail: The central testimony of Joshua 21 is not Israel's strength but God's faithfulness. The chapter does not celebrate military excellence or human achievement. Instead, it celebrates the reliability of God's covenant. Israel possessed the land because God fulfilled what He had spoken. Throughout Scripture, God's faithfulness is presented as one of His defining attributes. Numbers 23:19 declares, "God is not a man, that he should lie; neither the son of man, that he should repent." Hebrews 10:23 tells us to hold fast our profession because "he is faithful that promised." Titus 1:2 speaks of "God, that cannot lie." These passages remind us that God's promises are secure because His character is secure. Many believers wrongly place more confidence in circumstances than in God's Word. For these types of people, when circumstances appear favourable, faith rises but when circumstances become difficult, faith weakens. Yet biblical faith is rooted in God's character rather than visible evidence.

This truth is especially important in seasons of uncertainty like economic challenges, delayed opportunities, delayed manifestations of divine promises in family, ministry frustrations, and societal pressures. Yet God's covenant remains intact even when circumstances appear contrary. What God has spoken remains true regardless of how circumstances may appear. Dear TACEFites, build your confidence on God's character. His Word remains trustworthy and His promises remain secure. The same God who fulfilled His covenant to Abraham, Moses, Joshua, and Israel remains faithful today.

2. Delay Is Not Denial When God Is Preparing the Promise: One of the greatest attacks against faith is the assumption that delay means failure. Yet Scripture repeatedly demonstrates that God often works through long seasons of preparation before bringing promises to fulfilment.

The promise of the land took centuries to unfold. Joseph's dreams required years of suffering before fulfilment. David waited many years between anointing and kingship. Even the coming of Christ involved generations of prophetic expectation before fulfilment. God's delays are never meaningless. Often, He uses waiting seasons to prepare both the inheritance and the person who will receive it because character must be formed, faith must be strengthened, pride must be broken, dependence upon God must deepen and preparation often takes longer than manifestation.

The danger during waiting seasons is unbelief. Many believers conclude that because God has not acted according to their timetable, He has forgotten them. Yet God's silence is not abandonment. His delay is not denial. His timing is often different from ours because His wisdom exceeds ours.

This principle applies strongly to revival. Every genuine move of God in history passed through seasons of prayer, preparation, labour, and waiting. Revival is rarely instantaneous. It is cultivated through prolonged season of consecration, discipleship, and persistent faithfulness.

This teaching also comes as a strong consolation to every TACEFites who are trusting God concerning marriage, fruit of the womb, admission, career growth, family restoration, ministry fruitfulness, business expansion, financial breakthrough, spiritual growth, and kingdom assignments. Joshua 21 reminds us that God's promises remain alive even when fulfilment appears delayed. Therefore, let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering. Let us keep trusting God's timing. Let us continue praying, serving, obeying and believing. The God who promised remains faithful.

3. The Lord Gives Rest Round About: Joshua 21:44 records that the Lord gave Israel "rest round about." This statement reveals a dimension of God's blessing that many believers overlook. God did not merely bring His people into inheritance, but He also brought them into rest. However, the "rest" described here points to a deeper New Testament reality. Hebrews 4 teaches that there remains a rest for the people of God. This rest is not merely physical. It is spiritual. Many people spend their lives pursuing peace through external achievements. They assume they will rest after securing a promotion, completing a degree, getting married, buying a house, growing a business, or solving a major problem. Yet life continually presents new challenges. External circumstances can never provide lasting peace. True rest comes from confidence in God. Isaiah 26:3 declares: "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee." The key to rest is where the mind remains fixed. A mind fixed on problems becomes anxious, but a mind fixed on God becomes peaceful.

This explains why Jesus could sleep during a storm while others panicked. It explains why Paul and Silas worshipped in prison. It explains why Abraham continued believing despite impossible circumstances. Their confidence rested in God's faithfulness. Every revival army must learn this lesson. We cannot effectively labour for God while living under constant fear, anxiety, comparison, pressure, or discouragement. Kingdom work requires both diligence and rest. We must work hard while trusting deeply. We must labour faithfully while resting in God's sovereignty. Dear TACEFites, enter into God's rest. Let your confidence be rooted in His faithfulness rather than your circumstances. Trust Him enough to labour without fear and wait without anxiety.

4. God Watches Over His Word to Perform It: The climax of Joshua 21 is the declaration that not one good thing failed of all that God had spoken. This truth appears repeatedly throughout Scripture. Jeremiah 1:12 says: "I will hasten my word to perform it." Isaiah 55:11 declares that God's Word will not return unto Him void. First Samuel 3:19 records that God allowed none of Samuel's words to fall to the ground. God's commitment to His Word is one of the strongest foundations for faith. Human promises will fail and same for government, institution, friends and even our own commitments occasionally fail. Yet God's Word remains dependable because His character is unchanging.

Psalm 138:2 declares that God has magnified His Word above all His name. This highlights His commitment to the integrity of what He has spoken. He is jealous for the fulfilment of His Word. This truth should transform how we pray. Throughout Scripture, great men and women of faith approached God through His promises. Moses reminded God of His covenant. Daniel prayed according to Jeremiah's prophecy. Nehemiah prayed based on God's promises. They held God by His Word because they understood His commitment to fulfil what He had spoken. In this regard, each of us must therefore become students of Scripture. We must know God's promises concerning salvation, holiness, wisdom, guidance, fruitfulness, protection, provision, revival, and eternity. Faith grows when we know what God has actually said. Dear TACEFites, learn to pray God's Word. Learn to stand upon His promises, learn to trust His covenant for what God has spoken remains stronger than what circumstances suggest.

Ephesians 3:20 concluded the intensity of God's ability by reminding us that God is able to do "exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think." One of the remarkable aspects of God's faithfulness is that He often does more than we originally expected. Israel expected land but God gave them land, victory, and rest. Dear TACEFites, do not reduce God to the size of your circumstances. The God who fulfils promises is also the God who exceeds expectations.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Trust God beyond delay: Do not conclude that God has forgotten His promise because fulfilment appears slow. Hold on to His Word in seasons of waiting, knowing that delay is not denial when God is still working.
- Hold God by His Word: Learn to pray with the promises of Scripture. Remind yourself and declare before God that none of His good words will fail, because He watches over His Word to perform it.
- Enter into God's rest: Do not allow anxiety, fear, comparison, pressure, or uncertainty to rule your heart. Keep your mind stayed on God and receive the peace that comes from trusting His faithfulness.
- Trust God for deliverance from enemies: Do not fear visible or invisible opposition. The same Lord who delivered Israel's enemies into their hands is able to deliver you from every force resisting His purpose.
- Rest without becoming careless: God's rest is not an invitation to spiritual laziness. When God settles you, opens doors, gives peace, or answers prayers, steward the blessing with gratitude, discipline, and renewed consecration.
- Believe God for more than expected: Ephesians 3:20 reminds us that God is able to do exceeding abundantly above all we ask or think. Do not limit God to your present imagination, calculation, or experience.
- Encourage weary believers: Strengthen TACEFites who are discouraged by delay in marriage, admission, fruit of the womb, career growth, business result, family restoration, or ministry impact. Remind them that God's Word cannot fail.
- Turn fulfilled promises into thanksgiving: When God answers, do not become proud, careless, or forgetful. Let every fulfilled promise lead to worship, testimony, humility, and deeper commitment to the Lord.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why does God sometimes allow promises to take years before fulfilment? Consider examples such as Abraham, Joseph, Moses, David, and Israel. What lessons does God often teach His people during seasons of waiting, and how can delays become part of His preparation process rather than evidence of His absence?
2. What does it mean to enter into God's rest? Is God's rest simply the absence of problems, or is it a deeper spiritual confidence in His sovereignty and faithfulness? How can believers experience peace even while facing battles, uncertainties, or unanswered prayers?
3. How can believers hold God by His Word in prayer? What does it mean to pray God's promises back to Him? Discuss biblical examples of people who approached God based on His covenant and promises, and how this can strengthen our faith, confidence, and persistence in prayer.

4. Why must our confidence rest in who God is rather than what we currently see? How do God's attributes such as faithfulness, truthfulness, sovereignty, goodness, and immutability give believers confidence during difficult seasons?
5. What enemies of faith commonly challenge believers while waiting for God's promises? Discuss how fear, anxiety, impatience, comparison, discouragement, disappointment, and unbelief can weaken confidence in God, and what practical steps believers can take to overcome them through Scripture and prayer.
6. How can TACEFites remain faithful to the Lord and revival mandate during seasons when visible results seem limited?

Personal Reflection

Are there promises from God that I have quietly stopped believing because of delay? Is my mind stayed on God or constantly consumed by anxiety and uncertainty? Do I truly believe that God watches over His Word to perform it over my life, family and church? Am I resting in God's faithfulness while continuing to labour diligently? What promises concerning my life, family, ministry, career, business, local church, and the TACEF revival mandate do I need to place afresh before the Lord in faith? Am I trusting God's faithfulness or merely reacting to circumstances? Have I allowed delay to weaken my confidence in God's promises?

Prayer Points

1. Father, thank You because not one of Your good promises has ever failed.
2. Lord, strengthen my confidence in Your faithfulness during seasons of waiting.
3. Father, teach me to enter into Your rest and keep my mind fixed on You.
4. Lord, do exceedingly abundantly above all that we ask or think for Your glory and kingdom purpose.
5. Lord, deliver me from unbelief, discouragement, anxiety, impatience, and every attitude that questions Your integrity.
6. Father, let every promise concerning Your Church, Your kingdom, and the revival mandate of TACEF come to full manifestation according to Your perfect will.

Week 34 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 19 April 2027

- God's faithfulness is greater than every delay. Abraham, Joseph, David, and Israel all experienced waiting seasons, yet God fulfilled every promise He made.
- I will not measure God's faithfulness by my timetable but by His unchanging character.
- Waiting seasons are often preparation seasons. God uses delay to strengthen faith, deepen character, expose pride, and prepare His servants for greater stewardship. Lord, help me to trust Your process while I wait for Your fulfilment.

Tuesday, 20 April 2027

- There failed not ought of any good thing which the Lord had spoken. Human promises may fail, but God's Word remains dependable because His character cannot change.
- I choose to build my confidence upon what God has spoken rather than what circumstances suggest.
- I stand on God's promises during seasons of uncertainty. Father, help me to trust Your covenant even when visible evidence appears limited or delayed.

Wednesday, 21 April 2027

- The Lord gave Israel rest round about. True rest is not merely the absence of problems but the presence of confidence in God's sovereignty.
- A believer whose mind is stayed on God can possess peace even while passing through difficult seasons.
- Anxiety grows when we focus on problems, but peace grows when we focus on God's faithfulness. Father, teach me to focus you at all times, resting confidently in Your care.

Thursday, 22 April 2027

- The Lord delivered all their enemies into their hands. Every promise of God carries within it the power necessary for its fulfilment. No enemy, opposition, delay, or obstacle can prevail against what God has determined to accomplish.
- Many battles appear larger than our strength, but they are never larger than God's power. Lord, strengthen my confidence in Your ability.

- I trust God to deliver me from every visible and invisible enemy of destiny. Lord, fight every battle that stands against Your purpose for my life.

Friday, 23 April 2027

- God watches over His Word to perform it. He has magnified His Word and remains committed to fulfilling every promise He has spoken.
- The strength of our prayers often depends on the strength of our understanding of God's Word. Father, make me a student of Scripture who knows Your promises and stands upon them with confidence.
- Father, help me to walk daily in the assurance of Your promises.

Saturday, 24 April 2027

- God is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think. His faithfulness is not limited by our imagination, expectations, resources, or present circumstances.
- I will not limit God by my imagination, experience, or present circumstances. Father, fulfil every promise concerning my life, our families, local churches, campuses, and revival mandate for Your glory.
- Every fulfilled promise should produce gratitude, worship, humility, and renewed obedience. Father, help me never to take Your faithfulness for granted but to respond with thanksgiving and deeper consecration to Your purposes.

Week 35: Monday, 26 April 2027 to Sunday, 2 May 2027

Tarry Week for Reflections and Prayer

Daily Reflective Prayer Declarations

Monday, 26 April 2027

- I understand that God has assigned me a portion in His kingdom. I will not live in confusion, comparison, competition, or jealousy. Father, help me to know and serve in my duty post.
- I am a useful member of the body of Christ. I will not remain passive, disconnected, or inactive. Lord, help me to faithfully supply my measure through prayer, service, encouragement, discipleship, giving, and every grace You have entrusted to me.

Tuesday, 27 April 2027

- I will serve with wisdom, focus, and discernment. I will not carry burdens You have not assigned to me. I receive grace to labour effectively in my appointed field.
- I receive grace to maintain godly boundaries in ministry, relationships, family life, career, business, and kingdom service. Lord, deliver me from unnecessary commitments that weakens fruitfulness.

Wednesday, 28 April 2027

- Christ is my refuge and my eternal High Priest. Our fellowships will become a place of refuge where the wounded find care, the repentant find restoration, the struggling find counsel, the mistaken find truth and not crushed.
- I will not be an instrument of condemnation, gossip, bitterness, or spiritual cruelty. Lord, make me a vessel of truth, compassion, wisdom, restoration, and healing in the household of faith.

Thursday, 29 April 2027

- I receive grace to carry God's presence into every territory where He has planted me. I will not be a convention-only believer. Lord, make me faithful in my local fellowship, church, family altar, and every sphere of influence.
- I will not centralise ministry around myself. Father, help me to equip others, disciple others, encourage others, and raise labourers who can carry the burden of revival into future generations.

Friday, 30 April 2027

- I receive grace to honour and support those who labour in the Word, prayer, missions, discipleship, and kingdom service. Father, teach me to recognise legitimate needs and respond with divine leading, generosity, and love.
- Revival must continue from generation to generation. Lord, help me to intentionally invest in the next generation, particularly TACEF Sons of Purpose and TACEF Seeds of Purpose.

Saturday, 1 May 2027

- None of the good promises the Lord had made to the house of Israel failed. I choose to trust God's faithfulness above my circumstances, emotions, delays, disappointments, and present realities. Father, strengthen my confidence in Your covenant.
- I enter into God's rest. My mind will remain fixed on His faithfulness. I reject fear, anxiety, discouragement, unbelief, impatience, and every pressure that seeks to weaken my confidence in God's promises.
- God is able to do exceedingly abundantly above all that I ask or think. I will not limit God by my experience, resources, calculations, or present circumstances.

SECTION 8: Unity, Misunderstanding, and Corporate Responsibility: How the Army Protects Unity While Preserving Truth

The journey of God's end-time army now moves into the delicate season of unity, communication, corporate responsibility, and preservation after battle. After many victories had been won and the land had begun to be possessed, the eastern tribes returned to their inheritance beyond Jordan. They had fought faithfully with their brethren, but they now had to carry the same covenant burden back to their homes, families, lands, and communities. This teaches us that the fire of revival must not remain only on the battlefield, in conventions, retreats, camps, fellowships, or collective gatherings. A true soldier does not only burn when surrounded by other soldiers. The burden must travel with every TACEFite into the home, marriage, workplace, campus, local church, village, city, and new assignment.

God's army may be separated by location, role, season, age, marriage, graduation, relocation, work, or ministry placement, but the covenant identity must remain one. Distance must not kill commitment. Blessing must not produce withdrawal and our victory or liftings in life must not become an excuse for comfort. The eastern tribes returned with much wealth, but Joshua reminded them to share, steward, and walk faithfully before the Lord. This teaches that blessing carries responsibility. When God gives victory, resources, platforms, families, jobs, opportunities, education, relocation, and influence, they must be used with generosity, accountability, love, and covenant purpose.

This eighth section therefore calls TACEFites to protect unity without compromising truth. We must avoid gossip, suspicion, factionalism, and hasty judgement. We must not judge before we listen. We must not allow misunderstanding to wound the Body. We must communicate burdens, decisions, plans, and intentions clearly so that brethren are not confused or discouraged. At the same time, unity must not become carelessness. After victory, the army must keep the fire burning, cleave to the Lord, remain separated from ungodly influence, and continue to walk as children of light. The Lord's army must be united, truthful, watchful, holy, and deeply responsible.

Week 36: The Eastern Tribes Returning Home - Carrying the Burden Beyond the Battlefield: The eastern tribes teach us that some soldiers may return to different locations, but the burden must travel with them. Though, they were going back across Jordan, they were still part of God's covenant people. Distance did not change identity. TACEFites who graduate, relocate, marry, change roles, enter NYSC, begin new jobs, move abroad, or return to local churches must carry the revival burden with them. We must not leave the fire at the camp. The burden must continue at home, in family life, work, church, school, and workplace.

Week 37: The Altar of Witness - Resolving Conflict God's Way: The altar built by the eastern tribes teaches that good intentions can be misunderstood when communication is poorly done. The rest of Israel assumed rebellion and nearly went to war, but careful enquiry and truthful explanation preserved unity. This teaches that believers must not judge before they listen. In friendship, marriage, fellowship, workplace culture, leadership, and local church administration, communication protects unity, truth, and covenant trust. TACEFites must avoid suspicion, gossip, factionalism, and hasty judgement. Unity is not automatic; it must be intentionally preserved through patience, love, and truth.

Week 38: Keeping the Fire After the Battle Is Won: Joshua's warning to Israel teaches that victory must not produce carelessness, spiritual pride, or relaxed consecration. After many battles had been won, Israel still had to obey the Word, cleave to the Lord, and remain separate from ungodly influence. The Christian walk continues after initial conquest. TACEFites must understand that holiness is not a short-term demand but a continuous walk in light, wisdom, obedience, and separation from darkness. We must guard our friendships, appetites, relationships, ambitions, social media habits, academic pressure, workplace culture, and secret life.

Week 39: One Shall Chase a Thousand - The Power Behind One Consecrated Life: Joshua's reminder that one shall chase a thousand teaches that numerical smallness is not weakness when God is with His people. One consecrated life can affect many in a church, class, hostel, office, family, campus, or even a city. Ephesians reminds us that the exceeding greatness of God's power works toward believers, and that Christ is exalted above every power. TACEFites must not despise small numbers or hidden locations. One TACEFite backed by God's power can pioneer a new work, shift a spiritual atmosphere, confront opposition, influence many lives, and stand victoriously in Christ.

Week 36: Monday, 3 May 2027 to Sunday, 9 May 2027

Title: The Eastern Tribes Returning Home: Carrying the Burden Beyond the Battlefield

Bible Texts: Joshua 22:1-9; Ephesians 6:21-24

Bible Texts

Joshua 22:1-9: 1 Then Joshua called the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh, 2 And said unto them, Ye have kept all that Moses the servant of the LORD commanded you, and have obeyed my voice in all that I commanded you: 3 Ye have not left your brethren these many days unto this day, but have kept the charge of the commandment of the LORD your God. 4 And now the LORD your God hath given rest unto your brethren, as he promised them: therefore now return ye, and get you unto your tents, and unto the land of your possession, which Moses the servant of the LORD gave you on the other side Jordan. 5 But take diligent heed to do the commandment and the law, which Moses the servant of the LORD charged you, to love the LORD your God, and to walk in all his ways, and to keep his commandments, and to cleave unto him, and to serve him with all your heart and with all your soul. 6 So Joshua blessed them, and sent them away: and they went unto their tents. 7 Now to the one half of the tribe of Manasseh Moses had given possession in Bashan: but unto the other half thereof gave Joshua among their brethren on this side Jordan westward. And when Joshua sent them away also unto their tents, then he blessed them, 8 And he spake unto them, saying, Return with much riches unto your tents, and with very much cattle, with silver, and with gold, and with brass, and with iron, and with very much raiment: divide the spoil of your enemies with your brethren. 9 And the children of Reuben and the children of Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh returned, and departed from the children of Israel out of Shiloh, which is in the land of Canaan, to go unto the country of Gilead, to the land of their possession, whereof they were possessed, according to the word of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

Ephesians 6:21-24: 21 But that ye also may know my affairs, and how I do, Tychicus, a beloved brother and faithful minister in the Lord, shall make known to you all things: 22 Whom I have sent unto you for the same purpose, that ye might know our affairs, and that he might comfort your hearts. 23 Peace be to the brethren, and love with faith, from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. 24 Grace be with all them that love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity. Amen.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- Ye have kept all that Moses the servant of the LORD commanded you.
- Ye have not left your brethren these many days.
- Ye have kept the charge of the commandment of the LORD your God.
- Now return ye, and get you unto your tents.
- Take diligent heed to do the commandment and the law.
- Joshua blessed them, and sent them away.
- Return with much riches unto your tents.
- Peace be to the brethren, and love with faith.
- Grace be with all them that love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity.

Introduction

This week's study brings us to a major transition in the journey of Israel. The Reubenites, the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh had received their inheritance on the other side of Jordan, but they did not remain there while their brethren from the remaining nine and a half tribes fought alone. They crossed over with the rest of the remaining tribes of Israel and stood with them through the battles of possessing the remaining Promised Land. They left the comfort of their own inheritance to support the larger covenant assignment. Now that the Lord had given rest to their brethren and all the lands have now been conquered, Joshua called them, commended their obedience, blessed them, and released them to return to the land of their possessions.

This release was not ordinary, automatic, or based only on desire. Joshua did not release them simply because they wanted to return home. Before he said, "Now return ye, and get you unto your tents," he first gave testimony about their readiness. He said, "Ye have kept all that Moses the servant of the LORD commanded you." He also said, "Ye have not left your brethren these many days." He further said, "Ye have kept the charge of the commandment of the LORD your God." These three statements show that there were foundational pillars before their covenant release into their next level. They had a personal walk of obedience, sustained fellowship and submission to the body, and a life of consecrated discipleship. Only after these testimonies came the release, the blessing, and the return to their own lands.

This teaches us that there are divine conditions for new levels of divine release, settlement, relocation, marriage, ministry advancement, leadership transition, and next-level responsibility. The next level that God has promised us is not entered by desire but entered through readiness, obedience, faithfulness, service, and proven discipleship. This means that the Lord may delay the release of some brethren into their Promised Land and their specific “tents” because the foundational requirements have not yet been fulfilled. This delay is not punishment but part of divine preparation. God knows that a person who has not learnt obedience, accountability, fellowship, service, and consecration in the present season may not be able to carry the weight of the next season when they are released to the Promised Land whether in the form of career expansion, relocation to a new country, settlement in marriage, release into divine calling or enlargement into new business.

Ephesians deepens this lesson through the example of Tychicus, whom Paul called “a beloved brother and faithful minister in the Lord.” Though, Paul and the Ephesian believers were separated by distance, love, fellowship, communication, comfort, grace, and peace continued to bind them together. The Church remains one body across locations. Grace and peace sustain separated labourers. Faithfulness is not only tested when everyone is gathered together; it is also tested when brethren are apart, when duties change, when visibility reduces, when supervision is absent, and when personal life becomes busy. Therefore, this week calls TACEFites to unto readiness for divine release. Before we pray, “Lord, release me,” we must also pray, “Lord, prepare me.” Before we ask for the next tent, we must ask for the faithfulness, submission, and consecration that will preserve us there.

Teachings

1. Divine Release into the Next Tent Requires Foundational Readiness: The release of the eastern tribes into their lands was not ordinary. Joshua did not simply say, “You may go.” He first examined and affirmed the evidence of their readiness. He said they had kept what Moses commanded, obeyed Joshua’s voice, stayed with their brethren, and kept the charge of the commandment of the Lord. This means that their release into the next tent rested on a tested foundation. This is a very important principle in the journey of God’s people. There are conditions for every next level of greatness, settlement, enlargement, and progress that we desire or seek. The desire to move forward is not enough. The fact that a person wants marriage, promotion at work, business enlargement, or incremental responsibility does not mean the person is ready for it. God prepares the vessel before He releases the vessel. In our text of study, we see three testimonies of readiness for the next level of divine settlement. First, Joshua said, “Ye have kept all that Moses the servant of the LORD commanded you.” This speaks to a personal walk of obedience. Before the eastern tribes were released into their inheritance, they had shown that they could obey instruction. Many people want the next level, but they have not yet built the foundation of obedience required to sustain it.

The second testimony was, “Ye have not left your brethren these many days unto this day.” This speaks to sustained fellowship, submission to the body, and faithfulness to shared burden. The eastern tribes did not abandon their brethren because their own inheritance had already been given. They stood with the rest of Israel until the common assignment was fulfilled. This teaches that God watches how we treat the work of others before He releases us into our own tents. Some people want to move on, but they have not been faithful where God planted them. Some want to build their own businesses, but they have not learnt accountability and service while working with others. Some want to relocate, marry, graduate, or enter new assignments, but they have many personal gaps that must be intentionally fixed. The third testimony was, “Ye have kept the charge of the commandment of the LORD your God.” This speaks to a life of discipleship and consecration. It is not only about obeying one instruction but about carrying the charge of the Lord as a way of life. Dear TACEFites, the next tent you desire for your life is not automatic. Divine settlement has a process. The Lord who blesses also prepares; the Lord who releases also examines; the Lord who sends also forms. Let us therefore be faithful in the present season. Let us be faithful in that which belongs to another, as Jesus taught in Luke 16:12, “And if ye have not been faithful in that which is another man’s, who shall give you that which is your own?” This means that faithfulness in another person’s assignment is often a test before God commits our own portion into our hands. Let us learn to treat the things of others with the same care, diligence, and honour we desire for our own. If you want God to build your own home, learn to treat another person’s home well as if it is yours. If you want to build your own business enterprise, learn to work for others with honesty, excellence, and commitment as though the work were yours.

2. Some Soldiers Return to Different Locations, but the Burden Must Travel with Them: The eastern tribes had fought faithfully with their brethren. They had left their own inheritance on the other side of Jordan and joined the rest of Israel in the battles of possession. Joshua testified concerning them: "Ye have not left your brethren these many days unto this day." This was a powerful testimony of commitment, sacrifice, and shared burden. They did not say, "Our own land has already been given to us, so let others fight their own battles." They understood that the assignment of God's people was bigger than their own comfort. This shows that God's soldiers can serve together for a season and then be released into different locations, roles, and responsibilities. Some may graduate, marry out of the ministry, go for NYSC, relocate to different nations, change jobs, return to village churches, enter new leadership roles and some may step away from visible central activities because of family, work, or ministry demands. But the burden of the Lord must not be left behind.

This is a major lesson for TACEFites. Many people burn for God only when they are in a strong fellowship environment. They pray when there is a retreat. They serve when there is a convention. They are fervent only when friends are around. But when they leave that environment, the fire begins to reduce. This should not be so. A true revival soldier carries the burden beyond the battlefield. The burden for souls and passion for revival must travel with us. A TACEFite going for NYSC must carry the burden into the place of primary assignment. A student who graduates must carry the burden into the workplace. A sister who marries must carry the fire into her home and new family. A family who relocates abroad must carry the burden into that new country. A professional moving into a new role must carry Christ into the office. A business owner must carry the fear of God everywhere they find themselves.

Dear TACEFites, wherever you go, go as a soldier of Christ. Wherever life places you, carry the burden of the Lord.

3. Distance Must Not Kill Covenant Commitment or Weaken Spiritual Identity: The eastern tribes were returning across Jordan, but they were still part of God's covenant people. Their geography changed, but their identity did not change. Their tents were on the other side of Jordan, but their God was still the God of Israel. Their location was different, but their covenant remained the same. Joshua therefore charged them carefully: "Take diligent heed to do the commandment and the law." In other words, do not allow distance from the main body to weaken your obedience to God. Distance can test identity. When people are far from familiar spiritual structures, their true convictions are revealed. A young believer who was strong on campus may face a different test during NYSC when there is no active fellowship nearby. A brother who was faithful in a local assembly may begin to struggle when he relocates to another country where church life is different and work pressure is high. A sister who was accountable as a single may face new pressures in marriage, family demands, and in-laws. A worker who was disciplined when surrounded by brethren may begin to compromise in a workplace where corruption, ungodly talk, and immorality are normal.

The Lord's revival army must understand that spiritual identity is not location dependent. We are not Christians only in our local fellowship. We are not holy only in church. We are not prayerful only during retreats, fellowships, or family altars. We are not committed only when leaders call us. We belong to Christ everywhere. At work or at home, in school or during NYSC, as single people or in marriage, in Nigeria or in another country, as TACEFites in local churches, as TACEFites in a College of Theology, or as full-time ministers, our identity must remain the same.

Dear TACEF Missionaries on the Altar (MOTA) and Missionaries in Church Administration (MICA), do not become strangers to the vision of revival because you have taken on ministerial or administrative roles in the church. Every lifting you receive must deepen the vision, strengthen your connection to the brethren, and draw many souls to the Lord. It must not detach you from fellowship weekly meetings, online fellowships, physical gatherings, and the shared covenant responsibility of the great house. The higher the Lord lifts us, the more faithful, humble, connected, and fruitful we must become.

4. Blessing Must Lead to Responsibility, Stewardship, and Continued Obedience: Joshua blessed the eastern tribes and sent them away. He also reminded them that they were returning with much riches, very much cattle, silver, gold, brass, iron, and very much raiment. They were not returning empty-handed. Victory had produced resources. Their obedience had been fruitful. But Joshua did not allow blessing to become self-centred enjoyment. He said, "Divide the spoil ... with your brethren." This means blessing must be carried with responsibility. When God blesses a believer, that blessing must not lead to self-centeredness, pride, withdrawal, or forgetfulness. It must lead to stewardship, generosity, and responsibility. The eastern tribes had fought with their brethren and had received wealth, but they also had to share rightly and steward the blessing wisely.

Many believers lose spiritual sharpness when blessing comes. A person who prayed earnestly for a job may become too busy for God after employment comes. A brother who sought God for business growth may become spiritually cold when the business enlarges. A sister who prayed for marriage may gradually withdraw from service after children start coming. A family that asked God for relocation may become disconnected from fellowship after arriving in another country. A student who prayed for admission may forget God once school life begins. This is why blessing must be handled carefully. Joshua's final charge also shows that the next tent is not a place of reduced consecration. He told them to love the Lord, walk in all His ways, keep His commandments, cleave unto Him, and serve Him with all their hearts and all their soul. This means that our release into the next level must deepen obedience, not reduce it. The battlefield may change, but the demand of God remains. Dear TACEFites, when the Lord blesses you, carry the blessing responsibly. Share with others, strengthen the weak, support the work, encourage the brethren, honour God with your resources, steward opportunities wisely, and never allow comfort to make you withdraw from service.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Ask God to prepare you before release: Do not only pray for the next level; pray for the discipline, character, and consecration needed to sustain it. For example, if you are seeking God for marriage partner, do not just pray to find the right person, also pray to be the right person.
- Stay faithful to the body: Do not abandon brethren, local fellowship, or assigned responsibilities because your own opportunity has opened.
- Carry the burden beyond meetings: Do not leave the fire of revival at conventions, retreats, camps, or fellowship gatherings. Take it back into daily life.
- Prepare for transitions spiritually: Before graduation, NYSC, marriage, relocation, job change, business expansion, or leadership change, pray for grace to remain faithful.
- Stay connected to the body: Distance must not become isolation. Keep fellowship, accountability, communication, prayer partnership, and love with brethren.
- Steward blessing responsibly: Use jobs, marriage, business growth, academic success, relocation, resources, and high responsibilities in your local church to serve God, enlarge the impact of the vision of revival and strengthen others.
- Share the spoil with brethren: Do not enjoy God's blessing selfishly. Support the weak, give to kingdom work, encourage others, and invest in people.
- Turn every new location into a mission field: Your school, workplace, NYSC posting, neighbourhood, new country, and local church are territories where Christ must be represented.

Questions for Discussion

1. What do the three testimonies, "Ye have kept all," "Ye have not left your brethren," and "Ye have kept the charge," teach us about divine readiness?
2. Why is the next tent not automatic for every believer who desires a new level?
3. How can God use delay to prepare someone for marriage, relocation, promotion, ministry, business enlargement, or leadership responsibility?
4. Why do some people who were once active in the vision find it difficult to remain connected when they become full-time ministers or take up administrative roles in a local church?
5. How can brethren who have relocated to new locations where there are no churches, spiritual communities, and networks of believers sustain their momentum with God intentionally and consistently?
6. How can brethren practically prepare themselves for major life milestones like marriage, ministry, career transition, becoming parents, or business enlargement?

Personal Reflection

Am I asking God for the next tent without allowing Him to prepare me for it? Have I built a personal walk of obedience, or am I only eager for release? Have I been faithful to the brethren, shared burden, fellowship, and responsibility, or have I abandoned others because my own opportunity has come? Have I allowed any life transition to weaken my prayer, holiness, service, fellowship, or love for God? Do I only burn for the Lord when I am with other believers, or does the fire continue when I am alone? Have I allowed blessing, promotion, marriage, relocation, or new opportunities to make me comfortable and withdrawn? What foundation must God still build in me before I am truly ready for my next level?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, prepare me for every next level You have ordained for my life.
2. Father, build in me a personal walk of obedience that can sustain my next life milestone. Father, help me to take diligent heed to Your commandment and walk in all Your ways wherever I find myself.

3. Lord, help me not to abandon my brethren, the shared burden of revival, fellowship, or assigned responsibility.
4. Lord, let my fire not die because of graduation, NYSC, marriage, relocation, career growth, ministry platform, academic demands, business expansion, family pressure, or new responsibilities.
5. Father, teach me to steward every blessing with generosity, accountability, humility, and covenant responsibility.
6. Lord, make every TACEFite a carrier of revival fire wherever You send us, in Nigeria, across nations of the world, on the altar, in church administration, at home, at work, in school, on campus, in marriage, and in the local church.

Week 36 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 3 May 2027

- The next tent is not automatic. I will not ask God for release without asking Him to prepare me for what He wants to release me into.
- The eastern tribes were released after they had kept the commandment, stayed with their brethren, and carried the charge of the Lord. Father, build these foundations in me.
- Lord, prepare me through service, submission, discipline, and consecration for every next level You have ordained for my life.

Tuesday, 4 May 2027

- I am called to be faithful in that which belongs to another. I will not wait for my own dream job, business, ministry platform, or lifting before serving with diligence, accountability and excellence where God has placed me now.
- I will treat another man's assignment, home, business, resources, and responsibility with honour and care. I will not be careless, wasteful, or negligent because it is not yet my own.
- Father, make me faithful in another man's own, as Jesus taught, so that I may be prepared and trusted for the next level of greatness and lifting You have ordained for my life.

Wednesday, 5 May 2027

- I will not leave my brethren. I will not abandon our shared burden, fellowship, or kingdom responsibility because my opportunity has come.
- The eastern tribes stood with their brethren until the common assignment was fulfilled. Lord, make me faithful to the body of Christ and the burden of revival.
- Father, deliver me from selfish ambition, spiritual isolation, and broken commitments.

Thursday 6 May 2027

- I must keep the charge of the commandment of the Lord. My life must be a life of discipleship, consecration, and covenant responsibility.
- I receive grace to love the Lord more and more, walk in all His ways, keep His commandments, cleave unto Him, and serve Him with all my heart and soul.
- Lord, let my next level deepen my consecration, not reduce my commitment.

Friday, 7 May 2027

- I am called to carry the burden beyond the battlefield. I will not only burn for God during conventions, retreats, camps, or collective meetings, but at all times and in all places.
- The eastern tribes returned home, but they remained part of God's covenant people. Lord, help me to carry revival fire into every place You send me.
- I will not leave the burden behind because of distance, graduation, NYSC, marriage, relocation, career growth, ministry platform or family responsibility.

Saturday, 8 May 2027

- Blessing must lead to responsibility, not comfort or withdrawal. I will not allow success, resources, promotion, marriage, relocation, ministry platform or opportunity to take me away from God.
- Joshua said they should divide the spoil with their brethren. Father, teach me to steward every blessing with generosity, accountability, and covenant responsibility.
- I receive grace to return to my tent with the fire still burning, the burden still alive, and my heart still cleaving to the Lord in complete obedience.

Week 37: Monday, 10 May 2027 to Sunday, 16 May 2027

Title: The Altar of Witness: Resolving Conflict God's Way

Bible Texts: Joshua 22:10-34; Ephesians 4:1-6, 25

Bible Texts

Joshua 22:10-34: 10 And when they came unto the borders of Jordan, that are in the land of Canaan, the children of Reuben and the children of Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh built there an altar by Jordan, a great altar to see to. 11 And the children of Israel heard say, Behold, the children of Reuben and the children of Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh have built an altar over against the land of Canaan, in the borders of Jordan, at the passage of the children of Israel. 12 And when the children of Israel heard of it, the whole congregation of the children of Israel gathered themselves together at Shiloh, to go up to war against them. 13 And the children of Israel sent unto the children of Reuben, and to the children of Gad, and to the half tribe of Manasseh, into the land of Gilead, Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, 14 And with him ten princes, of each chief house a prince throughout all the tribes of Israel; and each one was an head of the house of their fathers among the thousands of Israel. 15 And they came unto the children of Reuben, and to the children of Gad, and to the half tribe of Manasseh, unto the land of Gilead, and they spake with them, saying, 16 Thus saith the whole congregation of the LORD, What trespass is this that ye have committed against the God of Israel, to turn away this day from following the LORD, in that ye have builded you an altar, that ye might rebel this day against the LORD? 17 Is the iniquity of Peor too little for us, from which we are not cleansed until this day, although there was a plague in the congregation of the LORD, 18 But that ye must turn away this day from following the LORD? and it will be, seeing ye rebel to day against the LORD, that to morrow he will be wroth with the whole congregation of Israel. 19 Notwithstanding, if the land of your possession be unclean, then pass ye over unto the land of the possession of the LORD, wherein the LORD'S tabernacle dwelleth, and take possession among us: but rebel not against the LORD, nor rebel against us, in building you an altar beside the altar of the LORD our God. 20 Did not Achan the son of Zerah commit a trespass in the accursed thing, and wrath fell on all the congregation of Israel? and that man perished not alone in his iniquity. 21 Then the children of Reuben and the children of Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh answered, and said unto the heads of the thousands of Israel, 22 The LORD God of gods, the LORD God of gods, he knoweth, and Israel he shall know; if it be in rebellion, or if in transgression against the LORD, (save us not this day,) 23 That we have built us an altar to turn from following the LORD, or if to offer thereon burnt offering or meat offering, or if to offer peace offerings thereon, let the LORD himself require it; 24 And if we have not rather done it for fear of this thing, saying, In time to come your children might speak unto our children, saying, What have ye to do with the LORD God of Israel? 25 For the LORD hath made Jordan a border between us and you, ye children of Reuben and children of Gad; ye have no part in the LORD: so shall your children make our children cease from fearing the LORD. 26 Therefore we said, Let us now prepare to build us an altar, not for burnt offering, nor for sacrifice: 27 But that it may be a witness between us, and you, and our generations after us, that we might do the service of the LORD before him with our burnt offerings, and with our sacrifices, and with our peace offerings; that your children may not say to our children in time to come, Ye have no part in the LORD. 28 Therefore said we, that it shall be, when they should so say to us or to our generations in time to come, that we may say again, Behold the pattern of the altar of the LORD, which our fathers made, not for burnt offerings, nor for sacrifices; but it is a witness between us and you. 29 God forbid that we should rebel against the LORD, and turn this day from following the LORD, to build an altar for burnt offerings, for meat offerings, or for sacrifices, beside the altar of the LORD our God that is before his tabernacle. 30 And when Phinehas the priest, and the princes of the congregation and heads of the thousands of Israel which were with him, heard the words that the children of Reuben and the children of Gad and the children of Manasseh spake, it pleased them. 31 And Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest said unto the children of Reuben and to the children of Gad and to the children of Manasseh, This day we perceive that the LORD is among us, because ye have not committed this trespass against the LORD: now ye have delivered the children of Israel out of the hand of the LORD. 32 And Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, and the princes, returned from the children of Reuben and from the children of Gad, out of the land of Gilead, unto the land of Canaan, to the children of Israel, and brought them word again. 33 And the thing pleased the children of Israel; and the children of Israel blessed God, and did not intend to go up against them in battle, to destroy the land wherein the children of Reuben and Gad dwelt. 34 And the children of Reuben and the children of Gad called the altar Ed: for it shall be a witness between us that the LORD is God.

Ephesians 4:1-6, 25: 1 I therefore, the prisoner of the Lord, beseech you that ye walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called, 2 With all lowliness and meekness, with longsuffering, forbearing one another in love; 3 Endeavouring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace. 4 There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling; 5 One Lord, one faith, one baptism, 6 One God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all. 25 Wherefore putting away lying, speak every man truth with his neighbour: for we are members one of another.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- They built there an altar by Jordan, a great altar to see to.
- The whole congregation of the children of Israel gathered themselves together at Shiloh, to go up to war against them
- What trespass is this that ye have committed?
- God forbid that we should rebel against the LORD.
- When they heard the words, it pleased them.
- Forbearing one another in love.
- Endeavouring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace.
- There is one body, and one Spirit.
- Speak every man truth with his neighbour.

Introduction

As we continue to learn more about what defines an exceeding great army, our study this week brings us to one of the most practical and delicate moments in the journey of Israel. The two and a half tribes that are also called the eastern tribes (the children of Reuben and the children of Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh) had faithfully served with the other nine and a half tribes (also called the western tribes) in the battles of possession and had been released by Joshua to return to their own lands. As they came to the borders of the Jordan, they built a great altar. This immediately alarmed the rest of Israel because it appeared they were setting up an alternative place of worship, something God had forbidden, as it could lead to idolatry and divide His people. Their intention was not rebellion but to create a place where they can serve God and preserve their covenant identity for future generations and ensure that their children would never be told, “Ye have no part in the LORD” since they were on the other side of Jordan. Unfortunately, the rest of Israel misunderstood this act of sincerity and assumed that the eastern tribes had rebelled against God.

This misunderstanding almost became a civil war among brethren. The whole congregation gathered at Shiloh to go up to war against the eastern tribe who are of course smaller in size. This is worrisome because these were not strangers attacking strangers but covenant brethren almost fighting. These were the same eastern tribes who had laboured with them, fought with them, and stayed with them until they secured all their inheritance. Yet one misunderstood action almost erased the memory of their past faithfulness. This teaches us that conflict can arise even among the most sincere people, godly people, covenant people, married people, business partners, friends, leaders, ministers, and brethren in the same revival vision. Good intentions can be misread when communication is unclear.

Ephesians gives us the New Testament foundation for resolving such conflicts. Paul calls believers to walk with meekness, longsuffering, and forbearance in love, endeavouring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace. He also reminds us that there is one body, one Spirit, one Lord, one faith, one baptism, and one God and Father of all. This means that disagreements must be handled through the consciousness that we belong to one another. We must speak truth, but truth must be spoken as members of one body. We must defend holiness, but holiness must not become an excuse for impatience, suspicion, anger, public accusation, or careless destruction of relationships. Therefore, this week calls TACEFites to learn how to resolve conflicts God’s way. We must learn to ask questions before making conclusions, listen before reacting, verify facts before sharing stories, and communicate clearly before assuming motives.

Teachings

1. Good Intentions Can Be Misunderstood When Communication Is Unclear: The eastern tribes built an altar by Jordan, and it was “a great altar to see to.” To the western tribes, the altar looked like rebellion. They thought it was another altar for sacrifice, a violation of covenant order, and a direct threat to the oneness of Israel to have only one national altar. Their concern was serious because they remembered the sin of Israel at Baal-peor and Achan. They knew that one person’s sin could bring trouble upon the whole congregation. In that sense, their concern for holiness was not wrong. What was wrong was that they nearly went to war before fully understanding the motive behind the action. This teaches that good intentions can be misunderstood when communication is not properly done.

The eastern tribes built the altar as a witness to remind their children that they also belong to God just as the other Israelites on the western side, but they did not first communicate clearly enough to the rest of Israel. Their action carried a good intention, but the meaning was not known to others. This happens often in daily life. A husband may keep quiet because he is tired, but his wife may interpret it as rejection. A wife may delay responding to a message because she is overwhelmed, but her husband may think she is being disrespectful. A business partner may make a decision quickly to save an opportunity, but the other partner may feel excluded or betrayed. A fellowship President may change a programme arrangement because the guest minister did not arrive on time, but other executives may think there is hidden bias or personal agenda.

Communication protects unity and covenant relationships. In marriage, couples must not assume that love alone will explain everything. They must explain decisions, feelings, expectations, finances, boundaries, pressures, and concerns. In business partnerships, partners must communicate clearly about money, responsibilities, ownership, deadlines, risks, and decisions. In friendships, people must learn to say, "This hurts me," "I did not understand what you meant," or "Please explain what happened," instead of withdrawing silently or spreading offence. In fellowship, leaders must explain plans, burdens, and instructions clearly so that others are not confused or feel slighted. This also applies in ministry and doctrinal matters. A minister may make a statement in a long sermon, but a short clip may circulate online without the full context. In the age of short clips on our social media pages, screenshots, forwarded voice notes, and social media reactions, believers must be careful. Not everything seen in a clip represents the full message. We must not build judgement on fragments.

2. Do Not Judge Before You Listen: The western tribe of Israel that constituted the nine and a half tribes nearly went to war because of an assumption that they have not taken time to clarify. They heard that the eastern tribes had built an altar, and they gathered at Shiloh to go up against them in battle. Yet, before fighting, they sent Phinehas and ten princes to speak with them. This step was wise and godly. Though, their emotions were strong and their concern was serious, they still created room for enquiry and consultation and this decision saved Israel from destroying its own innocent brethren. This is a major lesson in conflict resolution. We must not judge before we listen. While the western tribes were right to care about the risk of the eastern tribes raising a strange altar before the Lord as a form of idolatry, any show of zeal without careful enquiry can destroy relationships.

This principle is needed in marriage. Before a husband concludes that his wife is careless, he should ask what is happening around her. Before a wife concludes that her husband is insensitive, she should ask what pressure he is facing. Couples must not punish one another for unspoken assumptions. They must learn to pause, listen, and speak with honour. A useful practice is to ask, "What did you mean by that?" "Can you help me understand?" "Is there something I am missing?" "This is how I felt; is that what you intended?" These simple questions can prevent many unnecessary battles. This principle is also needed among business partners and friends. Before accusing a partner of dishonesty, verify the records. Before accusing a friend of betrayal, ask for the full story. Before reacting to a delayed payment, missed call, changed plan, or failed commitment, seek clarity. Sometimes people are careless, but sometimes they are under pressure. Sometimes there is a wrongdoing, but sometimes there is misunderstanding. Listening does not mean ignoring truth; it means refusing to judge without knowledge.

Dear TACEFites, patience to seek clarity is not weakness and giving benefit of doubt is not compromise. Listening before judging is wisdom. The Lord's army must not destroy its own brethren through haste.

3. Truthful Communication Protects Unity: When the eastern tribes were confronted, they answered clearly. They did not respond with insult, anger, or counter-accusation. They explained their motive that the altar was not built for burnt offering or sacrifice but was meant to be a witness between them and the other tribes so that future generations would know that they had a part in the Lord. Their explanation changed the atmosphere. When Phinehas and the princes heard their words, "it pleased them." The crisis was resolved because truth was spoken clearly. This shows that truthful communication protects unity. Ephesians 4:25 says, "Wherefore putting away lying, speak every man truth with his neighbour: for we are members one of another." Lies, half-truths, silence, secrecy, emotional manipulation, exaggeration, and defensive speech weaken trust. When people do not speak truth, assumptions will grow. When people hide motives, suspicion grows.

Apostle Peter also admonishes us to be ready always to give an answer to every man that asks the reason of the hope that is in us, with meekness and fear (1 Peter 3 vs 15). This means that believers must not be dismissive when others seek understanding. We must be careful with statements such as, "Can't you see?" "Do I have to explain everything?" "Can't you understand why I did this?” or “Can’t you just trust my judgment?” While these words may seem reasonable to the speaker, they often increase confusion, discourage honest questions, and leave the listener feeling hurt or dismissed. Many conflicts are like numbers 6 and 9. One person is seeing from one side, and another person is seeing from the other side. Both are describing what they see, but because they are standing in different positions, they interpret the same matter differently. This is why calm explanation is important. What looks obvious to one person may not be obvious to another.

In marriage, truthful communication means couples must speak honestly, but with honour. A husband should not hide financial pressure until it becomes a crisis. A wife should not silently build resentment and then explode later. Couples should talk about expectations, money, intimacy, family interference, spiritual life, parenting, emotional needs, and workload. They should not weaponise silence. They should not use past mistakes to crush one another. Truth spoken early, gently, and prayerfully can save a home from years of bitterness. In business partnership, truthful communication means records must be clear, agreements must be written, roles must be defined, and money must be accounted for. Many Christian partnerships fail not because the people are bad, but because many things are not discussed and legally documented. One person assumes ownership, another assumes employment. One person assumes equal profit, another assumes commission. One person is bearing hidden costs; another is expecting immediate returns. Brethren must not spiritualise poor documentation. Agreement, reporting, accountability, and clarity are important in business.

4. One Lord, One Faith, and One Body Must Govern How We Manage Conflicts: Ephesians reminds us that there is one body, one Spirit, one hope, one Lord, one faith, one baptism, and one God and Father of all. This means that conflict among believers must be handled with the consciousness of shared identity. We are not enemies. We are members of one body. When one part wounds another, the whole body suffers. When ministers fight publicly, the next generation becomes confused. When believers insult one another online, unbelievers mock the faith. When couples fight carelessly, children are affected. When business partners fight without honour, trust is destroyed. When fellowship members divide into camps, revival mandate is weakened. We must also reiterate that unity does not mean pretending that error, sin, abuse, dishonesty, or rebellion does not matter. The western tribes were right to care about holiness. But the way we handle conflicts must reflect Christ. We must not use truth as a weapon of pride and we must not correct with bitterness. We must not expose because we enjoy shame and we must not fight publicly when private enquiry is still possible.

As believers, when conflict arises, believers should follow a godly process. First, pause and pray before reacting. Anger often feels urgent, but wisdom slows down. Second, seek the full facts. Ask what happened, who was involved, what was said, what was meant, and whether there is missing context you need to remind yourself as a way to calm down. Third, go to the person directly where possible. Do not first report to everyone except the person involved. Fourth, listen with patience and with benefit of doubt, especially where there has been a history of faithfulness. Remember that the eastern tribes had laboured with their brethren; their past faithfulness should have encouraged careful enquiry. Fifth, speak truth clearly and respectfully. Sixth, involve mature witnesses or leaders if the issue remains unresolved. Seventh, agree on correction, boundaries, or next steps where needed. Eighth, protect the unity of the body by refusing gossip, mockery, and revenge.

Managing anger is also part of conflict resolution. When anger rises, do not speak immediately if your words will wound. Take time to pray. Write down the issue before speaking. Ask yourself, “What exactly hurts me?” “What facts do I have?” “What am I assuming?” “What outcome do I want?” “Will my words heal or scatter?” Avoid shouting, insults, threats, sarcasm, public embarrassment, and bringing up old matters that are not related. In marriage, do not argue to win; speak to understand and rebuild. In business, do not turn disagreement into character assassination. In fellowship, do not convert offence into camps. In ministry, do not make the Body of Christ a theatre of personal battles. The Lord’s army must be mature enough to preserve unity, resolve conflicts, correct errors, and keep the bond of peace.

Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Pause before reacting: Do not respond in anger, offence, or pressure. Pray first and ask God for wisdom.
- Separate facts from assumptions: Write down what you know, what you heard, what you saw, and what you are assuming.
- Seek full context: Before reacting to a short clip, screenshot, rumour, or forwarded message, seek the full message, full conversation, and reliable witnesses.
- Ask clarifying questions: Use questions such as, “Please, what did you mean?” “Can you explain what happened?” “Is there something I am missing?” “This is how I understood it; is that correct?”

- Give benefit of doubt where appropriate: Especially in marriage, friendship, partnership, and ministry relationships where there has been a history of faithfulness.
- Speak truth with love: Do not lie, hide, exaggerate, insult, mock, or manipulate. Speak clearly, humbly, and respectfully.
- Avoid social media battles: Do not turn ministry disagreement, doctrinal concern, or personal offence into public entertainment that confuses younger believers.
- Manage anger wisely: Slow down, pray, breathe, write the issue down, avoid insults, and choose the right time and tone for discussion.
- Document business and ministry agreements: Put roles, finances, expectations, ownership, reporting, and responsibilities in writing with proper legal framework.
- Protect the Body: Refuse gossip, suspicion, revenge, and careless speech that weakens unity.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why did the altar built by the eastern tribes create a major misunderstanding among the rest of Israel?
2. What can we learn from the fact that Israel nearly went to war because of an assumption?
3. Why is it important to listen before judging, especially in marriage, friendship, fellowship, and business partnership?
4. I heard from a seemingly reliable source that our fellowship leader is involved in an extramarital affair and was allegedly caught in the act. How should I handle the matter as an ordinary member, and how should it be handled if I am an executive in the fellowship?
5. A couple has become increasingly concerned about a young disciple who has been living with them. They have observed that the monthly internet data they purchase is consistently exhausted within the first week of the month. They are also concerned about his personal hygiene, particularly persistent body odour, and have noticed that he frequently falls asleep in the living room. They value their relationship with him and are worried that raising these issues may damage it. However, they are becoming increasingly uncomfortable and would appreciate guidance on how to address these concerns with love, wisdom, and honesty.
6. Why is it dangerous to judge a minister or believer only by a short clip, screenshot, or social media post?

Personal Reflection

Do I judge people before listening to them? Do I react quickly to rumours or one-sided stories? Have I wounded anyone through hasty judgement, anger, gossip, or careless words? In my marriage, friendships, business relationships, fellowship, or ministry relationships, do I communicate clearly or expect people to understand my intentions without explanations? Do I give benefit of doubt, especially to people who have shown faithfulness before? When I disagree with someone, do I seek peace and truth, or do I seek to win? How do I handle anger? Do my words heal, clarify, and restore, or do they scatter and wound? Am I helping to preserve the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, give me wisdom, patience, humility, and love in handling conflicts.
2. Lord, deliver me from hasty judgement, suspicion, gossip, and anger-driven reactions.
3. Lord, help me to communicate clearly in marriage, friendship, business, ministry, fellowship, and leadership.
4. Father, deliver my home, relationships, and fellowship from assumptions that can lead to unnecessary battles.
5. Lord, give me grace to speak truth with love and to preserve unity without compromising holiness.
6. Father, heal every relationship wounded by misunderstanding, poor communication, anger, or false accusation.

Week 37 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 10 May 2027

- Good intentions can be misunderstood when communication is not properly done. I will not assume that others understand my heart without clear, humble, and timely explanation.
- The eastern tribes built an altar as a witness, but Israel thought it was rebellion and act of building an idolatrous strange altar. Father, help me to communicate in ways that protect unity and trust.
- Lord, deliver my marriage, friendships, business partnerships, fellowship, and ministry relationships from confusion caused by silence, secrecy, or poor communication.

Tuesday, 11 May 2027

- I will not judge before I listen. I will not build my conclusions on rumours, lies, half-truths, assumptions, or one-sided stories.
- Israel nearly went to war because of an assumption. Father, teach me to seek clarity before reacting and to ask questions before making conclusions.
- Lord, give me patience and the wisdom to listen carefully, especially when dealing with brethren who have shown faithfulness before.

Wednesday, 12 May 2027

- Truthful communication protects unity. I will put away lying, exaggeration, silence, manipulation, and defensive speech.
- I will speak the truth at all times. Father, help me to speak honestly, humbly, and lovingly.
- Lord, heal every relationship in my life that has been weakened by poor communication, hidden offence, wrong assumptions, or unresolved anger.

Thursday, 13 May 2027

- One Lord, one faith, and one body must govern how I respond to disagreement. I will not treat brethren as enemies.
- I will not turn marital tension, business disagreement, fellowship offence, or ministry concern into division, public battle, gossip, or factions.
- Father, help me to preserve the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace through lowliness, meekness, longsuffering, and love.

Friday, 14 May 2027

- I will manage doctrinal concerns with Scripture, maturity, patience, and love for the Body of Christ.
- I will not attack a brother or minister publicly without seeking full context, proper enquiry, and spiritual counsel where necessary.
- Lord, deliver the Church from careless social media fights, public insults, and doctrinal arguments that confuse the next generation.

Saturday, 15 May 2027

- I will manage anger wisely. I will pause, pray, listen, and choose words that heal rather than scatter.
- I will not use insults, sarcasm, threats, silence, or old offences as weapons in conflicts. Father, teach me to resolve issues with peace and truth.
- I receive grace to be a peacemaker, a truthful speaker, a patient listener, and a faithful member of one body in Christ.

Week 38: Monday, 17 May 2027 to Sunday, 23 May 2027

Title: Keeping the Fire After the Battle Is Won

Bible Texts: Joshua 23:1-8; Ephesians 5:8-17

Bible Texts

Joshua 23:1-8: 1 And it came to pass a long time after that the LORD had given rest unto Israel from all their enemies round about, that Joshua waxed old and stricken in age. 2 And Joshua called for all Israel, and for their elders, and for their heads, and for their judges, and for their officers, and said unto them, I am old and stricken in age: 3 And ye have seen all that the LORD your God hath done unto all these nations because of you; for the LORD your God is he that hath fought for you. 4 Behold, I have divided unto you by lot these nations that remain, to be an inheritance for your tribes, from Jordan, with all the nations that I have cut off, even unto the great sea westward. 5 And the LORD your God, he shall expel them from before you, and drive them from out of your sight; and ye shall possess their land, as the LORD your God hath promised unto you. 6 Be ye therefore very courageous to keep and to do all that is written in the book of the law of Moses, that ye turn not aside there from to the right hand or to the left; 7 That ye come not among these nations, these that remain among you; neither make mention of the name of their gods, nor cause to swear by them, neither serve them, nor bow yourselves unto them: 8 But cleave unto the LORD your God, as ye have done unto this day.

Ephesians 5:8-17: 8 For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light: 9 For the fruit of the Spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth; 10 Proving what is acceptable unto the Lord. 11 And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them. 12 For it is a shame even to speak of those things which are done of them in secret. 13 But all things that are reprov'd are made manifest by the light: for whatsoever doth make manifest is light. 14 Wherefore he saith, Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light. 15 See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, 16 Redeeming the time, because the days are evil. 17 Wherefore be ye not unwise, but understanding what the will of the Lord is.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- The LORD had given rest unto Israel from all their enemies round about.
- The LORD your God is he that hath fought for you.
- Be ye therefore very courageous to keep and to do all that is written.
- Turn not aside therefrom to the right hand or to the left.
- Come not among these nations.
- Cleave unto the LORD your God.
- Now are ye light in the Lord.
- Walk as children of light.
- Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness.
- Walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise.

Introduction

Our weekly study brings us to a very sensitive point in the journey of Israel. The Lord had given them rest from their enemies round about. Battles had been fought, victories had been won, territories had been divided, and the people had seen the hand of God in undeniable ways. Yet Joshua, in his old age, called the leaders and people together with a strong warning. He reminded them that the victories they enjoyed did not come by their own strength, wisdom, or greatness. "The LORD your God is he that hath fought for you." This reminder was necessary because success can easily enter into the head of a people who forget the God who gave it.

This is a major warning because victory, promotion or enlargement can become dangerous when it produces spiritual pride, relaxed consecration, or a false sense of arrival. A person who has prayed for years for a job can become too busy for God after employment comes. A family that waited on God for a miracle baby can become distracted by the blessing and gradually lose their sense of service to the same Lord who gave the baby. A believer who relocates abroad can begin to feel too enlightened or too established to remain connected to the work of the Lord. A minister who receives lifting in the church can become distant from the vision that nurtured him. A professional who receives promotion can begin to treat spiritual duties as secondary. This is why the fire must be guarded after the battle is won.

Joshua also warned Israel about their relationship with other remaining nations. They must not mention the names of their gods, serve them, or bow to them. This means that after victory, the greatest danger may no longer be open warfare but quiet mixture. The gods of the land can come among God's people through friendships, relationships, partnerships, entertainment, ambition, fashion, language, social media, and cultural pressure. What Israel was commanded to avoid physically, the believer must avoid spiritually and morally. We must not allow the values of the world to enter our hearts and destroy our covenant walk with God. Ephesians expounds these warnings even further. We were sometimes darkness, but now we are light in the Lord; therefore, we must walk as children of light. We must have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness. TACEFites must therefore learn to remain separated without pride, holy without arrogance, loving without compromise, and successful without losing the fear of God.

Teachings

1. Victory Must Not Produce Carelessness: Joshua began by reminding Israel that it was the Lord who fought for them. This was a very serious and weighty statement. It was a spiritual safeguard against pride because a person may begin to think, "My hard work did it. My intelligence did it. My discipline did it. My network did it. My prayer life did it. My sacrifice did it." While diligence, prayer, and discipline are important, the testimony of the redeemed must remain clear: "The LORD your God is he that hath fought for you." Success becomes dangerous when it enters the head. This can happen after promotion, relocation, business breakthroughs, ministry visibility, academic success, marriage, childbirth, healing, financial lifting, or recognition. The same person who once prayed fervently can gradually diminish in consecration and service unto the Lord. The same person who once loved fellowship can begin to withdraw. The same person who once sought counsel can become proud. The same person who once trembled at God's Word can begin to live by personal convenience.

As God's end-time revival army, we must understand how a miracle baby must not replace the God who gave the child. A new job must not swallow the time of prayer. A promotion must not make a believer look down on others or begin to feel too big for the subgroup, ministry, or service unit where God has placed him. No lifting should make anyone feel far above the members of his local fellowship or too elevated to remain accountable. A relocation abroad must not become a journey into spiritual coldness. A growing business must not become an idol. Ministry recognition must not become a throne of self-importance and detachment from other brethren. As we always say in the great house of TACEF that every lifting that we receive of the Lord must push us deeper into gratitude, dependence, holiness, and service.

Dear TACEFites, do not allow success to enter your head. Do not become bigger than the altar that raised you. Do not become too busy for the God who helped you. Do not become too important for fellowship, discipleship, prayer, and accountability. The Lord who fought for you must still be the Lord you cleave to after the victory.

2. The Word Must Still Govern the Life after Visible Success: Joshua said, "Be ye therefore very courageous to keep and to do all that is written in the book of the law of Moses." This instruction came after many victories had already been won. This means the Word of God is not only needed before and during the battle, but it is even more needed after the battle. The Word must guide us in waiting seasons, fighting seasons, and resting seasons. This is where many believers miss it. When they are trusting God for something, they appear very submissive to the Word. They ask for counsel, pray, fast, attend fellowship, avoid sin and seek God's will. But after the answer comes, they begin to relax. They now make decisions by status, exposure, emotions, cultural pressure, or convenience. This should not be so.

The Word that governed us in the valley must still govern us on the mountain. Joshua said they must not turn aside to the right hand or to the left. This means obedience must be consistent, balanced, and total. The Word of God must remain the final authority, even when our status changes. Ephesians says we must prove what is acceptable unto the Lord. This means every choice must be tested by God's will, not by whether it is popular, profitable, exciting, fashionable, or socially acceptable. The question is not "Can I do it?" but "Is it acceptable unto the Lord?" The question is not, "Will it work?" but "Does it please God?" The question is not, "Will people approve?" but "Is it light or darkness?" Dear TACEFites, keep living by the Word after the victory and liftings. Let the Scripture govern your promotion, marriage, relocation, parenting, business, ministry, friendships, and spheres of life. The believer who stops obeying after success has allowed success to become a doorway to decline.

3. Separation Preserves Inheritance from the gods of the Land: Joshua warned Israel, "Make sure you do not associate with the other people still remaining in the land. Do not even mention the names of their gods, much less swear by them or serve them or worship them." (NLT version). This was a clear boundary. Israel had received inheritance, but that inheritance could be corrupted if they allowed the gods of the land to come among them. Victory gave them access to the land, but separation was needed to preserve the inheritance. This remains a strong lesson for every believer today. The gods of the land may not always appear as carved images but they can appear as values, appetites, relationships, ambitions, ideologies, habits, entertainment, and lifestyles that compete with God. They can enter through ungodly friendships, careless media consumption on Netflix or TikTok, corrupt business partnerships, immoral relationships, prideful social circles, feminine-focused groups that oppose Christian marriage, dishonest networks, or cultural practices that weaken the fear of God. What we allow among us can eventually rule over us.

A genuine revival army must therefore be careful about friendship. Our closest friend must not be someone who makes us love sin more, mock holiness, or treat the things of God lightly. Our best friend cannot be someone who pulls our hearts away from God. The closest friend of a believer should be someone who helps us love God more, obey God better, pray more, think more purely, and stand more firmly. We can have unbelievers around us, be in class with them, work with them, and treat them with kindness, but our deepest covenant friendships must strengthen our walk with God, not weaken it. This also applies to relationships and partnerships. A sister should not maintain a close male relationship with someone who keeps drawing her into immoral conversations, sharing ungodly videos, making suggestive comments, or weakening her purity. A brother should not continue in a private emotional attachment that makes him hide, lie, compromise, or drift from prayer. Separation is not hatred but a path of covenant preservation.

Ephesians says, “Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness.” This does not mean we should be proud, harsh, rude, or isolated from the people we are called to reach. It means we must not share in darkness. We must not become comfortable with what grieves God. We must not laugh at their ungodly comedy, spend time watching contents that diminish the essence of Christ or partner with what corrupts our obedience. Dear revival army in the great house of TACEF, set clear boundaries against the gods of the land. Guard your friendships, conversations, social media, entertainment, business partnerships, emotional attachments, and secret habits.

4. Cleaving to the Lord Is the Secret of Preservation: Joshua did not only say, “Avoid the nations.” He also said, “But cleave unto the LORD your God, as ye have done unto this day.” The answer to compromise is not only avoidance but an intentional attachment to God. A believer who only avoids evil without cleaving to the Lord will soon become dry and vulnerable. True preservation comes when the heart remains joined to God in love, worship, obedience, and daily fellowship.

“To cleave” means to hold fast, cling, remain joined, and refuse separation. This is the secret of keeping the fire after the battle is won. After promotion, cleave to the Lord. After relocation, cleave to the Lord. After marriage, cleave to the Lord. After childbirth, cleave to the Lord. Lord. After business growth, cleave to the Lord. Ephesians says, “See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise.” This means we must not drift and not assume that yesterday’s fire will automatically carry today’s obedience. We must redeem the time because the days are evil.

Dear TACEFites, cleave to the Lord after every victory. Do not only remember God when you need a miracle. Do not only seek Him when battles of life are hard. Do not only attend fellowship when you are looking for help. Love Him in rest as much as in war time. Serve the Lord in abundance as much as in need. Follow Him in the new country, new home, new role, new office, new home, new business, and new season.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Return every victory to God: After promotion, marriage, childbirth, relocation, healing, financial breakthrough, academic success, or ministry exploits, deliberately give glory to God and remain humble.
- Do not let success reduce consecration: Guard against spiritual pride, prayerlessness, fellowship withdrawal, reduced accountability, and careless living after God has helped you.
- Keep obeying the Word after success: Let Scripture continue to govern your marriage, parenting, job, business, ministry, relationships and other decisions.
- Test every choice by God’s approval: Do not ask whether something is profitable, popular, or exciting. Ask whether it is acceptable unto the Lord.
- Set boundaries against the gods of the land: Refuse influences, practices, relationships, and environments that weaken your covenant walk with God.
- Choose friends who strengthen your love for God: Your closest friends should help you serve God more, pray, grow, and remain pure.
- Avoid ungodly emotional attachments: Do not maintain any relationships that introduce immoral conversations, ungodly videos, secrecy, compromise, or spiritual decline.

- Reject corrupt partnerships: Do not join business, ministry, academic, or social partnerships that require dishonesty, compromise, vanity, or silence about truth.
- Guard your phone and media life: Do not allow darkness to enter your heart through what you watch, share, laugh at, follow, or repeatedly consume.
- Cleave to the Lord daily: Build a steady life of prayer, Word, fellowship, accountability, and service.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why did Joshua remind Israel that the Lord was the One who fought for them after they had already received rest?
2. How can success, lifting, promotion, relocation, marriage, or ministry enlargement enter into a believer's head?
3. A sister had been trusting God for marriage for many years. After getting married to a successful professional, she gradually withdrew from the fellowship relationships that had once supported her. She now finds it difficult to identify with younger sisters, rarely participates in ministry activities, and sometimes speaks in ways that make others feel inferior because of their marital or financial status. How can believers guard their hearts so that marriage, prosperity, or social status does not become a source of pride?
4. What are some modern ways the "gods of the land" can enter the life of a believer?
5. Why is it dangerous for a believer's closest friend to be someone who introduces immoral conversations, ungodly videos, secrecy, or compromise?
6. How can TACEFites remain separated from darkness without becoming proud, harsh, or isolated from the people they are called to reach?

Personal Reflection

Have I allowed any success, lifting, promotion, relocation, marriage, ministry position, business growth, or testimony to enter into my head? Am I still humble, obedient, accountable, and connected to the body of Christ after the Lord has helped me? Have I become too busy, too important, too exposed, too successful, or too comfortable for the things that once kept my fire burning? Are there gods of the land entering my life through friendships, emotional attachments, partnerships, entertainment, secret habits, or social pressure? Do my closest friends make me love God more or less? Are there relationships I need to end, correct or redefine because they are weakening my covenant walk with God?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, deliver me from spiritual pride, carelessness, and declining consecration after victory.
2. Lord, let no lifting, success, promotion, relocation, marriage, business growth, academic success, or ministry visibility enter into my head.
3. Father, help me always to remember that You are the One who fought for me and gave me every victory.
4. Father, expose and remove every god of the land trying to enter my life through friendships, relationships, partnerships, entertainment, ambition, social media, or secret habits.
5. Lord, deliver me from ungodly friendships, emotional attachments, and partnerships that weaken my prayer, purity, and love for You.
6. Father, surround me with friends, mentors, brethren, and helpers who will make me love You more and walk more faithfully in Your ways.

Week 38 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 17 May 2027

- I will not allow victory to enter into my head. Every testimony, lifting, promotion, relocation, marriage, business growth, academic success, and enlargements in my life is by the help of the Lord.
- Joshua reminded Israel that the Lord fought for them. I will not rewrite my testimony as if my strength, wisdom, background, network, or ability produced the victory.
- Father, keep me humble, grateful, and connected after every battle You help me to win.

Tuesday, 18 May 2027

- I will not become careless after success. I will not allow comfort, recognition, open doors, or answered prayers to reduce my consecration.
- The Word that governed me before the victory must still govern me after the victory. I will keep and do all that is written, turning not aside to the right hand or to the left.
- Lord, let Your Word rule my life and all my daily decisions.

Wednesday, 19 May 2027

- I will set boundaries against the gods of the land. I will not allow the values, appetites, practices, and darkness of the world to enter my heart.
- I will have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness. I will guard my conversations, relationships, social media consumption, partnerships, and friendships.
- Father, expose every influence that is weakening my covenant walk with You, and give me courage to separate from it.

Thursday, 20 May 2027

- I will choose friends who make me love God more. My closest companions must strengthen my prayer, purity, and hunger for God.
- I will stop and disconnect from all close and intimate relationships that draw me into immoral conversations, ungodly lifestyle, compromise, or spiritual decline.
- Lord, connect me with godly friends, mentors, and brethren who will help me walk as a child of light.

Friday, 21 May 2027

- I will not enter partnerships that require compromise. I will not join hands with dishonesty, manipulation, or any arrangement that weakens obedience to God.
- I will prove what is acceptable unto the Lord. I will not measure opportunities by profit, popularity, excitement, or human approval.
- Father, give me wisdom to discern every relationship, platform, partnership, and opportunity by Your will.

Saturday, 22 May 2027

- I will cleave unto the Lord after every victory. I will not only seek God when I need a miracle; I will love, obey, and serve Him after He has answered me.
- I will walk circumspectly, not as a fool, but as wise. I will redeem the time because the days are evil.
- Lord, keep the fire burning in me at all stages of my life and phases of progress anywhere and everywhere I find myself.

Week 39: Monday, 24 May 2027 to Sunday, 30 May 2027

Title: One Shall Chase a Thousand: The Power Behind One Consecrated Life

Bible Texts: Joshua 23:9-10; Ephesians 1:19-23; Ephesians 6:10

Bible Texts

Joshua 23:9-10: 9 For the LORD hath driven out from before you great nations and strong: but as for you, no man hath been able to stand before you unto this day. 10 One man of you shall chase a thousand: for the LORD your God, he it is that fighteth for you, as he hath promised you.

Ephesians 1:19-23: 19 And what is the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe, according to the working of his mighty power, 20 Which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead, and set him at his own right hand in the heavenly places, 21 Far above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come: 22 And hath put all things under his feet, and gave him to be the head over all things to the church, 23 Which is his body, the fulness of him that filleth all in all.

Ephesians 6:10: 10 Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- The LORD hath driven out from before you great nations and strong.
- No man hath been able to stand before you unto this day.
- One man of you shall chase a thousand.
- The LORD your God, he it is that fighteth for you.
- The exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe.
- According to the working of his mighty power
- Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord.

Introduction

This week brings us to one of the most powerful statements in Joshua's final charge to Israel: "One man of you shall chase a thousand." Israel had become a covenant community in the Promised Land. Territories had been conquered, lands had been divided, and the people were beginning to grow and multiply in their inheritance. Yet Joshua spoke in a way that showed how God still sees each person through the lens of divine impact and what one consecrated life can accomplish for Him. He was not merely addressing the people as a crowd; he was reminding each person that their strength was never in their number, size, status, experience, or natural ability. Their strength was in the Lord who fought for them. Great nations and strong enemies had been driven out, not because Israel was naturally superior, but because God was with them. Therefore, even one covenant man standing with God could accomplish what natural strength could not explain.

This is a major encouragement to every TACEFite. Numerical smallness is not weakness when God is present. One believer in a family can become a spiritual doorway for salvation. One student in a class can shift the atmosphere of that class. One NYSC corps member in a village can become a witness for Christ. One Spirit-filled worker in an office can carry the light of God into a dark environment. One TACEFite in a local church, campus, or city can become the seed of revival. We must not despise the day of small things, because God can do much with one consecrated life. This truth is seen in the history of TACEF. Many fellowships in churches and campuses were not started by large groups. Many were pioneered by one burdened teenager, one young person in his or her twenties, one student, one youth, one young worker, or one young minister who carried the fire of God into a difficult place. Many had no support, no instrument, no transport fare, no stable finance, and no immediate acceptance. Indeed, one consecrated life can catalyse a move of God and one prayerful life can open the door for many to encounter Christ.

However, the principle of "one" is not only about one person standing alone. It also speaks to oneness as a spiritual principle. In marriage, God makes husband and wife one flesh. That oneness requires openness, transparency, trust, shared planning, shared burdens, shared stewardship, and no hidden life. In fellowship, the disciples were in one accord, and the Spirit moved among them. A fellowship may have many people, but if there is no oneness of heart, its strength is weakened. Therefore, this week calls us to recognise the power of one consecrated life and the power of a people made one before God.

Teachings

1. Numerical Smallness Is Not Weakness When God Is with One Consecrated Life: Joshua said, “One man of you shall chase a thousand.” This statement shows that the covenant strength of God’s people cannot be measured by physical number. One person with God is not ordinary. One believer carrying the presence, burden of revival and power of God can stand and survive in any place and become an instrument of divine change. The question is not only, “How many are we?” The deeper question is, “Is God with us?”. Many believers become discouraged when they are alone. A TACEFite may relocate to a city where there is no familiar fellowship structure. A student may find himself or herself as the only serious believer in a class. A NYSC corps member may be posted to a place where prayer, holiness, and discipleship are not valued. A worker may be in an office where immorality is normal. A young minister may be sent to a local church where he seems alone with no one to support. In such moments, we must be reminded that one person with God can become an army. This is why no believer should say, “I am the only one, so nothing can happen.” God does not need a crowd before He begins a move. He can begin with one. He can begin with one praying mother, one sincere student, one faithful worker, one burdened corps member, one consecrated MOTA minister, one courageous sister, one honest businessman, one consecrated teacher, one youth who refuses compromise, or one TACEFite who carries the fire of revival into a new environment.

In the history of TACEF, we have heard of how a young person would arrive in a church or campus and discovered that there was no active TACEF mandate or organised fellowship platform. Yet instead of relaxing and being quiet, that one person began to pray. He or she began to speak to two or three people, shared the burden, invited brethren, visited homes, followed up young converts, and kept showing up even when attendance was low. Breaking new ground is not easy. Some pioneers had to face loneliness, rejection, lack of encouragement, academic pressure, financial limitation, transport difficulties, spiritual attacks, and the pain of being misunderstood. Some had examinations, early career pressure, or family expectations, yet they carried the burden with tears, prayers, discipline, sacrifice, and consistency. Many of the fellowships that later became established did not start with a crowd but with one person who believed that God could use a consecrated life.

The danger of our time these days is that many people wait for others to join before they start something for God. They wait for a committee before they evangelise. They wait for official recognition before they serve. But Joshua’s word teaches us that one person backed by God is not powerless. God can use one consecrated life to begin a move of revival through intercession. Dear TACEFites, do not despise your smallness or perceived loneliness. Do not despise your current location. If you are the only one standing for Christ in that home, office, class, hostel, department, local church, village, campus, or city, stand well. One consecrated life with God can become the beginning of a thousand testimonies.

2. One Shall Chase a Thousand - One Soul-Winner Can Lead Many Sinners to Christ: The phrase “one shall chase a thousand” can also help us understand the power of personal evangelism. It is possible for one believer to become a channel through which many sinners are brought to Christ. The word “chase” reminds us that soul-winning requires pursuit or running after something. Souls do not always come to us; sometimes we must go after them with prayer, love, wisdom, and the gospel. Philip is a clear example in the book of Acts. He went down to the city of Samaria and preached Christ unto them. One man entered a city, and the city heard the gospel. Joy came to the entire city of Samaria because one man was available. Nehemiah also began with a burden when he heard about the broken walls of Jerusalem. He wept, prayed, fasted, and eventually became the vessel through whom rebuilding began. Esther stood at a dangerous point in history, and God used her position to preserve many lives. These examples show that one person, rightly positioned before God, can catalyse a move that touches many.

This is very important for TACEFites. Every believer is called to be a soul-winner. Every TACEFite must carry a burden for souls. One member in a local church can begin to pray for salvation of souls in the church. One student can reach classmates. One professional can witness wisely in the workplace. One family can open their home for prayer and follow-up. One NYSC corps member can begin a fellowship in a place where there was none. Many TACEF fellowships and revival burdens grew because one person carried personal evangelism seriously. One young brother invited classmates repeatedly until a Bible study began. One young sister followed up younger girls patiently until they became stable in faith. One person in a local church kept visiting brethren after Sunday service until a weekly meeting became possible. One person on campus carried handbills, spoke to classmates, prayed with course mates, and helped weak believers find their feet. These were not always public exploits, but they were powerful seeds of revival. In essence, “One shall chase a thousand” means God can multiply the effect of one obedient witness. One tract given prayerfully can open a conversation unto salvation.

Dear TACEFites, become personal soul-winners. Do not wait until a general outreach is announced before you speak to someone about Christ. One believer can chase a thousand sinners with the love and truth of Christ and lead many into the kingdom.

3. Divine Backing Multiplies Human Efforts: Joshua gave the reason why one man could chase a thousand: “For the LORD your God, he it is that fighteth for you, as he hath promised you.” The secret was not the greatness of the man; it was the greatness of the God behind the man. What is small in human hands becomes mighty when God breathes upon it and provides the divine backing. What looks weak naturally becomes strong when the power of God is present. Ephesians explains this through the phrase, “the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe.” This power is not ordinary. It is the mighty power that raised Christ from the dead and seated Him far above all principality, power, might, dominion, and every name that is named. This is why Ephesians 6:10 says, “Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.” Our strength must be in the Lord, not in our gifts, titles, education, experience, personality, exposure, popularity, family background, money, beauty, intelligence, or spiritual history. A gifted person who is not strong in the Lord will fall. A minister who is not strong in the Lord will diminish in value and a professional who is not strong in the Lord will compromise.

In this regard, whatever we achieve in life must produce deeper dependence, not pride or independence. When God uses one person to bless many lives, that person must become more humble. When God uses a TACEFite to start a fellowship, lead souls to Christ, catalyse a revival move in a local church, or minister powerfully in an open air crusade, such a person must not begin to think that everything depends on him or her. The Lord is the One fighting. The Lord is the One opening doors. The Lord is the One touching hearts. The Lord is the One giving fruits. Dearly beloved in the great house, let every open door make you more dependent on the Lord and let every testimony humble you. Let every lifting, visibility and promotion return you to the altar. One person can do much for God, but only when that person remains under the power, authority, and government of Christ.

4. The Power of One Also Teaches Oneness in Marriage and Covenant Labour: The principle of “one” is not only about one person standing alone. It also speaks to the power of oneness. In marriage, God makes husband and wife “one flesh”. This oneness is not only physical; it is spiritual, emotional, financial, practical, and covenantal. A husband and a wife must learn to live with openness, transparency, trust, shared planning, and shared stewardship. Where there are secrecy, suspicion, hidden spending, hidden emotional attachments, and divided vision, the strength of oneness is destroyed. The Scripture says concerning the first marriage that they were both naked and were not ashamed. This speaks to openness without shame, transparency without fear, and trust without hidden life. Husband and wife should learn to pray together, plan together, save together, build together, invest together, decide together and serve God together. There should be no secret financial life that damages trust. There should be no hidden emotional connection with strangers that weakens the covenant. There should be no private attachment that competes with the marriage. One flesh means two lives willingly joined under God in love, truth, honour, and responsibility.

This is also important for fellowship. In Acts of Apostle when the Holy Ghost came, the disciples were in “one accord”. A fellowship may have many members, but if there is no oneness, its strength is reduced. Oneness is not the same as mere attendance. People may sit in the same meeting and still carry different hearts, private agendas, jealousy, bitterness, competition, suspicion, and disunity. True oneness means one burden, one love, one submission to Christ, one pursuit of revival, and one desire to see souls saved.

A local fellowship, subgroup/ministry, or family altar must therefore protect oneness. We must avoid gossip, unhealthy competition, factions, careless words, and suspicion. We must learn to communicate clearly, forgive quickly, and honour one another. When the people are one in God, their impact is multiplied. Being in “one accord” can turn a small fellowship into a powerful witness and a channel of revival for a generation.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Do not despise small beginnings: One TACEFite in a city, campus, class, workplace, hostel, family, or local church can become the beginning of a move of God.
- Stand well when you are alone: Do not compromise because no one is watching or because no other serious believer is around you.

- Break new ground with courage: Begin with prayer, seek godly counsel, share the burden, invite one or two people, follow up consistently, and keep labouring even when attendance is small.
- Do not wait for perfect conditions: Many fellowships began with one young person who had no large team, no resources, and no encouragement, but continued faithfully.
- Become a personal soul-winner: Pray for sinners, speak to people about Christ, invite them to fellowship, follow them up, and disciple them patiently.
- Let your location become a mission field: Your home, school, office, business, NYSC posting, neighbourhood, and new country are places where Christ must be represented.
- Trust divine backing: Do not depend on number, popularity, title, age, personality, or natural ability. Be strong in the Lord and in the power of His might.
- Let success deepen dependence: If God uses you to bless many lives, return to Him in humility, prayer, and thanksgiving.
- Build oneness in marriage: Pray together, plan together, save together, build together, invest together, and serve God together.
- Reject secrecy in marriage: Avoid secret spending, hidden emotional attachments, hidden decisions, and private habits that can destroy trust.
- Protect oneness in fellowship: Avoid gossip, unhealthy competition, suspicion, and private agendas.
- Raise others into the burden: Do not only gather people; disciple them until they can also pray, serve, follow up, teach, evangelise, and carry responsibility.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why must a believer not feel weak or incapable simply because he or she is standing alone in a family, class, office, hostel, city, or local church?
2. How can one TACEFite become the beginning of a move of God in a new church, campus, city, or community?
3. How does “one shall chase a thousand” challenge us to take personal evangelism and soul-winning more seriously?
4. How can success in ministry, leadership, career, or business become dangerous if it does not produce deeper dependence on God?
5. What does the principle of “one flesh” teach Christian couples about openness, transparency, planning, saving, building, and serving together?
6. What does it mean for a fellowship, subgroup, ministry, or family altar to be in one accord?

Personal Reflection

Do I feel powerless because I am the only serious believer in my family, office, class, hostel, local church, or new environment? Am I waiting for a crowd before obeying God, or starting what the Lord has placed in my heart? Am I willing to bear the pain of breaking new ground for God? Am I a personal soul-winner, or have I reduced my Christian life to attending programmes only? Is my strength truly in the Lord, or am I relying on my gift, title, personality, exposure, intelligence, experience, or past results? Does success make me more humble and dependent, or more proud and independent? Is there openness, transparency, shared stewardship, and shared spiritual assignment in our home? Are there hidden financial decisions, secret emotional attachments, or private habits that must be brought into the light in my marriage?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, help me never to despise the power of one consecrated life. Lord, make me an army for You, even when I am standing alone in my family, school, office, hostel, city, local church, campus, or new environment.
2. Father, give me courage to break new ground for You where there is no visible structure, support, or encouragement. Lord, strengthen every TACEFite who is pioneering a fellowship or discipleship work in a difficult place.
3. Lord, let Your exceeding great power work in me and through me for the salvation, strengthening, and discipling of many lives.
4. Father, deliver me from confidence in gifts, titles, personality, popularity, experience, or past results. Lord, teach me to be strong in You and in the power of Your might.
5. Lord, make Christian marriages in TACEF truly one in love. Father, uproot all forms of secrecy, hidden emotional attachments, suspicion, and divided vision from our homes.
6. Lord, make every TACEF fellowship, subgroup, ministry, and family altar one in heart, one in burden, one in service, one in love, and one in obedience.

Week 39 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 24 May 2027

- I will not despise small numbers or days of little beginning. One person with God is not weak, empty, or useless. One consecrated life can become an army in the hand of the Lord.
- Joshua said, "One man of you shall chase a thousand." I believe that God can use my life to affect many in my family, class, office, local church, community, and city.
- Father, make me faithful and consecrated, even when I am the only one standing for You in a place.

Tuesday, 25 May 2027

- I will not wait for perfect conditions before obeying God. Many fellowships began because one person carried the burden, prayed, and invited others, followed up souls, and continued despite small beginnings.
- I am inspired and challenged to sustain the sacrifice of other TACEFites and believers by committing myself to the work of the Lord in my generation
- Lord, give me grace to break new ground for You with courage, patience, sacrifice and consistency.

Wednesday, 26 May 2027

- I am called to be a personal soul-winner. I will not reduce my Christian life to attending programmes alone. I will seek sinners with prayer, love, and the message of salvation.
- One shall chase a thousand. I believe God can use one obedient witness to bring many souls to Christ, restore weak believers, and raise disciples.
- Lord, help me to commit to praying for souls until they are saved.

Thursday, 27 May 2027

- I will not wait for a crowd before obeying God. If God plants me alone in a place, I will pray, witness, serve, and stand as His soldier.
- Philip entered Samaria, and a city was touched. Nehemiah carried one burden, and a wall was rebuilt. Father, use my life as a seed for revival.
- Lord, make every TACEFite a carrier of Your burden of salvation in schools, offices, NYSC postings, local churches, villages, cities, and nations.

Friday, 28 May 2027

- My strength is in the Lord, not in my gift, title, education, exposure, personality, popularity, or past results.
- The exceeding greatness of God's power is toward those who believe. Christ power is at work in me, and it is my only source of strength.
- Father, teach me to be strong in You and in the power of Your might.

Saturday, 29 May 2027

- I receive grace to honour the principle of oneness. One consecrated life can be an army, one godly marriage can become a strong altar, and one united fellowship can carry great revival fire.
- In marriage, friendship or ministry, I reject secrecy, gossip, suspicion, hidden agendas, selfishness, and division.
- Father, make us one in heart, one in revival burden, one in prayer, one in love, one in service, and one in obedience, so that our lives may multiply Your glory.

Week 40: Monday, 31 May 2027 to Sunday, 6 June 2027

Tarry Week for Reflections and Prayer

Monday, 31 May 2027

- Divine settlement, enlargement, relocation, marriage, ministry advancement, business growth, and leadership responsibility require foundational readiness. Father, prepare me before You release me, and build in me what I need to sustain my next level.
- I will be faithful in that which belongs to another man. I will not be careless, wasteful, negligent, or disloyal in another person's assignment. Lord, teach me to serve with honour, diligence, and excellence.
- I will not leave my brethren because my own opportunity has opened. Like the eastern tribes, I receive grace to stand with the other brethren, carry shared burdens, complete assigned duties, and remain faithful until the common assignment is fulfilled.

Tuesday, 1 June 2027

- I will carry the burden beyond the battlefield. I will not be a convention-only believer, retreat-only believer, campus-only believer, or fellowship-only believer.
- Lord, let the fire of revival continue in my home, marriage, school, workplace, NYSC posting, business, relocation, local church, ministry, and community.
- Let every lifting deepen the vision, strengthen connection to the brethren, and draw many souls to the Lord, not detach us from shared covenant responsibility.

Wednesday, 2 June 2027

- I will protect unity without compromising truth. I will not judge before I listen, react before I understand, or spread conclusions before I have heard clearly.
- Father, deliver me from suspicion, gossip, hasty judgement, careless speech, and every attitude that wounds the body of Christ.
- I receive grace to communicate with humility, patience, clarity, and love. Like Israel, may listen before we conclude and preserve covenant unity

Thursday, 3 June 2027

- I will not allow victory to enter into my head. Every lifting, promotion, relocation, marriage, business growth, academic success, and all open doors are by the help of the Lord.
- Father, keep me humble, grateful, prayerful, obedient, and connected after every battle You help me to win.
- I will not become careless after success. I will not allow comfort, recognition, exposure, or new opportunities to reduce my consecration.
- I will set clear boundaries against the gods of the land. I will not allow ungodly friendships, emotional attachments, social media darkness or worldly ambitions to weaken my race.

Friday, 4 June 2027

- I will choose friends who make me love God more. My closest companions must strengthen my prayer, purity, humility, service, and hunger for God.
- Lord, separate me from relationships, platforms, and partnerships that draw my heart away from You.
- I will cleave unto the Lord after every victory. I will not only seek God when I need a miracle; I will love Him, obey Him, serve Him, and remain accountable after He has answered me.

Saturday, 5 June 2027

- I will not despise the power of one consecrated life. One person with God is not weak, empty, or useless. Father, make me an army for You, even when I am standing alone.
- I receive grace to be a personal soul-winner. Use my life to win thousands of sinners with the love, truth, and power of the gospel.
- I receive grace to honour the principle of oneness. One consecrated life can be an army, one godly marriage can become a strong altar, and one united fellowship can carry great revival fire.

SECTION 9: How God's Army Preserves Love, Remembers Grace, Chooses the Lord, and Turns Confession into Faithful Obedience

The journey of God's end-time army now moves into the final covenant appeals of Joshua. After battles had been fought, territories had been divided, rest had been given, and testimonies had been established, Joshua began to press the people into deeper covenant responsibility. He knew that the greatest danger after blessing is not always an external enemy; it is often inward drift. A people can possess land and lose love. They can enjoy promises and forget covenant. They can celebrate God's faithfulness and still begin to tolerate strange gods, wrong attachments, and careless compromise. Therefore, Joshua's final words call Israel to guard their hearts, remember the Lord's faithfulness, choose Him deliberately, and serve Him sincerely.

God's army must not only win battles but must also preserve covenant love after victory. The Lord who brings His people into inheritance also calls them to take heed unto themselves. Love for God must be guarded because spiritual decline often begins quietly in the heart before it appears openly in lifestyle. A person may still attend programmes, carry a title, serve in a unit, sing, teach, preach, or appear active, while affection for God is already weakening inwardly. This is why wrong associations, corrupted entertainment, ungodly relationships, careless ambitions, social media appetite, secret sin, prayerlessness, and worldly desires must not be tolerated. What is tolerated can later dominate. What is allowed to remain can become a snare, a trap, a scourge, and a thorn.

This ninth section therefore calls TACEFites to examine the heart behind the activity. We must not measure spirituality by attendance, service, title, visibility, or outward involvement. We must keep asking, "Is my heart still burning for God?" We must choose the Lord personally and daily, not merely live on the decisions of fathers, mothers, leaders, or past generations. We must put away modern idols such as social media addiction, get rich quick, ungodly relationships, popularity, comfort, pride, academic ambition, and self-rule.

Week 41: Take Good Heed Unto Yourselves: Loving God Sincerely in the Days of Blessing: Joshua warned Israel to take good heed unto themselves and love the Lord their God. This teaches that love for God must be guarded, especially in the days of blessing, rest, lifting, and possession. Spiritual drift begins in the heart before it appears in behaviour. A person may still look active outwardly while affection for God is declining inwardly. Wrong associations, careless relationships, worldly entertainment, ungodly ambitions, prayerlessness, and social media appetite can slowly reduce spiritual sensitivity. TACEFites must therefore guard their affections and watch the inner life carefully. We must not only ask whether we are still attending, serving, or visible; we must ask whether our hearts are still burning for God.

Week 42: Not One Thing Hath Failed: Covenant Faithfulness and the Danger of Forgetfulness: Joshua reminded Israel that not one thing had failed of all the good things which the Lord had spoken. God had kept His covenant fully, but Joshua warned that covenant blessing carried covenant responsibility. A people who forget where God brought them from will soon tolerate compromise and spiritual drift. Memory strengthens covenant loyalty and Ephesians also calls us to remember our former state and present grace: we were once far off, but have been made nigh by the blood of Christ. TACEFites must remember past deliverances, answered prayers, revival roots, and the mercy of God, so that testimony produces humility, gratitude, holiness, and faithful obedience rather than pride, entitlement, and forgetfulness.

Week 43: Choose You This Day: Covenant Loyalty in a Compromising Generation: Joshua rehearsed God's dealings with Israel and then called them to choose whom they would serve. This teaches that every generation must make its own covenant choice. We cannot live only on the decisions, sacrifices, and convictions of past generations. Each TACEFite must personally choose Christ. Covenant loyalty requires deliberate rejection of idols, including hidden sins, cultural pressure, ungodly relationships, popularity, academic ambition, and self-rule. Serving God requires daily choices that align with truth, holiness, self-denial, obedience, and the will of God. Families must also choose the Lord through regular household altars, godly order, intentional discipleship, and clear separation from spiritual mixture.

Week 44: We Will Serve the Lord: Turning Confession into Covenant Commitment

Israel declared, "We will serve the LORD," but Joshua reminded them that service must be serious, sincere, and sustained. Public confession must become private obedience and daily faithfulness. Ephesians teaches that believers must serve not with eye-service, as menpleasers, but as servants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart. TACEFites must therefore reject careless service. Punctuality, preparation, humility, accountability, excellence, follow-up, and consistency must mark the lifestyle of the revival army. Covenant service is more than emotional vows, public declarations, titles, or visible activity but something that is lived, not merely spoken. We must serve the Lord sincerely in both visible and hidden places, and our commitment must outlive emotion.

Week 41: Monday, 7 June 2027 to Sunday, 13 June 2027

Title: Take Good Heed Unto Yourselves: Loving God Sincerely in the Days of Blessing

Bible Texts: Joshua 23:11-13; Ephesians 3:17-19; Ephesians 6:24

Bible Texts

Joshua 23:11-13: 11 Take good heed therefore unto yourselves, that ye love the LORD your God. 12 Else, if ye do in any wise go back, and cleave unto the remnant of these nations, even these that remain among you, and shall make marriages with them, and go in unto them, and they to you: 13 Know for a certainty that the LORD your God will no more drive out any of these nations from before you; but they shall be snares and traps unto you, and scourges in your sides, and thorns in your eyes, until ye perish from off this good land which the LORD your God hath given you.

Ephesians 3:17-19: 17 That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith; that ye, being rooted and grounded in love, 18 May be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height; 19 And to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fulness of God.

Ephesians 6:24: 24 Grace be with all them that love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity. Amen.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- Take good heed therefore unto yourselves.
- That ye love the LORD your God.
- Else if ye do in any wise go back.
- They shall be snares and traps unto you.
- Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith.
- Rooted and grounded in love.
- To know the love of Christ.
- Filled with all the fulness of God.
- Grace be with all them that love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity.

Introduction

Our study this week is a very emotional one which brings us to one of the most solemn warnings in Joshua's final charge to Israel. After victories, possession, rest, and the visible fulfilment of God's promises, Joshua did not only congratulate the people. He warned them. He said, "Take good heed therefore unto yourselves, that ye love the LORD your God." This shows that the days of blessing can also become dangerous days if the heart is not carefully guarded. The same people who saw the hand of God, entered the land, and enjoyed divine faithfulness could still go back if they allowed their love for God to grow cold. Joshua did not say, "Take heed" casually. He said, "Take good heed", which in other versions is captured as "Be very careful" in ESV and "Now, vigilantly guard your souls" in Message version. We can therefore understand that this warning means to pay careful attention and to watch yourself closely. It means they must not assume that because they once loved God deeply, they can no longer drift.

The warning is very serious because Joshua also said that if Israel went back and cleaved to the nations around them, those nations would become snares, traps, scourges, and thorns until they perished from the good land God had given them. This teaches that God's mercy must never be taken for granted. God is good, patient, loving, and faithful, but He is also holy, righteous, and fearful in judgement. The same God who gave the land could allow His people to perish from it if they rejected His covenant and disconnected from Him. It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God. Therefore, this week calls every revival army to examine the heart, not only outward activity. We must ask, "Is my heart still burning for God?" We must watch what we love, what we tolerate, what we watch, who we keep as friends, where we go, what we laugh at, what we call harmless, and what is slowly shaping our appetite. A simple ungodly TikTok video can weaken consecration, a so-called reunion party can dig a pit of perversion, a professional get-together can become a doorway into worldliness, and an uncontrolled use of social media habit can quietly corrupt the heart.

Teachings

1. Love for God Must Be Guarded Because Backsliding Begins in the Heart: Joshua said, “Take good heed therefore unto yourselves, that ye love the LORD your God.” The first thing he asked Israel to guard was not their land, wealth, houses, farms, positions, or victories. He asked them to guard their love for God. This is because spiritual drift begins in the heart before it appears in one’s lifestyle. A person does not usually fall in one day. Something first begins to shift in the affection, desire, appetite, and attention of the heart. Backsliding begins when a believer starts yielding to small temptations. At first, the conscience may still be sensitive. The person knows that what is being watched, discussed, imagined, pursued, or tolerated is not right. But instead of fleeing, the person lingers. Instead of cutting it off, the person explains it away. Instead of confessing quickly, the person hides it. This is how resistance begins to weaken. What once looked dangerous begins to look manageable. What once brought conviction begins to feel normal. After yielding repeatedly, self-justification begins. The believer starts creating reasons for compromise. “Everybody does it.” “It is not that serious.” “At least I still attend fellowship.” “I am not as bad as others.” “God understands.” “This is just entertainment.” “This is just networking.” “This is just friendship.” These excuses are dangerous because they protect sin from being judged. The moment a person begins to defend what the Holy Spirit is convicting him or her about; backsliding is already gaining ground.

If the matter is not immediately dealt with, detachment from the Lord follows. Prayer becomes difficult. The Word of God becomes dry. Fellowship becomes boring, counsel becomes irritating, and correction feels like attack. The person begins to avoid people who can discern the decline. The heart becomes more comfortable with darkness and less comfortable with God’s presence. This is why Joshua said, “Take good heed.” The heart must be watched before drift becomes destruction. A further danger is the searing of the conscience. When a person keeps resisting conviction, the inner alarm becomes weaker. What used to bring tears no longer troubles the heart. What used to be confessed is now defended. What used to be avoided is now enjoyed. The Holy Spirit is grieved and gradually silenced in that area of the person’s life. This is one of the most frightening stages of backsliding when a person can still appear active, but inwardly, the fear of God is fading.

2. “Take Good Heed” Means Living Carefully in a Crooked World: Joshua did not merely say, “Be careful.” He said, “Take good heed therefore unto yourselves.” This is a strong call to spiritual watchfulness. It is similar to Paul’s instruction to Timothy: “Take heed unto thyself, and unto the doctrine.” To “take good heed” means to live with godly caution. It means knowing that not everything that looks harmless is harmless. Some things are not sinful in their first appearance, but they carry an atmosphere, appetite, or influence that can weaken the soul. A film may look like ordinary entertainment, but it may plant images, desires, language, and attitudes that fight consecration. A Netflix video may appear casual, but one ungodly storyline can weaken purity and reduce spiritual sensitivity. A believer must be careful about what enters through the eyes and ears, because the heart feeds on what it receives.

“To take good heed” means being careful about where we go and what we associate with in an increasingly polluted society. While we are called to be friendly and not isolate ourselves, we must understand the boundaries of what we permit wherever we find ourselves. A so-called reunion can look innocent, but it may reconnect a believer with old lifestyles, old conversations, old attractions, and old desires that God once delivered him or her from. A professional get-together can begin as networking event but become a bait into worldliness, drunkenness, dishonesty, ungodly bonding, or careless relationships. Not every invitation should be honoured and not every environment is safe for a consecrated life.

“To take good heed” also speaks to the need to watch our social media appetite. A person may not physically go to ungodly places, but through the phone, the heart can travel far into darkness. Reels, films, jokes, music, trends, arguments, and images can slowly shape desire. The person may still attend fellowship, but the mind is being disciplined by the world. This is why every TACEFite must ask: “What is this content doing to my love for God? Is it making me pure or careless? Is it making me prayerful or cold? Is it making me love Christ or love the world?”

3. Wrong Attachments Can Become Snares, Traps, Scourges, and Thorns: Joshua’s warning becomes even clearer when we consider the four things he said the remaining nations would become if Israel cleaved to them: “snares,” “traps,” “scourges in your sides,” and “thorns in your eyes.” These words show that wrong attachments do not remain harmless. A snare catches a person quietly before he realises he is being held. In contemporary life, a snare may begin as a harmless chat, an innocent-looking friendship, a social media habit, an afterparty with old friends, a professional circle, or entertainment that slowly awakens wrong desires. A trap is a stronger form of captivity. It is when the person now finds it difficult to leave what he once thought he could control. The friendship has become emotional dependence, the online content has become a habit, the secret compromise has become a pattern, and the worldly circle has become a place where the person now feels more comfortable than in the presence of God.

A scourge in the side speaks of something that repeatedly wounds, troubles, weakens, and reduces strength. This is what happens when wrong relationships, ungodly appetites, bitterness, pride, careless entertainment, or continued disobedience begin to wound the conscience and drain spiritual strength. The person may still be active outwardly, but inwardly there is guilt, instability, loss of peace, prayerlessness, and repeated defeat. A thorn in the eyes speaks of anything that blinds spiritual vision. When the gods of the land enter the heart, the person may no longer see sin as sin. Spiritual discernment becomes blurred. What was once clearly wrong now appears negotiable. What once grieved the heart now feels normal. This is why Joshua's warning is so serious. The world of sin first attracts, then entangles, then wounds, and finally blinds.

Yet the Lord does not leave His people helpless. Paul teaches clearly, "There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it" (1 Corinthians 10:13). This means that before a snare becomes a trap, God will often provide a way of escape through His Word, the warning of the Holy Spirit, godly counsel, a disturbed conscience, an inner check, or the courage to cut off what is dangerous. The problem is not that God gives no escape but the problem is that many people ignore the escape because they still want the compromise. We must therefore take good heed, remain in Christ, and respond quickly when God shows us the exit.

4. God's Mercy Must Not Be Taken for Granted: Joshua's warning in verse 13 is one of the most fearful parts of this passage. It says that the same God who gave Israel the land warned that they could perish from that good land if they turned away from Him. This shows that covenant blessing carries covenant responsibility. Grace should make us fear God more, not less. He said, "Know for a certainty that the LORD your God will no more drive out any of these nations from before you ...until ye perish from off this good land which the LORD your God hath given you." This means that if Israel chose to go back and cleave to what God warned them against, they would face the consequence of that choice. God had fought for them, but He would not continue to fight for their compromise. God had shown mercy, but His mercy was not permission to live anyhow. God is good, but we must not take Him for granted. God is loving, but He is also holy. God is merciful, but He is also righteous. God forgives, but He does not support us to continue to live carelessly in sin after we have known the truth.

This is why the fear of the Lord is necessary. The fear of the Lord is not torment or scary, but a deep awareness that God must not be mocked or treated lightly. It makes a believer tremble at the Word of God. It makes us confess quickly, repent sincerely, avoid dangerous doors, and honour the Lord in secret. Hebrews says, "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God." At the same time, this warning is also mercy. God warned Israel before destruction came. The warning itself was an act of love. When God warns us through His Word, through the Holy Spirit or through repeated inner conviction, He is giving us opportunity to return. The wise believer does not despise warning but responds quickly before a snare becomes bondage and before a thorn becomes blindness. As a member of God's exceeding great army, make it a lifestyle to always fear the Lord and do not take His goodness for granted.

Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Watch your heart before you watch your activity: Do not measure your spirituality by attendance, title, service, or visibility. Ask whether your heart is still burning for God.
- Deal with temptation early: Do not linger around what you know is weakening your conscience. Flee quickly, confess quickly, and seek help where necessary.
- Reject self-justification: Stop defending what the Holy Spirit is convicting you about. Excuses weaken repentance.
- Restore spiritual sensitivity: If prayer is becoming difficult, the Word of God is becoming dry, fellowship is becoming irritating, or correction feels like attack, take it seriously.
- Guard your eyes and ears: Be careful with films, videos, music, jokes, reels, and online contents that slowly corrupt desire and diminish consecration.
- Discern gatherings carefully: Not every reunion, professional get-together, casual hangout, friendly sleep-over invitation, social event, or friendly invitation is safe for your soul.
- Watch your friendships and attachments: Do not cleave to people, relationships, partnerships, or circles that reduce your love for God.
- Fear the Lord: Do not take God's goodness for granted. His mercy is real, but His judgement is also real.

- Respond quickly to warning: When God warns you through His Word, the Holy Spirit, counsel, correction, or inner conviction, do not delay.
- Stay rooted and grounded in love: Let your love for Christ be sincere, deep, daily, and practical.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why did Joshua say, “Take good heed,” instead of giving Israel only a simple encouragement after their victories?
2. What are some early signs that a believer’s love for God is growing cold?
3. Why is self-justification dangerous in the process of backsliding?
4. How can wrong attachments become snares, traps, scourges, and thorns?
5. Why must believers be careful about friendships, emotional attachments, business partnerships, and social circles?
6. Why is it dangerous to take God’s goodness for granted?

Personal Reflection

Is my heart still burning for God, or am I only maintaining outward activity? Do I still love the Lord sincerely, or have success, friendships, or compromise reduced my affection for Him? Am I still sensitive to the Holy Spirit, or have I started defending what He is correcting me about? Are there small temptations I have been yielding to repeatedly? Have I started making excuses for what I once avoided? Is prayer becoming difficult? Is the Word of God becoming dry? Is correction becoming irritating? Am I withdrawing from fellowship, or people who can help me stand? Am I watching, listening to, laughing at, following, or feeding my mind with ungodly media contents? Do I fear the Lord, or am I taking His mercy for granted?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, help me to take good heed unto myself and guard my love for You.
2. Lord, let my heart remain sincerely burning for You in the days of blessing, comfort, lifting, and possession.
3. Father, expose every early sign of backsliding in my life before it becomes destruction. Lord, deliver me from yielding to temptations and compromise.
4. Holy Spirit, do not let me silence or grieve You through repeated disobedience.
5. Lord, break every wrong attachment that is becoming a snare, trap, scourge, or thorn in my walk with You.
6. Lord, give me courage to cut off every influence that is pulling my heart away from Christ. Father, deliver me from ungodly friendships, emotional attachments, corrupt partnerships, worldly entertainment, social media appetite, and secret habits that weaken my love for You.
7. Father, preserve every TACEFite from backsliding, apostasy, spiritual coldness, and complete turning away from You.

Week 41 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 7 June 2027

- I will take good heed unto myself. I will not assume that past victories, present activity, or visibility mean my heart is still burning for God.
- I will guard my love for the Lord because spiritual drift begins in the heart before it appears in my obvious lifestyle.
- Father, keep my heart rooted and grounded in the love of Christ, and deliver me from hidden coldness and backsliding.

Tuesday, 8 June 2027

- I will deal with temptation early. I will not linger around what weakens my conscience, corrupts my appetite, or reduces my hunger for God.
- I reject self-justification. I will not defend what the Holy Spirit is convicting and correcting me about.
- Lord, help me to confess quickly, repent sincerely, and return fully to You.

Wednesday, 9 June 2027

- I will not allow my conscience to become seared. I will not ignore conviction until sin begins to feel normal.
- I will not grieve or silence the Holy Spirit through stubbornness, secrecy, or repeated disobedience.
- Father, restore tenderness, innocence of conviction, fear of God, and spiritual sensitivity in my heart.

Thursday, 10 June 2027

- I will take good heed in a crooked world. I will be careful with what I watch, hear, follow, share, laugh at, and feed my mind with.
- A video, film, social media habit, magazine, online gaming, reunion, casual afterparty or professional gathering can become a doorway into worldliness if I am careless.
- Lord, give me discernment to avoid every environment and appetite that weakens consecration.

Friday, 11 June 2027

- I will not cleave to wrong associations. I will not keep friendships, emotional attachments, partnerships, or social circles that reduce my love for God.
- What is tolerated can later dominate. What begins as a snare can become a trap, a scourge, and a thorn.
- Father, give me courage to break away from every wrong attachment and preserve my covenant walk with You.

Saturday, 12 June 2027

- I will fear the Lord and never take His goodness for granted. God is merciful, but He is also holy and righteous in judgement.
- I will not despise warning. I will respond quickly when God corrects me through His Word, His Spirit, or my conscience.
- Lord, keep me from backsliding, spiritual coldness, apostasy, and every path that leads away from You.

Title: Not One Thing Hath Failed: Understanding Covenant Faithfulness

Bible Texts: Joshua 23:14-16; Ephesians 2:11-13

Bible Texts

Joshua 23:14-16: 14 And, behold, this day I am going the way of all the earth: and ye know in all your hearts and in all your souls, that not one thing hath failed of all the good things which the LORD your God spake concerning you; all are come to pass unto you, and not one thing hath failed thereof. 15 Therefore it shall come to pass, that as all good things are come upon you, which the LORD your God promised you; so shall the LORD bring upon you all evil things, until he have destroyed you from off this good land which the LORD your God hath given you. 16 When ye have transgressed the covenant of the LORD your God, which he commanded you, and have gone and served other gods, and bowed yourselves to them; then shall the anger of the LORD be kindled against you, and ye shall perish quickly from off the good land which he hath given unto you.

Ephesians 2:11-13: 11 Wherefore remember, that ye being in time past Gentiles in the flesh, who are called Uncircumcision by that which is called the Circumcision in the flesh made by hands; 12 That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world: 13 But now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- Not one thing hath failed of all the good things which the LORD your God spake concerning you.
- All are come to pass unto you.
- Not one thing hath failed thereof.
- Wherefore remember.
- Strangers from the covenants of promise.
- Having no hope, and without God in the world.
- But now in Christ Jesus.
- Ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ.

Introduction

Our 52-week annual study into the making of a great and exceeding army takes us to this crucial point in Joshua's final charge, when he brought Israel face to face with two solemn truths. First, God had been completely faithful. Not one thing had failed of all the good things the Lord had spoken concerning them. Every promise, every victory, every step into inheritance, and every divine intervention testified that God is a covenant-keeping God. Israel could look at their journey and say, "The Lord has kept His word." Secondly, Joshua warned them that the same covenant that brought blessing also carried responsibility. If they transgressed the covenant of the Lord, served other gods, and bowed themselves to them, the anger of the Lord would be kindled against them. This means covenant is not a casual relationship without responsibility. Covenant brings privilege, access, protection, and blessing, but covenant also carries terms, accountability, and consequences when we fail. God is faithful to His promises, but His people must not respond with forgetfulness, entitlement, rebellion, or careless living.

A covenant relationship with God means that we do not belong to ourselves. We are brought near by grace, redeemed by blood, and called into a holy relationship with the Lord. In the Old Testament, Israel's covenant with God shaped their worship, choices, relationships, family life, justice, and obedience. In the New Testament, believers are made nigh by the blood of Christ. We are not strangers from the covenants of promise anymore. We now live under the lordship of Christ, and His blood calls us into love, holiness, and faithful service. Grace does not make covenant lighter; grace makes our covenant relationship deeper. This is why Paul told the Ephesians to remember. "Wherefore remember," he said. They were once without Christ, aliens, strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world. But now, in Christ Jesus, those who were once far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ. Remembering where God brought us from keeps grace alive. Forgetfulness produces careless choices and strange attachments. A revival army that forgets mercy may soon begin to despise covenant responsibility.

Therefore, this week calls each and everyone of us to walk with covenant awareness. We must not do wickedly against the covenant of the Lord. We must not treat grace as permission to live carelessly. We must remember our journeys, past deliverances, answered prayers, revival roots, and the mercy of God that brought us near.

Teachings

1. Covenant Relationship with God Must Shape How We Live: Joshua said, “When ye have transgressed the covenant of the LORD your God.” This statement shows that Israel’s relationship with God was not ordinary. They were not merely a people who received help from God but were a people in covenant with God. The Lord had chosen them, delivered them, guided them, preserved them, fought for them, and brought them into an inheritance. In response, they were to love Him, obey Him, worship Him alone, and walk according to His commandments. A covenant is a binding relationship with solemn commitment. It carries promises, responsibilities, privileges, and boundaries. In ordinary life, people understand this principle. Marriage covenant demands faithfulness, honour, responsibility, openness, and exclusive commitment. Employment contracts carry duties, expectations, and accountability. National citizenship carries rights and responsibilities. In a deeper and holier way, covenant with God means that the believer belongs to the Lord and must live with the consciousness of divine ownership.

This is why covenant awareness must moderate what we do. A covenant person cannot live anyhow. A believer cannot say, “It is my body, my money, my time, my career, my relationship, my phone, my ambition, my marriage, my business, my children and my life.” No. We are bought with a price. Covenant reminds us that Christ has a claim over our bodies, thoughts, appetites, relationships, decisions, and future. We must ask, “Does this honour the covenant? Does this please the Lord? Does this reflect the blood that brought me near?”. “To do wickedly against covenant” according to Daniel 11:32a as we learned in one of our past programmes last year is to act as if the covenant does not matter. Israel would do wickedly against covenant if they turned to other gods, mixed with ungodly nations in disobedience, and bowed to what God had forbidden. Today, a believer can do wickedly against covenant by returning to old sins, joining ungodly partnerships, living dishonestly, defiling the body, despising fellowship, speaking carelessly, refusing correction, treating his or her spouse in a negative way, or choosing relationships that pull the heart away from Christ.

2. Covenant Privilege Carries Covenant Responsibility and Accountability: Joshua reminded Israel that not one thing had failed of all the good things the Lord had spoken. Then, he warned them that if they sin against the covenant, judgement would also come. This is a serious balance as we learned in our study last week. God’s covenant faithfulness is full and reliable. He keeps His promises. He fulfills His Word. He does not forget His people, yet covenant blessing does not remove covenant responsibility. Israel enjoyed covenant privilege. They were delivered from bondage, carried through the wilderness, given victory over enemies, brought into the land, and given inheritance, but they were not free to live anyhow. Their privilege required loyalty. Their inheritance required holiness. Their covenant relationship required faithful response. The same Lord who promised good things also warned against evil things if they despised the covenant. This is very important for believers today because grace does not remove accountability and mercy does not make sin safe. The blood of Christ brings us near without any work that we did, but nearness must produce reverence, gratitude, obedience, and love.

We also see that covenant comes with terms. In the Old Testament, Israel was repeatedly called to love the Lord, obey His commandments, reject idols, preserve holiness, and teach the next generation. In the New Testament, the believer is called to abide in Christ, walk in the Spirit, put off the old man, put on the new man, flee sin, love the brethren, serve sincerely, and follow peace and holiness. We are not saved by works, but the grace that saves us teaches us to deny ungodliness and worldly lusts. This means that every blessing must be handled with responsibility. If God gives a job, it must not become an excuse for prayerlessness. If He gives relocation, it must not become a journey into spiritual coldness. If He gives marriage, it must not become a reason to withdraw from service and holiness. Covenant privilege must produce deeper obedience, not detachment from God.

3. Forgetfulness Opens the Door to Decline: Paul told the Ephesians, “Wherefore remember.” Joshua also called Israel to remember that not one thing had failed. These reminders are spiritually powerful. Memory is not just mental recollection but a covenant discipline. When God’s people remember rightly, they remain humble, grateful, loyal, and obedient. When they forget, they drift into pride, entitlement, strange attachments, and compromise. Decline begins when covenant is forgotten. A person who forgets mercy may begin to take grace for granted. A person who forgets answered prayers may become arrogant after the answer comes. A family that forgets how God helped them may stop building the altar that sustained them. A minister who forgets the secret place may begin to depend on title, platform, or public recognition. The Ephesians were told to remember that they were once without Christ, strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world. This is a deep reminder. Every believer must remember the tragedy of life without Christ and the mercy of being brought near by His blood. When we remember, worship becomes sincere and holy living becomes precious.

Dear TACEFites, we must remember our journeys. Remember when God opened doors that seemed impossible. Remember when He saved souls, restored families, healed broken hearts, provided in difficult seasons, gave admission when you did not meet the cut-off mark, gave jobs when you did not have the desired qualifications, protected your risky journeys, supplied needs, gave children, preserved marriages, revived fellowships, and raised helpers. Remember the prayers, tears, teachings, corrections, and burdens that preserved the vision. A people that remembers well will not become arrogant because memory protects testimony from becoming pride. In the same vein, forgetfulness can also affect marriage and family life. A couple may forget the vows they made before God. They may forget how they prayed before the wedding. They may forget the mercy that brought them together, the counsel they received, and the covenant they entered. When marital covenant is forgotten, careless friendships, secrecy, emotional distance, hidden spending, harsh words, and unfaithfulness can enter. Remembering covenant helps a husband and wife return to love, honour, openness, prayer, forgiveness, and responsibility.

4. Marital Covenant Requires Faithfulness, Boundaries, and the Fear of God: The principle of covenant must also be understood in marriage. Marriage is not merely emotional attraction, ceremony, family approval, or social status. It is covenant before God. Malachi speaks strongly about dealing treacherously against the wife of one's youth and says, "Yet is she thy companion, and the wife of thy covenant." This means that marital unfaithfulness is not only an offence against a spouse but the peak of wickedness against the covenant. A believer must therefore treat marital covenant with great seriousness. A married person must guard affection, conversations, emotional attachments, phone privacy, social media behaviour, finances, travel, friendships, and personal boundaries. Covenant faithfulness is not only avoiding the final act of sexual immorality but refusing the small doors that lead there. There must always be covenant boundaries in all our dealings. A married man should not cultivate private emotional closeness with another woman in a way that competes with his wife. A married woman should not keep a secret emotional connection with another man in a way that opens emotional intimacy. A spouse should not hide chats, delete conversations to avoid accountability, share personal marital frustrations with someone who may become an emotional replacement, or maintain a friendship that feeds secrecy. These things may look small, but they can become pathways to betrayal. In the same way, there are certain words, tones, and expressions a married man or woman must not use carelessly with another person. Words such as "dearest," "darling," "my love," and other affectionate expressions that carry emotional or romantic meanings should be avoided.

Marital fidelity also requires openness. Husband and wife should learn to talk truthfully, plan together, pray together, manage finances responsibly, and build trust. Secret spending, hidden debts, secret accounts used for selfish living, undisclosed commitments, and financial dishonesty can wound covenant trust. A home cannot be strong where there is secrecy, suspicion, and a divided life. "One flesh" as we learned in our Week 39 study requires shared life, shared stewardship, and shared direction. Faithfulness also requires guarding speech and comparison. A spouse must not constantly compare his or her partner with someone outside the marriage. A husband must not speak to another woman with tenderness, attention, and emotional energy he refuses to give his wife. A wife must not honour another man's counsel more than her husband's place in the home. Marriage must be protected from careless admiration, emotional wandering, and ungodly counsel.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Live with covenant awareness: Remind yourself daily that you belong to God and must not live as though your life is your own.
- Let covenant moderate your choices: Before making decisions, ask whether the choice honours Christ and the covenant relationship you have with God.
- Do not do wickedly against the covenant: Reject secret sin, dishonesty, ungodly relationships, careless speech, spiritual laziness, and rebellion.
- Handle privilege responsibly: Do not allow employment, relocation, promotion, marriage, children, business growth, ministry enlargement, or comfort to diminish your consecration
- Reject spiritual entitlement: Do not assume God owes you blessings because of past service, titles, sacrifice, or visibility.
- Let testimony produce humility: Every open door, answered prayers, and fulfilled promise should lead to gratitude, holiness, and deeper consecration.

- Respect marital covenant: Guard your heart, conversations, friendships, phone habits, and emotional attachments.
- Build openness in marriage: Pray together, plan together, discuss finances truthfully, forgive quickly, and avoid secret decisions that damage trust.
- Set clear boundaries: Do not maintain relationships, chats, or emotional closeness that you cannot present openly before God and your spouse.
- Serve God with reverence: Covenant blessing is glorious, but covenant accountability is serious.

Questions for Discussion

1. What does covenant relationship with God mean for a believer today?
2. How should covenant awareness affect what we do with our bodies, money, time, relationships, work, business, and private lives?
3. What are practical ways a believer can do wickedly against the covenant of the Lord?
4. Why does covenant privilege always carry covenant responsibility?
5. Why is marriage a covenant and not merely a social arrangement?
6. How can secrecy, hidden spending, emotional attachments, and careless conversations weaken marital covenant?

Personal Reflection

Do I live with covenant awareness, or do I make choices as though my life belongs to me? Does my relationship with God shape my social life, friendships, business, use of money, speech, ambition, and relationships? Are there areas where I am doing wickedly against the covenant by tolerating what dishonours Christ? Do I always remember where God brought me from, or have testimonies become ordinary to me? If I am married, am I honouring the covenant before God? Are there secret chats, emotional attachments, hidden financial decisions, careless friendships, or private habits that can weaken trust? Do I relate with my spouse in openness, honour, and truth?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, teach me to live with covenant awareness every day. Lord, help me to remember that I belong to You and must not live as though my life is my own.
2. Father, deliver me from doing wickedly against Your covenant through secret sin, carelessness, rebellion, or compromise.
3. Lord, help me to remember where You brought me from and the grace that made me nigh by the blood of Christ.
4. Father, keep TACEF faithful to our revival roots, godly consecration, holiness foundation and covenant responsibilities.
5. Father, help every TACEF marriage to honour covenant with faithfulness, openness, love, and truth.
6. Lord, help us to serve You with reverence and godly fear, knowing that covenant privilege carries covenant accountability.

Week 42 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 14 June 2027

- I am in covenant relationship with God. My life, body, time, money, relationships, ambitions, and future belong to the Lord who brought me near by the blood of Christ.
- I will not live casually or carelessly. Covenant awareness will shape my choices, conversations, living, business, ministry, marriage, and everyday decisions.
- Father, teach me to honour Your covenant in every part of my life.

Tuesday, 15 June 2027

- Not one thing has failed of all the good things the Lord has spoken. God is faithful, and His promises are sure.
- I will not allow God's faithfulness to produce entitlement, pride, or carelessness in me. Every testimony must lead me into deeper gratitude and obedience.
- Lord, let Your goodness make me more humble, faithful, and consecrated.

Wednesday, 16 June 2027

- Covenant privilege carries covenant responsibility. I will not enjoy grace while despising consecration.
- I will not do wickedly against the covenant of the Lord through secret sin, dishonesty, ungodly relationships, careless speech, spiritual laziness, or rebellion.

- Father, keep me loyal to You in public and in secret.

Thursday, 17 June 2027

- I will remember where God brought me from. I was once far off, without Christ, without hope, and without God in the world, but now I am made nigh by the blood of Christ.
- I will remember past deliverances, answered prayers, opened doors, revival roots, corrections, and mercies that preserved me.
- Lord, keep grace alive in my heart through covenant memory.

Friday, 18 June 2027

- If or when married, I will honour marital covenant before God. Marriage is not casual; it is a holy covenant that requires faithfulness, openness, truth, and responsibility.
- I will guard my heart, conversations, friendships, online exposure, finances, and emotional attachments.
- Father, make every TACEF home faithful, transparent, peaceful, and covenant-keeping.

Saturday, 19 June 2027

- I will serve God with reverence and godly fear. Covenant blessing is glorious and it comes with a commensurate covenant accountability.
- The blood of Christ has brought me near; therefore, I will not return to strange gods, old sins, secret idols, or careless living.
- Lord, make me faithful to Your covenant, rooted in Your grace, and obedient in every visible and hidden place.

Title: Choose You This Day: Personal Choices and Godly Alignment of Personal Will

Bible Texts: Joshua 24:1-15; Ephesians 4:17-24

Bible Texts

Joshua 24:1-15: 1 And Joshua gathered all the tribes of Israel to Shechem, and called for the elders of Israel, and for their heads, and for their judges, and for their officers; and they presented themselves before God. 2 And Joshua said unto all the people, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, Your fathers dwelt on the other side of the flood in old time, even Terah, the father of Abraham, and the father of Nachor: and they served other gods. 3 And I took your father Abraham from the other side of the flood, and led him throughout all the land of Canaan, and multiplied his seed, and gave him Isaac. 4 And I gave unto Isaac Jacob and Esau: and I gave unto Esau mount Seir, to possess it; but Jacob and his children went down into Egypt. 5 I sent Moses also and Aaron, and I plagued Egypt, according to that which I did among them: and afterward I brought you out. 6 And I brought your fathers out of Egypt: and ye came unto the sea; and the Egyptians pursued after your fathers with chariots and horsemen unto the Red sea. 7 And when they cried unto the LORD, he put darkness between you and the Egyptians, and brought the sea upon them, and covered them; and your eyes have seen what I have done in Egypt: and ye dwelt in the wilderness a long season. 8 And I brought you into the land of the Amorites, which dwelt on the other side Jordan; and they fought with you: and I gave them into your hand, that ye might possess their land; and I destroyed them from before you. 9 Then Balak the son of Zippor, king of Moab, arose and warred against Israel, and sent and called Balaam the son of Beor to curse you: 10 But I would not hearken unto Balaam; therefore he blessed you still: so I delivered you out of his hand. 11 And ye went over Jordan, and came unto Jericho: and the men of Jericho fought against you, the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Girgashites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites; and I delivered them into your hand. 12 And I sent the hornet before you, which drave them out from before you, even the two kings of the Amorites; but not with thy sword, nor with thy bow. 13 And I have given you a land for which ye did not labour, and cities which ye built not, and ye dwell in them; of the vineyards and oliveyards which ye planted not do ye eat. 14 Now, therefore fear the LORD, and serve him in sincerity and in truth: and put away the gods which your fathers served on the other side of the flood, and in Egypt; and serve ye the LORD. 15 And if it seem evil unto you to serve the LORD, choose you this day whom ye will serve; whether the gods which your fathers served that were on the other side of the flood, or the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell: but as for me and my house, we will serve the LORD.

Ephesians 4:17-24: 17 This I say therefore, and testify in the Lord, that ye henceforth walk not as other Gentiles walk, in the vanity of their mind, 18 Having the understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them, because of the blindness of their heart: 19 Who being past feeling have given themselves over unto lasciviousness, to work all uncleanness with greediness. 20 But ye have not so learned Christ; 21 If so be that ye have heard him, and have been taught by him, as the truth is in Jesus: 22 That ye put off concerning the former conversation the old man, which is corrupt according to the deceitful lusts; 23 And be renewed in the spirit of your mind; 24 And that ye put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- They presented themselves before God.
- I brought your fathers out of Egypt.
- I delivered them into your hand.
- I have given you a land for which ye did not labour.
- Now therefore fear the LORD.
- Serve him in sincerity and in truth.
- Choose you this day whom ye will serve.
- As for me and my house, we will serve the LORD.
- Walk not as other Gentiles walk.
- Put off concerning the former conversation the old man.

Introduction

Our study this week takes us to a point in Joshua's final address when he gathered Israel at Shechem and brought them before God. He reminded them of the story of God's faithfulness from Abraham to the conquest of the Promised land. He explored how Abraham had been taken out from an idolatrous background, that Israel had been delivered from Egypt, that the Red Sea had opened before them, that their enemies had been defeated, and that they now lived in lands and cities they did not build. Joshua wanted the people to see that their whole journey was mercy in its full manifestation. Their history was not the story of human greatness but a story of divine deliverance and divine faithfulness.

After rehearsing God's works, Joshua placed a decision before them: "Choose you this day whom ye will serve." This is one of the strongest statements on human choice and covenant responsibility in the Scripture. God had loved them, delivered them, helped them, warned them, and brought them into inheritance; yet He did not force them to serve Him like machines. He called them to choose. This reveals a deep truth about the way God deals with man. God created man with a will. From the Garden of Eden, we see the benevolence of God in giving man room to obey Him willingly. God gave Adam instruction, placed a boundary before him, warned him, and allowed him to choose obedience or disobedience. Choice is therefore central to covenant loyalty. Every generation must make its own choice. We cannot live only on the decisions of our fathers, mothers, leaders, or past generations. We must personally choose the Lord.

The book of Ephesians helps us understand what this choice looks like in the New Testament. Paul says we must no longer walk as other Gentiles walk. We must put off the old man, be renewed in the spirit of our mind, and put on the new man created in righteousness and true holiness. Serving God is not anyhow emotion. It is not merely saying, "I love God." It is daily sanctified decision-making. It is the will of man being yielded to the will of God. It is saying like Jesus, "Nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done." The believer's will must be surrendered, corrected, renewed, disciplined, and aligned with the will of God. This week therefore calls TACEFites to make deliberate covenant choices in a compromising generation. We must reject spiritual mixture. We must put away modern idols such as social media pollution, ungodly relationships, secret sin, pride, get rich quick money, popularity, self-rule, and careless living. We must also understand that serving God begins at home. Joshua did not only say, "I will serve the Lord." He said, "As for me and my house, we will serve the LORD." The home is the principal church. God deals deeply with households. Families must become altars of prayer, discipleship, holiness, and revival.

Teachings

1. God Allows Man to Choose, but Every Choice Carries Covenant Consequence: Joshua said, "Choose you this day whom ye will serve." This shows that God does not remove human will. He calls, teaches, warns, helps, and reveals His works, but He still brings man to the point of decision. From the Garden of Eden, man was created with the capacity to choose. God placed Adam in a beautiful garden, gave him provision, work, fellowship, and clear instructions. The tree of the knowledge of good and evil stood as a boundary. Adam could obey God or disobey Him. This was not because God was weak. It was because God wanted man to love, trust, and obey Him willingly. He made man in His image, not as an animal driven only by instinct or as a machine controlled without moral responsibility. Human will is part of our dignity, but it also makes us accountable. The fact that we can choose does not mean every choice is safe. Choice is real, but consequence is also real. Adam chose wrongly and brought sin and death into human experience. Israel could choose the Lord or choose strange gods, but each path had consequences.

This is why choice must be guided by covenant. God gives man the ability to choose, but He does not leave man without truth. He gives commandments, warning, counsel, correction, Scripture, the Holy Spirit, and godly examples. Joshua did not ask Israel to choose in ignorance. He first rehearsed God's faithfulness. He showed them what God had done. He reminded them of deliverance, protection, provision, and inheritance. Their choice was to be made in the light of knowing who God is and mean to them. The same applies to us. When a believer chooses sin, it is not because God has given no light. The Word has spoken, the Spirit has warned, the conscience has witnessed, counsel may have come, and examples may have been seen. God does not force us, but He faithfully places light before us.

Every generation must choose. Every person must choose. Every home must choose. God's faithfulness does not cancel our responsibilities. His mercy does not remove decision. His grace empowers us to choose rightly, but it does not choose for us against our will. Therefore, the question before every TACEFite is clear: whom will you serve?

2. The Believer's Will Must Be Surrendered, Renewed, and Aligned with God's Will: The deepest choice a believer must make is the surrender of the will to God. The human will naturally wants its own way. It wants comfort, control, recognition, pleasure, success, and personal fulfilment. But the disciple of Christ must learn to bring the will under the government of God. Jesus showed us the pattern in Gethsemane when He prayed, "Nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done." This is the highest form of surrendered obedience. God has a will for His people. There is the perfect will of God, where a person walks in full alignment with God's desire, timing, method, and purpose. There are also situations where people press for what God does not truly desire for their highest spiritual good. Israel once demanded a king like other nations, and God allowed it, but it came with bad consequences. In our daily lives, a person may insist on a marital choice of a spouse, specific job, relocation, business set-up, or ministry opportunity that looks attractive, even when the leading of God is not aligned. This is permissive allowance and should never be mistaken for perfect approval.

This is why believers must not merely ask, “Can I do this?” We must ask, “Is this the will of God?” We must not only ask, “Is this opportunity open?” We must ask, “Is God leading me into it?” We must not only ask, “Do I like this person?” We must ask, “Is this relationship agreeing with the plans and purpose of God for my life?” We must not only ask, “Will this job pay more?” We must ask, “Does the acceptance of this offer give me peace and will this work preserve my walk with God, my family altar, my integrity, and my assignment?” The will of God must become the believer’s governing question. In Ephesians, Paul speaks of understanding what the will of the Lord is. In Romans, he speaks on proving what is that good, acceptable, and perfect will of God. This shows that the will of God is discerned by a surrendered life and a renewed mind.

Dearly beloved, we must not live by impulse, pressure, emotion, comparison, fear, or appetite. We must bring our will to the altar and say, “Lord, not my will, but Thine be done.” The safest life is not the life that gets everything it wants but the life that wants what God wants.

3. Covenant Loyalty Requires Putting Away Idols and Rejecting Spiritual Mixture: Joshua did not only say, “Choose.” He also said, “Put away the gods.” A true choice for God requires a true rejection of all other alternatives. Israel could not serve the Lord sincerely while keeping the gods of Egypt or the gods of the Amorites. Covenant loyalty demands separation. To choose God is to refuse the rival powers, desires, and attachments that compete with Him. An idol is anything that takes the place of God in the heart. It may not be a carved image. It may be money, popularity, beauty, academic ambition, career success, comfort, pleasure, reputation, a relationship, a phone, social media, personal control, or even ministry visibility. Whatever rules the heart, shapes decisions, consumes affection, controls time, and competes with obedience can become an idol. TACEFites must identify modern idols that are waging war against us within. Social media addiction can become an idol when it controls attention more than prayer and the Word of God. Ungodly relationships can become idols when a person would rather displease God than lose that relationship. Money can become an idol when gain becomes more important than righteousness. Popularity can become an idol when a person wants applause more than holiness. Academic ambition can become an idol when success is pursued at the expense of God. Comfort can become an idol when convenience kills sacrifice.

We also see from our text of study that spiritual mixture is dangerous because it allows a person to keep religious activity while refusing full surrender. A person may combine speaking in tongues with careless living, church attendance with compromise, service with an unchanged character, prayer meetings with bitterness, worship with pride, ministry with self-promotion, and public zeal with private disobedience. This mixture weakens the soul because the person feels active, but the heart is divided. Joshua’s command was decisive: put away the gods. Do not manage them. Do not decorate them. Do not explain them. Do not hide them. Put them away. Covenant demands decisive separation. If a relationship is pulling you from God, put it away. If a habit is weakening your conscience, put it away. If entertainment is corrupting your appetite, put it away. If secret sin is draining your fire, confess and forsake it. Beloved brethren, we must choose Christ without mixture. The Lord is worthy of a whole heart. The army that will serve Him in a compromising generation must make clean choices, firm choices, holy choices, and daily choices.

4. Serving God Begins at Home -The Home Is the Principal Church: Joshua declared, “As for me and my house, we will serve the LORD.” This statement shows that covenant loyalty must not stop with personal confession. It must enter the home. The home is the principal church because it is the first place where life, character, discipline, love, instruction, and spiritual culture are formed. Before a person serves publicly, the home is already shaping the heart.

God has always dealt deeply with homes. He said concerning Abraham, “For I know him, that he will command his children and his household after him.” This means God trusted Abraham not only as an individual but as a household leader. Abraham would not keep covenant as a private matter but would teach his children and household to keep the way of the Lord. This is a strong burden for Christian parents, guardians, husbands, wives, and leaders of homes. God wants homes that serve Him together.

The New Testament also gives beautiful pictures of homes used by God. Aquila and Priscilla took Apollos unto them and expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly. Their home became a place of discipleship. Philip’s home produced four daughters who prophesied, showing that the atmosphere of a home can nurture spiritual gifts. The household of Onesiphorus is remembered with honour because of service and refreshment to God’s servant. These examples show that homes can become centres of teaching, hospitality, prophetic life, encouragement, service, and revival. “As for me and my house” also means collective choice. While each person must personally choose the Lord, the home must create an atmosphere where choosing God is taught, modelled, encouraged, and protected. Families should set aside family fasting days, family prayer days, annual family retreats, family thanksgiving days, testimony reviews, or family covenant planning sessions. These practices are not for religious display, but they help the home remember God, hear God, serve God, and walk together.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Accept responsibility for your choices: Do not blame environment, friends, family background, pressure, or culture for decisions you must make before God.
- Choose Christ personally: Do not live only on the faith of parents, leaders, or past generations. Make your own covenant decision.
- Submit your will daily: Pray sincerely, “Lord, not my will, but Thine be done,” especially when your desire conflicts with God’s Word.
- Discern God’s will carefully: Do not mistake an open door for divine approval. Test relationships, jobs, relocations, business opportunities, and ministry platforms by divine leading, the Word, prayer, peace, counsel, and spiritual fruit.
- Reject idols deliberately: Identify anything that competes with God in your heart and put it away quickly.
- Practise daily cross-bearing: Choose obedience when the flesh wants comfort, pleasure, pride, revenge, or shortcut.
- Build a household altar: Let prayer, the Word, worship, and spiritual conversation have a regular place in your home.
- Create family spiritual rhythms: Consider family fasting days, prayer days, annual family retreats, and family discipleship conversations.
- Disciple children intentionally: Teach them the Word, model godliness, guide their friendships, shape their media habits, and help them know the Lord personally.
- Protect the atmosphere of the home: Watch what enters through screens, conversations, visitors, celebrations, and daily practices.
- Make your home useful to God: Let your home become a place of counsel, hospitality, encouragement, teaching, prayer, peace, and revival.

Questions for Discussion

1. What does Joshua’s statement, “Choose you this day whom ye will serve,” teach us about human will and covenant responsibility?
2. How can choice be both a gift and a serious responsibility?
3. How can a believer align personal will with God’s will in marital choice, career, business, ministry, relocation, and family life?
4. What can we learn from Jesus’ prayer, “Not my will, but thine, be done”?
5. How can believers wrongly mistake God’s permissive will for His perfect approval?
6. How can a Christian home build a spiritual culture that makes everyone serve the Lord? What can Christian homes learn from Aquila and Priscilla, Philip’s daughters, and the household of Onesiphorus?

Personal Reflection

Have I personally chosen the Lord, or am I living on the faith, convictions, and sacrifices of others? What choices am I making daily and do these choices show that I have chosen Christ? Is my will surrendered to God, or am I asking God to approve what I have already decided? Can I sincerely pray, “Lord, not my will, but Thine be done”? Are there areas where I am resisting God’s will because I prefer comfort, human approval or personal control? What idols must I put away? Is there any social media habit, ungodly relationship, secret sin, pursuit of money, popularity, academic ambition, comfort, or self-rule competing with God in my heart? What must change in my home so that we can truly say, “As for me and my house, we will serve the LORD”?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, help me to choose You personally, sincerely, and daily.
2. Father, teach me to surrender my will to Your will in every area of my life.
3. Lord, help me to pray sincerely like Jesus, “Not my will, but Thine be done.”

4. Father, renew my mind and help me to discern Your good, acceptable, and perfect will. Lord, deliver me from insisting on choices You have not approved.
5. Father, give me grace to put off the old man and put on the new man in righteousness and true holiness. Lord, expose and remove every idol competing with You in my heart.
6. Father, make my home a place where You are loved, honoured, obeyed, and served. Lord, help parents and guardians to raise children in the fear, knowledge, and service of the Lord. Lord, make our homes useful for counsel, hospitality, discipleship, and revival.

Week 43 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 21 June 2027

- I understand that God has given man the ability to choose, but every choice carries responsibility before Him.
- I will not use my will against God. I will choose the Lord in my relationships, habits, career, plans, and daily decisions.
- Father, help me to choose You sincerely, consistently and personally.

Tuesday, 22 June 2027

- I will surrender my will to the will of God. I will not ask God to bless what He has not approved or defend what He is asking me to release.
- Like Jesus, I receive grace to pray, "Not my will, but thine, be done," even when obedience is costly.
- Lord, renew my mind and help me to discern Your will in my career, marriage, ministry, business, relocation, investment, friendships, and family life.

Wednesday, 23 June 2027

- I will not mistake permissive allowance for perfect approval. An open door does not always mean it is God's will for me, and personal desire is not always divine leading.
- I will test my choices by divine leading, the Word of God, prayer, peace, godly counsel, spiritual fruit, and the fear of the Lord.
- Father, save me from choices that look attractive but lead me away from Your perfect will.

Thursday, 24 June 2027

- I will put away every idol competing with God in my heart. I will not serve the Lord with a divided heart.
- I reject secret sin, social media addiction, ungodly relationships, pride, get rich quick ungodly money, desire for popularity, self-rule, and every form of selfish spiritual mixture.
- Lord, give me grace to put off the old man and put on the new man in righteousness and true holiness.

Friday, 25 June 2027

- Serving God begins at home. My home must not be spiritually cold while I appear active outside.
- I receive grace to build a household altar through prayer, the Word, discipleship, godly conversations, and intentional spiritual culture.
- Father, make my home a place where You are loved, honoured, obeyed, and served.

Saturday, 26 June 2027

- As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord. We will not allow the devil to destroy our home, scatter our altar, corrupt our children, weaken our marriage, or silence our witness.
- I receive grace to make my home useful for counsel, discipleship, and revival, like the homes of faithful servants in the Bible.
- Lord, make every TACEF household a revival home, and preserve generations through our obedience.

Week 44: Monday, 28 June 2027 to Sunday, 4 July 2027

Title: We Will Serve the Lord: Turning Confession into Public Faith and Covenant Commitment

Bible Texts: Joshua 24:16-28; Ephesians 6:6-8

Bible Texts

Joshua 24:16-28: 16 And the people answered and said, God forbid that we should forsake the LORD, to serve other gods; 17 For the LORD our God, he it is that brought us up and our fathers out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage, and which did those great signs in our sight, and preserved us in all the way wherein we went, and among all the people through whom we passed: 18 And the LORD drove out from before us all the people, even the Amorites which dwelt in the land: therefore will we also serve the LORD; for he is our God. 19 And Joshua said unto the people, Ye cannot serve the LORD: for he is an holy God; he is a jealous God; he will not forgive your transgressions nor your sins. 20 If ye forsake the LORD, and serve strange gods, then, he will turn and do you hurt, and consume you, after that he hath done you good. 21 And the people said unto Joshua, Nay; but we will serve the LORD. 22 And Joshua said unto the people, Ye are witnesses against yourselves that ye have chosen you the LORD, to serve him. And they said, We are witnesses. 23 Now, therefore put away, said he, the strange gods which are among you, and incline your heart unto the LORD God of Israel. 24 And the people said unto Joshua, The LORD our God will we serve, and his voice will we obey. 25 So, Joshua made a covenant with the people that day, and set them a statute and an ordinance in Shechem. 26 And Joshua wrote these words in the book of the law of God, and took a great stone, and set it up there under an oak, that was by the sanctuary of the LORD. 27 And Joshua said unto all the people, Behold, this stone shall be a witness unto us; for it hath heard all the words of the LORD which he spake unto us: it shall be therefore a witness unto you, lest ye deny your God. 28 So Joshua let the people depart, every man unto his inheritance.

Ephesians 6:6-8: 6 Not with eyeservice, as menpleasers; but as the servants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart; 7 With good will doing service, as to the Lord, and not to men: 8 Knowing that whatsoever good thing any man doeth, the same shall he receive of the Lord, whether he be bond or free.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- God forbid that we should forsake the LORD.
- Therefore will we also serve the LORD.
- He is a jealous God.
- Put away the strange gods which are among you.
- The LORD our God will we serve, and his voice will we obey.
- This stone shall be a witness unto us.
- Not with eyeservice, as menpleasers.
- Doing the will of God from the heart.
- With good will doing service, as to the Lord, and not to men.

Introduction

This week brings us to the people's response to Joshua's call: "Choose you this day whom ye will serve." Their answer was quick, strong, and enthusiastic: "God forbid that we should forsake the LORD, to serve other gods." They remembered how God brought them and their fathers out of Egypt, preserved them on the way, drove out their enemies, and gave them the land. Their confession sounded right, grateful, and spiritual. They declared, "Therefore will we also serve the LORD; for he is our God." Yet Joshua did not allow their confession to remain shallow. He challenged the depth of their response. He said, "Ye cannot serve the LORD: for he is an holy God; he is a jealous God." Joshua was not discouraging them from serving God. He was confronting casual Christianity. He was warning them that covenant service is not cheap enthusiasm, emotional excitement, public identity, or religious language. To serve the Lord requires sincerity, truth, holiness, obedience, and total allegiance. God is not only a blessing-giving God; He is a holy and jealous God who must not be mixed with idols.

This is a serious warning for TACEFites in this generation. It is easy to sing worship songs, post Bible verses, attend fellowships, answer Christian names, identify with a revival movement, and say, "We will serve the Lord," when things are convenient. But true discipleship is tested when obedience becomes costly, when the workplace is corrupt, when campus culture mocks holiness, when friends are drifting, and when social pressure demands compromise. The Lord is raising a generation that must not downplay faith in order to blend into a crooked world. The letter of Paul to the Ephesians also brings the same burden into daily service. Paul says we must not serve with eyeservice as menpleasers, but as servants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart. This means true service is not performance that people see or pretense that we masquerade. It is not religious activity for recognition. Covenant service must be sincere, daily, accountable, and faithful in both visible and hidden places.

Joshua then set up a stone of witness. This shows that spiritual decisions need remembrance and continuity. TACEFites therefore need modern stones of witness like personal devotion, journaling of God's faithfulness, accountability circles, and covenant reminders that help us remain true to the Lord after emotional moments have passed.

Teachings

1. Guarding Against Casual Christianity: The people answered Joshua with strong words: "God forbid that we should forsake the LORD." Their confession was sincere in sound, but Joshua pressed deeper. He said, "Ye cannot serve the LORD: for he is an holy God; he is a jealous God." This was a shocking response. Joshua was not rejecting their desire to serve God but he was destroying casual optimism that was not well thought through. He wanted them to understand that serving God is a covenant matter, not a light emotional vow. The Lord is holy, and those who serve Him must not treat His name, His Word, His altar, or His covenant casually. This is very important to understand in context because we live in an age of casual Christianity, where many people claim to be born again while their choices openly contradict the holiness of God. It is an age where some believers sing worldly songs freely, enjoy corrupt entertainment in the name of fun, and feed their hearts with comedy, jokes, music, films, and social media content that gradually weakens reverence for God. It is an age where some speak loudly in tongue, and still defend going to night clubs, ungodly parties, and careless living as if holiness no longer matters.

Casual Christianity is also seen when those who carry spiritual titles live contrary to the truth they profess. It is painful when a school principal who is also a pastor is the one coordinating a school-wide examination malpractice, or when a believer in the workplace manipulates records and still claims that God understands since he pays his tithes. It is troubling when so-called spirit-filled workers in pre-marriage courtship are living together when they are not married and they do not see anything wrong in it. The messages on our altars today no longer condemn sins or point us to eternity and thus have created this era of casual Christianity where we have a faith that declares loyalty, but avoids sacrifice; sings loudly, but does not surrender deeply; enjoys God's blessings, but resists His holiness; and wants divine help without the cost of living like Jesus. It wants prayers answered, but does not want idols removed. It wants Christian identity without cross-bearing.

2. Public Faith Must Be Bold and Without Shame: The people did not whisper their decision. They publicly declared, "We will serve the LORD." Joshua also told them, "Ye are witnesses against yourselves that ye have chosen you the LORD, to serve him." This shows that faith has a public dimension. There are times when a believer must openly declare allegiance to Christ, not for pride or religious display, but as a witness to truth, covenant, and holy identity. In our contemporary times, many believers are being pressured into silence. Some downplay their faith so they can blend into workplace culture. Some hide their convictions on campus to avoid mockery. Some avoid speaking for Christ in professional circles because they fear being labelled. Some keep quiet when truth is being attacked because they do not want to lose acceptance. Some appear spiritual in church but become invisible as Christians in the office, classroom, marketplace, neighbourhood, or online space. This should not be so.

We must understand that we are living witnesses, ambassadors of Christ, apostles in the workplace, on campuses, in communities, in families, in professional spaces, and in public life. The Lord has not called us to blend into darkness but to shine as light. Bold public faith must also be matched with a holy life. It is not enough to say, "I am a Christian," if our lifestyle denies Christ. A believer who declares Christ but lies at work, cheats in business, joins corrupt practices, keeps ungodly relationships, comes to work late, or lives secretly in sin weakens the testimony of the gospel. Public profession without genuine holiness is dangerous. Our lives must speak as clearly as our words. We must raise a generation of bold faith champions. These are believers who can stand for Christ without shame. They will not be silent when truth is needed. They will not laugh at sin in order to belong. They will not join careless conversations to look modern. They will not hide their convictions because of promotion, friendship, relationship, academic posture, or professional ambition. They will be wise, humble, gracious, and firm. Beloved, let people around you know that you belong to Christ, not only because you say it, but because your life carries the evidence of His lordship.

3. True Service Is Sincere, Not Eye-Service: Paul says in Ephesians 6:6, “Not with eyeservice, as menpleasers; but as the servants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart.” This speaks directly to the quality of service God expects. True service is not only what we do when people are watching. It is not public activity or emotional vow, but it is doing the will of God from the heart. Joshua pressed Israel beyond words to take them from speaking as casual men pleasers to a people that have weighty understanding of their public confession. The people said, “We will serve the LORD,” but Joshua required seriousness. He told them to put away strange gods and incline their hearts unto the Lord. This means that service must be inward before it is outward.

Eye-service is a major danger in kingdom work. It is serving well only when leaders are present. It is arriving early only when a senior person is watching. It is preparing well only when one will be publicly acknowledged. It is becoming active only when there is visibility. It is working with excellence only when there is praise. It is spiritual performance without sincere devotion. Paul says the believer must not serve this way. We serve as servants of Christ because we please God and not men. We must reject careless service. The Lord’s work deserves punctuality, preparation, humility, accountability, excellence, and consistency. A prayer leader should pray before leading prayer. A singer should live a life that supports the song. A treasurer should keep proper records. A worker should not treat God’s assignment as a side issue.

In the same vein, service must also outlive emotion. Many people make vows in charged spiritual moments, but after some days, the fire reduces. They promise to pray, evangelise, attend fellowship, support the work, live holy, or serve more faithfully, but the commitment fades when emotion fades. True covenant service is sustained after the music stops, after the convention ends, after the retreat is over, after the leader has left, after the applause is gone, and after the excitement reduces. This is why daily faithfulness matters. Beloved, we live to please God and not men, so we must serve because His work deserves our best.

4. Spiritual Accountability Preserve Covenant Commitment: After Israel declared their choice, Joshua did something very important. He made a covenant with the people, set them a statute and an ordinance, wrote the words in the book of the law of God, and set up a great stone under an oak by the sanctuary of the Lord. He said the stone would be a witness, lest they deny their God or forget their public declaration to serve the Lord. This teaches that spiritual decisions must be preserved by reminders, accountability, and continuity.

People can forget what they promised in moments of deep conviction. A person can weep at the altar and later return to old habits. A family can make a commitment to restore prayer and later become busy again. A stone of witness, as referenced in our study through the story of Joshua, is anything that helps us remember, review, and remain accountable to covenant decisions we have made with God. Today, we may not set up physical stones under oak trees, but we need intentional practices that perform the same function. Personal journaling and time-based accountable tracker can help a believer record God’s dealings, instructions, and commitments. Having a discipler and accountable partner can gently hold us accountable and family altars can preserve household devotion.

We must understand that accountability is not control but a covenant protection. A believer who has no one who can ask questions may drift unnoticed. A worker who never reports may become careless. A leader who is not accountable may become careless. A family that never reviews its spiritual health may become cold. A young believer without discipleship may be carried away by worldliness. A professional without godly accountability may gradually normalise compromise in the workplace. We need witnesses that remind us of what we told God. These are not legalistic burdens but are structures that help conviction become action.

We must also create benchmarks for our walk with the Lord. A person can review media habits weekly to see if they are drifting into ungodly pollution of the heart. A couple can review their family altar and finances. A worker can ask, “Am I still serving sincerely, or have I become casual?” Beloved, commitments to God must be remembered, protected, and lived.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Reject casual Christianity: Do not reduce faith to songs, emotional vows, quotable quotes posting on social media or religious language without heart-felt commitments and genuine obedience.
- Count the cost of discipleship: Serving God requires holiness, surrender, separation, humility, obedience, and total allegiance.
- Put away strange gods: Remove every habit, relationship, ambition, secret sin, and attachment that competes with God.

- Profess Christ boldly: Do not hide your faith in the workplace, campus, professional gatherings, or online spaces.
- Let your life support your confession: Public faith must be matched with genuine holiness, integrity, and purity.
- Stand for truth wisely: Be bold without being rude, firm without being proud, and gracious without compromising.
- Reject eye-service: Serve as unto the Lord, not to impress leaders, gain titles, or receive applause.
- Serve with excellence: Prepare well, arrive on time, keep records, follow up people, communicate clearly, and treat God's work with honour.
- Let commitment outlive emotion: Do not abandon vows after the atmosphere changes. Keep obeying after the meeting, retreat, or convention ends.
- Build stones of witness: Use journaling, accountability, mentorship, family altars, spiritual reviews, and documented commitments to preserve your decisions.
- Stay accountable: Allow godly people to ask you questions that help preserve your walk with God.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why did Joshua challenge the people after they enthusiastically said, "We will serve the LORD"?
2. What are the signs of casual Christianity in our generation?
3. What does it mean that God is holy and jealous?
4. Why must our faith be public, bold, visible, and without shame? How can TACEFites stand for Christ in workplaces, campuses, communities, and professional spaces without being rude or proud?
5. Why do spiritual decisions often fade after emotional moments?
6. What practical benchmarks or self trackers can help TACEFites remain faithful in serving the Lord.

Personal Reflection

Am I serving God sincerely, or am I practising casual Christianity? Do I only confess Christ when it is convenient, or am I willing to obey Him when it is costly? Are there strange gods, hidden idols, secret habits, ungodly relationships, or worldly attachments that I must put away in my life? Am I bold about my faith in the workplace, campus, community, family, professional spaces, and online platforms? Does my life clearly show that I belong to Christ? Am I silent because I want to blend in, avoid mockery, or maintain certain relationships? Do I serve with eye-service or from the heart?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, deliver me from casual Christianity and shallow confession. Lord, help me to understand the weight of true discipleship and serve You in sincerity and truth.
2. Father, give me grace to put away every strange god, hidden idol, secret habit, and ungodly attachment.
3. Lord, make me bold and unashamed in my profession of faith. Father, help me to stand for truth in my school, workplace, campus, community, professional spaces, and public life.
4. Lord, raise TACEFites as bold faith champions, apostles in workplaces, campuses, communities, and nations.
5. Lord, teach me to serve from the heart, as unto You and not unto men.
6. Lord, let my life become a living witness that I have chosen You and will not deny You.

Week 45: Monday, 5 July 2027 to Sunday, 11 July 2027

Tarry Week for Reflections and Prayer

Daily Reflective Prayer Declarations

Monday, 5 July 2027

- I will take good heed unto myself. I will not assume that past victories, spiritual activities or visibility mean my heart is still burning for God. Father, keep me rooted and grounded in the love of Christ.
- I will guard my love for the Lord because spiritual drift begins in the heart before it appears in everyday living. Lord, deliver me from secret compromise, bitterness, worldly appetite, and every small compromise that can grow into backsliding.
- I will not ignore the warning of the Holy Spirit. Father, help me to deal with temptations early, reject self-justification, restore spiritual sensitivity, and never sear my conscience.

Tuesday, 6 July 2027

- I will not cleave to wrong associations. I will not allow friendships, emotional attachments, entertainment, social media habits, professional gatherings, reunions, or partnerships to become snares, traps, scourges, and thorns in my walk with God.
- Lord, give me discernment in this crooked world. Let no movie, comedy, music, social media content, digital game, or ungodly environment weaken my consecration.
- I believe that You will always provide a way of escape. Father, make my heart tender to your warnings through Your Word, the Holy Spirit, godly counsel, conscience, or an inner check.

Wednesday, 7 July 2027

- I am in covenant relationship with God. My life, body, time, money, relationships, ambitions, home, ministry, business, and future belong to the Lord who bought me at a price.
- I will not do wickedly against the covenant of the Lord. Father, deliver me from secret sin, dishonesty, ungodly relationships, and every compromise that dishonours the Lord.
- Not one thing has failed of all the good things the Lord has spoken. I will remember where God brought me from, the prayers He answered, the doors He opened, the battles He won, the mercies He showed, and the grace that made me nigh by the blood of Christ.

Thursday, 8 July 2027

- Covenant privilege carries covenant responsibility. I will not allow promotion, relocation, marriage, business growth, comfort, or open doors to disconnect me from God.
- I will honour marital covenant before God. Father, make every TACEF home faithful, truthful, peaceful, and covenant-keeping. Deliver our homes from secrecy, emotional attachments, divided lives, and every pathway to betrayal.
- I will guard covenant boundaries in all my relationships and emotional life. Lord, let every husband and wife walk in the fear of God, purity, forgiveness, and sincere love.

Friday, 9 July 2027

- I choose the Lord personally and daily. I will not live only on the faith, sacrifice, and convictions of fathers, mothers, leaders, or past generations. Father, help me to choose You consistently and at all times and in all things.
- I surrender my will to the will of God. Like Jesus, I receive grace to declare, "Not my will, but thine, be done."
- As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord. Father, restore household altars, family prayers, family fasting, family discipleship, and spiritual culture in TACEF homes. Make our homes centres of counsel, peace, and revival.

Saturday, 10 July 2027

- I will not practise casual Christianity. Father, deliver me from shallow faith, spiritual identity without surrender, and service without holiness.
- I will profess Christ boldly and without shame. I will not hide my faith in the workplace, campus, community, professional space, public life, or online space.
- I will not serve with eye-service as a menpleaser. I am a servant of Christ, called to do the will of God from the heart. Father, make my service sincere, accountable, excellent, consistent, and acceptable before You.

Week 46: Monday. 12 July 2027 to Sunday. 18 July 2027

Title: Joshua's Death: Raising Successors for Lasting Revival

Bible Texts: Joshua 24:29-31; Judges 2:7-10; Ephesians 4:11-16

Bible Texts

Joshua 24:29-31: 29 And it came to pass after these things, that Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of the LORD, died, being an hundred and ten years old. 30 And they buried him in the border of his inheritance in Timnathserah, which is in mount Ephraim, on the north side of the hill of Gaash. 31 And Israel served the LORD all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders that overlived Joshua, and which had known all the works of the LORD, that he had done for Israel.

Judges 2:7-10: 7 And the people served the LORD all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders that outlived Joshua, who had seen all the great works of the LORD, that he did for Israel. 8 And Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of the LORD, died, being an hundred and ten years old. 9 And they buried him in the border of his inheritance in Timnathheres, in the mount of Ephraim, on the north side of the hill Gaash. 10 And also all that generation were gathered unto their fathers: and there arose another generation after them, which knew not the LORD, nor yet the works which he had done for Israel.

Ephesians 4:11-16: 11 And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; 12 For the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ: 13 Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ: 14 That we henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive; 15 But speaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things, which is the head, even Christ: 16 From whom the whole body fitly joined together and compacted by that which every joint supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure of every part, maketh increase of the body unto the edifying of itself in love.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of the LORD, died.
- Israel served the LORD all the days of Joshua.
- And all the days of the elders that over lived Joshua.
- There arose another generation after them.
- Which knew not the LORD.
- He gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers.
- For the perfecting of the saints.
- For the edifying of the body of Christ.
- No more children, tossed to and fro.

Introduction

At this point in Israel's journey, Joshua died. He had served the purpose of God in his generation. He had followed Moses, carried the burden of leadership, led Israel across Jordan, fought the battles of possession, divided the inheritance, warned the people, renewed covenant commitment, and finished his course. Scripture honoured him as "the servant of the LORD." Yet, his death taught a very serious lesson that leaders would finish their course, but the purpose of God must not die with them.

Joshua's life had great influence. Israel served the Lord all the days of Joshua and all the days of the elders that outlived him, those who had known the works of the Lord. But Judges later recorded one of the saddest statements in Scripture: "There arose another generation after them, which knew not the LORD, nor yet the works which he had done for Israel." This means that a generation can enjoy revival, witness miracles, inherit testimonies, and still fail to raise another generation that knows the Lord personally. When the realities of God are not deliberately transferred, a people can move from revival legacy to spiritual ignorance.

This is a major warning to the house of TACEF. The revival mandate must not die with one generation of leaders, executives, ministers, or intercessors. God's work is bigger than one person, one leader, one fellowship, one family, or one generation.

If the next generation only hears stories of past revival and moves of God without personal encounter, deep discipleship, and spiritual responsibility, they may inherit structures without fire. They may inherit songs with no burden. They may inherit activities with no encounter.

Ephesians gives us the pattern for continuity. Christ is the Head of the Church, and He gives ministry gifts for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, and for the edifying of the body. This means leaders are not given to gather dependants around themselves forever. They are given to equip saints until the body matures and every part supplies its measure. A healthy revival movement is not personality-dependent but it is Christ-centred, Word-rooted, Spirit-empowered, and disciple-making. Therefore, this week calls TACEFites into radical discipleship. Every local fellowship must become a training ground. Everyone associated with the vision of revival must be taught, mentored, assigned, supervised, corrected, encouraged, and released into responsible service. Every leader must ask, "Who am I raising? Who will carry this burden after me? Who is learning the way of the Lord through my life?" True revival is preserved when disciples become disciple-makers.

Teachings

1. Leaders Finish Their Course, but God's Movement Must Not Die with Them: Joshua died after serving God faithfully. This is a sobering truth because no matter how anointed, gifted, committed, or beloved a leader may be, every human vessel has a season. Moses died. Joshua died. The elders died. Leaders may change, executives may rotate, ministers may be transferred, campus leaders may graduate, brethren may relocate, and parents may grow old, but the purpose of God must continue. This is why no revival movement should depend only on one person or group of persons. When a work depends entirely on one leader's charisma, presence, energy, sacrifice, or authority, the work becomes weak and fragile. If that person travels, relocates, changes role, or dies, the movement may suffer because the burden was not properly transferred. God's work is too precious to be held only in one hand.

Joshua was a great leader, but Israel still needed continuity beyond Joshua. The people served the Lord during his lifetime and during the lifetime of the elders who had seen the works of God. This shows the power of godly leadership and living witnesses. When those who know God are present, they can preserve truth, correct error, inspire faith, and remind the people of God's dealings. But if those witnesses do not raise others who also know the Lord, the next generation may become spiritually empty. The great house of TACEF must therefore refuse personality-dependent revival. We must definitely honour fathers, mothers, leaders, and pioneers, but we must not build the work around human personality. Christ is the Head. The vision belongs to the Lord. Leaders are vessels, not owners. They are stewards, not substitutes for Christ. When leaders are celebrated more than Christ, the next generation may inherit admiration without conviction.

2. The Tragedy of a Generation That Knows Not the Lord: Judges says, "There arose another generation after them, which knew not the LORD, nor yet the works which he had done for Israel." This is one of the saddest outcomes after a season of great divine visitation. A people who crossed Jordan, saw Jericho fall, experienced victories, and entered inheritance still produced a later generation that did not know the Lord. The problem was not that the earlier generation had no testimonies but the problem was that those testimonies did not become personal knowledge of God in the next generation. There is a difference between hearing about God and knowing God like we studied in our last spiritual year. A child may hear that God answered the prayers of his parents, but still not know the Lord personally. A young TACEFite may hear stories of past conventions, revivals, missions, and sacrifices, but still not have an encounter with Christ. A new member may enjoy fellowship activities, but still not be grounded in salvation, holiness, prayer, and the Word. A young person may inherit a Christian family name, but not inherit the fear of God.

This is the danger of revival move without discipleship. The next generation may know our songs but not our tears. They may know our programmes but not our burden. They may know our fellowship vision as quotable quotes but not our covenant. They may know our leaders but not our Lord. They may know our testimonies but not the God who gave them. When this happens, a movement can remain busy while spiritual reality fades. Apostle Paul understood this danger. He told Timothy to commit the truth to faithful men who would be able to teach others also. This is the principle of generational transfer. Paul taught Timothy. Timothy was to teach faithful men. Those faithful men were to teach others also. Truth must not stop with the person who received it. The failure to raise a generation that knows the Lord can happen in homes, churches, fellowships, and ministries. Parents can be active in church while their children are spiritually neglected. Leaders can organise programmes while young members remain undisciplined. Ministers can preach to crowds but fail to raise faithful workers. Fellowship executives can run activities but leave no successors. Therefore, we must intentionally bring the next generation into salvation, encounter, holiness, and most importantly, a personal knowledge of Christ.

3. Discipleship Preserves Continuity by Intentionally Raising Successors: Discipleship is the deliberate process of helping people know Christ, grow in Christ, become like Christ, serve Christ, and reproduce the life of Christ in others. It is more than teaching a class. It is more than inviting someone to a programme. It is more than giving someone a role. Discipleship is formation which shapes belief, character, habits, choices, service, doctrine, discipline, and burden. Jesus did not only preach to crowds, He made disciples. He called them, stayed with them, taught them, corrected them, sent them, rebuked them, explained truth to them, modelled prayer before them, and entrusted responsibility to them. Discipleship therefore requires nearness, patience, truth, love, example, correction, repetition, and responsibility. It is a very intentional labour.

The principles of discipleship are very practical. First, discipleship begins with salvation. People must know the Lord personally. We must not assume that everyone attending fellowship is born again. Second, discipleship grounds people in the Word of God. A disciple must know what Scripture teaches, not only what popular culture says. Third, discipleship builds spiritual disciplines: prayer, study, fasting, fellowship, obedience, evangelism, giving, and service. Fourth, discipleship shapes character, that is, humility, truthfulness, purity, patience, faithfulness, teachability, and love. Fifth, discipleship involves correction. A disciple who cannot be corrected cannot be properly formed. Correction must be done with love, but it must not be avoided. Sixth, discipleship involves assignment. People grow by doing. A new believer can learn to pray, follow up, serve, teach children, support outreach, and help others under supervision. Seventh, discipleship involves accountability. Someone must ask, "How are you growing? How is your prayer life? Are you walking in holiness? What are you learning?" Eighth, discipleship involves reproduction. A disciple must eventually help disciple others.

4. The Heart and Lifestyle of a Discippler Must Be Worth Following: A discipler is not only someone who teaches; a discipler is someone whose life helps others follow Christ. Paul said, "Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ." This is the heart of true discipleship. The discipler does not draw people to himself or herself. The discipler says, "Follow me only as I follow Christ." The life of the discipler must point to Christ, not replace Christ. The heart of a discipler must be filled with love because discipleship is not control, manipulation, or the desire to gather followers around oneself. It is spiritual parenting that carries burden, patience, sacrifice, and compassion. A discipler must love people enough to teach them, correct them, forgive them, encourage them, and continue with them as they grow. Disciples do not mature in one day. Some will be slow. Some will make mistakes. Some will need repeated teaching. The discipler must carry the heart of Christ.

The lifestyle of a discipler must also be credible. People should be able to observe the discipler's prayer life, humility, purity, faithfulness, service, speech, family life, stewardship, and response to correction. A discipler who teaches holiness but lives carelessly will weaken disciples. A discipler who teaches humility but is proud will confuse followers. A discipler who teaches service but avoids sacrifice will raise careless workers. Life is a better curriculum than words. This does not mean a discipler must be perfect but he or she must be sincere, teachable, repentant, accountable, and growing. When a discipler makes a mistake, he or she must be humble enough to acknowledge it. When corrected, the discipler must not become defensive. Disciples learn not only from our victories but also from how we handle weaknesses with humility and truth. The discipler must also avoid making disciples dependent on his or her personality. The goal is to connect people to Christ. True disciplers raise people who can hear God, obey the Word, serve faithfully, submit, and disciple others. They are not threatened when others grow. They rejoice when disciples become fruitful.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Do not let the work die with you: Share burdens, document processes, train others, and raise successors before transition comes.
- Avoid personality-dependent revival: Honour leaders, but keep Christ as the Head and centre of the work.
- Raise the next generation intentionally: Children, teenagers, youths, new members, and young workers must be taught, mentored, corrected, and released into service.
- Do not assume people know the Lord: Teach salvation, assurance, holiness, prayer, the Word, fellowship, and personal encounter with Christ.
- Create service pipelines: Welcome new members, identify gifts, assign mentors, give small responsibilities, supervise, and release gradually.
- Practise full discipleship: Disciple belief, character, prayer life, service, stewardship, and relationships.
- Use correction as formation: Correct with love, patience, clarity, and truth. Do not avoid correction because it is uncomfortable.

- Let disciples grow by doing: Give people opportunities to serve under supervision instead of waiting until they appear perfect.
- Disciple at home: Parents and guardians must raise children who know the Lord personally, not only children who attend church.
- Live a followable life: Let your lifestyle, speech, humility, holiness, marriage, service, sacrifice, and accountability point people to Christ.
- Raise disciple-makers: Do not only gather people around yourself. Train them to disciple others.

Questions for Discussion

1. What does Joshua's death teach us about leadership, succession, and continuity in the work of God? Why must God's movement not depend only on one leader, executive, minister, teacher, or visible vessel?
2. Why is the statement "there arose another generation after them, which knew not the LORD" so serious?
3. How can homes, local fellowships, and ministries unintentionally raise a generation that does not know the Lord?
4. How should we manage a reported case involving a sister who refers to certain brethren as her "spiritual children" and expects their personal loyalty, including involvement in their decisions and attendance at any meeting she calls, even when fellowship programmes are taking place? Does biblical discipleship give a discipler ownership or control over disciples, especially when their loyalty to the discipler appears to compete with their commitment to Christ and the broader fellowship?
5. What is discipleship, and why is it more than teaching a class or giving someone a role?
6. Why must the lifestyle of a discipler be worth following?

Personal Reflection

Am I carrying any God-given burden, responsibility, knowledge, skill, or spiritual assignment that I have not transferred to others? If I leave my current role, will the work continue? Am I building continuity, or am I unconsciously making the work depend on me? Do I know the Lord personally, or am I only living on the stories, sacrifices, and convictions of others? Am I helping the next generation know God for themselves? Who am I discipling? Am I raising people who can teach others also? Is my life followable? Can people learn Christ by watching me? Am I pointing people to Christ or drawing them to myself? What must change in my life so that I can become a faithful discipler?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, help me to serve my generation faithfully and raise successors for lasting revival.
2. Lord, let Your work not die in my hands or end with my generation. Lord, raise faithful successors in every local fellowship, subgroup, ministry, campus, church, family, and mission field.
3. Father, do not let another generation arise among us and after us that knows not the Lord. Lord, bring our children, teenagers, youths, and everyone associated with us into personal encounter with You.
4. Father, make every TACEF fellowship a training ground where believers are taught, mentored, corrected, encouraged, and released into service.
5. Father, help my life to be followable as I follow Christ.
6. Lord, preserve the revival legacy You have committed to TACEF and carry it into the next generation with greater fire, truth, holiness, and fruitfulness.

Week 46 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 12 July 2027

- Leaders finish their course, but God's purpose must not die with them. Joshua died, yet the burden of covenant faithfulness had to continue.
- I will not make the work of God depend only on me. I will share burdens, train others, disciple the next generation, and raise successors.
- Father, help me to serve my generation faithfully and prepare others to continue the work after me.

Tuesday, 13 July 2027

- I will not allow revival to become personality-dependent. Christ is the Head of the Church, not any human leader, executive, or minister.
- I will honour leaders without replacing Christ with human personality. The vision belongs to the Lord.
- Father, keep TACEF Christ-centred, Word-rooted, Spirit-empowered, and disciple-making.

Wednesday, 14 July 2027

- Another generation must not arise among us or after us that knows not the Lord. Our children, teenagers, youths, and everyone associated with us must know God personally.
- I will not be satisfied with stories of past revival without present encounter of salvation.
- Lord, bring the next generation into personal knowledge of You and the works You have done.

Thursday, 15 July 2027

- Discipleship preserves continuity. I will not only gather people; I will help them know Christ, grow in Christ, serve Christ, and reproduce Christ in others.
- I receive grace to teach, mentor, correct, encourage, and release others into faithful service.
- Father, make me a disciple-maker who commits truth to faithful people who can teach others also.

Friday, 16 July 2027

- Every part of the body must supply its measure. The saints must be perfected for the work of ministry and for the edifying of the body of Christ.
- I will help raise service pipelines in my fellowship, home, subgroup, campus, local church, and ministry.
- Lord, let every TACEF member be discipled, equipped, matured, and released into responsible service.

Saturday, 17 July 2027

- My life must be followable as I follow Christ. I will not only teach with words but will teach with prayer, humility, holiness, discipline, and sacrifice.
- I will not draw disciples to myself. I will point them to Christ, the Word of God, the Spirit, and the mission.
- Father, make my life a faithful example, and use me to raise disciples who will carry revival into the next generation.

Week 47: Monday, 19 July 2027 to Sunday, 25 July 2027

Title: The Bones of Joseph: The Resurrection of the Dead and End-Time Truths

Bible Texts: Joshua 24:32; Genesis 50:24-26; Hebrews 11:22; Ephesians 1:9-11

Bible Texts

Joshua 24:32: 32 And the bones of Joseph, which the children of Israel brought up out of Egypt, buried they in Shechem, in a parcel of ground which Jacob bought of the sons of Hamor the father of Shechem for an hundred pieces of silver: and it became the inheritance of the children of Joseph.

Genesis 50:24-26: 24 And Joseph said unto his brethren, I die: and God will surely visit you, and bring you out of this land unto the land which he sware to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob. 25 And Joseph took an oath of the children of Israel, saying, God will surely visit you, and ye shall carry up my bones from hence. 26 So, Joseph died, being an hundred and ten years old: and they embalmed him, and he was put in a coffin in Egypt.

Hebrews 11:22: 22 By faith Joseph, when he died, made mention of the departing of the children of Israel; and gave commandment concerning his bones.

Ephesians 1:9-11: 9 Having made known unto us the mystery of his will, according to his good pleasure which he hath purposed in himself: 10 That in the dispensation of the fulness of times he might gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven, and which are on earth; even in him: 11 In whom also we have obtained an inheritance, being predestinated according to the purpose of him who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- The bones of Joseph, which the children of Israel brought up out of Egypt.
- God will surely visit you.
- Ye shall carry up my bones from hence.
- By faith Joseph, when he died...gave commandment concerning his bones.
- Having made known unto us the mystery of his will.
- According to his good pleasure which he hath purposed in himself.
- In the dispensation of the fulness of times.
- He might gather together in one all things in Christ.

Introduction

Our 52-week Bible study this week brings us to a short but deeply prophetic verse in Joshua 24: “And the bones of Joseph, which the children of Israel brought up out of Egypt, buried they in Shechem.” On the surface, this may look like a simple burial record, but it carries a deep spiritual meaning and application to us as God’s end-time army. Joseph died in Egypt, but before his death, he made a request concerning his bones. He said, “God will surely visit you,” and commanded that when God brought Israel out of Egypt, they should carry his bones with them. Hebrews later tells us that this instruction was an act of faith: “By faith Joseph, when he died, made mention of the departing of the children of Israel; and gave commandment concerning his bones.” Joseph lived in Egypt with honour, influence, wealth, status, and royal access, but he knew Egypt was not his final home. He had seen greatness in Egypt, but his heart remained tied to the promise God gave Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. His bones became his final testimony that God would keep His covenant. He could not physically walk out of Egypt with Israel, but his bones would travel with them. His coffin became a silent witness that Egypt was not the end of the story and that death could not cancel the promise of God.

This is why Joseph’s bones are more than a family burial matter. They teach us about faith beyond death, covenant hope, resurrection expectation, and end-time readiness. Every time Israel carried Joseph’s bones through the wilderness, they were carrying a testimony that God’s promises outlive human’s breath. Joseph was saying, “Do not leave me in Egypt, because God will surely visit you.” His bones were a physical prophecy that the grave is not the believer’s final location. Death is not the end. The body may be buried, but the story of the redeemed is not finished. There is a resurrection of the dead, and the saints shall rise.

Ephesians tells us that God has made known unto us the mystery of His will, and that in the fullness of times He will gather together in one all things in Christ, both in heaven and on earth. This means God has an eternal plan. The exodus, the wilderness journey, the burial of Joseph's bones, the resurrection of Christ, the hope of the saints, the rapture, the second coming, the millennial reign, final judgement, and the new heavens and new earth all sit within God's sovereign purpose. He works all things after the counsel of His own will. Therefore, this week calls every TACEFite to live like Joseph: faithful in Egypt, but not owned by Egypt; useful in the present world, but not trapped by the present world; blessed here, but prepared for the eternal inheritance. We must live with resurrection hope. We must understand the end-time truths of Scripture. We must prepare for the coming of the Lord. We must not make this world our final home.

Teachings

1. Joseph's Bones Were a Declaration That Egypt Was Not His Final Home: Joseph died in Egypt, but he refused to let Egypt define his final resting place. He had risen to a place of great influence in Egypt. He was second in command to King Pharaoh. Yet, at the end of his life, his heart was still in the promise of God. He said, "God will surely visit you, and bring you out of this land." This statement showed that Joseph's faith was not swallowed by his success. This is a strong lesson for TACEFites. God can lift a believer in "Egypt" that is, in the systems, structures, nations, careers, institutions, and platforms of this present world, but the believer must not forget our true identity that we are citizens of heaven on a short pilgrimage on earth. Joseph served excellently in Egypt, but he did not become an Egyptian in covenant identity. He worked in Egypt, but his hope was not in Egypt. He succeeded in Egypt, but his future remained tied to the covenant of God.

This is an important area where many believers struggle. When God blesses them with education, promotion, relocation, influence, wealth, business growth, public honour, or ministry lifting, they begin to settle in this present world as if it is their final home. They forget that we are pilgrims. They begin to live as if comfort, status, and earthly success are the final definition of life. But Joseph's attitude teaches us to enjoy God's blessing, serve faithfully where He places you, but do not forget your eternal home. Joseph's instruction concerning his bones was his vote of absolute confidence in the promise of God. He believed that God would surely visit Israel. He believed the exodus would happen, even though he would not live to see it in the flesh. He believed that his body belonged in the land of promise, not in Egypt. This was faith beyond his lifetime. It was faith that looked past death, past delay, past slavery, past wilderness, and into the fulfillment of God's word.

2. Joseph's Bones Preach the Resurrection of the Dead: Joseph's bones travelling through the wilderness served as a lesson to Israel. For many years, the children of Israel carried the remains of a man through the wilderness for forty long years. Every time they saw that coffin, they were reminded that God's covenant was stronger than death. Joseph was dead, but his faith was still speaking. His bones were saying, "God will surely visit you." His bones were saying, "Egypt is not our final resting place." His bones were saying, "Death does not have the final word." This points us to the truth of resurrection. The believer does not see death the way the world sees death. Death is real and painful, but for the redeemed, it is not final defeat. The body may be laid in the ground, but God has not finished with the body. Scripture teaches that the dead in Christ shall rise. The same Lord who raised Jesus from the dead will also raise the saints. The grave is not the final home of the believer but a temporary waiting place until the voice of the Son of God calls the dead to rise.

Joseph's burial in Shechem also teaches that the body matters. The Christian hope is not only that the soul goes to be with the Lord; it also includes the resurrection of the body. God created the body, redeemed the believer, and will raise the body in glory. This is why the resurrection of Christ is central to our faith. If Christ is risen, then those who sleep in Him shall also rise. The resurrection of Jesus is the firstfruits and the guarantee of the believer's resurrection.

This truth should comfort the Church because loved ones who die in Christ are not lost forever and the saints who slept in the Lord are not forgotten. Their bodies may return to the dust, but the Lord knows His own. At the sound of the trumpet, the dead in Christ shall rise first, and living believers shall be caught up together with them to meet the Lord in the air. This is our blessed hope and therefore we must not fear death like those who have no hope. It also means we must not live anyhow. If there is resurrection, then holiness matters. If there is resurrection, then every TACEFite must live ready for the coming of the Lord.

3. God's Eternal Plan Will Gather All Things in Christ: Ephesians 1:10 says that in the dispensation of the fullness of times, God will gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven and which are on earth. This is one of the deepest statements about the end of all things because all history is moving towards Christ. The promises to Israel, the resurrection of the saints, the judgement of evil, the renewal of creation, and the eternal inheritance of the redeemed all find their fulfillment in Him. While Joseph's bones were buried in Shechem, in the land of promise, the burial was not the end of the story. The land itself points to inheritance, the inheritance points to covenant, and covenant points to Christ. Christ is the One in whom all the promises of God find their fulfillment. He is the risen Lord, the Head of the Church, the coming King, and the One in whom all things will be gathered. This gives every believer confidence that God does not abandon His promises.

This also gives meaning to our labour. When we preach the gospel, we are participating in God's eternal plan to gather people into Christ. When we live holy, we are declaring that this world is not our final home. When we bury a saint in hope, we are saying that resurrection is coming. When we endure suffering for Christ, we are saying that eternal glory is greater than present pain. Every TACEF revival army must therefore be an eternity-conscious army. Our fellowships, homes, ministries, missions, prayer meetings, evangelism, and discipleship must be shaped by the coming of the Lord. We must therefore raise Christians who only want earthly blessings but have no burden for heaven.

4. The Seven Major Events of the Last Days: This section revisits the major end-time truths we studied in our last spiritual year as a reminder of the same burden of living like Joseph, knowing that this present world is not our final home. These truths are not given to frighten us, but to awaken holiness, readiness, and eternal perspective.

- The Rapture - The Sudden Gathering of the Saints: The rapture is the sudden catching away of the saints to meet the Lord. Scripture says, "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout... and the dead in Christ shall rise first." Then living believers shall be caught up together with them to meet the Lord in the air. The rapture will happen like a thief coming in the night.
- The Marriage Supper of the Lamb - The Celebration of the Redeemed: The Marriage Supper of the Lamb is the heavenly celebration of Christ and His redeemed Church who were taken up during Rapture. It reminds us that holiness, faithfulness, and endurance are not in vain. The Bride must make herself ready. Every labour, sacrifice, purity, service, and obedience done for Christ will be remembered.
- The Tribulation - A Period of Great Sorrow and Judgement: The tribulation will be a time of great distress, deception, and judgement upon the earth after true believers have been raptured. Scripture speaks of great trouble, false worship, global control, and severe pressure on those left behind. We should not study this with curiosity only, but with holy seriousness. If such judgement is coming upon a Christ-rejecting world, then we must preach the gospel urgently and live ready for the Lord.
- The Second Coming of Christ - The Triumphant Return of the King: The second coming is the visible, glorious return of Christ to the earth. Unlike the rapture, where believers are caught up to meet the Lord, the second coming reveals Christ openly as King and Judge. He will defeat evil, judge the nations, and establish His righteous reign.
- The Millennial Reign of Christ - Christ's One Thousand-Year Reign on Earth: After His return, Christ will reign on earth in righteousness. Satan will be bound, and the earth will experience divine government, justice, peace, and restoration. Faithful saints will reign with Him. This teaches us that present faithfulness prepares us for future responsibility.
- The Final Judgement - Eternal Separation of the Righteous and the Wicked: The final judgement reveals the seriousness of eternity. Those whose names are not found in the book of life will face eternal judgement. This is not a subject for careless argument but a call to repentance, evangelism, holiness, and compassion for the lost. Every believer must never be casual about souls. Hell is real, judgement is real, and salvation in Christ is the only hope.
- The New Heavens and the New Earth - The Eternal Dwelling of the Saints: The new heavens and the new earth are the final dwelling of the redeemed. God will dwell with His people. Sin, death, sorrow, pain, and tears will be gone forever. This is the believer's eternal home. Joseph knew Egypt was not his home, and we must also know that this present world is not our final home. Our hope is eternal, and this hope should make us holy, joyful, steadfast, and fruitful.

These seven events form a divine timeline of God's eternal plan. TACEFites must therefore live with eternity in view, preach Christ with urgency, and help many others prepare for the coming of the Lord.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Live like Joseph: Serve faithfully where God places you, but do not let the present world own your heart.
- Remember that Egypt is not home: Your career, relocation, business, marriage, property, and earthly success must not replace eternal hope.
- Build resurrection consciousness: Let the hope of resurrection shape your holiness, courage, comfort, and service.

- Prepare for the coming of Christ: Do not live carelessly. Watch, pray, and keep your garments clean.
- Preach with eternity in view: Speak to sinners, follow up converts, and disciple believers because judgement and eternity are real.
- Teach end-time truths carefully: Do not use end-time events to frighten people, but to awaken holiness, readiness, and mission.
- Comfort the grieving with resurrection hope: The dead in Christ are not forgotten. The saints shall rise.
- Raise eternity-conscious homes: Teach every believer about heaven, judgement, resurrection, and the return of Christ.
- Help others prepare: Do not think of making heaven alone. Carry as many souls as possible into the kingdom.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why did Joseph give instructions concerning his bones before he died? What does Joseph's request teach us about faith beyond death?
2. How did Joseph's bones become a testimony that Egypt was not Israel's final home?
3. Why is the resurrection of the body important to Christian faith?
4. How should resurrection hope affect the way believers live, serve, grieve, and face death?
5. Why must end-time truths produce holiness and readiness rather than fear, argument, or curiosity?
6. Why must TACEFites live as pilgrims and not as permanent citizens of this present world?

Personal Reflection

Am I living like Joseph, faithful in the present world but conscious that this world is not my final home? Have I allowed Egypt to own my heart through career, money, pleasure, status, comfort, or ambition? Does the hope of resurrection shape how I handle grief, fear, and suffering? Am I living as someone who expects the trumpet to sound now for rapture, or am I spiritually careless? Am I ready for the coming of the Lord? Are there sins, habits, relationships, or distractions that must be dealt with in my life as a bride of Christ? Am I helping others prepare for eternity?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, help me to live like Joseph, faithful in this present world but fully anchored in Your eternal promise.
2. Lord, deliver me from allowing Egypt to own my heart.
3. Lord, help me to live ready for the rapture and the coming of Christ.
4. Lord, comfort every grieving believer with the hope that the dead in Christ shall rise.
5. Father, help me not to build my life only around temporary success, comfort, status, and earthly gain.
6. Father, give me burden for souls. Do not let me think of making heaven alone.

Week 47 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 19 July 2027

- Joseph lived in Egypt, but Egypt did not own his heart. I will serve faithfully where God has placed me, but I will not forget that this world is not my final home.
- Joseph said, "God will surely visit you." I believe that every promise of God will come to pass, even when fulfillment appears delayed.
- Father, give me forward-looking faith that lives by Your promise and not by present comfort.

Tuesday, 20 July 2027

- Joseph gave commandment concerning his bones by faith. Even in death, his testimony declared that God would bring His people into inheritance.
- I will not build my life around temporary success, money, title, career, property, or comfort.
- Lord, let my life testify that my hope is in You and in the eternal inheritance You have prepared.

Wednesday, 21 July 2027

- Joseph's bones remind me that death does not have the final word. The grave is not the final home of the redeemed.

- I believe in the resurrection of the dead. The dead in Christ shall rise, and the saints of God shall be gathered unto the Lord.
- Father, strengthen my heart with resurrection hope and deliver me from fear, despair, and careless living.

Thursday, 22 July 2027

- God has made known the mystery of His will. All human history point towards Christ, and in the fullness of times, God will gather together in one all things in Him.
- I will live with eternity in view. I will not allow the world, sin, pleasure, or comfort to distract me from the coming of the Lord.
- Lord, make me watchful, holy, prayerful, and ready.

Friday, 23 July 2027

- The end-time truths of Scripture must produce holiness, readiness, and eternal consciousness in me.
- The rapture, second coming, judgement, resurrection, and new heavens and new earth remind me that eternity is real.
- Father, let these truths awaken urgency, purity, and compassion for the lost in my heart.

Saturday, 24 July 2027

- I will not think of making heaven alone. I will preach Christ, follow up souls, disciple believers, and help others prepare for eternity.
- My labour in the Lord is not in vain. Every prayer, witness, and act of obedience has eternal meaning.
- Lord, make every TACEFite a resurrection-minded and eternity-conscious soldier, carrying many souls into Your kingdom.

Week 48: Monday, 26 July 2027 to Sunday, 1 August 2027

Title: The Priesthood of Eleazar: Standing As A Revival Priest Across Generations

Bible Texts: Joshua 24:33; Exodus 19:5-6; Numbers 16:46-48; Ephesians 2:19-22; Ephesians 4:1-6

Bible Texts

Joshua 24:33: 33 And Eleazar the son of Aaron died; and they buried him in a hill that pertained to Phinehas his son, which was given him in mount Ephraim.

Exodus 19:5-6: 5 Now therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people: for all the earth is mine: 6 And ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests, and an holy nation. These are the words which thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel.

Numbers 16:46-48: 46 And Moses said unto Aaron, Take a censer, and put fire therein from off the altar, and put on incense, and go quickly unto the congregation, and make an atonement for them: for there is wrath gone out from the LORD; the plague is begun. 47 And Aaron took as Moses commanded, and ran into the midst of the congregation; and, behold, the plague was begun among the people: and he put on incense, and made an atonement for the people. 48 And he stood between the dead and the living; and the plague was stayed.

Ephesians 2:19-22: 19 Now, therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellowcitizens with the saints, and of the household of God; 20 And are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone; 21 In whom all the building fitly framed together groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord: 22 In whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit.

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- Eleazar the son of Aaron died.
- Ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests.
- And an holy nation.
- He stood between the dead and the living.
- The plague was stayed.
- Fellowcitizens with the saints.
- Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone.
- Groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord.
- An habitation of God through the Spirit.

Introduction

This week brings us to the burial of Eleazar, the son of Aaron. Joshua had died, Joseph's bones had been buried in Shechem, and now Eleazar, the high priest also died and was buried in the portion connected to Phinehas his son. This short record is not only a note about the end of a priest's life but a sober reminder that priesthood, intercession, and covenant responsibility must be preserved across generations. Joshua represented leadership in battle and inheritance. Eleazar represented priestly continuity, altar order, divine enquiry, covenant mediation, and the preservation of worship before the Lord. Eleazar's life reminds us that every move of God needs priests who will keep the altar fire burning. Revival move requires intercessors, burden-bearers, watchmen, consecrated servants, and men and women who understand how to stand before God on behalf of the people. However, we must also understand the larger purpose of God on how priests should function. While Eleazar belonged to the Aaronic priesthood, God's original plan for Israel was far broader because He said, "Ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests, and an holy nation." God wanted an entire people, and not one tribe (Levi) out of twelve tribes, who could walk in covenant access, holiness, and priestly nearness before Him.

Israel's fear at Sinai and later idolatry revealed the weakness of the people, and the priestly responsibility became structurally preserved through the tribe of Levi and the house of Aaron. Men like Aaron, Eleazar, and Phinehas became central to sustaining the altar, guarding the sanctuary, and bearing the burdens of the nation before God. Yet, the original plan remained that God desired a holy people who would live near Him.

This is important for all TACEFites. We must not outsource intimacy with God to ministers, leaders, or executives. Every believer must have a priestly identity. Every home must have priestly responsibility. Every local fellowship must become an altar of spiritual priests. Every TACEFite must know how to pray, stand in the gap, carry burdens, and connect heaven. Therefore, this week calls us to become a priestly revival army who must stand between the living and the dead through intercession. We must wear the spiritual garments of burden-bearing by carrying people on our shoulders and in our hearts before God. True revival is sustained when every believer understands the call to be a priest before God.

Teachings

1. From Eleazar to a Kingdom of Priests: Eleazar was the son of Aaron, the brother of Moses who was the first high priest in Israel. After Aaron died, Eleazar continued the work of the priesthood. In those days, priests had a very important role in Israel. They offered sacrifices for the sins of the people, taught the Word of God, cared for the things of God, and stood before God on behalf of the nation. They helped the people know how to worship God and remain in covenant with Him. So, when the Bible records the burial of Eleazar, it reminds us that priestly service was a major part of Israel's journey with God, and it was as important as reporting the death of Joshua. The role of priest is to help the nation of Israel remain close to God through the services at the altar. Without the altar, Israel would lose its spiritual centre. Without priests, the people could easily forget God, drift into sin, and lose the fear of the Lord. But God's original plan was even bigger than having only a few priests where only one tribe will serve as priests out of the twelve tribes. In Exodus 19:6, God told Israel, "Ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests, and an holy nation." This means God wanted the whole nation to know Him, walk with Him, obey Him, and function as priests with direct access. He did not want only Aaron, Eleazar, and the tribe of Levi to be close to Him while everyone else stayed far away. God wanted all His people to live near Him.

However, when Israel came to Mount Sinai, they were afraid at the glory of God. They stood far away and asked Moses to speak with God on their behalf. Later, when they made the golden calf, it showed that their hearts were not fully ready to live as a holy nation of priests. Because of this, God used the tribe of Levi and the family of Aaron to preserve the priestly work. What was meant to be available to all Israelites was now limited to a tribe and priests like Eleazar to keep the altar, sacrifices, worship, and teaching alive among His people. For us today, the lesson is clear. God does not want us to serve Him from a distance. Through Jesus Christ, every believer can come near to God. We do not need to depend only on ministers or leaders to pray, study the Word, hear God, or live holy. Every believer is called to know God personally and represent God wherever he or she is.

This means every TACEFite must see himself or herself as part of God's priestly people. We must not be distant followers of God.

2. The Priest as a Revival Intercessor Standing Between the Living and the Dead: One of the most powerful pictures of the role of a priest is the art of intercession as seen in Numbers 16. When judgement began to move through the congregation, Moses told Aaron to take a censer, put fire from the altar in it, put on incense, and go quickly to the people. Aaron did not stand far away analysing the crisis. He ran into the midst of the congregation with altar fire and incense. Scripture says, "And he stood between the dead and the living; and the plague was stayed." This is the heart of a revival intercessor. A priest does not watch spiritual decay with a critical spirit. A priest does not complain about a dying generation, dead altar, shrinking congregation, worldly members, careless youths, broken homes, corrupt institutions, failing churches, compromised leaders, or declining morality, but they run to the altar, take holy fire, carry incense, and stand in the gap in true intercession because every priest uses prayers to trigger divine intervention.

"To stand between the living and the dead" means to pray for people who may not yet know how to pray for themselves. It means to carry the burden of a family member drifting from God, intercede for children, teenagers, students, workers, ministers, fathers, mothers, churches, and nations. It also means to cry for mercy over others. It means to resist spiritual death through prayer, fasting, and tears. A revival intercessor must also act quickly. Moses said Aaron should "go quickly." The priestly army must discern urgency and respond quickly with prayer.

3. The Garments of the Priest - Carrying People on the Shoulders and in the Heart: The garments worn by high priest further explain the work of priests as they represent spiritual symbols of burden-bearing. In Exodus 28, the high priest carried the names of the tribes of Israel on onyx stones upon his shoulders and on precious stones in the breastplate over his heart. This means the priest did not enter the holy place as an individual but as a carrier of a people. He carried their names, their needs, their battles, their failures, and their hopes before God. The shoulder speaks of responsibility. To carry names on the shoulders means to bear the weight of others before God. The priest must be strong enough in God to carry burdens that are not convenient. This is what intercessors do. They carry families, fellowships, ministries, children, youths, leaders, the sick, the weak, the confused, the backsliding, the broken, and the unreached before the Lord. They do not drop the burden because it is heavy.

The breastplate over the heart speaks of love, affection, compassion, and intimate concern. The priest must not carry people only as assignments but must carry them with love. It is possible to carry responsibility without affection. It is possible to lead people without truly loving them. It is possible to pray mechanically without compassion. But priestly intercession requires both shoulder and heart, that is, strength and love, responsibility and compassion. This is important for every revival army in TACEF. We must carry people as priests. A fellowship coordinator must not only plan meetings but must carry souls in prayer. A children's teacher must not only teach lessons, but she must carry children before God in continued prayers.

Priestly garments also teach sustained intercession. The priest did not wear the stones only once. They were part of his priestly identity. In the same way, intercession is not something we do only during emergencies but a lifestyle. The burden of people must not disappear after one prayer meeting. Names must be remembered, families must be mentioned before God, struggling brethren must be carried, leaders must be prayed for, the weak must be strengthened, and the lost must be sought. Dear TACEFites, wear the spiritual garments of priesthood and let your shoulder be available for responsibility and your heart be alive with compassion.

4. Identificational Repentance - Carrying the Pain and Sin of the People Before God: True revival does not come through detached, finger-pointing prayers. A priest does not stand above the people in pride, saying, "Look at what they have done." A priest kneels before God and says, "We have sinned." This is the principle of identificational repentance. It means standing before God as part of the people we represent, confessing corporate guilt, crying for mercy, and asking God to heal what is broken. Daniel gives us a powerful example. He was personally faithful as an individual, yet when he prayed for Israel, he did not say, "They have sinned." He said, "We have sinned." Nehemiah did the same. Ezra also identified with the shame and failure of the people. These men did not excuse sin, but they did not pray with a proud distance from the people either. They carried the pain, rebellion, blindness, and failure of the nation before God. This is priestly prayer of a revival army where we ask for divine mercies over families, fellowships, parents, leaders, believers, and even other watchmen. Identificational repentance does not mean taking personal guilt for sins one did not commit in a legal sense but means coming before God as a representative burden-bearer. It means saying, "Lord, we are part of this family, this fellowship, this Church, this nation, this generation, and we are asking for mercy." This is a priestly posture that carries the pain of the people into the presence of God.

TACEFites must learn this kind of prayer because identificational repentance creates compassion. When we pray this way, we stop treating people as problems and begin to carry them as souls. We stop mocking the fallen and start seeking their restoration. Dear TACEFites, the Lord is calling us to priestly repentance for our families, fellowships, churches, campuses, communities, and nation. Let us confess, cry, intercede, and carry the burden until mercy speaks. A priestly army does not only preach revival but travails for revival.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Recover priestly identity: Do not outsource intimacy with God to leaders, ministers, or intercessors. Every believer has access to God through Christ.
- Keep the altar fire burning: Build consistent prayer, Bible study, and obedience in your personal life and home.
- Stand in the gap: Do not only criticise spiritual decline. Pray, fast, counsel, teach, follow up, and carry burdens before God.
- Respond quickly to spiritual danger: When a family, fellowship, marriage, or believer is drifting, do not delay in prayer and loving intercession.
- Carry people on your shoulders: Accept responsibility for souls, families, fellowships, and communities God has placed in your care.
- Carry people over your heart: Do not lead, teach, pray, or serve without compassion, love, and tenderness.
- Use names in prayer: Mention people, families, converts, leaders, and communities specifically before God.
- Practise sustained intercession: Do not pray once and forget. Continue until burdens lift, lives change, and mercy speaks.
- Practise identificational repentance: Confess corporate failures before God with a burden for mercy, healing, and restoration.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why did God call Israel to be a kingdom of priests and an holy nation?
2. What does it mean for believers today to recover priestly identity?
3. What can we learn from Aaron standing between the living and the dead?
4. What do the onyx stones on the priest's shoulders teach us about burden-bearing?
5. What does the breastplate over the heart teach us about love and compassion in intercession?
6. What is identificational repentance? Why did Daniel, Nehemiah, and Ezra pray with the language of "we have sinned"?

Personal Reflection

Do I see myself as part of God's priestly people? Is there a living altar in my personal life and home? Do I stand in the gap when I see spiritual decline, or do I merely complain, criticise, and withdraw? Am I wearing the spiritual garments of burden-bearing? Do I carry people on my shoulders through responsibility and over my heart through love? Do I practise identificational repentance, or do I pray from a place of superiority?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, restore my priestly identity and help me to walk in direct access to You through Christ.
2. Lord, restore altar fire in my personal life, local fellowship and mandate of revival.
3. Father, make me a revival intercessor who can stand between the living and the dead. Father, give me holy urgency to respond quickly when souls, homes, fellowships, and communities are drifting.
4. Father, give me strength to carry responsibility and love to carry pain before You.
5. Lord, teach me sustained intercession until mercy speaks and revival breaks forth.
6. Lord, make every TACEF home, local fellowship, and ministry a priestly altar of prayer.

Week 48 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 26 July 2027

- Eleazar's burial reminds me that altar service must be preserved across generations. Leaders may finish their assignments, but the fire of God must not die.
- I will recover my priestly identity. I will walk in sustained intimacy and personal fellowship with God.
- Father, make me part of Your kingdom of priests and help me walk worthy of this holy calling.

Tuesday, 27 July 2027

- God's original desire was a kingdom of priests and a holy nation. I am called to live in intimacy with God, keep His covenant, and represent Him on the earth.
- Through Christ, I am no more a stranger, but a member of the household of God and part of His holy habitation through the Spirit.
- Lord, restore priestly intimacy, personal fellowship, holiness, and consecration in my life and home.

Wednesday, 28 July 2027

- Aaron stood between the living and the dead, and the plague was stayed. I will not watch spiritual decline with a critical spirit.
- I will carry altar fire and incense of intercession into the crises around me through prayer, fasting, and compassionate love.
- Father, make me a revival intercessor for my family, fellowship, Church, community, and generation.

Thursday, 29 July 2027

- I will carry people on my shoulders and in my heart. I will not serve, lead, teach, or pray without responsibility and compassion.
- I receive grace to carry families, children, youths, converts, leaders, the weak, the backsliding, and the lost in sustained intercession.
- Lord, give me the strength to carry burdens and the love to carry pain of others before You.

Friday, 30 July 2027

- I will practise identificational repentance. I will not pray with accusation or spiritual distance.
- Like Daniel, Nehemiah, and Ezra, I will cry, "We have sinned," and ask God for mercy upon my family, fellowship, Church, community, and nation.
- Father, forgive us where we have neglected the altar, lost the burden for souls, tolerated immoralities, and failed to stand in the gap.

Saturday, 31 July 2027

- I will help preserve the altar fire for the next generation. My home, fellowship, subgroup/ ministry must become priestly spaces of prayer, repentance, and revival.
- Lord, raise priestly sons and daughters in TACEF who will carry Your burden faithfully and keep the altar burning until You come.
- Lord, uphold and teach me sustained intercession until mercy speaks and revival breaks forth.

Week 49: Monday, 2 August 2027 to Sunday, 8 August 2027

Tarry Week for Reflections and Prayer

Daily Reflective Prayer Declarations

Monday, 2 August 2027

- Leaders finish their course, but the purpose of God must not die with them. Father, help me to serve my generation well and raise others who will continue the work after me.
- I will not make the work of God depend only on me. I will train others, mentor younger believers, and raise successors who can carry the revival mandate faithfully.
- Lord, let our fellowships, homes, and service units remain Christ-centred, Word-rooted, Spirit-empowered, and disciple-making.

Tuesday, 3 August 2027

- Another generation must not arise among us and after us that knows not the Lord. Our next generation must know God personally, not merely know stories of past moves of God.
- As a fellowship, we will not be satisfied with programmes, conventions, titles, structures, and testimonies without personal encounter of salvation in the next generation.
- Father, make every TACEF fellowship a true discipleship ground where believers are taught, mentored, corrected, encouraged, and released into responsible service.

Wednesday, 4 August 2027

- I will not only gather people as a fellowship, but I will help them know Christ, grow in Christ, serve Christ, and reproduce the life of Christ in others.
- I receive grace to become a faithful disciple-maker. Lord, help me to commit truth to faithful people who will also teach others.
- My life must be followable as I follow Christ. Father, make my altar, lifestyle, service, family life, sacrifice, and obedience worthy of godly imitation.

Thursday, 5 August 2027

- Joseph lived in Egypt, but Egypt did not own his heart. I will serve faithfully where God has placed me, but I will not forget that this present world is not my final home.
- I will not build my life around temporary success, comfort, career, relocation, property, promotion, money, title, marriage, or earthly gain.
- Joseph's bones remind me that death does not have the final word. I believe in the resurrection of the dead, the rapture of the saints, and the coming of Christ.

Friday, 6 August 2027

- I will live with eternity in view. I will not allow the world, sin, pleasure, or distraction to make me careless about the coming of the Lord.
- End-time truths must produce holiness, readiness, and watchfulness in me. I will be ready and live each moment prepared for Christ's return.
- I will not think of making heaven alone. Father, give me burden for souls. Use me to preach Christ, follow up converts, disciple believers, and help many prepare for eternity.

Saturday, 7 August 2027

- I will stand between the living and the dead. Father, make me a revival intercessor for my family, fellowship, Church, community, workplace, campus, and generation.
- I will carry people on my shoulders and over my heart. Lord, give me strength to carry responsibility and love to carry pain.
- Lord, preserve the altar fire across generations. Make every TACEF home an altar of prayer, repentance, burden-bearing, and revival until You come.

Week 50: Monday, 9 August 2027 to Sunday, 15 August 2027

Title: Summaries from Joshua, Part 1: The Consecration of an Exceeding Great Army

Bible Texts: Joshua 3:5; Joshua 5:2-9; Joshua 7:10-13; Joshua 23:11-13; Ephesians 4:22-24; Ephesians 5:8-11; Ephesians 6:24

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- Sanctify yourselves: for to morrow the LORD will do wonders among you.
- This day have I rolled away the reproach of Egypt from off you.
- They have also transgressed my covenant.
- Thou canst not stand before thine enemies, until ye take away the accursed thing from among you.
- Take good heed therefore unto yourselves.
- They shall be snares and traps unto you.
- Put off concerning the former conversation the old man.
- Be renewed in the spirit of your mind.
- Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness.

Introduction

This week's study begins the final cross-thematic summary of our journey through Joshua and Ephesians. For many weeks, we have walked with Joshua from his making as a servant, minister, disciple, warrior, leader, and covenant witness. We have seen Israel cross the Jordan, confront Jericho, fall at Ai, recover through repentance, return to the Word, discern deception, possess inheritance, renew covenant, raise successors, remember resurrection hope, and recover priestly burden. As we now gather the whole study into three closing themes, the first focus is to understand that an exceeding great army must be a consecrated army.

The issue of consecration is the foundation of everything in a man's walk with God. Before Jordan opened, Joshua said, "Sanctify yourselves: for to morrow the LORD will do wonders among you." Before Israel could fight major battles in the land, God brought them to Gilgal where the reproach of Egypt was rolled away. Before Ai could be conquered after failure, God exposed the accursed thing and demanded sanctification. Before Joshua left the stage, he warned Israel to take good heed unto themselves and love the Lord their God. This means the army that will last must be an army that belongs wholly to God. The book of Joshua teaches us that God does not merely gather people but prepares them. He does not only give promises but requires obedience. He does not only open doors, but He also deals with the heart. He does not only bring His people into inheritance, but He warns them against backsliding, strange gods, hidden sin, wrong attachments, and careless living. An exceeding great army is not defined first by number, noise, title, history, visibility, or activity, but by their holy separation unto God.

Ephesians gives the same New Testament clarity that we must put off the old man, be renewed in the spirit of our minds, and put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness. We must walk as children of light. We cannot be part of God's revival army and still be comfortable with the unfruitful works of darkness. The life of Christ must affect our hearts, speech, relationships, ambitions, and private choices. Therefore, Week 50 study calls all TACEFites to review the entire study through the lens of consecration. We must ask: What old reproach must be rolled away? What accursed thing must be judged in my life? What hidden compromise must be confessed and forsaken now? What wrong attachment must be broken? What casual Christianity must be rejected? What love for God must be restored?

Teachings

1. Consecration Is the First Requirement of an Exceeding Great Army: When Israel stood before Jordan, Joshua did not first tell them to sharpen swords, count soldiers, design strategies, or study the river. He said, "Sanctify yourselves." This teaches that the first preparation for divine wonders is not external arrangement but inward consecration. God was about to do what human strength could not do, but the people had to be prepared before Him. The Lord who opens rivers also requires clean vessels. This principle has appeared again and again throughout our study. Before God uses a people as an army, He makes them and making starts by being set apart alone for the Lord. Consecration means being separated unto God. It means that the life is no longer available for every appetite, influence, relationship, habit, ambition, and pleasure. It means that God has total claim over the body, heart, time, money, thoughts, speech, gifts, home, work, and future. A consecrated believer does not ask, "Is this convenient?" He asks, "Does this please the Lord?" He does not ask, "Can I do it?" He asks, "Will this preserve my walk with God?"

As heaven-conscious revival army, we must understand that consecration is practical. It affects what we watch, what we laugh at, what we sing, what we wear, where we go, who we cleave to, how we speak, how we handle money, how we treat people, how we serve, and how we live when nobody is watching. A person cannot claim to be part of God's army while keeping an unguarded heart, careless tongue, corrupt appetite, ungodly entertainment, secret sin, or rebellious spirit. This is why casual Christianity, as we have learned, must be rejected. God's army cannot be built on shallow confession, emotional excitement, and public identity without complete obedience. An exceeding great army is first a holy army. It may be large, gifted, organised, educated, energetic, and visible, but if it is not consecrated, it cannot carry God's glory because the Lord is not merely looking for people who can work for Him but those who are separated unto Him.

2. Gilgal Teaches That the Reproach of Egypt Must Be Rolled Away: After Israel crossed Jordan, God brought them to Gilgal. There, the new generation was circumcised, and the Lord said, "This day have I rolled away the reproach of Egypt from off you." This was a painful but necessary work. Israel had left Egypt physically, but there were covenant matters that still had to be addressed before they could move fully into possession. Gilgal was a place of cutting, healing, renewal, and separation. It is possible to come out of Egypt and still carry marks of Egypt. It is possible to leave an old life but still carry old appetites. It is possible to join fellowship but still love the world. It is possible to be physically present among God's people while inwardly still tied to old identities. The reproach of Egypt can show up in many ways as sinful appetites, impure thoughts, dishonest habits, pride, bitterness, prayerlessness, rebellion, worldly ambitions, careless entertainment, corrupt friendships, secret compromise, and unbelief. These things must not be managed but must be brought to Gilgal where the knife of God's Word must cut what cannot enter the future with us.

Gilgal also teaches that consecration may require pain. There are things God removes that the flesh may not release easily. There are relationships that must be redefined. There are habits that must be broken. There are conversations that must stop. There are platforms that must be left. There are ambitions that must be surrendered. There are things on our phones that must be deleted. There are apologies and restitutions that must be made. There are spiritual disciplines that must be restored. Yet, the pain of cutting is better than the danger of carrying Egypt into Canaan because just as Paul says in Ephesians, we must put off the old man and put on the new man. The Christian life is not cosmetic adjustment but a total change of life. The old manner of life must be removed, the mind must be renewed and the new man must be expressed in righteousness and true holiness. An exceeding great army cannot carry Egypt into the Promised Land. The reproach must be rolled away, the old man must be put off, and the new man must be put on.

3. Hidden Sin Weakens the Army and Must Be Judged Quickly: The fall at the small city of Ai showed that hidden sin can weaken an entire army. Israel had just seen Jericho fall by the power of God. Yet, at Ai, they were mercilessly defeated. The problem was not military weakness but a covenant violation. God said, "Israel hath sinned." Achan had taken the accursed thing, hidden it among his stuff, and brought trouble upon the camp. God said they could not stand before their enemies until the accursed thing was removed. God's army must never treat hidden sin lightly. A secret matter can have corporate consequences. A hidden compromise can weaken a whole family. A concealed habit can open the door to defeat. What is buried under personal "stuff" may affect the strength of the whole camp. In contemporary life, the accursed thing may not be a Babylonish garment or silver and gold from Jericho that Achan took. It may be secret sin, hidden dishonesty, immoral entertainment, corrupt money, bitterness, spiritual pride, manipulation, deception, exam malpractice, false reporting at work, ungodly relationships, secret chats, emotional attachments, or deliberate disobedience.

The danger of hidden sin is that it often grows under silence. At first, the conscience may still speak. Then, the person begins to justify it. Then, prayer becomes weak. Then, correction becomes irritating. Then, spiritual sensitivity reduces. This was why Week 41 warned us about backsliding: yielding to temptations, weakened resistance, self-justification, detachment from God, seared conscience, grieving the Holy Spirit, and eventually dangerous turning away. Consecration demands that we judge small things before they become strongholds.

God's mercy must not be misunderstood. He is patient and gracious, but He is also holy. Joshua's warning in Joshua 23 showed that if Israel went back and cleaved to wrong attachments, those things would become snares, traps, scourges, and thorns. God can warn, convict, and provide a way of escape, but if His people continue to harden their hearts, the consequences can become painful. Grace does not make sin safe. Therefore, TACEFites must practise sincere and instant quick repentance. Do not hide what God is exposing, do not defend what the Spirit is convicting you about, do not protect what is weakening your fire, confess quickly, seek help where necessary, break the wrong attachment, restore accountability, and remove the accursed thing before it weakens the army.

4. Consecration Must Preserve Love, Boundaries, and Daily Watchfulness: Joshua's later warning says, "Take good heed therefore unto yourselves, that ye love the LORD your God." This is one of the clearest summaries of consecration. Consecration is not only outward separation but a guarded love. The heart must remain burning for God. The danger after victory is that love can grow cold while activity continues. A person may still attend, serve, sing, preach, lead, or appear committed, while inward affection for God is declining. This study has repeatedly shown that spiritual decline often begins quietly through wrong associations, polluted entertainment, ungodly relationships, professional compromise, secret ambition, bitterness, and prayerlessness can slowly reduce love for God. What is tolerated can later dominate. What begins as a snare can become a trap, a scourge, and a thorn.

This is why consecration must include boundaries. Boundaries are not signs of weakness but are signs of wisdom. A believer who loves God must guard access to the heart. Some friendships must be limited, some conversations must end, some platforms must be avoided, and some invitations must be declined. Some films, comedy, music, and online content must not be entertained. Some professional gatherings, reunions, and relationships must be approached with discernment. A consecrated life does not assume that every open door is safe.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Return to consecration: Ask what God has been trying to remove, correct, and renew in your life.
- Sanctify yourself before the wonders: Do not seek divine breakthroughs without spiritual preparation, obedience, and surrender.
- Bring every reproach to Gilgal: Let God roll away old identities, old appetites, old relationships, old habits, and old shame.
- Put off the old man: Reject former ways of speaking, thinking, reacting, relating, serving, and pursuing ambition.
- Put on the new man: Let righteousness, true holiness, purity, truth, and love become your new lifestyle.
- Remove the accursed thing: Do not hide sin among your personal "stuff." Confess, repent, restore accountability, and obey quickly.
- Deal with compromise early: Small tolerated sins can become strongholds if they are not judged.
- Guard your love for God: Do not measure spirituality by attendance, service, title, or visibility. Ask whether your heart is still burning.
- Set holy boundaries: Be careful with friendships, entertainment, social media, professional gatherings, private chats, and emotional attachments.
- Reject casual Christianity: Do not offer worship without surrender, service without sincerity, or Christian identity without holiness.
- Walk as a child of light: Let your conduct in school, workplace, home, marriage, business, ministry, and online spaces reflect Christ.
- Live ready for God's use: A consecrated life is a prepared vessel for divine assignments.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why did Joshua tell the people to sanctify themselves before the Lord did wonders among them?
2. What does Gilgal teach us about the reproach of Egypt and the need for cutting away the old life?
3. What are examples of "Egypt" that believers may still carry after joining fellowship or becoming active in church?
4. What can the sin of Achan teach us about secret compromise and corporate weakness? How can a believer identify an accursed thing hidden among his or her personal "stuff"?
5. Why does spiritual drift often begin in the heart before it appears in outward behaviour?
6. How can wrong associations, polluted entertainment, uncontrolled social media habits, and private chats become snares or traps?

Personal Reflection

Is there any reproach of Egypt still showing in my appetite, speech, relationships, ambition, or secret habits? What must I bring to Gilgal for God to roll away? Is there any accursed thing hidden among my personal "stuff"? Is there anything I am protecting privately while appearing spiritual publicly? What must I confess, forsake, restore, or bring under accountability?

Is my heart still burning for God? Do I love the Lord sincerely, or have I become active but inwardly cold? What boundaries must I set to protect my love for Christ? What must change so that I can truly live as part of an exceeding great army?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, sanctify me. Lord, make me a consecrated vessel, wholly separated unto You.
2. Lord, cut away every old appetite, old habit, old identity, old relationship, and old pattern that cannot enter my divine assignment.
3. Father, expose every hidden sin, secret compromise, accursed thing, and disobedience weakening my walk with You.
4. Lord, help me to put off the old man and put on the new man in righteousness and true holiness.
5. Father, give me holy boundaries that protect my love for You.
6. Lord, deliver me from wrong associations, corrupt entertainments, uncontrolled social media appetite, careless conversations, and worldly attachments.

Week 50 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 9 August 2027

- I will sanctify myself before the Lord. I will not seek divine encounter without spiritual preparation, obedience, and surrender.
- God does not merely gather people but prepares vessels. I will allow the Lord to make me before He uses me.
- Father, make me a consecrated member of Your exceeding great army.

Tuesday, 10 August 2027

- I will return to Gilgal. Every reproach of Egypt still showing in my life must be rolled away by the power of God.
- I will not carry old appetites, old habits, old identities, old relationships, and old patterns into my divine assignment.
- Lord, cut away everything in my life that are contrary to the nature of Christ and Your purpose.

Wednesday, 11 August 2027

- I will not hide the accursed thing among my personal stuff. Secret sin can weaken the army and open the door to defeat.
- I receive grace to confess quickly, repent sincerely, restore accountability, and obey God without delay.
- Father, expose and remove every hidden sin in my life, home, fellowship, and service.

Thursday, 12 August 2027

- I will take good heed unto myself. I will not measure spirituality by physical participation, being busy, title, visibility, or outward involvement.
- I will guard my love for God because spiritual drift begins in the heart before it appears in conduct.
- Lord, keep my heart burning with sincere love for Jesus Christ.

Friday, 13 August 2027

- I will set holy boundaries. I will be careful with friendships, entertainment, social media, professional gatherings, private chats, and emotional attachments
- I will not allow anything to become a snare, trap, scourge, or thorn in my walk with God.
- Father, give me discernment and courage to separate from whatever weakens my consecration.

Saturday, 14 August 2027

- I will reject casual Christianity. I will not offer God worship without surrender, service without sincerity, or Christian identity without holiness.
- I will put off the old man and put on the new man in righteousness and true holiness.
- Lord, make my life, home, fellowship, and service a living testimony of consecration before You.

Week 51: Monday, 15 August 2027 to Sunday, 22 August 2027

Title: Summaries from Joshua, Part 2: The Art of Spiritual Warfare: Mapping, Discernment, Victory, and Pulling Down Strongholds

Bible Texts: Joshua 5:13-15; Joshua 6:1-5; Joshua 7:10-13; Joshua 8:1-2; Joshua 9:14; Joshua 10:8, 22-25; Joshua 11:18-23; Joshua 13:1; Ephesians 6:10-18; 2 Corinthians 10:3-5

Key Extracts from the Bible Texts to Remember and Reflect On

- As captain of the host of the LORD am I now come.
- Loose thy shoe from off thy foot.
- See, I have given into thine hand Jericho.
- The wall of the city shall fall down flat.
- Thou canst not stand before thine enemies, until ye take away the accursed thing from among you.
- Bring out those five kings unto me out of the cave.
- Joshua made war a long time with all those kings.
- Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.
- Put on the whole armour of God.
- We wrestle not against flesh and blood.
- That ye may be able to withstand in the evil day.
- The weapons of our warfare are not carnal.

Introduction

This week brings us to the final study in our annual journey through Joshua and Ephesians in deepening our shared understanding on the making of an exceeding great army. In this final week, we bring the whole journey to a strategic conclusion on how every revival army must understand the art of spiritual warfare. The book of Joshua does not merely teach us that Israel fought battles. It shows us how God trained His people to fight. Some battles required waiting, silence, shouting, priestly order, repentance before engagement, ambush, or exposing hidden kings. Some required long obedience, mapping the remaining territories and sometimes some required the people to understand that the true Commander of the battle was not Joshua, but the Captain of the host of the Lord.

This is a major lesson for TACEFites. Spiritual warfare is not random emotional excitement, fleshly confrontation, or careless declaration. It is not fighting people or blaming everyone around us. It is not shouting at the devil while ignoring hidden sin, poor discernment, prayerlessness, disobedience, or lack of divine strategy. Spiritual warfare is the disciplined, Spirit-led, Word-governed, holy, discerning, and obedient engagement of God's army against everything that resists the will, knowledge, authority, and purpose of Christ.

Ephesians tells us clearly that we wrestle not against flesh and blood. This means the real battle behind many visible issues is spiritual. Behind temptations, deceptions, divisions, fears, addictions, ungodly habits, family breakdowns, prayerlessness, false doctrines, corrupt systems, and repeated patterns, there may be strongholds that must be pulled down by weapons that are mighty through God. 2 Corinthians teaches that these strongholds include imaginations, high things, and thoughts that exalt themselves against the knowledge of God. Therefore, spiritual warfare includes the battle of the mind, the battle of desire, the battle of obedience, the the battle of homes, and the battle for territories. This final week therefore commissions TACEFites into warfare intelligence because we must know the Commander. We must learn how to map the battle, discern the strategy, understand the type of warfare before us, avoid Gibeonite deception, and expose hidden kings. We must understand God's way to pull down strongholds. bring thoughts, habits, homes, fellowships, campuses, workplaces, and communities under the obedience of Christ.

Teachings

1. The Commander of the Army of the Lord - Warfare Begins with Surrender to Divine Command: Before Jericho fell, Joshua met a man with a drawn sword. Joshua asked, "Art thou for us, or for our adversaries?" The answer was surprising: "Nay; but as captain of the host of the LORD am I now come." This encounter teaches one of the deepest principles of spiritual warfare and this is whether we are surrendered to the Lord's command. Joshua was the visible leader of Israel, but he was not the final Commander. Before the walls of Jericho came down, Joshua had to bow to the owner of the battle.

Before battle came surrender. Before Joshua could command men, he had to receive command from the Lord. When he asked, "What saith my lord unto his servant?" he moved from military confidence into servant obedience.

This is where true warfare begins. An exceeding great army must not fight from pride, anger, ambition, reaction, revenge, offence, or human wisdom. Many people enter spiritual battles with the wrong spirit. They fight people instead of principalities. They fight from pain instead of prayer. They fight from assumption instead of instruction. They fight to prove themselves instead of obeying God.

The Captain of the Lord's host also told Joshua to remove his shoe because the place was holy. This means the battlefield was not ordinary ground. When God is present, warfare becomes holy service. We do not fight casually. We do not fight with dirty hands, hidden sin, pride, or while ignoring the holiness of God. The first preparation for victory is consecrated life.

Therefore, before fighting for territory, ask, "Lord, have I removed my shoes?" A true revival army must not rush into battle without bowing before the Commander. We must learn to live under command of the Lord. We are not independent soldiers. We belong to Christ and He is the Captain, the Head, the King, and the Lord of the army. Our courage, strategy, timing, weapons, and victory must come from Him.

2. Mapping the Battle - Knowing the Territory, the Gates, the Strongholds, and the Hidden Kings: Joshua's battles were real. Israel faced rivers, walls, cities, kings, caves, coalitions, mountains, valleys, inheritance boundaries, and remaining lands. A revival army had to understand what was before them. For example, Jericho was a shut city, Ai required a different strategy, Gibeon came with deception and the five kings hid in a cave. Joshua 11 records a long war. These details teach us that warfare requires understanding of the battlefield.

Spiritual mapping is the weapon we have in God to prayerfully discern the nature of the battle before engaging it. It is the careful, Word-guided, Spirit-led effort to understand what is resisting the purpose of God in a life, home, fellowship, campus, workplace, church, community, or nation. The questions we bring out in the mapping process are: What is the pattern? What is the gate? What is the repeated failure? What is the hidden king? What stronghold is resisting the knowledge of God? In a personal life, mapping may reveal patterns such as lust, pride, anger, fear, bitterness, prayerlessness, unbelief, procrastination, spiritual laziness, addiction to ungodly entertainment, or repeated compromise. In a home, mapping may reveal broken communication, inherited curses, prayerlessness, marital secrecy, financial dishonesty, unresolved offence, ungodly media culture, or lack of discipleship for children. In a fellowship, mapping may reveal locational stronghold, satanic influence, disunity, or dominant moral perversion.

Mapping helps us identify gates. A gate is an access point. In spiritual life, gates may include what enters through the eyes, ears, conversations, friendships, media, sexual intimacy, relationships, money, habits, and counsel. A believer who keeps watching corrupt content is opening a gate. A married person who keeps secret emotional conversations is opening a gate. A professional who joins dishonest networks is opening a gate. A young person who makes mockers his closest friends is opening a gate. A fellowship that allows gossip, offence, and disorder is opening gates to weakness. Mapping also helps expose hidden kings. In Joshua 10, the five kings hid in a cave. They were not visible at the battlefront, but they still represented ruling powers. In essence, as an exceeding great army, we must learn to ask spiritual questions. What is fighting my prayer life? What keeps weakening my consecration? What pattern is repeating in my family? What keeps limiting our local fellowship? What is discouraging our young people? What lie is shaping this community? What open gate must be closed? What hidden king must be exposed? What territory remains unpossessed? An exceeding great army does not fight blindly. It prays, observes, discerns, asks counsel from the Lord, studies patterns, applies the Word, and engages the battle with understanding.

3. Warfare Types - Jericho, Ai, Gibeon, Coalitions, Long Wars, and Remaining Lands: Joshua teaches us that different battles require different strategies. The art of spiritual warfare includes knowing the type of battle before applying the strategy of battle. A careless army treats every battle the same way. A wise army asks God for understanding. Jericho teaches the battle of divine timing, priestly order, obedience, and faith. The wall did not fall because Israel had the strongest physical weapons but because the people followed God's instruction to shout. Some battles in our lives require obedience to instructions that may not make sense to the natural mind. God may ask us to be silent when we want to explain. He may ask us to wait when we want to rush. He may ask us to worship when we want to panic. Jericho teaches that obedience to divine strategy can bring down impossible walls.

The battle at Ai teaches the battle of hidden sin. Israel could not stand before a smaller enemy because something was wrong in the camp. This means not every defeat is caused by external enemies. Sometimes the battle is internal. Before shouting at the walls outside, we must ask whether there is an accursed thing inside. Some people are fighting external battles while hiding internal compromise. Victory may not return until sin is judged, repentance is made, and obedience is restored. The second battle of Ai teaches recovery warfare. After repentance, God told Joshua, "Fear not, neither be thou dismayed." Failure did not end Israel's journey. God gave a fresh strategy and renewed courage. This teaches that when a believer has repented sincerely, he must not remain paralysed by shame. He must rise, obey, and fight again under God's instruction. The engagement with Gibeon teaches the battle of deception. Israel was not defeated by swords, but by a story. The men took of the victuals and asked not counsel at the mouth of the Lord. This is one of the greatest risks in spiritual warfare. Not every enemy comes looking like an enemy. Some come as opportunities, partnerships, relationships, invitations, business proposals, emotional appeals, spiritual platforms, or social connections. Discernment is therefore a weapon because not every open door is God's door.

4. Pulling Down Strongholds - Victory Must Move from Event to Occupation: Paul teaches that the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds. A stronghold is anything that has become fortified against the knowledge, will, truth, and obedience of Christ. Strongholds may exist in thoughts, desires, habits, homes, relationships, cultures, institutions, communities, and generations. They are not pulled down by human strength, but by weapons that are mighty through God. Strongholds are often built gradually. A thought becomes a desire; a desire becomes a habit; a habit becomes a pattern; a pattern becomes a stronghold; and a stronghold begins to defend itself through excuses, secrecy, pride, or self-justification. This is why Paul speaks of casting down imaginations and every high thing that exalts itself against the knowledge of God. The battle often begins in the mind before it appears in behaviour.

In practical terms, a stronghold may be anger that controls a home, bitterness that poisons relationships, lust that weakens purity, fear that prevents obedience, pride that rejects correction, addiction to ungodly entertainment, secret emotional attachments, dishonest gain, unbelief, inferiority, rebellion, family curse, or repeated cycles of compromise. Pulling down strongholds requires more than one emotional prayer. It requires truth, repentance, obedience, renewed thinking, accountability, spiritual discipline, and replacement with godly patterns. Lies must be replaced with truth. Secrecy must be replaced with confession and accountability. Ungodly appetite must be replaced with the Word and healthy spiritual desire. Bitterness must be replaced with forgiveness.

In addition, Joshua's conquest teaches that victory must move from event to occupation. It is one thing to win a battle but it is more important to possess the land. Some believers experience moments of breakthrough but do not occupy the territory afterwards. They pray powerfully at a retreat but return to the same habits. They repent at a meeting but do not build new discipline. They receive conviction but do not close the gates. They defeat a king but leave the cave open. The art of spiritual warfare therefore includes occupation or taking over the defeated space. After victory, build structures. We must not only celebrate spiritual moments, we must possess the land. We must occupy our homes with prayer. We must occupy our minds with truth. We must occupy our fellowships with discipleship. We must occupy our workplaces with integrity. We must occupy our campuses with fire of revival. We must occupy our communities with gospel light. We must occupy our generation with revival burden. An exceeding great army does not only win events; it establishes the rule of Christ in lives, homes, territories, and generations.

5. Step-by-Step Applications and Practical Implications

- Bow before the Commander: Do not enter warfare with pride, anger, reaction, or self-confidence. Ask, "Lord, what saith my Lord unto His servant?"
- Remove your shoes: Treat warfare as holy service. Do not fight with hidden sin, pride, bitterness, or uncleanness.
- Map the battle prayerfully: Ask what pattern, gate, lie, stronghold, hidden king, or unpossessed territory needs to be addressed.
- Identify the type of warfare: Do not treat every battle the same way. Jericho, Ai, Gibeon, coalitions, and remaining lands require different responses.
- Seek divine strategy: Do not assume that yesterday's method is today's instruction. Ask counsel from the Lord.
- Avoid Gibeonite deception: Not every opportunity, relationship, invitation, partnership, business proposal, or spiritual platform is from God.
- Close open gates: Watch what enters through your eyes, ears, friendships, chats, entertainment, habits, money, counsel, and relationships.

- Expose hidden kings: Bring fear, pride, lust, bitterness, unbelief, anger, rejection, self-rule, and secret ambition under the authority of Christ.
- Pull down strongholds: Use truth, repentance, prayer, fasting, accountability, obedience, and renewed thinking.
- Bring thoughts into obedience: Do not allow imaginations, lies, fears, and desires to rule your life against the knowledge of God.
- Possess remaining lands: Past victories must not make you passive. There is still more of Christ to know, more souls to reach, and more territories to occupy.

Questions for Discussion

1. What does Joshua's encounter with the Captain of the host of the Lord teach us about spiritual warfare?
2. What is spiritual mapping, and how can it be done biblically and prayerfully?
3. What are examples of gates that believers may open through entertainment, friendships, conversations, habits, or relationships?
4. What does Ai teach us about hidden sin and spiritual defeat?
5. What does the recovery at Ai teach us about repentance and renewed courage?
6. What does the Gibeonite deception teach us about discernment and asking counsel from the Lord?

Personal Reflection

Am I truly fighting under the command of the Lord, or am I asking God to bless my own agenda? Have I bowed before the Commander of the army, or am I moving by impulse, fear, anger, ambition, or assumption? Have I mapped the battles around my life? What pattern keeps repeating? What gate have I opened? What hidden king is ruling quietly? What stronghold is resisting the knowledge of God in my heart, home, work, ministry, or fellowship?

What stronghold must be pulled down in my life? What must change in my prayer life, family altar, soul-winning, discipleship, holiness, service, and spiritual responsibility?

Prayer Points

1. Heavenly Father, bring me fully under the command of the Captain of the host of the Lord.
2. Lord, make my life holy ground and deliver me from fighting spiritual warfare with hidden sin or divided loyalty.
3. Father, open my eyes to map the battles around my life, home, fellowship, workplace, campus, community, and generation. Lord, reveal every pattern, gate, lie, hidden king, and stronghold resisting Your purpose in my life.
4. Father, deliver me from Gibeonite deception and every decision made without counsel from Your mouth.
5. Lord, close every gate I have opened through careless entertainment, ungodly relationships, corrupt counsel, secret engagements, wrong appetites, and unguarded habits.
6. Lord, pull down every stronghold of fear, lust, bitterness, anger, pride, unbelief, compromise, and self-rule in my life. Father, help me to cast down imaginations and every high thing that exalts itself against the knowledge of God.

Week 51 Daily Devotionals

Monday, 16 August 2027

- I will bow before the Captain of the host of the Lord. I will not ask God to join my own agenda but I will surrender to His command.
- Spiritual warfare begins with holiness, and obedience. I will remove my shoes before the Lord and treat every battle as holy service.
- Father, bring me under divine command and teach me to ask, "What saith my Lord unto His servant?"

Tuesday, 17 August 2027

- I will map the battle prayerfully. I will not fight blindly or react carelessly.
- I will ask the Lord to reveal the patterns, gates, lies, strongholds, hidden kings, and remaining lands in my life, home, fellowship, local church, workplace, campus, and community.
- Lord, give me spiritual understanding and discernment for every battle I am going through or those ahead of me.

Wednesday, 18 August 2027

- I will fight by divine strategy and sure leading. Jericho teaches me that obedience to God's instruction can bring down impossible walls.

- I will not assume that yesterday's method is today's instruction. I will seek the counsel of the Lord for every battle, decision, relationship, partnership, and assignment.
- Father, teach me to hear, trust, and obey Your strategy completely.

Thursday, 19 August 2027

- I will not ignore the lesson of Ai. Hidden sin can weaken the army and open the door to defeat.
- I will confront sin honestly, repent sincerely, remove the accursed thing, and rise again in renewed obedience.
- Lord, give me courage to confront what must be judged and grace to recover fully after repentance.

Friday, 20 August 2027

- I will not fall into Gibeonite deception. Not every opportunity, invitation, relationship, partnership, or spiritual platform is from God.
- I will not be ruled by appearance, flattery, pity, pressure, urgency, or old bread. I will ask counsel at the mouth of the Lord.
- Father, give me discernment to recognise deception and courage to avoid every wrong alliance.

Saturday, 21 August 2027

- I will pull down strongholds through weapons that are mighty through God. My battle is not carnal, and my victory must bring thoughts, habits, desires, and territories under the obedience of Christ.
- I will expose hidden kings, close open gates, and possess remaining lands by the power of God.
- Lord, commission me as part of Your exceeding great army: consecrated, courageous, discerning, victorious, and fully submitted to Christ.

TACEF Information Pack

What it means to be a member of a ministry in TACEF

To be a TACEF Minister, firstly, you need be born again and be sure of your salvation. Secondly, you need to identify (by the leading of the Lord) which ministry you are called to serve and then sign up to join by filling the new TACEF Ministry Membership Form. There is an onboarding process that every intending TACEF Minister must undergo; this is to ensure that all necessary information to properly function within the ministry is well understood.

There are five major areas that every TACEF Ministry is structured to function:

- To provide spiritual and welfare development of all members
- To provide effective service beyond annual convention
- To provide capacity building for all members
- To provide adequate process and governance: to define rules of engagement
- To provide growth in length and breadth

TACEF Marriage Procedure: God's pattern of Christian Courtship

This guideline is provided as God-inspired instruction to guide the household of TACEF on Biblical pattern of marital choice and post-marital procedure. We recognize the role of Heaven in giving us the best and the need to patiently seek the Lord to get this best which comes alone from Him.

We therefore seek the understanding of the brethren to abide and align to these inspired procedures as they will help us to collectively fulfill the will of God and mature us for Heaven in purity.

The leadership must not force their choice on others or act "god" in this eternal choice process. The leading of the Holy Spirit must be respected at all times. Personal conviction and proven witnesses shall be considered as the most valid basis for every conclusion reached in the process.

Marriage procedure

- When the time comes*, brethren must pray to receive a leading to a particular brother or sister whether within or outside the ministry.
(This period is either at the final stages of education or apprenticeship and with guaranteed path of livelihood and emotional maturity rooted in valid Christian testimony. Marriage is not for kids).*
- Once the brother in question is convinced of the Lord, he should discuss with his Co-ordinator first. Sisters are not allowed to propose to brothers directly or indirectly.
- The Co-ordinator shall notify the Marriage committee of the zone, who prays and makes necessary confirmation and investigations (Please note that all references to the marriage committee must be documented in black and white)
- The Marriage Committee shall invite the brother for a discussion to be sure of his leading towards the particular sister.
- The Marriage Committee of the zone shall nominate a member of the committee to encourage the "received" sister to seek the face of God concerning a life partner. No cues or prompts must be provided directly or indirectly on the particular brother as the discussion must remain generic and confidential.
- If the sister comes back with a convincing leading towards the brother that had come with the proposal, the committee shall encourage the brother to make his proposal to the sister.
- If the sister does not receive leading to the brother in question, the brother will not be allowed to make a proposal.
- The sister in question is expected to inform the committee of the proposal and express her conviction, which will be a basis for encouraging her to give her consent.
- If after all prayers and scrutiny, a sister is not receiving leading to the particular brother that has indicated interest to the committee, the brother will be invited and informed accordingly and promptly. The brother must let go irrespective of his "sure leading" and "many convictions".
(However, if the brother insists, he shall be allowed to propose as a simple way to clarify the committee's position. This must however be discouraged)
- After the formal proposal and acceptance, the new partners will be brought together by the Marriage committee for prayers and a formal commencement of Courtship. (This is after a written letter of notification to the committee).
- This process is only completed when the National Marriage Committee allocates the new partner to a counselor (a married couple within the ministry with proven testimony of a gracious marriage). The counseling family shall use the national counseling study series through meetings, discussions and prayers sessions to guide the Courtship period; and shall provide monthly update to the National Counseling Secretary on how the couple-to-be are growing and coping.
NB: If you are already in Courtship and have not been allocated a Counselor, please contact the National Executives using any of the contacts provided on the Contact page.
- This process of counseling must be held at least six months before the wedding.
- If any member relocates to another Zone and became engaged in the new zone of the ministry, the marriage committee of the present zone shall communicate with the marriage committee of the previous zone for notification and necessary clarifications, especially on the need to be sure that the member involved have no previous commitments and his or her Christian life can be proven.
- All sub-zonal co-ordinators should be automatic members of the zonal marriage committee

- Marriage committee members shall include the Zonal/ Asst. zonal co-ordinator Sister co-ordinator, Prayer co-ordinator, 2 Counselors/experienced brethren, and sub-zonal co-ordinators
- Any brethren that informs any of the marriage committee members has automatically informed the committee
- Zonal marriage committee reports to National counseling secretary who provides activity report to the Central Executive Council.
- There should be regular feedback from the marriage counselors to the zonal marriage committee

CAVEAT AND WARNINGS

1) Latest trends on use of social networking marriage (Facebook, 2go etc.) where people seek for a white/richer/older person to marry out of selfish ambition and lust of the eyes/pride of life is NOT of God. Marriage is spiritual and it must derive its essence ONLY from God's leading and not selfish desire to relocate, earn money or citizenship of another country.

2) Knowing the will of God in marriage is a serious matter and everyone that wants to go into Marriage must be ready to stand by their decision, having taken time to seek the face of God genuinely. The act of changing marital decisions every year or as a result of change of location (post-NYSC year, waiting period for a job etc.) is not of God and is often borne out of the dictates of circumstances and we therefore need to WATCH.

3) The idea of "leading-on" where a brother or a sister creates certain forms of "impression" through exclusive use of words (like Dearie, Dearest, Honey), undue patronage like biased visitation, emailing, sharing, caring, exchange of gift etc. When this becomes too concentrated on a specific individual without any form of heavenly backing or a long-term commitment, there is a growing lust and you need to watch it, lest you have led others to believe what you do not mean or intend. Sisters are naturally emotional beings and brothers must be careful how they play with their emotions. Always mean what you say and when you are not led by God, learn to keep silent especially brothers who love to counsel without a clear and convincing leading from God.

4) Dating is not Biblical and it is never the way to get a partner. The emerging trend of "sampling" through multiple relationships/friendships excludes the role of God as the ultimate one who chooses and guides every step of our marital commitment. Be careful of this heretic message.

5) There are also those who prefer back-end arrangement, where the two individuals (brother and sister) would have met and agreed before presenting their lying convictions to the leadership as an act of deception. This is similar to Ananias and Sapphira and the eternal consequence of these is apparent, both in this world and in the world to come. There is an opportunity to repent if your courtship or marriage is built on this error of commission.

FINALLY, Zonal co-ordinators/Marriage committee should be careful in the process, knowing that we are dealing with the destiny of men. Let us be careful to avoid all forms of favouritism, partiality, bias, past knowledge of brother/sister or our own perceived choice.

All engaged brethren shall be presented at every Convention, Easter retreat and any major programme.

MAY THE LORD HELP US IN JESUS NAME

TACEF DO YOU KNOW SERIES

1) MEMBERSHIP

To be a TACEF member you must be born-again, spirit-filled and be ready to be tutored by the Spirit under the leadership of the mandate. As a reasonable TACEFite, you must be an active and functional local fellowship member, attending weekly meetings, all sub-zone, zonal and national programmes, while making impact as an agent of revival in your local church or on campus. You must belong to a subgroup and be responsible and accountable unto the Lord in a faithful path of discipleship and service.

2) TACEF MISSIONARIES ON THE ALTAR

It is now compulsory for every TACEFite who wants to go into ministry to go through a preliminary review and ongoing mentoring programme before the formal registration at the College of Theology. Those in full-time ministry must also do annual self-evaluation check-up on their service and walk with God through an annual assessment programme and accountability partners. For more details, please engage the Missionaries on The Altar (MOTA), Ven Taiwo Anjuwon 08034767720 and Ven Wale Adelani 08062484353 or Ven. Samuel Adeboye (09057916775)

3) TACEF MISSIONARIES IN THE CHURCH ADMINISTRATION (MICA)

This is an extension of TACEFites in the church administration such as Provincial, Diocesan, Archdeaconry and Parish officers. This is another platform to expand the work of revival in the African Church. If you are one of the church officers and you have not joined this extension, kindly reach out to your zonal coordinator or Pastor Seye Fadina on (08035313995) or Bro Femi Akinsoji (08032001576)

4) VOLUNTEERING SERVICE: You can now spend your free time, weekends, short/long holiday, pre-NYSC and even a dedicated period to serve the fellowship, either through field missionaries work (church & campus), programme planning, logistics, administration, converts follow-up calls, event execution, project management and secretarial management. The ministry now runs a volunteer service model for everyone who wants to invest their spare time in the great house. You can register if interested and you will be required to attend a special TACEF Volunteers/Partners Retreat to learn what it means to serve God in TACEF, practical knowledge in leadership, ambassadorship, financial reporting, event management, planning, etiquette etc. If you are interested, engage Bro Isaiah Ajayi on Text 08030531881 or Bro Omololu (07034525833)

5) TACEF MOTHERS

TACEF has a Mothers Fellowship, a gathering of labouring intercessors who labour for this vision. You can be a part or introduce some mummies at your local fellowship. Our mothers meet quarterly for Prayer Meetings. Now operational in Lagos, Ogun, Oyo-Osun, Ondo, Ekiti and Kwara/Kogi zones with the following contacts.

6) TACEF ACADEMY

TACEF Academy is an extension of our vision which allows the fellowship to disciple through educational outreach at family/home level. You can be a part of it as a teacher, or you can promote it to your families and friends to register their wards. For more REGISTER YOUR CHILD NOW
Call: 09160008288, 08068333605

YOU CAN ALSO APPLY TO BE A TEACHER IN THE ACADEMY ON PART-TIME BASIS. Please send your CV to tacefacademy@tacef.life

7) TACEF AMBASSADORS

Are you a TACEF professional, a student, on NYSC or budding/aspiring entrepreneur? Are you seeking career mentoring, professional networking and business development through capacity building and experience sharing with individuals who can support your growth in godly ways? Then you need to be a part of TACEF Professionals and also become a TACEF Ambassador. Please call Bro Deola on 08136412026 for more information.

8) TACEF CCCMT

CCCMT are TACEF generals on the field who visit our campuses and local fellowships and also support the evangelical effort of the vision through mission outreaches to farthest places. They run on volunteer's basis and if you are a true disciple of reasonable service, you can be of service as a campus visitor, trainer, intercessor and others. You may want to know more by engaging Bro Victor on 08133000372 or Bro Jide on 07033810173.

9) TACEF MARRIAGE GUIDE

In TACEF, you do not go and propose to a sister no matter the spirit that is leading you and neither does a sister propose to a brother until you have followed a simple process of verification and accountability. In TACEF, we don't date or do let-me-try-this-out for a while. We believe in divine leading, Godly courtship, cost-effective/stress-less marriage, spiritual/physical marriage preparation and post-marriage ongoing mentoring. Do ask the Marriage committee in your Zone or engage Ven. Wale Adelani 08062484353 for more details.

TACEF Academy Home Lesson

Why TACEF Home Lesson is the best after-school coaching service for your child

- Your child enjoys one-on-one learning from well-trained home tutors, using over 2,000 videos on Maths, English, Science, Current Affairs etc.
- Each teacher has a Tablet (like iPad) for visual-led teaching at every class in your house.
- Modern learning tools are used. E.g. we bring a microscope to your home to teach topics like Cell, organism etc.
- On-the-spot daily feedback on your child's performance via email/SMS
- On our first engagement with your child, we conduct a competence audit and learning style assessment to determine the best approach to teach your child (i.e. audio-centric or video-centric or kinaesthetic)
- Each class starts with 10 minutes Prayer/Bible Study. Quarterly Prayer meeting by parents/tutors is also organise to pray for all the Academy students

TACEF AMBASSADORS

The Vision

Sustaining the fire of revival fire among TACEF professionals, NYSC and non-African Church campus alumni, for a well-rounded professional and spiritual excellence.

The Mandate

To get our brethren ready to maximize the best of God after their higher institution, while remaining relevant within the larger vision of revival in The African Church.

The intent is to raise them as army of heaven-focused, revival-driven professionals who will demonstrate excellence, leadership and maturity required to nurture the work of revival in their various assemblies and serve as worthy discipplers to the future generation of TACEFites

TACEF desire and burden is that this gathering will evolve to become;

- An army of professionals, born again, spirit-filled and burdened to serve God's purpose in The African Church
- A network of Kingdom-minded brethren, who are on fire for God and driving the force of revival in their homes and local churches.
- Excellent career and entrepreneur men and women who epitomize grace, excellence, spiritual maturity and ministerial excellence as committed African Church members and vision-carrying TACEFites in their local Church, subzone and zone.

Expression of The Vision

- TACEF Professional Fellowship (TPF): Holds online every 1st Saturday of the Quarter on Zoom and Mixlr, 8am – 10am WAT.
 - To join TPF WhatsApp group, please send your name and WhatsApp number to 08028363467
 - If you are an undergraduate, you can also join the TPF Student Chapter by sending your name and WhatsApp number to 08027989737.
- TACEF NYSC: If you are currently serving, you are expected to join the TACEF NYSC WhatsApp group by sending your name and WhatsApp number to 08028363467.
- TACEF FRESH GRADUATES or TACEF POST-NYSC: If you completed your NYSC in the last two years, you are expected to join TACEF POST-NYSC WhatsApp group by sending your name and number to 08028363467

TACEF Sons of Purpose Mandate, Activities and Meeting Schedule

The Sons of Purpose (SOP) Fellowship is a leadership and discipleship initiative for active TACEF members aged 16–30, aimed at grooming the next generation of ministry leaders who are spiritually-rooted, practically-skilled, life-enabled, career-motivated, impact-driven and ministry-ready.

Sons of Purpose seeks to build young TACEFites who are rooted in Christ, with demonstrated excellence in life and work, and ready to serve as agents of revival in local churches, campuses, workplaces, and communities. The program builds a bridge from the Seed of Purpose formation for children to an adolescent and young adult pathway that develops spiritual depth, holy character, life skills, and leadership capacity. The SOP discipleship and leadership development plan is intentionally curated as a whole-life template and incubation channel with advanced practices and responsibilities through a series of developmental self-paced learning, accompanying assignment, and regular strategic peer engagement meetings during general ministry events or any approved allocated time. The goal is to equip young adults to be effective agents of revival who are gracefully carved and polished to achieve excellence in all areas of life, mirroring Paul's words in second Timothy 3:17b, ".....be thoroughly furnished unto all good works".

The meeting time is every Saturday of the month. For more information, please contact Bro. Omololu on 07034525833 or Bro. Adeola on 08136412026.

Welcome Back Program for TACEF NYSC Brethren

Are you just returning from NYSC and seeking how to integrate?

Do you need a career support?

You do not need to worry.

TACEF Ambassadors have a special “Welcome Back Program” for you.

This program is specially designed to provide you with all the necessary support you need to kick start your career on an excellent path.

Please send your name and number to Bro. Bosun on 08028363467

All you need to know about TACEF Prayer Ministry and the Upper Room (the Intercession Ministry)

- (1) Prayer ministry remains a functional ministry just like the Bible study ministry which meets every Sunday like Prayer does.
- (2) Prayer ministry members also serve in other units since prayer units is not a service ministry like Registration, Accommodation, Kitchen etc.
- (3) Prayer ministry will now be structured as follows:
 - a. Prayer ministry members operating in local fellowships, zones and at national level
 - b. Intercessors/Upper Room: centralized special intervention prayer group for critical issues, emergencies and daily intercession for the vision. Each intercessor has specific day of the week dedicated to the vision.

NB- you can be part of A and not part of B

- (4) The prayer ministry will continue to mobilize all TACEFites into the culture of word-based prayers and will increase focus on seed of purpose, campus and local fellowships.

TACEF Career & Business Showcase

"A City Set on a Hill" (Matthew 5:14–16)

The TACEF Career & Business Showcase is a structured platform designed to identify, validate, and promote the professional and business capabilities within the fellowship.

It enables intentional patronage among members, strengthens trust-based relationships, and positions TACEFites as credible kingdom professionals operating as light in their industries.

This is not just a directory but a platform for visibility, credibility, and patronage enablement system for mutual growth and kingdom impact.

Core Vision

Many TACEFites pray for opportunities while being surrounded by answers to those prayers through many other members who need their services or who can recommend them to others.

This initiative exists to:

- Unlock hidden economic value within the fellowship
- Strengthen relationships beyond spiritual gatherings
- Build a community economy rooted in trust and excellence
- Position members as credible kingdom professionals
- Encourage shared prosperity within the body

Strategic Framework

The programme operates across three simple but powerful layers:

- (1) Discovery – “Who can do what?": Structured capture of members' skills, professions, and businesses.
- (2) Validation – “Can we trust the service: Credibility established through references, portfolios, and testimonials.
- (3) Visibility – “How do people find them?: Simple, consistent channels to enable discovery and patronage.

Programme Architecture

1. Central Data Collection (Google Form): A structured onboarding form capturing:

- Personal and contact details
- Business and service information
- Value proposition (problem solved and differentiation)
- Visual portfolio (images, videos, links)
- Client references and testimonials
- Certifications (where applicable)
- Service availability and indicative pricing

2. Primary Distribution Channel – WhatsApp (“TACEF Marketplace”): WhatsApp will serve as the main engagement and visibility channel like we have TACEF job sharing platform by TACEF ambassadors.

- Weekly Showcase Drops: 1–2 featured members presented in a consistent, high-quality format
- Category-Based Showcases (Monthly): Integrated into the monthly professional fellowship meetings as a "Business Spotlight Time", when different categories of brethren are jointly showcased for awareness (Finance/Tax/Business set-up and Consulting; Construction and Real Estate; Food and Catering; Creative and Events; and Technology and Digital Services

(3) Central Directory (Digital Repository)

A simple but effective repository for access and continuity in the form of Google Sheet directory; Google Drive portfolio folders and possible Notion page or simple website for enhanced browsing

(4) Quality and Trust Layer: Sustained credibility will be driven by:

- Verified service records and delivery consistency
- Member feedback and referrals
- Testimony culture (e.g., “I found my architect in TACEF”)
- Peer recommendation and accountability

(5) Governance Principles: in order to maintain spiritual integrity and long-term value, the platform will be guided by excellence over hype; integrity over profit; and service over exploitation

All participants will align with the commitment: “I commit to represent Christ through excellence, honesty, and fairness in all services rendered.”

(6) Expected Outcomes

- Increased intra-fellowship patronage
- Stronger economic bonds within TACEF
- Visibility of members as trusted professionals
- A living testimony of kingdom collaboration and excellence
- Building wealth and achieving financial sustainability with the great house

Are you called into full-time or part-time ministry in The African Church?

Are you a TACEFites who is in ministry in The African Church?

Join MOTA -Missionary on The Altar

It is now compulsory for every TACEFite who wants to go into ministry to go through a preliminary review and ongoing mentoring programme before the formal registration at the College of Theology.

Those in full-time ministry must also do annual self-evaluation check-up on their service and walk with God through an annual assessment programme and accountability partners.

As the mandate press forward into the years ahead, the Lord will be drawing more attention to Missionary on The Altar, as it pleases the Lord there will be special retreat and seminars.

TACEF VISION/MANDATE

Raising an army with a vision of revival through focused discipleship, prayer and the ministry of the Word; to groom a generation of Godly and heaven-conscious youths and adults who are conformed to the image of Christ and to live each day to promote the purpose of God in The African Church and advance the cause of evangelism/revival to the world at large. The fellowship is raised to be the "repairer of the breach", "to build the old waste places" and "to raise the foundation of many generations". (Isa 58 vs 12).

It is important to know and note that:

1. TACEF/TACESF is not an association, society or an ordinary group, it is a heavenly calling.
2. TACEF/TACESF is not a gathering of youths, but a gathering of God's end-time army: students and non-students of all age groups learning under the tutelage of the Spirit of God.
3. TACEF has a revival mandate to The African Church and will remain committed to serving God's will in the Church.

Our motivation is that we strongly believe that The African Church is at the threshold of a great revival in the dispensation of God and we are fully persuaded that the Lord is equipping the Church for the end-time revival.

Our prayers and pursuit therefore shall continue to be the promotion of the purpose of God in The African Church. We shall continue in prayers and the ministry of the word, as we trust the Lord for a season of total spiritual awakening. We trust the Lord that in all of our local churches, the Word of God will take pre-eminence, and the Spirit of the Lord will dominate. We believe the Lord for a rekindled passion for the dying souls under the grip of the evil one and a renewed pursuit of holiness without which no man shall see the Lord.
